OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—Speaking further of the projected highway from the United States boundary through British Columbia and the Yukon, Premier Tolmie said yesterday that it was proposed to build from the coast, going through Hazelton.

There is a suggestion that the federal government would build the Yukon portion but nothing has been decided as to what assistance, if any, the Dominion would give to help British Columbia build her portion.

CULBURRA OFF BEACH

American Freighter Undamaged and Able to Proceed South After Stranding on Ken- nedy Id.

The American motorship freighter Culburra refloated herself on the high tide at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Kennedy Island, off the mouth of the Skeena River, where she drifted ashore at 6 o'clock yesterday morning after losing her course in a dense fog. The vessel stranded on a sandy bottom and was uninjured so proceeded on to Seattle with her cargo of fish meal from Ketchikan.

Though a salvage outfit was sent from here to the vessel, it was unnecessary to lighten her of any of her cargo.

The Culburra is a vessel of 1776 tons register, being very similar to the Challamba which was wrecked two or three years ago on White Cliff Island. As a matter of fact, the Culburra came to this port then to take away cargo which had been removed from the Challamba.

Doukhobors Remain Obdurate In Conference Near Nelson With Government Officials

NELSON, Sept. 10.—The conference here Monday between representatives of the provincial government and Sons of Freedom, Doukhobors, encamped near the city, was without result. R. S. Lennie, crown prosecutor, his assistant, A. Mathews, Inspector Cruickshank of the provincial police and P. S. Sheffield, inspector of schools, representing the government, met six Doukhobor Sons of Freedom.

Fred Peppin, acting as spokesman for the Doukhobors, stated that the sect would recognize neither tax laws or school laws in Canada, and that they would be their own judges as to whether or not they would indulge in nude parades.

They were informed that there was only one law in Canada for Doukhobors and Canadians alike and that would be enforced without fear or favor. The Doukhobor spokesman stated that the encampment was protesting against the trials of one hundred and four Sons of Freedom and that peace seeking people should not be sued. "We cannot fulfill any man's law; we are striving for freedom universally," he said.
Terminating the conference, Mr. Lennie said, "The time has come for us to see that the laws are observed by both your people and our people, and we are going to do it."

SPEED RECORDS

Britons need not be depressed over the new speed record established by the German liner Bremen on her first ocean crossing. Taking everything into consideration it is a question whether her design is in any respect superior to that of the veteran British holder of the Atlantic record, the Mauretania. It is more than 22 years since the pride of the Cunard fleet first crossed the seas. It is a long time in the life of an ocean ship that has been travelling at high speed all her days. And after those 22 years she steamed past Sandy Hook a few days ago with a time record that was five hours and 26 minutes better than her own previous time on a westward crossing, and only four hours and 26 minutes behind the record of the brand new Bremen. That doesn't look as if British shipbuilders have been outclassed by the Germans. Borrowing the slogan from a well-known automobile manufacturer: "When faster ships are built Britain will build them."

MORAL INSTRUCTION

If the educational law of this province is to be observed then the "highest principles of morality" are to be taught in the schools. In other words, it is stipulated in an emphatic way that moral instruction, and in its highest form is a part of the educational training of the young in British Columbia, observes the Victoria Colonist. The State stands sponsor for this law; it does not, however, stand sponsor for its enforcement, since the Bible, wherein are contained the highest moral teachings, is not permitted in the schools.

It is not only in this province but in various countries of the world that the belief is growing that something more must be done than has been done to guide children in the essentials of conduct and character. In Soviet Russia, where the process of secularizing education has gone farther than anywhere else, the conditions it has brought in its wake are deplorable. In the United States the increase in "crime waves," due as one writer says to "dissolving ethics," is arousing grave anxiety. In that country, too, the silly jargon spread broadcast about "complexes" has had an evil influence. There are those nowadays who believe that where their criminal actions are concerned the fault is not in themselves but in their mental twists. This doctrine is spread as a part of education no matter how erroneous it may prove.

What State education in most countries has yet to learn is the need for character development, which implies, as nothing else can, the moral sanction of behavior. In other words, where education is to thrive and produce the best type of citizens there the "highest principles of morality" must be taught. Relaxed discipline and neglected moral instruction do not prepare youth for grappling with the crisis of life. The formation of character is by far the most important part of education. When that fact is held aloft as the beacon light of State control there will be better education, better morality and better citizenship in the making among the youth of this and succeeding generations.

CRIME EXPERTS
MEET CANADA

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 10.—(By the Canadian Press)—Prison and delinquent problems and methods adopted in criminology will be discussed at what will be one of the largest conventions held on this continent when the American Prison Congress gathers in Toronto between September 20 and September 25.

For the first time in many years this congress which usually meets in some United States city has decided to come over the border. Its delegates will be composed of officers, wardens, and others connected in an executive capacity with the penal institutions of Canada and the United States, together with social workers and public officials who come in contact with this phase of work.

