CONDITIONS ARE CHANGING

A few years ago when it was first mooted that the Peace River block should be handed back to the province of British Columbia, it was to be used by them in trying to induce the building of a railway to open up the country, because in those days the road would have been a colonization line and there was little demand for the land.

Since then conditions have changed. People are flocking into the Peace River block and are grabbing up the land that is anywhere within one hundred miles of a railway as long as it is of good quality and easy to clear. Colonization is not needed. In fact, the people of the Peace River country are strongly opposed to any colonization projects, preferring to take their chance on natural settlement for the opening up of the country.

If the lands in the Peace River block are to be handed over to a private corporation for the purpose of helping the province to get rid of a jerk-water road and thus handicapping the future prospects of that part of the country, which should be developed by one or both of the two big transportation concerns, then the Dominion government should be asked to retain control of the block until this railway question is settled.

Experience has proven in the past that the Dominion government is a better colonizer than any provincial government. So why hand it over?

If the lands are to go to a responsible company such as the Canadian National and to be used by them in genuine development enterprises, then there is not so much objection but there is still some.

The lands today are given practically free to new settlers. If they are given as a bonus to railways, they must be sold at anything from five to fifty dollars an acre and naturally will not be taken as rapidly as if retained by the Dominion because they must be held until adjoining development increases the value.

What is needed today is rapid settlement and railway extension of the lines westward to get by the easiest possible route to a good port. That means a line to Prince Rupert and it should be built without the aid of land grants.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—With the exception of work necessarily continuous on account of the movement of trains, all activity on the Canadian National Railways system will cease for two minutes on Armistice Day. Instructions have been issued from the headquarters office of the system at Montreal that all officers and employees are to cease work at 11 o'clock in the morning. No whistles will be blown to interfere with silence of the two minutes period.

Prime Minister of Canada Keen To Have Western Outlet From the Peace River Built at Early Date

Mackenzie King Says He Hopes Outlet Chosen Will Be Available To Both C. N. R. and C. P. R. Lines

EDMONTON, Nov. 8.—An outlet from the Peace River to the Pacific Ocean must come and the sooner the better for all concerned, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared at a meeting here. He had urged the railways to hurry their survey so that the best route could be ascertained. However, it was very essential that the railways make perfectly sure which route should be taken.

Mr. King said he had personally discussed with the presidents of the two great railways and found they were not yet wholly satisfied as to the best route. He hoped any outlet chosen would be available both to the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. just as they were co-operating in Northern Alberta.

"We have had surpluses for the past five years. At the same time, we have reduced taxes," declared the Premier. "I wonder do the people of Canada realize the great extent to which we have lessened the burdens of taxation." He reviewed the reductions in the income tax rate and tariff schedules. "The sales tax was reduced last year to two per cent and I think I can safely say it will be reduced next year to one per cent or even a greater reduction than that. All these reductions were made while reducing the public debt."

SETTLING UP PEACE RIVER

Records Made in Number of Settlers and in Land Taken Up in October

EDMONTON, Nov. 8.—Hard on the heels of the Edmonton Dominion lands office statement that October was a record month for homestead applications in 21 years in the Edmonton district, comes the statement from Neil S. McGuire of the C.N.R. department of colonization and agriculture, Edmonton, that 810 persons, with a total capital of $685,660, passed through their office during the month of October.

This constitutes another record, both in the number of settlers, and in the amount of capital per settler, the average working out to over $8000 per settler.

Majority Anglo-Saxon The great majority of these settlers were Canadians and United States citizens, Mr. McGuire states, while fully 80 per cent of the month's total were Anglo-Saxon settlers.

PEACE RIVER, Alta., Nov. 8.—Eclipsing all former records by a large margin, the Peace River Dominion lands office closed its books for October with 493 homestead entries and 15 soldier grants, a total of 513 entries. This is a straight daily average of 19 entries based on 27 office days.

