PRINCE VISITS OUT OF WORK MINERS

INFLUENZA TAKING BIG TOLL IN SEVERAL BRITISH CITIES

Sad-Faced Women With Babies Watch the Prince of Wales On Visit of Investigation in North

Cold and Snow Accentuates Condition of Miners in England Who Have Been Out of Work a Long Time

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, Jan. 29.—The Prince of Wales today began his personal inspection of the distressed mining regions of the north of England, in which the men have been out of work owing to the slackness of the coal business. Bleak weather with an early snow turning into a miserably cold rain accentuated the conditions which the prince found in numerous cottages, lined up in dreary rows between slag heaps.

The prince's car went through the narrow streets of the town of Blydon without attracting attention until it stopped at the Labor Exchange. There sad-faced women clutching to their breasts wan babies wrapped in shawls gazed silently as the prince talked to the men who hung about the exchanges seeking employment more from habit than from the hope of getting it.

"God bless him," murmured men and women, who for months upon months had been blessed only with want and hunger. "Maybe he will be able to help us."

Pattullo Defends Action of the Late Government Regard Loans Ruled Out-of-Order by Speaker

VICTORIA, Jan. 29.—When the legislature resumed on Monday afternoon, Opposition Leader Pattullo, on the question of privilege, raised objection to statements made last week by Minister of Finance Shelly in connection with the sale of the provincial securities by the late government. Mr. Pattullo objected to Mr. Shelly's statement that the government of which Mr. Pattullo had been a member had sold the securities by private award.

Opposition Leader Pattullo contended that of the $18,000,000 sold, according to the minister of finance, the greater part was classified as P.G.E. collateral stock and that the six months notes were really treasury notes, or amounts awarded in addition to the awards of larger amounts placed by tender. Mr. Pattullo declared that even if these were sold by private tender the late government placed $80,000,000 by calling for competitive bids.

He moved that the house regretted that the minister of finance had a wrong impression with respect to the financial dealings of the former government, following a debate in which it was contended by the government members that the opposition leader was out of order and not entitled to raise the point on privilege. The speaker ruled the motion out of order.

The rest of the session was occupied by the interior members speaking on the address.

The Lions scored in the second and third periods.

IS MONEY EVERYTHING

Money is doubtless very useful, but we are a little inclined to look upon it as the only thing that counts in this life. In our mad efforts to make money we lose much of the real joy of living.

Then comes a poet who turns our thoughts away from the whirl of business toward the beauties of nature. He sees the real essence of things and crystallizes them into being so that ordinary people may catch glimpses of them. That is poetry's contribution to life.

THE ENGLISH LABOR PARTY
 (Montreal Evening Journal)

There were lively times at a recent labor meeting in Glasgow, stronghold of that section of the party which goes by the name of "Clydesiders." Arthur Henderson, J. Wheatley and David Kirkwood were to speak. When they appeared on the platform, there were roars of derision and shouts of "spy," "murderer," "traitor." Kirkwood, who has figured in many a turbulent scene in the Mother of Parliaments, leaped from the platform, took off his spectacles and buttoned up his coat in a significant way. The stewards got around him and persuaded him to go back.

A minute later, the disturbance began again, and Kirkwood again rushed into the crowd, calling out: "I am going to be in it." The police threw out a few communists. The choir sang "Scots Wha Hae," and the communists retorted with their "International," and a joyful time ensued. There were 17 arrests.

The incident suggests that all is not harmony in England's labor ranks. This is inconvenient from a party point of view, and perhaps it clouds prospects of victory at the general election next summer. The breach between socialists and communists grows wider. The aim of the two are identical; but they differ as to methods. The communists wish to bring about the millennium at once and by violent means; the socialists are for parliamentary action. What puzzles a looker-on is that the communists should denounce constitutional methods, and still send men to parliament. But who looks for consistency in statesmen?

SPARRING FOR ADVANTAGE

This constant sparring for advantage of the United States and Canada is a constant cause of friction. If only the people of both countries would agree to eliminate the tariff or cut it down to a minimum on a number of commodities in which both countries are interested, it would be better for everyone concerned. This constant possibility of change is very unsettling to business.

