CANNERY STATE CASE FOR FISH TRAPS

NEW STEAMER FOR PRINCE RUPERT IS A SPEEDY CRAFT

Cannerymen Urge Right to Use Fish Traps and Put Up Arguments

Representatives of Canadian Fishing Co. and B. C. Packers Tends to Show Efficiency of Fish Trap Methods

R. R. Payne, production manager of the Canadian Fishing Co., and T. D. Mathers, local agent of the B. C. Packers, were the only witnesses at yesterday afternoon's session of the royal commission on fish traps. Both discounted the suggestion that traps would have a disastrous effect upon the salmon fishery or the future welfare of the fishermen. Mr. Payne was on the stand for nearly two hours and gave considerable evidence of a detailed nature in supporting his company's case in making application for permission to operate fish traps in Pierce Canal in connection with the operation of Wales Island cannery. Mr. Payne made a convincing plea and met all the arguments that had been put forward by the opponents of fish traps.

Though all kinds of gear, including many traps had been used, the pack on the Columbia River, Mr. Payne declared, had been maintained at around 500,000 cases annually since 1876. This condition he ascribed to proper regulation of the fishery, such as weekly close seasons, etc. Mr. Payne gave figures for the total pack on the Columbia River each year from 1876 to 1928.

Robert Hanna stated that he had packed salmon on the Columbia River from 1881 to 1885 and there were no traps then. Mr. Payne replied that he knew personally that traps had been operated there for 19 years. He marvelled that the fishing on that river held up so well but, nevertheless, in spite of traps, it was a fact.

In answer to a question by Judge Ellis, Mr. Payne stated that his company had more fishermen on the Columbia River today than 19 years ago although the catch was less per unit of gear.

Southeastern Alaska
Turning to southeastern Alaska, Mr. Payne declared that there too the run was being maintained year after year in spite of 400 fish traps. From 1924 to 1928 there was but 200,000 cases difference between the high and the low season. The United States Bureau of Fisheries had stopped traps in the inlets, allowing them only in open water. This policy was all the Canadian Fishing Co. asked at Pierce Canal.

If allowed to use traps in connection with Wales Island cannery, Mr. Payne made the undertaking then and there that as many seiners and gillnetters would be employed as at present. The company had never had full production at Wales Island, having been short of salmon.

A native asked Mr. Payne if it were true that salmon had been shipped from Wales Island to Butedale. This had never been done unless Wales Island had a full supply, replied Mr. Payne.

It was but a theory to say that fish traps would put the fishermen out of business, Mr. Payne said. That a lower price would be paid for salmon as a result of traps was also but a theory. There were large communities and prosperous fishermen in southeastern Alaska where traps were allowed. Higher prices had

Conservative Member for Winnipeg Would Abolish Government House There

WINNIPEG, April 19.—Many members of the Manitoba legislature, including Conservatives, were greatly surprised last night when John T. Haig, conservative of Winnipeg, advocated the abolishment of Government House and declared that the functions of the lieutenant-governor should be discharged by the chief justice of the province.

Great Britain gets along very well with one Government House and there surely must be something wrong, he said, with loyalty in Canada if it required 10 Government Houses, one for each million population, to sustain it.

FINAL SESSION ON FISH TRAPS THIS MORNING

Fishermen Give Rebuttal Evidence to Commissioner Following R. R. Payne's Statements

Most of the time at the final session here this morning of Judge Ellis' Royal Commission on salmon traps was taken up in hearing of rebuttal evidence from Charles Lord, delegate of a recent public meeting, and Mike Anderson, representing the Northern B.C. Salmon Fishermen's Association, against testimony which had been presented yesterday afternoon in favor of fish traps by R. R. Payne, production manager of the Canadian Fishing Co. The two fishermen had their case against fish traps well in hand though Mr. Payne was ready to meet all their arguments. There was general difference of opinion as to the merits or otherwise of allowing the establishment of traps in Northern British Columbia adjacent to the Alaska boundary. At 12:15 noon, after having sat since 10 a.m., the session of the Commission was adjourned to Vancouver where it will meet next Wednesday. Tonight, Judge Ellis will leave for a trip aboard C. G. S.

Two engineers from the Coaster and W. Thomas, chief officer of the Prince George, will be on the boat when she arrives.

