OLD COUNTRY POLITICS NOW SEETHES COMMUNIST PLOT IN INDIA TO SET UP SOVIET CHECKED

British Labor Leader Issues a Challenge to Communists Stay in Fight Against Him in Seaham

NEW PROVINCE PROPOSED

During the third week of June the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia will be held in Prince Rupert and on that occasion it is suggested that the proposal may be made to form a separate province for Northern British Columbia.

Should it be found by that time that the government at Victoria is still taking no step toward building the highway out of Prince Rupert there is no doubt strong support for the movement would come from residents of this city.

There are many who think that if Northern and Central British Columbia had charge of her own affairs she would make much greater progress. The matter will doubtless receive careful consideration before the time of the big convention.

Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay Macdonald Says Labor Will Have Policy to Do Away With Unemployment and to Care For Those Not Working

SEAHAM, Durham, March 22.—"In the name of Moscow, or whatever you hold sacred, do not by your actions mix me with your disastrous policies. Do not allow Tories or Liberals to say we are mixed up with Communists," Ramsay Macdonald said in addressing an election meeting here.

Mr. Macdonald is the Labor candidate for Seaham in the general elections. The remark came during reference to the prospective Communist candidate, Harry Pollitt, in opposition to himself. "My gloves are off," said Mr. Macdonald, "I beg you to go on with the fight and keep your candidate in the field."

"At the very first cabinet meeting we will begin to tackle the unemployment problem in all its details," said Mr. Macdonald. "Labor plans," he said, "would involve a double policy to secure, first, that all men were employed, and, second, to pay them insurance if they were not employed."

Foil-wrapped and protected

Here's a little drama my friend Caruthers recited the other day. "I used to buy 3 or 4 cigars at a time. I'd smoke one right off—one after lunch. By five o'clock I'd want another, so I'd go into my pocket, and perhaps find one cracked, the other totally wrecked. I said to myself, 'Bill, that's wrong!' So when I saw Tucketts were putting up Pocket Packs of 5 Marguerites, foil wrapped and protected, I was converted to a '5-at-a-timer.'"

HALIBUT FISHING VESSEL OWNERS STATE POSITION

Editor, Daily News:—

That Mr. Brady has dared to take a stand at Ottawa in the interests of a class of men who compose the largest unit of his constituents and at the same time be consistent with the policy of the party to which he belongs, namely, "Protection for the Home Producer" seems to have caused quite a fervor at the same time emphasized the fact that like the "Poor" we still have the "Canadian Fishermen with us," in other words he has been able to stick, in face of the lack of appreciation received from those who depend largely upon his earnings for their sustenance.

You can spend our money on delegations for wheat and roads, but it gets back to the fact that the real back bone of this town is the "Canadian Fisherman."

It should be gratifying to all who earn their living from the sea to know that at last a man in public life has seen fit to champion their cause and I feel sure that all fishermen join with me in wishing him well.

As every one knows who reads; the Seattle Halibut Boat Owners recently made representation to Washington offering reasons why Ketchikan's request to have all fish landed in a Canadian port classed as dutiable should not be granted; at the same time, they requested that the duty of two cents per pound be retained on our fish. In other words, we have a representative body stressing the fact that the use of a foreign port is necessary to their existence and at the same time demanding that the fish caught by the residents of the port should be penalized when entering their country; or in other words saying to us, that so long as our Government is agreeable we will use your port at our pleasure and at the same time penalize the product of your labor when coming to our country. Not much give and take about that! Further they have our Government, representatives and business men sized up pretty well as no comment on the situation has been made by any representative person or body including the press, with the exception of Mr. Brady's recent stand, for which he has our thanks.

In order to get the duty off of our halibut it is not necessary to deprive the American fishermen of the use of this port and that thought is farthest from our mind, as the life of a fisherman is hard enough under most favorable conditions, and we do not wish to work undue hardship on our fellow workers, from the other side. It is only necessary for our Government to take the stand publicly that this arrangement must be a fifty-fifty basis and the Seattle Boat Owners will then go to Washington and ask that their Government approach ours and make an equitable treaty. However as long as we remain spineless enough to permit them to use our port and pay a duty on our own fish entering their country they are not going to remove same.

The Seattle organization represents ninety percent of the halibut caught in the United States, our exportations are only about a million and a half pounds, therefore there would be no question as to Washington's attitude if the request for the removal of the duty came from their fishermen.