Another question is that of bonding privileges. Suppose anything were done to interfere with the free right of bonding goods through one country to another, there would be no end to the dislocation of trade. With half the Canadian wheat crop shipped through the States, think what it would mean to the country to the south if the flow of that wheat were stopped.

Unfortunately Prince Rupert happens to be right in the war area, because of the fish bonding which takes place through the port. If it were stopped there would at once be strong pressure brought on the government at Ottawa to stop all Canadian grain going south and insist that it go out through Canadian ports.

What is needed today is more freedom of trade instead of constant restrictions. If the United States cannot agree to more freedom, then Canada must fight her own battles in her own way. Constant increases in the tariff mean constant discontent at the present situation on both sides.

39 WOMEN IN DEATH CHAMBER

Excavators in Ur of the Chaldees Successful in Exploring Tomb of a King

GOLD DAGGERS FOUND

Body of Woman Buried With Her Servant Men and Maid is Discovered

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—An ancient cemetery in Ur of the Chaldees has given up to the joint expedition of the university of Pennsylvania Museum and British Museum additional information concerning the burial rites of Sumerian royalty 5,000 years ago. Many objects of gold and silver, of priceless archaeological value, also have been found.

In reporting the resumption of work by the joint expedition, C. Leonard Woolley, the director, in a letter made public here, said the new discoveries included gold daggers, a cylinder seal inscribed "Mes-Kalum-Dug the King," a painted clay pot belonging to a pre-historic civilization, a copper head believed to be from the statue of a god, gold head-dresses, rings, beads and silver vessels. The copper head was said to have been the first object of its kind found in Ur.

The objects were uncovered in the cemetery where the expedition in 1927 and 1928 discovered several oval graves, including the tomb of Queen Shub-Ad, and where work was begun again about two months ago at the opening of the seventh season of excavations in Mesopotamia.

Mr. Woolley reported that grave robbers, house builders and layers of drains had "played havoc" with the upper levels of the cemetery, but that it had been possible to observe as never before the vertical relations between successive strata.

"At the bottom," Woolley said, "we found, not the tomb chamber of the King, which must lie under the soil not yet excavated, but the death pit inseparable from it. In this open part of the shaft measuring less than twenty by ten feet there were crowded the bodies of 39 women and one man lying in more or less ordered rows.

"Another shaft opened more sensationally with the discovery of a wooden box containing two daggers with gold blades and gold-studded handles and a cylinder seal inscribed "Mes-Kalem-Dug the King." This King, one must suppose, was a relative of the Prince Mes-Kalem-Dug whose gold helmet was one of the most spectacular finds of last season.

Coffin Buried

"Immediately below the box came a coffin burial with stone and copper vessels and a mass of clay vessels extending over the whole brick building which was found to occupy the pit. Then were found more layers of votive pots and more subsidiary burials, all separated by floors of beaten clay or by strata of clean earth. In opposite corners there appeared heaps of ashes and wood, while lower down were clay cooking pots and animal bones which were the relics of a funeral feast or sacrifice made in the pit itself.

"There were in a subterranean chamber six bodies, of which four were men-servants or soldiers, and the fifth a serving-maid, while the sixth body was that of the woman in whose honor the tomb had been built. Here we found the more or less conventional head-dress of gold ribbons and leaves, beads, ear-rings and finger-rings, and a pin of unusual type which is very long and of solid gold.

"The bodies in the tomb had been covered with some sort of a wooden canopy and lay on a brick floor above a terra-cotta drain. The outer court of the tomb has yet to be dug. We know only that outside the stone blocking on the door there were set clay pots of food and the carcass of a sheep. Whether there were other human sacrifices it is impossible to say, but at least we have the servants in the tomb, and, in the filling-in of the shaft, tier above tier of food vessels and meat offerings and human skeletons. The burial rites were elaborate indeed and the precise meaning of them is likely to remain a matter of conjecture for a long time.