Lord Revelstoke Died Today as Result Strain Reparation Commission

Deadlock Took Place and British Diplomat Was Expected To Have Reported On Breakdown of Negotiations

PARIS, April 19.—Broken and tired by the failure of the reparations conference to arrive at a satisfactory settlement, Lord Revelstoke, distinguished British banker, died this morning from heart failure, aged 65.

Intimates said that the famous Britisher, who shares with Sir Josiah Stamp the leadership of the British delegation, had been under intense strain throughout yesterday's session of the sub-committee. At this session the German delegation refused to compromise with the allies, making imminent adjournment and failure of the conference. The plenary session, which was to have heard Lord Revelstoke's report today on the breakdown of the negotiations, convened and immediately adjourned.

LONDON, April 19.—British official circles view the reparations deadlock as serious, but do not believe that the last word between the German and allied delegations has been spoken.

Babe Ruth with New Stance at the Plate Opened Season With Home Run in His First Innings

NEW YORK, April 19. — Employing an entirely new stance at the plate, with his left foot swung almost out of the batter's box, Babe Ruth opened the 1929 campaign with a home run in the first time up yesterday and started the Yankees toward a 7 to 3 triumph over Boston.

Lou Gehrig hit a homer in the sixth.

St. Louis Browns made it three straight over the White Sox, and Cleveland Indians made it two out of three from Detroit.

In the National League the Giants gave an unimpressive display in defeating the Phillies and the less said about the Boston victory over Brooklyn the better.

Chicago, behind Sheriff Fred Blake, made it two out of three from the Pirates. Jess Haines outpitched Adolfo Laque at Cincinnati to give the Cardinals two out of three against the Reds.

Cold weather continues making the games difficult to play and not very popular.

August Herrman, Who Developed the World Series

August ("Garry") Herrman, chairman of the National Baseball Commission from 1903 until 1920 when Judge Landis was elected high commissioner of baseball, and owner of the Cincinnati Reds, is the man who developed into reality the idea of the world series after the post-season series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox in 1903. He brought the world series permanently into being through action in the National Commission in 1904 which led to the first series in 1905 when the Giants defeated the Athletics four games to one.

Herrman became officially active in professional baseball in 1902 when, with George B. Cox and Julius and Max Fleishmann, he bought the Cincinnati Reds National League team for $150,000 from John T. Brush and Ashley Lloyd. He was elected president of the club and served in that capacity for twenty-five years resigning in 1927 because of ill-health. He sacrificed possibilities for a brilliant political career to devote his life to baseball.

Herrman was born in Cincinnati, May 3, 1859. His parents were both natives of Germany.

G. Pyle. The finish was an interesting one and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. Balagno was at top form, while Pyle was not in his usual trim. The score was 1000 to 903.

Arrangements will be made soon to present prizes in the recent individual contests which brought the winter billiard season to a close.

Sport Chat

Although Los Angeles will be the scene of most of the Olympic sports in 1932, the winter games will be held at Lake Placid, N.Y., the International Olympic Committee has decided. The California city claimed the right to hold the winter sports, offering facilities in the mountains nearby, but the committee decided the Adirondack resort was in better condition to conduct the games. Several other American resorts and one Canadian city, Montreal, also were candidates. Montreal was not considered because the United States had priority in the choice of a location.

The verdict of more than 60 major league baseball writers and sports editors, expressed in the third annual Associated Press concensus, is that the New York Yankees and Giants will win the pennant races that started last Tuesday. Here's the order of finish predicted: American League—New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Detroit, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston. National League—New York, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston.

Malaspina to the proposed trap area. He invited one representative each from the proponents and opponents of fish traps to accompany him.

At the opening of today's session, Ald. G. W. Rudderham read resolutions from Hazelton and Hippo Island protesting against fish traps.

Then Charles Lord again took the stand and read a resolution protesting against fish traps which had been passed at a public meeting of citizens here. This resolution expressed the opinion that traps would put fishermen out of employment and be disastrous to local industry. A large portion of the population of Northern B. C. would be endangered.

Lack of Evidence

Mr. Lord contended that Mr. Payne had submitted no proof of his contention that salmon passing through Pierce Canal all went to Alaska waters. On the other hand, it had been shown that these fish had passed on to the Naas River and elsewhere in Canadian waters.