This matter would have been settled years ago if the Board of Trade had not bucked the movement.

Boxes	$50,000.00
Ice	60,000.00
Ice	70,000.00
(of this about $12,000.00 is labor)
Total	$180,000.00

Of the $60,000.00 spent for boxes, the labor for the logs is largely spent outside of the town and that which goes for labor in town is largely Japs. Probably $20,000.00 is as much as the town gets out of the box money.

If our fishermen got two cents per pound more for their fish, it would mean about $150,000.00, which would be distributed among the fishermen. None of this would represent money spent for material, besides this would be the incentive for increasing the fleet both in number and quality.

So far as the railway goes they would get the business as it would be brought here from Ketchikan and the increased service between the two ports would have a tendency to increase other freight. Further the money paid for longshoring would be a considerable sum.

Let me again state that we do not wish to bar the American fishermen from this port but since it means so much to them (based on their own words) it would seem that the time has come for them to show their appreciation by asking their Government to remove the duty on our fish or our own Government should use the means they have to protect us.

Yours truly,
 DAVID RITCHIE,
 President Canadian Halibut Fishing Vessel Owners' Assoc.

U. S. AND WORLD COURT

It will be a great thing for the world if the United States decides to join the world court, an outcome of the League of Nations. It will be a step toward breaking the political isolation of America from world affairs.

It is now more apparent than ever before that no nation can live to itself. The business of every other nation is to a large extent the business of every individual nation. We saw that accentuated during the world war. A nation had to be for or against one or other of the combatants.

Britain will welcome U.S. to the world court if she decides to become a participant, and Canada, as part of the British Empire and prominent in the League of Nations, will add her welcome to a neighbor country.

MEETING HIGH TARIFF
(Winnipeg Free Press)

With some increase in the United States tariff in prospect, further restricting the marketing of farm products and possibly other Canadian products, Canada must consider what course she will take under the circumstances. It is suggested by some that Canada should retaliate by a sharp increase in her tariff on both factory and farm products, thus shutting out United States goods from this country. This would suit the high protectionists of the industrial centres of Ontario and Quebec, but it would not benefit the producers of the Prairie Provinces nor the Maritimes. Those are the sections likely to suffer most from the raising of the United States tariff, and they would simply suffer still more if Canada retaliated in the same way and incidentally caused a rise in prices for manufactured goods of all kinds in this country.

While there should be no disposition to throw favors in the way of the United States, there would be no sanity in a policy that would be injurious to large sections of this country. The tariff policy which has been followed in recent years is in the right direction because it aids and encourages the development of the whole country. That policy cannot be reversed without seriously retarding the progress which is now being made, because of the effect on primary industry.

HOW TO RUN ELECTIONS
(Victoria Times)

Whatever the people of democratic countries may think of Premier Mussolini, they will have to admit that his new method of electing the Chamber of Deputies is unique as a modern constitutional precedent.

At the opera house in Rome he gathered around him on one stage all the members of his cabinet and the Grand Council, together with all the candidates for the lower House of Parliament. These are the candidates, 400 in number, who have been endorsed by the Grand Council of the Fascist Party. They represent a single nation-wide ticket for a single party, and as such they go to the polls.

The new electoral law of Italy is simple and effective in its design. The removal of all visible opposition is its principal objective. That is to say, only those pledged to support the Fascist regime are allowed to become candidates for the Lower House, and they first of all must be approved by the Grand Council of the Party.

Needless to say, the gathering was a huge success from Mussolini's point of view. Four hundred candidates with but one single mind! Nothing could be simpler and, to prove it, Mussolini delivered the only campaign speech. We presume the main reason for holding an election at all is to furnish employment for Fascist stalwarts on polling day.

PRICE alone is no criterion of tire economy. Sea Cadet Training Advantages are Explained to Rotary Club by Lieut. Robt. Blance in Address

The sea cadets is not a military institution, but instead the boys who join are given an idea of sea life and discipline and helped physically, taught to get rid of the slouch, given a liking for the sea, and those who finish the course are able to take up the work of an able seaman, if they so wish, or to take up training for the position of an officer. This was the summary given by Lieutenant Robert Blance of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteers, who has charge of the local cadet corps, yesterday afternoon at the weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club, President George Rorie in the chair.