Baby Princess

"Other rich graves have been unearthed. One, which might be called the grave of the baby Princess, contained the body of an infant and with it a gold head-dress which was almost a replica in miniature of that worn by Queen Shub-Ad. In the same grave was found a set of miniature silver vessels, including a tumbler and bowls, which seemed pathetically appropriate.

"Another most interesting discovery was that of a harp. The woodwork of the instrument had decayed and disappeared, but luckily workmen noticed the holes which it had left in the soil, and by filling these with plaster of Paris we obtained a complete cast of the harp's body to which was attached the bull's head of copper inlaid with lapis lazuli.

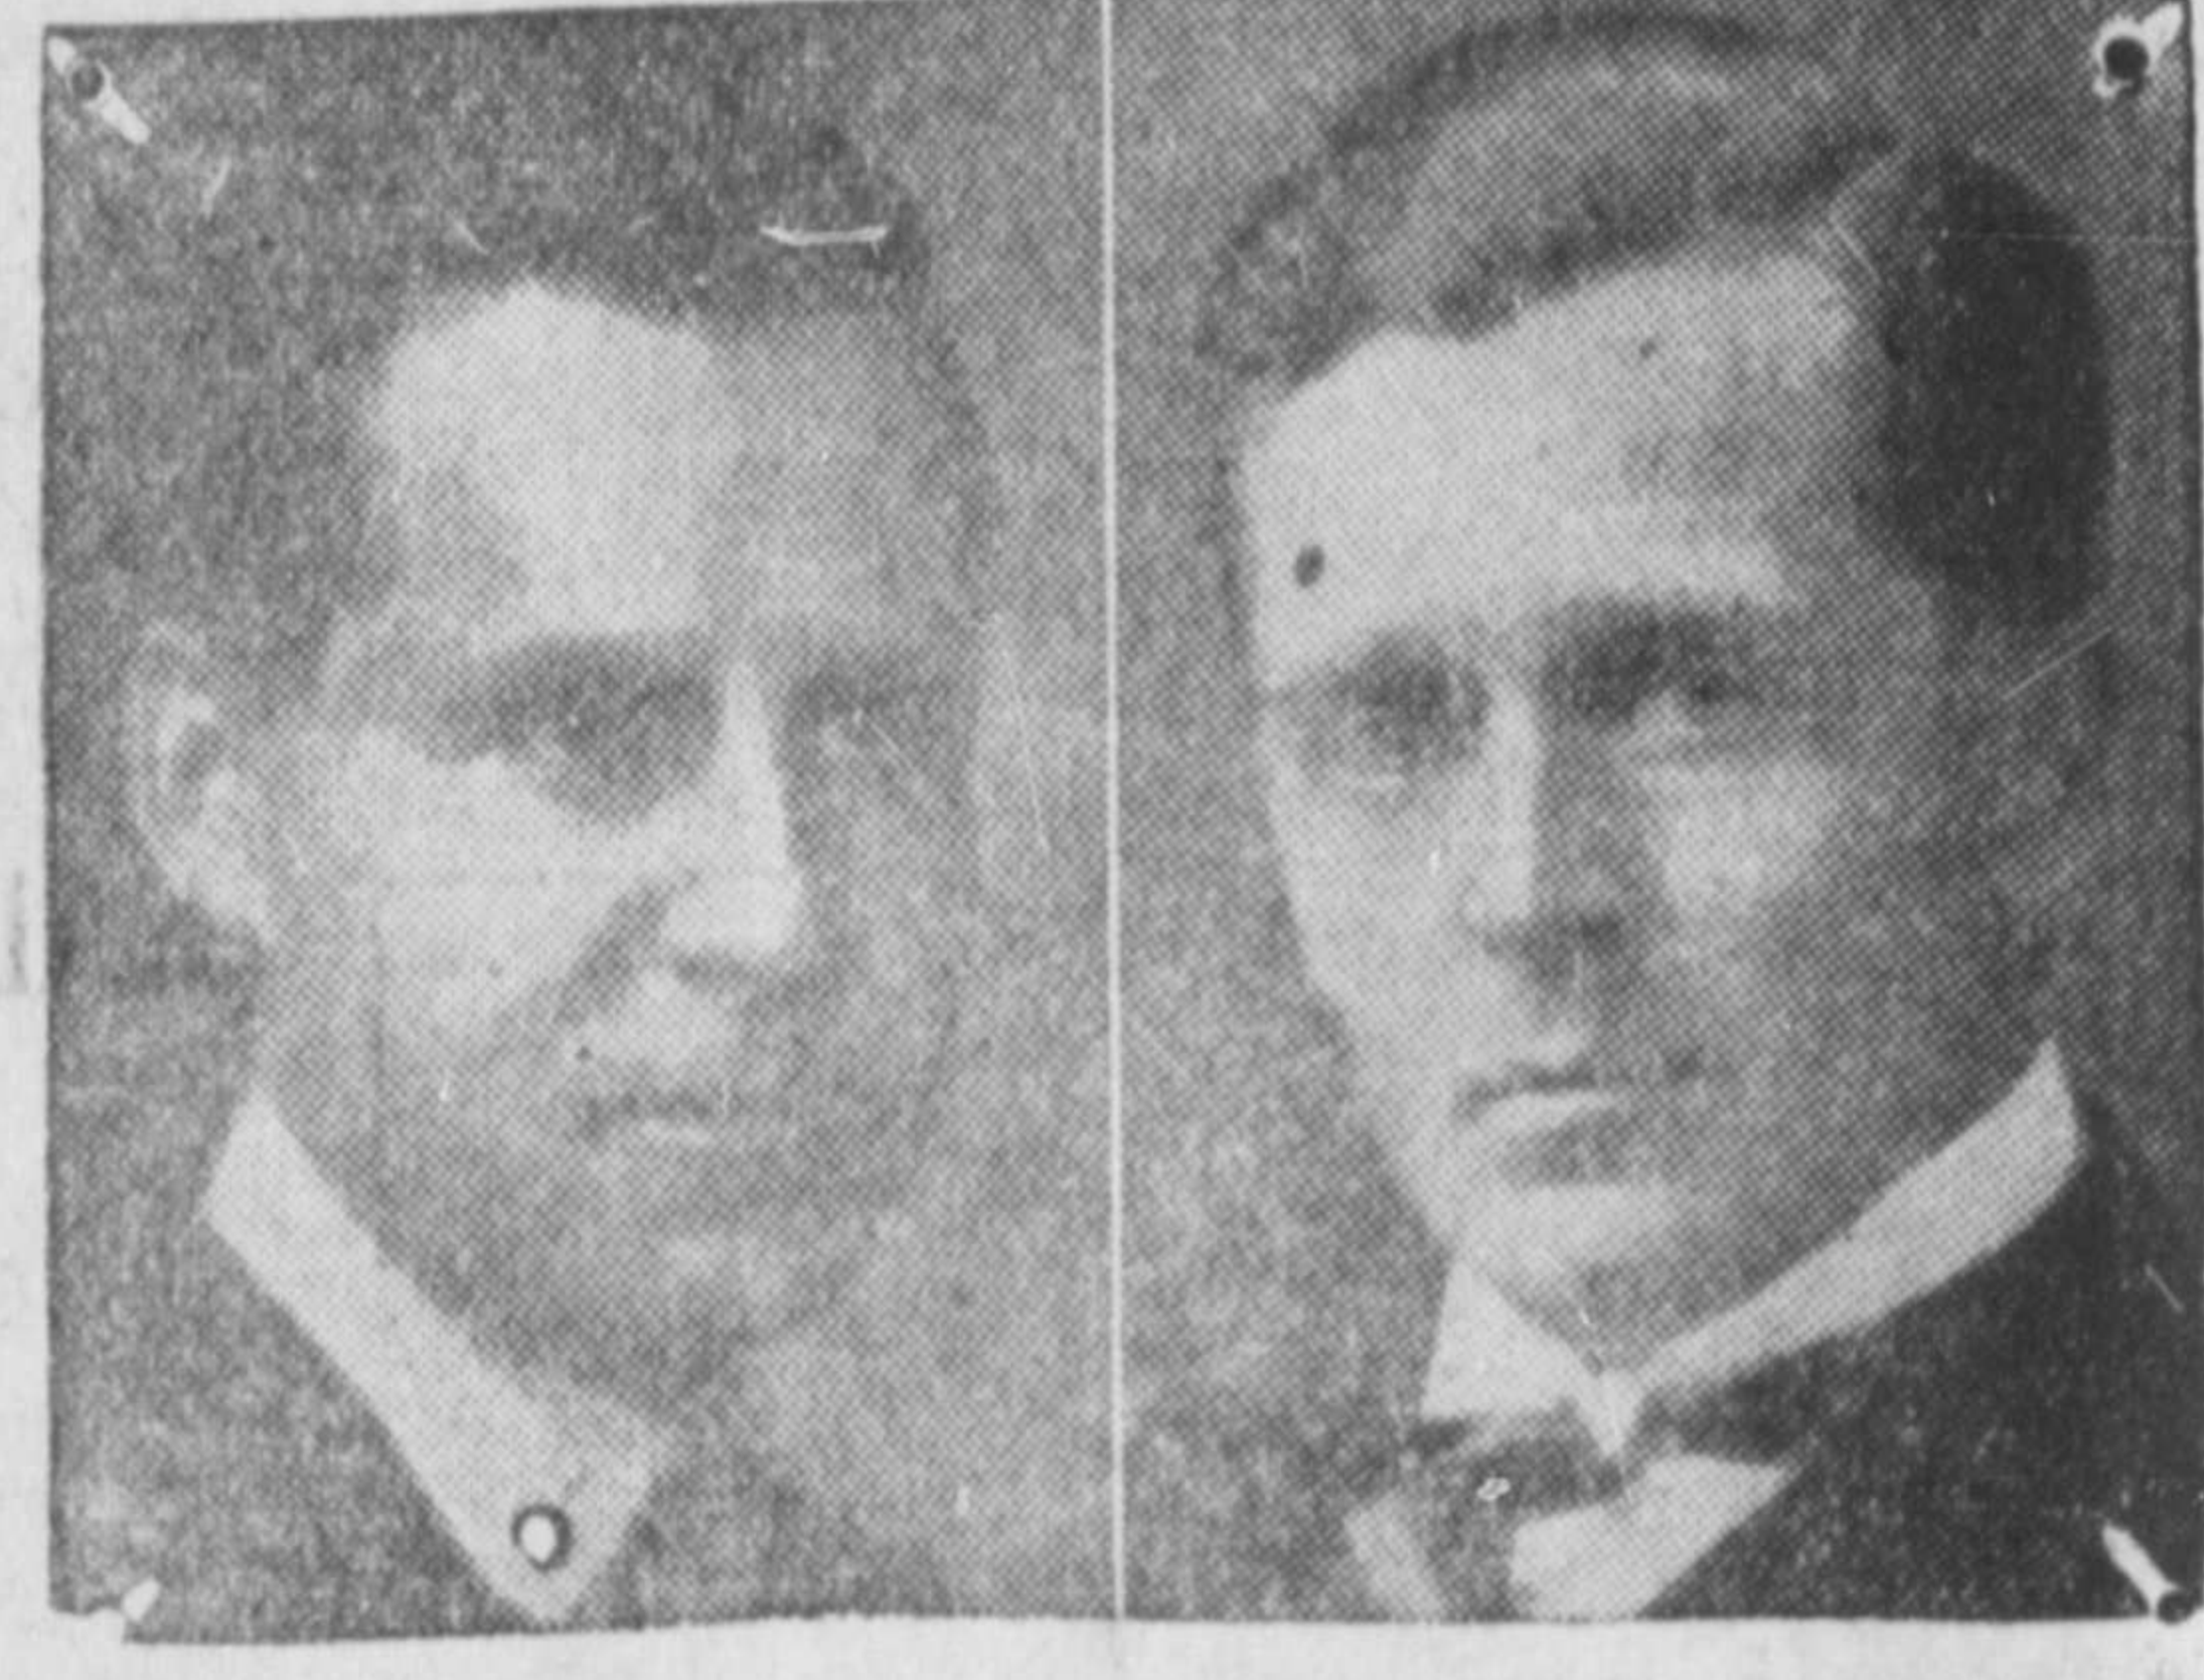

"The most astonishing thing was the fact that when the earth was carefully cut away to expose the cast there were found surviving lines of white fibrous powder the ten cat-gut string of the harp.

"Prominent among our other finds are a copper statue-head, possibly a god, having a human face and the horns and ears of a bull, and a painted clay pot, which is the first complete one of its kind found at Ur. Painted pots of this type belong to an earlier pre-historic civilization. "We are just starting on the low stratum where, according to last year's experience and the indication of this season's work, the best tombs may be expected."