The U. S. bureau of fisheries was not satisfied with the maintenance of the salmon fishery in southern Alaska and in 1929 proposed closing many more areas to trap fishing. There were other curtailments as well.

Local Rivers

The pack of red salmon on both the Naas and Skeena Rivers had declined during the years that the American traps were operated. This would be accentuated, Mr. Lord contended, by the traps that were now asked for. He felt that when steps were being taken in southeastern Alaska to curtail fishing there was no time to allow more intensive fishing on this side of the line.

Mr. Lord gave figures to show that the salmon fishery meant the purchase of $313,000 worth of goods of various kinds in Prince Rupert every year. That was why business people of this city were opposed to traps. Reference was also made to the fact that the Skeena District Liberal Association had passed a resolution condemning traps. While Commissioner O'Malley had closed some 95 traps

PREPARE FOR CONVENTIONS

Prince Rupert has not yet had many conventions meet in the city. Being off the beaten track and rather far from other centres of population makes it difficult for the city to cater to big events. A year or two ago the Hospitals Association arranged to meet in Prince Rupert, but as the time approached it was changed to Vancouver.

This year Prince Rupert has the Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia annual convention on June 27 and 28 and the convention of the Canadian Fisheries Association August 1 and 2. Both events are important. We mention them now to suggest that it will be well to make early preparations, so that the visitors may be made to feel that Prince Rupert is a good place to visit. Particularly, plans will have to be laid for housing the visitors in case the hotels are not able to handle the large number who will be here. The busy season will be on at the end of July and will still be continuing at the beginning of August.

ANOTHER POLITICAL MEETING

During the Easter holidays local people were asked to give up their festivities in order to attend a political meeting at which J. C. Brady, M.P., was the speaker. Now they are to be asked to attend another meeting. T. D. Pattullo, M.L.A., and Capt. Ian Mackenzie are planning to arrive a week from next Wednesday and they will both speak at a public meeting which it is planned to hold. Mr. Pattullo, the local member, has been making a great name for himself in the south as leader of the opposition, and Capt. Mackenzie, who was a minister for a few weeks only in the Maclean administration, has been an able lieutenant and is a peppy speaker. It is probable that Prince Rupert people will wish to make a demonstration on that occasion which will indicate that the political prophet is not without honor even in his own city and among his own people.

FORCING RAILWAYS TO ACTION

The railways will very soon be forced to action in the Peace River through the fact that thousands of people are going in there and making homes for themselves and making it so important that the railways will not be able to stay out. If the big companies do not undertake the work, private concerns will and they will have the full support of the people of the country.

There has been talk of opening the Peace for many years and now the time has arrived for action. A move must be made soon, or the people will make themselves heard so emphatically that even tardy legislators will be moved to action.

SALMON TRAP COMMISSION

It would be bad form, if not, illegal for any newspaper to anticipate what action the commissioner will take as a result of the inquiry into the desirability of placing fish traps in Pierce Sound on the Alaskan boundary. The fishermen put up a good case. It was well prepared and presented with ability. The canners refuted many of the arguments of the fishermen and also presented their case well. Doubtless the commissioner will give a finding in accordance with the whole of the evidence submitted.

SALMON TRAP PROTEST

Queen Charlotte City, April 16, 1929.

Editor, Daily News, Prince Rupert, B. C.,

The following resolution was passed by the council of the Queen Charlotte Board of Trade, protesting against the proposed fish traps in Northern British Columbia waters:

"Whereas, we learn from press reports and other sources that a movement is on foot to establish fish traps in waters contiguous to the Alaskan boundary, and whereas, the granting of such licenses would seriously add to the depletion of the fish already existing in these waters, and whereas, it would greatly affect the livelihood of many now in connection with the fishing industry, therefore, we, the council of the Queen Charlotte Board of Trade, strongly protest against the establishment of any fish traps and would suggest that steps be taken to collaborate with the International Fisheries Board with a view to abolishing fish traps in American waters contiguous to Northern British Columbia."

Thanking you in advance for publication,

M. E. NEWMAN,
Secretary.

HIPPS ISLAND TROLLERS

Skidegate, B.C., April 14, 1929.