With the beautiful fall weather that has been a feature of the past seven weeks, newcomers are finding their locations under the most favorable of circumstances with nothing to hinder their searches for the land of their choice.

Aggressive Owls Western Ontario

SAULT-STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 8.—Albino owls are coming back into notoriety as birds of prey. It is reported from Bellevue, on the Algoma Central Railway, that Tuesday night an owl attacked a bushman, and took his cap away as a souvenir. Yesterday E. N. Macleod of Leburn shot at a large owl that was attacking his chickens, and broke its beak. In spite of its injury, the owl made a second attempt to carry off a chicken, and another shot was required to kill it.

Plenty of Roads in Southern B. C. While Prince Rupert Still Goes a Begging For Skeena Highway

That the roads in southern British Columbia had been improved wonderfully and that all the towns were looking smarter and had better restaurants and hotels as a result of the tourist business each summer was one of the interesting features of an address given yesterday by S. D. Johnson at the Rotary luncheon in the Commodore Cafe, George Rorie presiding.

Mr. Johnson also remarked on the fact that roads there were being straightened and rebuilt and in some cases duplicated, while here in Prince Rupert it was not possible to get even a trunk road. He considered it nothing less than tragic that such a condition should obtain.

Mr. Rorie remarked that no road could be expected, according to the logic of the mayor of Vancouver, as long as Vancouver paid fifty per cent of the taxes and had fifty per cent of the population. Now it was clear why no road could be secured to serve the people of Prince Rupert.

Mr. Johnson's talk was a most interesting one, describing the visits to Kamloops, Vernon, Kelowna, Keremeos, Princeton, Merritt, Ashcroft, Lilcoet, Harrison Hot Springs and Mission. He expressed the opinion that as soon as Prince Rupert people were able to drive out of the city they would visit those parts of the province more often.

NEW POLICE BOAT HERE

P. M. L. 8 Arrived in Port Last Evening After Rough Trip Up Coast From Victoria

After a trip up the coast which was attended with considerable rough weather but, in spite of which the vessel functioned splendidly all the way, the new provincial police power cruiser P. M. L. 8 arrived in port at 5:30 last evening from Victoria where she was built at Yarrows yard particularly for the service of the police out of this port.

Under command of Constable Harold Raybone and with Constable V. C. Prior on board as engineer and Constable Gordon Daniels as radio operator, the P. M. L. 8 left Victoria on Tuesday morning of last week and made a leisurely voyage up the coast, trying for the nights and making a number of calls at various points on police work.

Beacons Give Direction to Ocean Vessels

Three Near Dixon Entrance Will Make Entrance to Prince Rupert Safe

VICTORIA, Nov. 8.—The new beacons to be established under direction of E. J. Houghton, radio superintendent on this coast will be for the purpose of making Dixon Entrance safer for deep sea shipping, several vessels having found it difficult to locate the entrance in heavy or thick weather.

Equipment similar to the semi-automatic apparatus which has been successfully in use at Race Rocks for the last two years has been assembled at the Victoria depot of the Green Island, and will be erected at Great Island, Langara and Entrance Island, to serve shipping in the northern waters.

The apparatus is of the type which sends out, at pre-determined intervals, certain arranged signals that at Race Rocks emitting the letter "J." The newest British apparatus, which is understood to have attracted close study by Canadian delegates to the Life Saving Convention, is stated to emit a sharp signal in a narrow band which revolves at stated intervals, and indicates, on an expensive dial receiver, the exact bearing of the emitting station from a vessel seeking information.

Plans Made For Demonstration On Arrival of Premier Mackenzie King at Prince Rupert Tomorrow

At a meeting last night of the executive committee of the Prince Rupert-Peace River Outlet Association, it was decided to distribute a thousand badges at the station tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon on the occasion of the arrival of Premier King bearing a suitable legend in regard to the Peace River. Also two large banners will be displayed at the station and another will be placed in the theatre subject to the consent of the management.