Mr. Blance gave an outline of the work of the cadets and the aims and objects of the organization in which the members of the club and visitors were much interested. In thanking him for his address, President Rorie said the members of the club were particularly interested in anything which made for the betterment of the young people and had learned a lot that day from the address they had heard.

Lieutenant Blance said the cadets were an outgrowth of the Navy League, an organization for creating an interest in naval affairs in Canada, and one which should appeal to the people of Prince Rupert, as a place destined to become one of the great world ports. He was one who believed that the future of Canada lay in her exports. If they had no transportation system to other countries they were at the mercy of the world and it was very desirable that their ships should not be manned by aliens.

One of the features of the cadet training, Mr. Blance explained, was discipline. The boys enjoyed military drill and took a keen interest in the setting up exercises. It had a moral effect on them. Waking upright often meant living upright. They trained boys to be prompt and do things cheerfully.

Parents found boys much improved and more prompt to do things cheerfully as the result of a few months' training. Military drill gave them an appreciation of law and order and without order people became a mob. In the sea cadets they were allowed to wear the uniform of the British navy and this taught them self respect. Many a boy refused to do things which would disgrace the uniform, the sign of fair play and freedom. It developed patriotism and the love of their country as well as co-operation and the desire to help each other.

Cleanliness and fairness were inculcated. They also had work to do such as learning knots and splices, seamanship, reading the compass, steering, the rule of the road at sea, the meaning of lights, visibility and courses and later they took up chart work. Rifle shooting was splendid training for the eye and mind and for control of the nerves.

The local cadet corps, now about 40 strong, had been formed two years ago. They had an annual camp in which they learned to swim. All the boys but one were now able to swim. Nineteen were taught the first year. The training filled a want not provided in the schools and gave them an idea of initiative and executive work.

HAIG WATCHED INDIAN ROPE

Sergeant Secrett Spoiled Show by Breaking Mesmeric Spell of Fakir

HORRIBLE REVENGE

Viper Used in Effort to Take Life of Man Who Spoiled the Show

LONDON, March 22:—Everybody has heard of the Indian rope trick, but is there anybody—any European at least—who can declare he has actually seen the trick done? The trick referred to, of course, is when an Indian conjurer throws a rope in the air. It seems to remain suspended. A boy climbs up—and vanishes. Some years ago a British newspaper discussed this fully and while it had plenty of Anglo-Indian correspondents who knew all about the trick and some had heard of plenty of people who were suspected to have seen it, yet nobody would declare that he had himself been a witness.

Interest in the subject is likely to be reawakened by a curious story told by Sergeant Secrett in his book, just published, "Twenty-Five Years with Earl Haig." For this period Secrett was the late Field-Marshal's personal attendant. He served him thus in South Africa, in India, right through the War, and to within a short time of his death. One evening in India Secrett was riding with Haig, when on coming to a clearing they found a fakir, with a huge crowd of natives around him. The fakir uncoiled a long rope and stood up.

"Secrett, he's going to do the much-disputed rope trick, I believe," said 'Sir Douglas. 'Come along, we must have a look at this.'

"We drew in near to the crowd and the attention of the hearers was immediately diverted to the British General. The fakir seemed to be offended and at once began to pack up his 'props.' Sir Douglas asked him to continue, but he refused, mumbling something about the necessity of everybody seeing all the parts of the 'miracle.' Sir Douglas was still thinking about the rope trick when we got near a rather steep incline, he turned to me and said:

"I believe we just missed that show, Secrett. I wonder if it is that these chaps are reluctant to demonstrate the trick to Europeans?"

"I don't believe believe there's a man living, sir," I replied, 'who can make an ordinary rope stand up on its end and send a boy up on it. The only soldiers I've ever heard tell the story are noted for a bit of romancing.'

Fakir Arrives

"Late that evening, after dinner and just before the sun went down, the fakir arrived at the bungalow at which Sir Douglas was staying. It stood at a junction of roads and was occupied by a major in charge of a cavalry detachment.

"The fakir salaamed before the party and suggested that he should entertain them. They at once consented and the performance began. He produced the eagle from a matchbox, the pigeons from parrots' eggs, and did a few other clever bits of conjuring. Then, from the end of a powder-flask of old-fashioned design, he produced the boy! Where the boy had been, goodness only knows. Certainly the old fakir was a perfectly marvellous conjurer. I was not able to watch the whole performance, as I had to keep going backward and forward. The major's head man was ill and I acted as butler.