Editor, Daily News, Prince Rupert, B. C.,

A meeting was held by our association in Queen Charlotte City on April 8, and another meeting in Skidegate, April 10, whereby a resolution was passed and unanimously supported by 75 members, protesting against the proposed fish traps for Northern B. C.

An article appeared in the Vancouver Province of April 3, which reads in part:

"Judge Ellis is authorized to inquire into the question as to whether it is in the public interest that fish traps, for the capture of salmon should be permitted in the waters of Northern B. C."

Our answer is "no." In fact an inquiry is absolutely unnecessary. Everyone knows the destructive powers of the fish trap. They kill large and small alike and all species that come their way. It is a well known fact that the fish traps on the American side of the line are largely responsible for the drastic decrease of the sockeye output in the Fraser River District, from 837,000 cases in 1905, to 29,000 cases in 1919. The same is true of Alaska where fish traps are also used. But who is it who wants the fish traps? Is it the citizens of the country? Is it the fishermen? The answer is "no." It is the big-minded interests—the big fish combines who want the fish traps. And yet, at the same time, there are so many inquiries about the depletion of the salmon, and there is so much talk about their conservation.

If the big combines succeed in getting in the thin edge of the wedge and establish one fish trap, it won't be long till they have a dozen.

Then the trolling fleet of Northern B. C., comprised of a thousand boats, valued at more than a million dollars, and owned by a thousand fishermen, will become a thing of the past, and the silver hoard will be no more.

Yours for salmon conservation.
Higgs Island Unit of Northern B. C. Salmon Fishermen's Association, Skidegate, B. C.

FIRST PRIZE BEAR STORY

SKIDEGATE, April 19:—The other evening all the boys were sitting around in one of Dave Middleton's camps, telling bear stories, and it is believed Red Morrison took first prize.

Red says that at one of the camps he was working at, a large bear used to come to the camp every evening, to eat up the scraps. They thought up all kinds of schemes to capture Mr. Bear, when finally one of the boys, named Shorty, on account of his 6 feet, 6 inches height, suggested they dig a deep hole and cover the top thinly so the bear would fall into it. This they did, and during the night they heard an awful rumpus outside and out they all went, and sure enough the bear was in the pit. Shorty and the other boys tried to place a rope around the bear. Shorty fell in and the bear at once hopped upon Shorty's back and out of the hole and away. Since then Shorty has been called "the Bear's Step Ladder."

News of the Mines

AROUND PRINCE RUPERT
Many Topley Properties Described; Branch Lines of C. N. R. Would Serve Central B. C. Mines; B. C. Bonanza Active Again

Gradually the Topley mining field is developing into permanence and, with each shift completed, the camp is drawing much closer to the prosperous future predicted for its mining properties, according to a special article in the latest issue of the Interior News, published at Smithers. It is somewhat amazing, even to the residents of the immediate district, to witness the number of properties undergoing development work, each with confidence that only additional work is needed to bring in greater mines than even the Topley Richfield or the Topley Silver.

At Topley transportation is no problem for the distance is over a road equal to, if not better than, most sections of the main highway and the distance is only seven miles. The railway can be made within an hour with loads both coming and going. This cheap transportation will add considerably to the net profits of the metal producers in that district. Every review of this district must necessarily start with the prominence of the Topley Richfield, on which tremendously large ore bodies are being opened up and on which it is predicted a mill will in all probability be established in the early fall of this year when Richfield will enter the shipping class. From the shaft on the Topley Richfield mines some of the district's richest ore has been taken. With continuity of values at depth determined, a campaign of diamond drilling will be shortly embarked upon on this property to prove the ore on the northerly and southerly strike. A great future is seen for the Topley Silver. Matthew Sam, an Indian prospector, has a particularly promising property in the Topley group situated south of the Richfield. Some rich showings have been uncovered in the extensive work carried out by tunnel from the bank of Findlay Creek and the owner is now working on a strike which he has made in the creek opposite Topley Silver and which is considered to be a continuation of the main vein on the latter property. The ore is of a high grade character. On the Evergreen group, situated on Huckleberry Mountain and owned by McCrea, Kylling and McCrea, there are at least four veins running the full length of the group, a good deal of work having been done on the showings by shafts. The ore shows some good galena and grey copper which can be developed economically by tunnel. This property adjoins the Topley Silver.