Those who get the badges at the station will be asked to wear them also at the theatre meeting if they are present on that occasion.

The hope was expressed that all Prince Rupert people who possibly could do so would be present to welcome the premier and to impress him with the interest taken here in the Peace River western outlet.

The train is expected to arrive at 3:30.

INSTALMENT X.

"Then, Mr. Paul, please listen for a moment," she went on, with a slight emphasis on the "Mr." "You seem to me honest—I have no doubt you are—and I thank you very much for your confidence. I do not think, however, that I wish to talk any more about these subjects. Therefore will you please take me back to my table and say good evening?"

He detained her gently. "One moment, if you please," he begged. "I do not ask for your trust yet, though some day you will be willing to give it to me, but this one question I must ask: otherwise I should know nothing for days. You must tell me, because it means much to all sane people. Have you so far succeeded? Is your packet safe?"

She considered the matter of a reply for several seconds, and decided favorably. "It is safe," she confided, "and that is all I wish to say about it."

There was a sudden immense relief in his face, a lessening of the strain.

It had been a wonderful evening, the two girls decided in the taxicab on the way home—a final extravagance upon which Miss Brown had insisted. Mr. Noel Frankland toward the end had become just a little too noisy and persistent and Frances had suddenly tired of him. Nevertheless she leaned back in her corner with an air of content as they left the place.

"It has been great fun," she murmured lazily. "I'm glad I came up. What were you and that big Russian talking about for so long, Edith?"

"How did you know that he was a Russian?"

"Mr. Frankland told me. He is a professional dancer. You knew that, I suppose."

"Naturally. He told me so when he asked me to dance."

"Whatever did you find to talk about all the time?" Frances persisted.

Miss Brown hesitated. "I found him interesting," she said. "His father and mother keep a restaurant and I have promised to take you there for lunch."

"Why?"

"Because I think the most personal thing he said was that he found you very lovely, and he did not like to see you dancing with Mr. Frankland."

Frances laughed softly. "They must hate one another, those two, for some reason or other. Mr. Frankland wasn't very polite about him."

"I should think politeness, in any case, was not one of Mr. Frankland's strong points," Miss Brown remarked a little dryly.

Frances was silent for a moment. "I should say he had no manners," she declared, "a rough, ill-bred, domineering person. I shivered when he tried to kiss me in the lounge. I have hated myself ever since because I wasn't sure what sort of a shiver it was."

"You are talking rubbish, Frances," was her friend's severe admonition. "You know perfectly well that you would never allow a man like that to touch you."

Frances made no reply. She was looking out of the window, watching the thin stream of people hurrying along Pleadilly.

Arrived in their little room, Miss Brown, who was developing watchful habits, looked around searchingly. They had locked everything up when they left, but somehow or other the arrangement of the furniture seemed slightly altered, a vase of flowers upon the small typewriting desk had certainly been moved. Miss Brown hurriedly unlocked the drawer in which she kept her few valuables and where she had left the manuscript which she was transcribing for the young man in Hampstead. It was still there, but turned upon its face and doubled up as though by some impatient hand. Underneath it, dragged out from a hidden corner where she had secreted them, were her checkbook and passbook. She gave a little shiver. They would know now for certain, these people, whoever they might be, where the treasure lay. She crossed the room and drew the bolt which fortune had provided.

"What's wrong?" Frances asked, yawning as she sat on the edge of the bed and kicked off her shoes.

Miss Brown was the last person in the world whom one would have associated with a life of deceit or the telling of untruths. Nevertheless her reply was perfectly natural. "I couldn't remember for a moment," she confided, "where I had left my young Hampstead novelist's manuscript."

Mr. Paul's Restaurant

At half-past 12 on the following morning, Miss Brown walked up Shaftesbury Avenue on the way to keep her luncheon engagement. At twenty minutes to one she had found the place—a tiny building painted white in a back street off Soho, with green blinds, the sign but served in the Russian fashion—and some fruit. It will do?"

"It sounds delightful."