"I saw that the fakir insisted upon the party leaving the verandah to watch part of his performance. They sat on cushions in a circle around him. I watched from a window. I saw the old fellow make the round of his circle several times, then I saw him uncoil his rope. He moved once more round the circle and then pointing upward with one hand, shot the rope into the air with the other.

"Sir Douglas and the others sat with their eyes turned upwards. Then the boy was brought forward and the old fakir mumbled something. His audience now turned their eyes on the boy, who stood on the ground. The fakir slowly and gently moved his hand upwards and the audience following his hand with their eyes. He seemed to be giving instructions to the boy and addressing the spot where his eyes rested—ever upward.

"Then the whole thing dawned on me. He had mesmerized his audience—including my master! I went out at once. 'The boy is still on the ground, sir,' I shouted, 'and the rope fell the moment he threw it up!'

"For a second the fakir's attention was taken off the audience and the imaginary rope; in that second all four seemed to come out of the spell, or whatever it was he had woven round them.

"But here is the remarkable thing. Although I saw the whole incident with my eyes it was quite a long time before Haig would really believe that his eyes had deceived him. The major had heard of the identical experience before and was exceedingly glad that I had interrupted in the middle of the trick, or else, he said, he would have been prepared to swear he had seen the trick performed.

Angry at Failure

"The old fakir was immensely angry with me—naturally! That night as I slept I heard a footstep on the balcony outside. The least sound always woke me, and I was up in a shot, and had the shutters open. But no one was there. Nevertheless, never having been prone to fancying things which did not exist, I stayed awake for awhile. I knew there had been a footstep—certainly that was true, and I was just a little curious to know who was prowling about at that hour of the night.

"The moonbeam cut through the slats in the shutter and I lay watching the shadow on the floor made by the intercepted light. As I lay, suddenly I saw the color or the shape of the moonbeam change at a place near my camp-bed.

"I switched on my flashlight. There, coming towards my bed, was a viper, his wicked little eyes glinting in the light. As I moved he raised his head, but snakes were not new to me. I took the pillow from under my head and held it between the snake and myself while I leapt out of bed and seized my revolver. The snake had turned and was definitely making for me. I did not want to fire the revolver if I could help it, because that would disturb the household, and yet, not having a stick, I did not see what else I was going to do.

"My eye caught a couple of crossed kurri knives on the wall, and, still facing the snake, the revolver in my right hand, I to reach one of the knives, with the same hand in which I held the torch. But the movement was awkward and, just as I felt the knife, the viper darted its head forward.

"I waited no longer. I fired and blew half its head off. Again, even as the report of the shot died, I heard a step on the verandah. I dashed out, this time with the flashlight, and was just in time to see a dusky figure disappear around the corner of the bungalow. I fired, but too late."

A Daily News want-ad will bring results.

News of the Mines

AROUND PRINCE RUPERT
Great Value of Railway to Stewart; McPhail Developing Arberarder at Alice Arm; General Activity at Alice Arm

There can be no doubt that the ultimate completion of such a project as the Canadian Northeastern Railway from Stewart to Finlay Forks will revive interest in northern British Columbia mining companies and lead to a program of development that has hitherto been more or less held up because of inadequate means of transportation facilities, declares the Western Tribune of Vancouver. Between Finlay Forks and Stewart is located a series of mines that have been waiting for such a service coming in to open up the Bear River valley. Reconditioning the existing fourteen miles of road already laid from Stewart to Bear River will serve many mines of promise, including Bayview, Albany, Dunwell, L. & L. Consolidated, Morning Star, Rufus Argenta, George Copper and other well known properties. If the charter is secured by the Northeastern Railway Co. a new day will dawn for Stewart, British Columbia's most northerly town, and for the mining industry in what is regarded as one of the richest mineralized areas on the North American continent.

Development work done during the past winter by Archie McPhail on the Arberarder property, which lies within a short distance of the town of Alice Arm on the hill to the west, has been instrumental in cutting through the ore ledge which has been shown to be seven feet in width with values in gold and silver. Considerable work has been done on the Arberarder at different times. A shaft, 14 feet deep, was sunk to strike the ore and a tunnel was then driven to obtain greater depth. The latter was finally driven for 400 feet and the latest work has cut through the ore, the vertical depth being 100 feet. An average sample taken across the seven feet gave returns of $15.20 $3 of which was in gold. Future development work will consist of driving a lower tunnel to sink on the ore. Other ore bodies exist on the property and close prospecting may be carried on this summer to determine their extent. Owing to the close proximity of the Arberarder to the railroad and wharf, a low grade ore could be mined profitably.