The Maple Leaf group, lying east of the Topley Silver and owned by Kylling, McCrea and Banta, has three veins showing galena, zinc and grey copper. Development has been by shafts sunk 20 feet. Work on the Gold Hill group, lying on the east side of Topley Richfield and owned by Charles Haven and associates, has opened up a fine showing in dyke and vein form. A good deal of work has been performed in shafts and open cuts. Shaft and tunnel work on the Shorty group, adjoining the Topley Silver on the southwest and also owned by Charles Haven and associates, has resulted in the uncovering of a number of fine deposits of galena, zinc and bromides, as well as iron sulphides. On the Box property, west of the Topley Silver, south of the Topley and north of the Shorty and owned by Frank H. Taylor, locator of the Topley Richfield, there are two main showings—one of grey copper, iron sulphides and galena and the other showing high-grade galena. At the extreme north end of Black Mountain and about nine miles from Topley, Charles Haven and partners have located the promising Haven group on which a strong vein outcrops at two points, a drift tunnel being run on one vein for a distance of 40 feet showing quartz mineralization with porphyry walls. Some good ore has been exposed with high assay values in a shaft which has been sunk 20 feet on the Smithers group, adjoining the Topley on the northeast, which is owned by Middleton and Hoops. On the Victor group, close to the Richfield on the east and owned by Gale & Lifton of Smithers, has been opened up between two good walls a vein containing galena, zinc, sulphides, grey copper and bromides. Several claims of the Bartholemew group, approximately 15 miles northeast of Topley and on the south slope of Fulton Mountain, show heavy mineralization in dykes of porphyry, development work giving results of very promising nature. Most of these properties were staked only in 1928. Nor is interest confined to the immediate Topley district as east and west a number of properties have been staked indicating a huge mineralized area with Topley as the axis. Exploratory work continues with confidence that a short time will bring into production several shipping mines and many other prospective producers in the Topley territory.

The Mining & Industrial Record suggests editorially that there are four locations for branch lines which would prove potential business getters for the Grand Trunk section of the Canadian National Railways in Central British Columbia. One of these would be southerly from Houston to Francois and Ootsa Lakes or possibly to Whitesail and Tahtsa. The opening up of the Owen Lake, Tahtsa and Emerald mines might see real tonnage available from these sources in two or three years. Another branch would lead from Smithers or Telkwa to Chapman Lake and down Fulton River to Babine Lake. There is known to be a large tonnage of ore available in the Babine and rail transportation would result in speedy shipments. The whole country tributary to Babine Lake could be opened up by steamer connecting with the railway. Another suggested branch line would be from Vanderhoof to Stuart Lake, tapping the large system of waterways extending to Takla Lake, and still another might be that southerly from Telkwa to the Copper River coal fields, providing the present private project along this line were not actually proceeded with.

The B. C. Bonanza Mines, Ltd., which held the old Spider and Web group of claims in the Salmon River area of Portland Canal and sold a lot of stock but carried out no work on the properties, is now reported to be active in connection with a property in the Kootenay. The Financial News of Vancouver does not speak very highly of the company.

CANNERYMEN URGE RIGHT TO USE FISH TRAPS AND PUT UP STRONG ARGUMENTS.

also been paid for seine and troll fish there during the past five years than in B. C.

Use of traps, Mr. Payne declared, assured the canneries of a steady flow of fish and made operations more efficient and economical. The canneries were able to pay more for fish and, at the same time, make more money themselves. Use of traps at Wales Island, he said, would mean that $40,000 more per year would be spent in connection with the operation of that cannery.

Mr. Payne read letters from seven B. C. canned salmon buyers who said that trap fish made a more desirable canned product than seine or gill net fish. The latter fish were killed immediately they were caught while fish could be kept in traps as long as a week. B. C. salmon had to compete in the world market with Alaska salmon and, if traps were not allowed, it was at a disadvantage. All the Canadian Fish Co. asked was that it be given the same regulations as applied on the American side.

Company's Profits

A large proportion of the profits of the Canadian Fishing Co. was distributed in Canada, stated Mr. Payne. The New England Fish Co. was largely owned by employees of the Canadian Fishing Co. living in Canada.