Arrangements for the congress are in the hands of Brig.-Gen. W. S. Hughes, superintendent of penitentiaries for the Dominion, whose office is in Ottawa. The program for the congress indicates many prominent men in criminological matters will be heard, both from Canada and the United States. It is expected that wardens of penitentiaries and governors of many of the provincial jails in Canada will be present, as well as social workers.

The congress will be interesting for the contrasts it may afford in the viewpoints of administration of prisons, as it is well known that Canadian methods are much more conservative than United States ideas, particularly in the amount of liberty and privilege accorded the inmates of prisons. Canadian prison officials probably will be able to show that their discipline based on the standards of British justice is more effective in controlling crime.

Association's Objects

The congress is sponsored by the American Prison Association, headquarters of which are in the city of New York. Objects of that association are:

- 1. Improvement of the laws in relation to public offences and offenders, and the modes of procedure by which such laws are enforced;
- 2. The study of the causes of crime, the nature of offenders and their social surroundings, the best methods of dealing with offenders and of preventing crime;
- 3. Improvement of correctional, penal and reformatory institutions, management and discipline thereof, including the appointment of boards and of other officers;
- 4. Care of, and provision for, paroled and discharged prisoners and probationers, especially such as may have given evidence of reformation.

Co-operating with the American Prison Association are certain kindred or subsidiary bodies, including the Wardens' Association, the National Prisoners' Aid Association, the Chaplains' Association, the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies.

Various Aspects

The deliberations of the congress are divided up into sectional interests under committee headings. Thus there are papers given on various aspects of work and problems arising from the committee on jails, the committee on probation, the committee on pardon and parole, the committee on criminal law and statistics, the committee on prevention, the committee on public control and supervision and the committee on co-operation. And while the general trend of the congress is for reform and more modern methods in penology, there is no hard and fast line, but considerable divergence as to policy in such matters as capital punishment, solitary cell life, public hall versus cell meals, recreation and the silence rule. In some of these matters it is likely there may be a clash of opinion as between the Canadian and the United States views.

Cooperating with the American Prison Association and with the Department of Justice at Ottawa in this congress is the Canadian Prisoners' Welfare Association, headquarters of which are in Montreal, while certain other bodies are also lending their aid.

During the congress in Toronto some of the Ontario penal institutions will be visited by the delegates. There will be a luncheon meeting with a special speaker each day, and there will also be a banquet, while on the Sunday during the congress it is expected attention will be paid in many pulpits to this phase of social work.

AROUND PRINCE RUPERT
To Carry Ore By Plane From Whitesal Country;
Activity in Ingenika; Saddle
Train Completed

Having flown the 375 mile distance from Stewart to Burns Lake in two hours and twenty minutes last week Pilot W. E. Gilbert, with a Western Canada Airways flying boat is now engaged in the aerial charting of a route from Whitesal Lake to the Canadian National Railway over which rich high grade ore is to be shipped out from the Seel property. This project has been under consideration for some time and experts are of the opinion that by bringing the ore out by plane to Burns Lake for rail shipment there would still be left a large margin of profit after all transportation charges are paid. This will constitute an innovation in the shipment of ores and the experiment will be watched with considerable interest. The mine is situated 70 air miles from Burns Lake. The mine which was discovered and staked by George Steel of Wistaria has long been known to produce some of the richest ore in the province.

H. L. Batten, mining engineer, was in Smithers and Prince George during the past week arranging to send in prospecting parties to the Ingenika and Finlay River sections for the Aero Mineral Locators, Ltd., of which he is managing director. It is anticipated that six or seven weeks of weather suitable for this purpose can still be obtained this season. Rumored "mountains of copper" and "huge deposits of gold" that have been reported in that region at various times in the past thirty years will be investigated with a view to finding out if there is any truth in the reports.

Stuart F. Campbell and Grover E. Loveless are working on their Glacier Gulch group, two miles from Lake Kathlyn station, with local capital, getting out a shipment of high-grade ore showing there. Values up to $1,290 have been obtained in assays, most of it in silver, as the ore carries much gray copper.

Several parties are now doing children which number was expected to be increased within the next few days. The first frosts of the season were recorded here last Monday and Tuesday when the thermometer indicated two degrees. A number of gardens were touched and flowers suffered.

Leslie J. Martin, district sales manager for the Home Oil Distributors Ltd., visiting here last week, announced that an additional ten thousand gallon tank would be established at the local station.

STEWART

Harry Reid has returned here with the news that his partner, Jess Setterington was lost last spring in the turbulent waters of the Unuk River where he was trapping. Setterington had been in this district since 1921 and before that spent considerable time around Hazelton.

The Power Corporation of Canada has purchased the power plant of the Dunwell mine which will be used in connection with the development of American Creek. The operation of the plant during the coming winter will assure Stewart consumers of plenty of power.