WHERE DOES LIFE BEGIN? A FABLE FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. THERE were two children, healthy and strong, who were climbing the ladder of learning—learning that life holds forth a promise to faithful students, rewarding them with opportunities and sometimes fame. Now these two children dreamed dreams and made wishes as they saw the end of schooldays and looked into the years ahead. Their country was prosperous, because the products of the land and factory were the first choice of all the people. All the land and its industries prospered and abounded with opportunities for the children of the people. Each child began the battle of life with the occupation of his choice, and few there were who failed in after years. There's a moral to this story. The children of today are the nation of tomorrow. Every dollar you spend for a B.C. Product helps certify the industrial progress and prosperity of British Columbia. Your dollar spend for B.C. Products helps provide opportunities and careers for your children in the industries of British Columbia. After all, that is where "life" begins.

"Mother Machree" is the week-end offering at the Westholme and fills in splendidly with the celebration of Ireland's patron saint's day at the beginning of it. The famous song has charmed the ears of the whole world and now comes the picture. A more typical Irish play it would be difficult to conceive. It is so Irish you can almost smell the reek of the burning peat and see the blue waters of Dublin Bay. It is beautiful romance and a mother's inherent love for her only son.

The theme gives the producer marvellous opportunities and full advantage has been taken to create a beautiful picture. Belle Bennett as Mother Machree, with Neil Hamilton and Constance Howard head a large and distinguished cast.

"The Masked Menace," episode No. 7 in a real thriller and a "Film Fable" completes an all-round first-class bill.

Synchronized music with sound effects will accompany the pictures. Irish music has been selected to accompany "Mother Machree."

BOYS' BAND PLAYED AT AUDITORIUM FOR SKATERS LAST NIGHT

The Boys' Band made its first public appearance at the auditorium last night following the recent reorganization. The band was out in full muster with Bandmaster Thomas Wilson in charge and played excellent music for the skaters. Owing to other attractions, the floor was not overcrowded, but nevertheless, those present had a real good time. The band is to play at the auditorium again next Thursday night.

JOAN CRAWFORD STARRED IN "OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS"

Unusual Film Deals in Entertaining Way With Subject of Younger Generation

What is wrong with the present generation? "Our Dancing Daughters," at the Capitol tonight and Saturday, shows two sides to this very modern question,—and the answers supplied in this M-G-M feature show that if, indeed, youth is to be criticized, the parents are in no position to voice the censure.

The production, with its modernistic theme, is set in an impressionistic background and was filmed upon a scale of lavishness that brings to the screen a new triumph in cinema artistry.

With Joan Crawford, Johnny Mack Brown, Dorothy Sebastian and Anita Page in the leading roles, the M-G-M feature has a stellar cast.

Photographed with the newly-perfected incandescent lighting equipment, the first time it has been used exclusively in any production, the film blazes a new trail in spectacular and pictorial beauty.

FASHION SHOW WINS PRAISE

Many Charming Styles Displayed at Capitol—Will be Repeated Tonight

The Easter Fashion Show presented last night at the Capitol by special arrangement with Mrs. H. S. Parker, "The Exclusive" Ladies' Ready-to-Wear, proved a most welcome innovation and provided a degree of variation to the evening's program which appealed especially to "Capitol Lady Patrons."

To Mrs. Parker, under whose direction the "Show" was staged, belongs much credit. Alex Connors, as the salesman, was as usual "O.K.," and the Misses Irvine and Dyer were attractive buyers. Outstanding among the styles displayed were the following—Pandora (green printed crepe sport dress with Chanel scarf worn by Miss Campbell; fawn French wool sport costume featuring Paton's Indian Orange worn by Mrs. Eason; red printed silk Doris Barrett model worn by Miss Scherk Indian orange lounge suit worn by Miss McDonald, and pansy satin evening dress worn by Mrs. Hockin.

The Fashion Show will be repeated at tonight's performance.

C.N.R. steamer Prince John, Capt. Neil McLenn, is reported due this evening from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands and will sail at 10 o'clock tomorrow night on her return south over the same route.