GYPNUM IN NOVA SCOTIA

Gypsum was mined in Nova Scotia as early as 1829, but it is in recent years that the industry has had its most remarkable expansion. The present output of over 800,000 tons annually is more than three times that of all the rest of Canada.

The Advisory Council of the Civil Service Superannuation Act for the first time recently when V. C. Phalen (left), President of the Civil Service Federation of Canada, was made Secretary, and C. F. Plaxton, K.C. (right) of the Department of Justice, was elected Chairman of the Council. The functions of the committee will be to act in an advisory capacity on questions of a general nature in connection with the administration of the Civil Service Superannuation Act; specific questions which may be referred to the Treasury Board, and proposed amendments to the Superannuation Act and Regulations.

1916	$42,200,000
1927	$67,100,000
Production increase 1916-1927
$24,898,380	58.9%

The World's treasure house!

TWENTY years' mining in British Columbia have yielded nearly 800-million dollars. The last ten years have increased production by 58.9 per cent.

The value of all Canada's production is $25.70 per citizen, British Columbia's production today, if distributed, would mean $111.96 per person annually! Our mined and treated tonnage of metalliferous ores reached a record of more than 5-million tons for 1927.

The value of the mining industry to the Province is in the distribution of money in wages, supplies, transportation services, etc. And in this respect, 1927 was a record year!

The 14,000 employees of the mining industry were paid wages totalling 23 million dollars . . . or nearly $1,700 each . . . the highest average for any Canadian Province.

During the year, distribution of eight million dollars was made in dividends!

British Columbia mines approximately 40 million dollars worth of copper, zinc and lead, a year . . . more than the rest of Canada. In gold and silver, our production ranks second . . . in coal, third; our total annual mining production today being exceeded only by Ontario.

Sound legislation, good mining laws and low fees have encouraged this development and stimulated growth. Although the provincial mining area has only been superficially prospected within the transportation belt, new fields are developing, new roads and trails constantly being built.

Chattering drills sink deeper and deeper into the hills . . . heavy ores rumble through the concentrators . . . fortunes come tumbling from the treasure chest of British Columbia! What was once only imagined about our mining potentialities, is now proven knowledge. Mining has become our third largest industry . . . showing over 67 million dollars revenue a year . . . proof that prosperity flourishes in British Columbia.

Capital from Eastern Canada, the United States, Great Britain, France . . . seeks investment. Our great wealth of production, developing so steadily during the past ten years, has established confidence and aroused keen interest in British Columbia's mining future the world over.

RADIO LICENSE IS DISCUSSED

Edmonton Paper Objects To Individual Paying but Would Pass it On

(Edmonton Journal)

Ottawa announces that 250,000 owners of radio sets have paid the one dollar demanded for the annual license fee, but feels that there are at least 100,000 more who have dodged this little tax. "Dodge" may be an unnecessarily harsh word to use in describing those who have not secured federal licenses during the past year. Probably nine-tenths of the defaulters have simply forgotten to go to the nearest radio dealer to get the permit. They mean to do it; but usually think about it when home again and turning the dials on their set.