Systematic prospecting of the Lucky Jim property in the American Creek section is producing some interesting results, the latest sample taken by Harry Townsend M.E. giving 80c in gold, 77.8 ounces silver and five per cent copper across seven feet of vein. The vein is believed to be an extension of the Mountain Boy system.

Men for two more shifts have been sent up the hill to the Independence property which is being developed by the Revenue Mining Co. They will be employed in driving the cross-cut tunnel on No. 4 vein and in drifting on the vein.

Work has been suspended by William McAdams and associates on the Red Top property. It is reported that the interests holding a bond on the property wanted another year to prosecute their work, but, being refused, threw up the property on which there is promising showings.

THE GREEN SHADOW

by HERMAN LANDON

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

"Neither do I," said the doctor calmly. "I haven't the right kind of nerve for that sort of thing. It has to be done. Quick! They may be here any moment."

The old man fingered the weapon a moment longer. He drew up his gaunt figure. "I won't!" he rasped out.

The Rope of Pearls

"Eh?" Dr. Moffett's sharp eyes cut a blaze through the green space that separated them. "You won't? When did you get so squeamish? You had no scruples about getting Miss Conway out of the way."

"That was different. She had it coming to her. But this one"—he glanced crookedly at the girl—didn't double-cross us, the way the other one did. She only did what anybody else would do in a pinch like that. I won't do it!"

There was the sound of footsteps on the other side of the table. A deadly look pierced the shuddering old man. Dr. Moffett's dim and fragmentary figure stooped over the weapon.

"I won't forget this, Axelson, he muttered angrily. "Well, if you won't do it, then I must. The outcome will be—"

He broke off with a startled exclamation. He had just reached for the pistol lying on the floor but a quicker hand had forestalled him. With a laugh the Picaroon leaped to his feet.

"Don't move, Moffett," he advised quietly. "I can shoot straight, even if I can't see your face. Stay right where you are, Axelson, until I tell you to move. Permit me." He threw something at the doctor's feet.

"What—that's that?" stammered the doctor in a stricken voice. "The bullet you wasted. And here is something else." His left hand dipped into the inside pocket on the left side of his coat.

"Do you know, doctor, I didn't really think you would shoot," said the Picaroon. "But, since you had to shoot, it was nice of you to humor my whim and shoot straight at my heart. Oh, Axelson!"

With an uncertain gait, his head lolling unsteadily, the old man came forward. "Axelson," said the Picaroon, "you are a vile old scoundrel, but I shan't forget that you refused to do as this blackguard told you."

"Oh, to be sure. Green candles, aren't they? That's why they do not stand out in this light. More protective coloring!" The Picaroon chuckled musingly. "Light them, Axelson."

The old man twisted his head and hesitated. "Light them," the Picaroon sternly repeated, flourishing the pistol just a little.

Axelson obeyed. Soon two small yellow flames shone through the green illumination.

"One more thing, Axelson," said the Picaroon briskly. "I want you to know how I feel. I want you to know how I feel. I want you to know how I feel."

foot. He looked at the dim figure of his master, but Moffett did not appear to notice him.

"I—I can't do that, sir," he protested.

"Hurry!" said the Picaroon, and his voice cut like steel.

With a tottering gait the old man went across the floor. A small, sharp sound came, and the green illumination faded out.

"Steady, Moffett!" The Picaroon warned. "One more move and I shoot—not to kill, but to cripple."

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "A green mask—exactly the same shade of green as the light. Talk about protective coloring! But what's this?" He gazed narrowly at the mask, noticing a faint, greenish glow emanating from the fabric.

"Oh, of course! Some sort of phosphorescent substance. The mask had to be luminous itself, in order to blend perfectly into the general illumination. Now we'll see—"

With a swift motion he tore the mask from the doctor's face. Then he stood spellbound, staring.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed in a dull, hollow voice. "Mr. Ferrymen!"

An hour had passed. The two candles on the mantel were still projecting their pale sheen across the floor. Alexander Ferrymen, alias Dr. Moffett, occupied a chair at the window. He was a gloomy, silent man, and his hands and feet were bound with certain ropes. Facing him sat Axelson, equally silent and gloomy, his hands and feet similarly tied.

And in a room on the upper floor Joan of Arc was a prisoner behind a locked door. The ferocious Caesar had been chained to a tree outside.

The door opened and Dale walked in. He had removed the trappings which, in the deceptive green light, had given him superficial resemblance to Mr. Castle. He dragged his feet a little, an unusual thing for him to do, and his head was a trifle bowed, as if weighed down with perplexities.

"Did you get Capt. Summers?" Adele inquired.