In answer to questions, Mr. Payne stated that he did not see how traps in Tongass Passage and Pierce Canal would affect the run of fish in Portland Inlet toward the Naas River. Opponents of fish traps, questioning Mr. Payne, were inclined to doubt this statement. Charles Lord submitted figures to show that a number of tagged fish going through Tongass Passage and Pierce Canal had ended up in the Naas River and other Canadian waters. Mr. Payne held that these figures were not accurate as the American traps were not then in operation and only 12 1/2 per cent of the tagged fish had been found in Canadian waters. A number of other questions were asked Mr. Payne in connection with statements he had made. Questioners included Ambrose Reid, William Beynon and Mike Anderson.

Asked by Ald. George Rudderham if he did not think this the thin edge of the wedge to bring about trap fishing all over the district, Mr. Payne said traps had been operated for thirty years on Vancouver Island and the system had never spread.

Bob Hanna suggested that Dundas Island was on the U.S. boundary and would be the next area for traps.

Charles Lord asked if it was not true that the B. C. Packers and other companies would be wanting traps if the Canadian Fishing Co. obtained them.

Fred Mathers, representing the B. C. Packers, said his company was not directly interested in traps. The point that struck him was that the American traps took 750,000 fish annually. These all went up Pierce Canal to American waters so far as he could learn, and spawned in Alaska streams. It seemed only right to him that Canadians should have their share of the fish. His company did not want to do any fisherman out of a job.

In answer to Mr. Beynon, Mr. Mathers said it was true that his company had on a past occasion secured five sites on Pierce Canal but he did not know what the present status was. He did not think they quite grasped the situation. At present the Canadians got none of the fish. By putting in traps they would have an opportunity to get fifty per cent of them.

Bob Hanna asked if putting in traps would conserve the fish.

Mr. Mathers expressed the opinion that if they fished out every fish in that location it would not injure the Canadian fisherman.

In answer to Mr. Reid, and other questioners, the witness said the advantage of traps was that the cannery obtained a steady production. The fish would not be caught appreciably any cheaper. The question of conservation did not enter it. What the canners wanted was a steady supply. In the traps the fish could be kept for several days without injury and taken out as the cannery needed them.

Mr. Lord asked if he admitted the figures presented by him, that of 600 fish tagged 108 had been taken in Canadian waters, 80 of which were in the Naas River district.

Mr. Mathers did not dispute these figures. He repeated that conservation had nothing to do with the manner in which the fish were caught. That was a matter for the department to deal with. It all depended upon how many fish got by to the spawning grounds. The fisheries department decided how long the close season should be.

The Commissioner then asked if there were any more ready to give evidence and adjourned until 10 this morning to give anyone who wished an opportunity to be heard.

Fashion Fancies

The Most Important Frock Is Printed

For afternoon wear, the printed frock with long sleeves is the most essential factor in the spring wardrobe.

The model sketched is done in the autumn shades that Paris is sponsoring this spring—orange, yellow, green and brown. It has green and yellow double bandings around the jabot collar, the side bow and the hem. Excellent under a plain brown coat with a green hat.

One of the horrors of war is that it produces literature.

Only a few authors are lucky enough to have their books banned.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

April 19, 1919

Four local boys—Elmer Smith, Harry Ward, Willie Lambie and Ted Halvarson—found a life belt at Picnic Bay yesterday marked "Galiano." It is believed to have been from the ill-fated fisheries patrol steamer which foundered last fall south of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Brigadier General George R. Cockerill C. B., M.P. has resigned as head of the British secret service which did great work during the war.

Capt. John McGregor V. C. was guest of honor at a dance which was held last night by St. Andrew's Society. William Kerr was master of ceremonies and W. R. Martin and William Reid presided at the door, Robert Arthur being in charge of refreshments.

Factory-fresh and Fragrant

"A man buys a handy pocket pack of Marguerites. He smokes some—gives some away—then when the pack is empty—it goes overboard! The handy pack keeps cigars factory-fresh and fragrant—and when it's empty it's thrown away. It's a good reminder, too, because a man always knows that if he has no pack in his pocket—he has no cigars!"