It has been difficult to see why the radio branch of the federal government hit on the annual license plan in the first place. Licensing an auto is quite a different matter. There the absence of the license plate is at once noticed, for the auto is out and about on the public highways where all may see it, and the forgetful owner is promptly checked up. The radio set is in a different category. It is behind the closed doors of the home. Sufficient inspectors to check up on all the estimated 350,000 sets in the Dominion would more than eat up the $350,000 revenue the Dominion should receive from this source.

Is this not one of those cases where the license or the tax should be collected from the manufacturer or the importer? And an even fairer system would put the tax on the number of tubes in a radio set and not on the set itself. At present, the youngster who makes a little crystal set out of a dollar's worth of material, is supposed to pay just as big a license fee as the owner of a $1200 eight-tube super. That hardly seems just. On the other hand, if tubes were taxed, at say 25 cents each, the crystal set users would pay nothing, while the eight-tube super would be taxed two dollars. As tubes are not likely to last more than a year or two, there would be almost a yearly tax.

Another feature that makes the tax on tubes preferable to a yearly license, is that all users of radio, except the crystal set fans, would contribute automatically to the federal department. With manufacturers and importers paying the tax, costs of collection would be lower than at present. Revenue on the face of it would be increased, for if there are 350,000 radio sets in the Dominion in use today, given an average of three tubes to each set, the yearly tax would be around $265,000 if the tax per tube was set as low as 25 cents. This special tax, of course, would be in addition to any import duties now levied.

Possible methods of licensing or taxation are to be considered by the federal radio commission now at work. The suggestion, for what it is worth, is passed on to his investigating body and to the department of marine and fisheries, radio branch.

INCREASING SIZE OF BRITISH AUDIENCES

LONDON, Jan. 29.—When Premier Baldwin addressed a political meeting at Newcastle on Tyne a few days ago his speech was relayed to five other towns where audiences were assembled and who heard the address. It was the first time this had been attempted.

The British Broadcasting Company is to broadcast a debate in which the three leaders of the great political parties will face the microphone.

AT BRIDGE

Husband (testily, after going down badly at bridge)—You might have guessed I had no heart, partner.

Wife—Quite, but I thought you had a brain, darling!—The Windsor.

The little electric train shown in this picture is controlled entirely by sounds of the voice. Mr. W. W. Jones of the General Electric Company is demonstrating the new toy. One only has to say "Back up" and the train will start in reverse. "Stop" brings the engine to a halt, and some such phrase as "Get along there" will start it forward. The secret lies in a one-two-three relay coupled to the microphone. It will understand any language if spoken clearly.

CLEANING UP LOCAL RADIO

Trouble in the City Being Abated to Some Extent Through Local Efforts

During the past week considerable efforts have been made to stop local interference with radio reception and a good deal of improvement has resulted. Condensers have been placed on all the downtown furnaces that are known to have been annoying and other steps have been taken in efforts to abate the nuisance.

J. J. Little, superintendent of the utilities department, has done a good deal and radio fans owe a great deal to him for his efforts in this direction. There has been pretty good reception during several evenings. Last night far-away stations were heard, such as Denver, St. Louis, and a number of others. Edmonton came in strong and Calgary also was good. It was possible to get stations almost anywhere on the dial, especially those across

HEARS MOSCOW ON LOCAL SET

By means of a short wave radio receiving set which he had made, W. W. Wrathall was able to hear a broadcast from Moscow a few nights ago. While the language was not intelligible, he says, he plainly heard the name of the station.

The annoying thing about trying to get far-away stations is that just as they are located and the fan is anxious to hear the announcement some "squealer" tunes in and spoils it.

At present television and picture broadcasting are not permitted in the broadcast band between 550 and 1600 kilocycles, except upon formal authority from the commission and then only between 1 and 6 a.m.