JASPER GOLF IN PROGRESS

Gardiner White Was in First Round for Totem Pole Trophy

JASPER PARK LODGE, Sept. 9.—Gardiner White, noted golfer and runner-up in the Canadian amateur championship, was the winner in the first round of totem pole trophy, the golf classic of western Canada, which opened on the Jasper Park Lodge course Saturday with a field of 75 entries.

Miss Cecil Smith of Toronto won the ladies' event by a score of 87, four down to the C.L.G.W. par.

The tournament was officially opened by Hon. Dr. William Egbert, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, who is also an entrant with his son.

A. J. Hills, assistant to the vice-president of the C.N.R., who is captain of the Jasper Park Lodge golf week committee, stated that the recent rains have put the course in an excellent shape as it was during the recent Canadian amateur championship and that, judging from the entrants, some exceptional golf will be played this week.

Today the inter-provincial and state competition teams of six players each will tee off, the total medal round of all contestants for 18 holes to be counted, while in the afternoon the mixed foursome handicap match against bogie will be played, the players to get 50% of the combined handicap.

Race of Yacht Models is Held

Alex Wylie's Boat Won on Saturday With Oscar Sather's Close Behind; Four Boats Enter

Considerable interest was taken in the yacht model race Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Canadian National Yacht Model Club.

Alex Wylie's boat was the winner covering the three mile triangular course off the dry dock in 38 minutes. Oscar Sather's boat was close behind and trailing were boats of Albert Palmer and Jack Gibson.

Only the four boats were entered.

phoned for a doctor. "A doctor? Are you ill?" "No, but"—with an anxious expression he studied her white, faintly smiling face—"Paul Ainsworth is in the house. I found him when I went to look for a telephone."

"Paul!" She sprang up from the chair she had occupied. "I just felt he was here! It must have been Paul who found me in the dark room. I thought his voice sounded familiar, but I couldn't be sure." She paused suddenly startled by his expression. "Where is he? Has anything happened to him?"

"Yes—an accident," said Dale awkwardly. "But it's nothing serious, I am sure. I think these ruffians—with a glance at the two men at the window—"mistreated him."

She was at the door before he had finished speaking. She flung an excited question over her shoulder. "Where?"

"Second floor. First door to the left in the hall."

She was gone in an instant. Dale gave a sigh that was a little wistful. For a few moments he gazed moodily at the door and then he stepped to the table and opened the bag which Dr. Moffett had packed so hurriedly when he thought the police were at the gate. He emptied the contents on the table. Among other things there were several papers, and he gave them a hurried glance before he flung them into the fireplace.

Doctor Moffett turned in the chair and gave him a baneful glance.

"What are you doing?" he demanded.

"It's a chilly morning," said Dale, feigning a shiver. "It will take a $100,000 bonfire to thaw me out."

He struck a match. Doctor Moffett strained violently against the ropes that held his hands and feet. Dale laughed quietly as he touched the match to the papers and watched them flare up and curl into a black flake.

"So much for your little game, Moffett. All that's left is ashes."

Sport Chat

Thistles and Regiment will meet this evening in what, if the Scots win, may be the final league football game of the season. The Thistles now have three wins without a loss in this series and will need just this one win to clinch. That it will go that easy, however, is not expected and the soldiers will be looked for to put up stubborn resistance even if they have lost three games and won none so far and have little chance to cop. This is one of the Mobley Cup games postponed from last month on account of rain.

For the first time this year, the Rose Lake football team met defeat from the Burns Lake eleven on Labor Day, the score being five to one. This score, however, was hardly indicative of the play which was much closer than might be suggested. The teams were: Burns Lake: Engsdad; Pedley and Thomson; D. Trudell, O'Harra, Hauer; Satterstrom, McKenna, Brown, McLeod and Sandnes; Rose Lake: Mowat; Bach and Bach; Sturgeon, Espley and Crahmer; Mould, Faulkner, Mould, Mould and Bach.

EXPERIMENT IN LOGGING

Forest Branch calling For Tenders on Large Cut at Aleza Lake Reserve

In connection with experimental work to determine the best method of logging, the cost of operation and the best policy to be adopted in the disposal of slash, the provincial forest branch is calling for tenders for one million feet of spruce and balsam logs which it proposes to cut and deck in the Aleza Lake forest reserve, near Prince George.

Logging experiments have previously been carried out in the Aleza Lake reserve, but there has been trouble experienced in the disposal of logs. This year the men in charge of the experiment will seek to avoid this by calling for tenders for the purchase of the logs when they have been decked. In addition to the cutting of the logs, the forest branch will prepare roads over which the logs may be hauled to Aleza Lake, the expectation being that the logs will be available on or before January 1. An upset price of $8 has been placed on the logs.

There are about ten sections in the Aleza Lake reserve which are held for experimental purposes in connection with logging and reforestation. The operations will be in charge of officials of the research office of the department and logging will be under the supervision of Ray Sanson, ranger in charge of the station.