"For wine I shall give you a little carafet of vin rose. Wine is where we Russians are at fault. We understand food so well, but in drinking we have only the taste for spirits. You will excuse?"

He hurried off to speak to an impatient customer, cast a watchful eye around the room and presently reappeared with the sardines.

"Your mother has spoken to me," Miss Brown told him. "I think she is delightful."

He bowed gravely.

"Presently my father will pay his respects," he announced. "He lunches always with an old friend. They are at the bottom of the room there. And my sister, too, you must meet. As soon as she is free from the kitchen she plays the piano. At night we sometimes have much music—"

PROPOSED NEW INCOME TAX

There have been a good many protests against income tax, especially against the overlapping of federal and provincial taxes along with sales or turnover taxes, but it remains for the Union of Municipalities to vote for an increase. This tax will evidently add another burden to the cities over and above the burdens already carried by them.

Today property owners in Prince Rupert pay a tax on their land of approximately 4% per cent. If there are rentals derived from the land they also pay both federal and provincial taxes on those rentals. In addition, they pay heavy income taxes and turnover tax. Land in the country pays but one tax, for very few farmers pay income tax. They do not keep separate accounts of their income and household expenditures, for they are inextricably involved. The result is that the city people pay most of the taxes. Now it is proposed to add to the city taxes through the provincial income tax in order to still further relieve the land which is outside of city administration.

We are inclined to think that the city people are already overburdened and any proposal to increase that burden should be resented.

While we believe in the income tax as a correct method of collecting revenue, we believe all should pay a fair share of the taxes. If incomes are to be taxed to such an extent that it becomes an unbearable burden, what is the use of trying to get ahead? There are other countries where it is possible to keep at least a fair share of what is earned.

TREAT HOME FOLKS WELL

Complaints have been made that strangers are given the advantage over local people in the matter of employment in the city. We know nothing about the justice of the complaints, but we would just suggest that as a general policy the residents of the city should have the first choice, all other things being equal. The policy of building up a permanent population is one to be commended.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS

It is being said from time to time by farmers that Prince Rupert merchants do not treat the farmers right. It has also been said by the merchants that the farmers do not ship according to specifications, that they do not consider a contract binding and that they make no effort to play fair with their city customers.

What is to be done about it? We suggest that there be some kind of a tribunal set up, a committee representing the farmers and the merchants, who shall inquire into all complaints and black list both farmers and merchants who do not keep contracts and who infringe the bounds of decent dealing one with the other. Often it is a matter of misunderstanding.

Farmers must learn to deal with merchants in a businesslike way and merchants must learn not to take advantage of farmers who trust them. There should be some way of establishing a feeling of confidence so that business may be carried on without friction.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Restored Vim and Vigour

What a blessing "Fruit-a-tives" proves to those worn out and weary by the day's work. A blood purifier, a builder of health and strength, this marvellous medicine, made of an extract from fruit juices, combined with the finest medicinal ingredients, is just what is needed to regulate bowels, kidneys and skin—sharpen the appetite—steady the nerves—and restores the whole system to its former vigour and vitality. As Mr. John O. Ringheim, Wynndel, B.C., writes: "My nerves were completely gone and I was so tired out and run-down that work seemed impossible. Since taking "Fruit-a-tives" I am eager to work and life is worth living again." One cannot realize, until he has gone through the mill, how fine it is to be well again. I owe my present good health to "Fruit-a-tives." Try it. 25c. and 50c. a box—at dealers everywhere.

'Fresh from the gardens'

Through an error, it was stated in this paper yesterday afternoon that the Presbyterian bazaar on Wednesday afternoon had been an "unsuccessful" affair whereas it was quite evident from the article that the event was completely the reverse. However, the slip raised the ire of some of the Presbyterian ladies and the explanation is, therefore made that it was really a most "successful" affair.

Ashamed of his wife!

