Biplane Flying Boat Arrives and Spends Week End Prince Rupert Leaving Last Night for Ketch kan

Expedition on Way to Nome and Capt. McCarthy Talks About Plans of the Company He Represents

Blazing an air trail from Seattle to Nome, a trim Boeing biplane flying boat arrived in Prince Rupert from the south about dusk on Saturday evening and spent the weekend here. On board were three intrepid aviators and two charming lady companions. The ladies, incidentally, are the first who have ever flown from end to end of the British Columbia coast and on into Alaska. It is the first time in the history of aviation on this coast that a plane has ventured north so early in the season. All on board

Constitutional Question is Raised at Dublin and Will Go Before the Imperial Council

LONDON, March 18.—It has been revealed at Dublin that at the time the British government announced its intention of appointing a council of state to function for the King during his illness, President Cosgrave protested, on the ground that other nations of the British Commonwealth should be consulted. He protested that the council should not include politicians or notables, but only members of the royal family. Consequently, papers re-

Appreciation

Prince Rupert, B.C., March 18, 1929.

TO THE PUBLIC:-

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking our patrons for the generous support they have given us in the past, and more particularly during the sale which commenced on Friday and is continuing until the end of this month.

We have re-opened our store and have on display a very wide range of smart new models, which we shall be glad to show our friends whenever they care to call. Owing to the tremendous rush during Friday and Saturday, it was impossible to give the personal service we should have liked to each customer.

We intend to remain in business in Prince kupert, maintaining a smart line of Ladies' Wear at the lowest possible prices, and solicit a continuance of your patronage in the future.

Yours very truly,

Richmond's Louvre
