> Prosperity Everywhere Possibly the most outstanding feature of the whole Peace River country is the evidence of prosperity everywhere. Houses and barns are painted, every farmer has a car, usually of up-to-the-minute make; there is a ready sale for the latest in farm machinery. All this indicates wealth. Large wheat fields stretch in every direction. We saw a solid field of 300 acres that we were told would thresh forty bushels to the acre and grade not less than No. 2. That field is worth at least $12,000 as it stands.

But there were also failures. Here and there we ran across fields that possibly would not yield more than ten or fifteen bushels to the acre. Some farms were not as good as others and some farmers did not cultivate as well as others. The result was evident in the crop. All the wheat had been cut and was swaths and then picked up by the in stook. Only a few farmers were same machine and threshed. This threshing.