AROUND PRINCE RUPERT

Woodbine Mine to Cease Operations; Marmot Gold Approaching Main Vein; Rich Ore at Georgia River

Finis is evidently about to be written to operations by the present company at least on the hectically famous Woodbine mine at Stewart. Directors of the Woodbine Gold Mining Co., after considering a diamond drilling report from Stewart & Batten, consulting engineers, and following their recommendations, have instructed the engineers to discontinue all operations on the property with the exception that a small amount of work will be done in test-

EXTRA JUROR IS PROPOSED

WINNIPEG, Jan. 29.—Merits of the thirteen-man jury for lengthy trials are being considered by judges of Manitoba's court of King's Bench. Two incidents during the current assizes have occasioned "informal discussions" on this point, which may eventually result in acceptance of the extra-juror system. Recently a trial of a criminal case was postponed owing to illness of a juror, and in another case a new trial was ordered by the court of appeal when defense counsel established mental incompetence of one of the jurors.

It is claimed that at least one, and possibly both, of these situations might have been avoided under the 13-man system. The change, if brought into effect, would involve amendment to the Jury Act, a provincial statute which could be changed by the legislature. The thirteenth juror would sit at the hearing of the evidence, but the verdict would be returned by twelve. The extra juror would act in case of illness of one of the twelve.

The face of No. 1 tunnel on the Marmot River Gold Mines is now in silicified porphyry indicating close proximity to the main vein condition, states the latest report from the property. This work is being pushed forward under difficult climatic conditions and plans are being made to rush in gasoline and mining supplies early in February in order to push underground development work by machinery as rapidly as possible.

The tunnel on the main vein at the Georgia River mine on Portland Canal, near Stewart, is being rushed ahead as rapidly as possible and results of the developments to date are exactly as anticipated. More quartz and heavier mineralization are appearing in the vein as work proceeds. This tunnel is being driven for the purpose of opening up both the main and southeast veins at their intersection below the occurrence of high-grade ore in the cross-cut and on the surface. The ore from the southeast vein at this point yields over 10 ounces or $200 in gold per ton, while probably, the richest ore in the district was taken from the main vein at the same place. Proving this ore at depth will constitute one of the most important developments in the history of Stewart camp.

COLD WEATHER AMELIORATING

Barometer Dropping Here and Wind Moves To Southeast; Temperatures Generally Lower

With the wind changing to the southeast and the barometer dropping, an amelioration was promised this morning after Prince Rupert's coldest snap of the winter. The impending thaw is appreciated by those who had their water pipes frozen up, though it may not be quite so welcome to those who have been taking much enjoyment out of skating during the past few days. The Dominion meteorologist, H. D. Tee, Digby Island, reports that the lowest thermometer reading for last night was 14 above, which was recorded at 4 o'clock this morning. The night before last it was as low as 8 above.

All points in the government telegraph weather report this morning reported higher temperature readings than the day previous with the exception of Terrace, which registered zero, as compared with 2 above on Monday morning. Following is today's weather report:

Prince Rupert—Clear, light southeast wind; temperature 16.
Terrace—Clear, strong north wind, zero.
Rosswood—Clear, calm, -4.
Aiyansh—Clear, calm, -12.

FARM ANIMAL CENSUS

The number of animals in Canada in 1928 was shown as 12,533 oxen, 14,732 young cattle, 22,748 cows, 28,022 sheep, and 28,502 swine. Governor Carleton in his report on manufacturers mentions wool industry as one of the most important.

PROPHESIES FALL SOVIET GOVERNMENT WITHIN THREE YEARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Conditions in Russia are becoming worse instead of better under the Soviet regime, according to Alexander Konavalon, Minister of Commerce under the short-lived Kerensky rule, who has been making his observations from Paris. He arrived on the French liner Rochambeau, plead with various American institutions and individuals for education of the children of the Russian emigres. Looking at the Russian rule from the outside, Konavalon sees the fall of the Soviet Republic within three years. The new government, he said, would be a democratic one and the party in command would probably be that of Paul Milionkoff, also a Paris resident.