HOW she had changed! Once, the prettiest in her crowd. Now, she was lifeless. What had happened? What had stolen her vital freshness—the charm she used to have? She wasn't old—but now . . . why sometimes he was actually ashamed!

Many a man wonders and many a woman worries as youth and freshness quickly fade. What a different story if they but realized the dreadful part constipation plays in wrecking health and vigor! For no one need suffer from constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a delicious cereal—is guaranteed to bring prompt relief. To safely prevent this evil ever beginning!

Why ALL-BRAN is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must get plenty of bulk or roughage. ALL-BRAN furnishes this bulk in generous quantity. Here is what happens: It absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisonous wastes. In a part-bran product there is seldom enough bulk to properly do this work. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

No need for pills

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming drugs and laxatives—whose dose you must constantly increase to keep effective. ALL-BRAN works as nature intended. A pleasant cereal that provides vital roughage. Eat it with milk or cream. Add fruits or honey. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals.

Cook with it. Recipes on package. Just eat two tablespoonfuls in some form daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Every woman can help her family to better health by adopting its regular use.

But don't take chances with part-bran substitutes. Get Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants—on diners. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Basketball fans are looking forward to the first ladies' league game of the season this evening when the Tollers, a new name and a new team, meet the Maple Leafs, an old name but a team with a number of new players. Ladies' basketball has always created much interest here, vying often with Senior activities, for that matter, and it is expected the same will be the case this winter. It is only to be regretted that, after all, only two girls' teams have been entered, the Drill team dropping out at the last moment. The Players' Club, which drew opening blood of the season from the Elks on Monday night, will meet Dido Gurvich's Three-Two Taxi men in the Senior League while the Naval Reserve, which showed the C.N.R. the way on Monday night, will provide opposition for Big Four in their first Intermediate League appearance.

Elks Ahead of Grotto Result Billiard Games

With three of the five games played, the Elks are leading the Grotto 679 to 676 in last night's Billiard League fixture. The games played were: Fred Stephens (Elks, 179; W. J. Fred Stephens, Elks, 179; George Waugh, Grotto, 250; A. A. Eason, 250; W. J. Nelson, 181; W. Lambie, 250; M. M. McLachlan, 245. The games remaining to be played are: C. P. Balagno vs. James Andrews and Will Mitchell vs. A. Macdonald.

BOXING CARD IS ARRANGED

Dido Gurvich to Meet Ed. Gustafson in Ten-Round Bout on November 25. Dido Gurvich was signed up last night to meet Ed. Gustafson in the ten-round main event of a boxing tournament which will be held on November 25 in the Moose Hall under the management of Owen Fisher. Gurvich has been given a guarantee of $200, while Gustafson will fight on a percentage basis. Gustafson, who is the challenger, was seen in action here last on May 30 when he was outpointed by Stoker Ewart of H. M. S. Colombo, although he put up a good fight. He has had boxing experience in the south. Gustafson's weight is 156 pounds, while Gurvich will weigh in at 187 pounds. The semi-final of the card will be a six-round go between Benny Wendle of this city and Dick Jones of Vancouver.

YACHT RACE NEXT YEAR

Cruiser Race From Seattle to Prince Rupert is Definitely Decided Upon

The board of directors of the Seattle Yacht Club has definitely decided to stage a long distance race for power cruisers next summer starting at Seattle and finishing at Prince Rupert. This will take the place of an Olympia to Juneau capital - to - capital race such as have been held this year and last and which will again be held in 1931, according to present plans. The suggestion that the 1930 race be from Seattle to Prince Rupert was put forward originally by Richard Froboese, owner of the first over-all winning boat, Bonder, in the Olympia-Juneau race his summer.

It is planned to hold next year's race in the month of June and he expectation is that boats will be entered from Yacht Clubs along the coast as far south as California, the hope being that Prince Rupert will also be represented.

In the way of trophies, Olof Hanson of this city has offered to put up a cup while the Prince Rupert Yacht & Rowing Club, which is already working on plans for the race, may put up another.
