British Government Measure for Settlement Coal Mining Problems Accepted by Miners' Federation

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The national delegate conference of the Miners' Federation, representing all the coal fields of Great Britain, yesterday voted for acceptance of the Government's proposals for the solution of the coal mining problem to be embodied in legislation during the present session of Parliament.

The proposals call for a reduction in the number of working hours from eight to seven and a half beginning April 6 next; the setting up of a national wage board for the industry; establishment of a compulsory marketing scheme for the regulation of the output and prices; the gradual acquisition of mineral royalties by the state.

It is thought that the proposals of the Labor Government will be accepted by Parliament. The Liberals led by Lloyd George will in all probability support the measure and that will insure its becoming law.

It is pointed out here that the reason the measure is so moderate, compared with many of the radical demands of individual laborites, is because of the realization that it could not become law if it were too radical.

Leader Retires

A. A. McGillivray, K.C., of Calgary, who has resigned as leader of the Conservative Party in Alberta, according to an official announcement. He will retain his seat in the Legislature.

POLICING OF INDIANS

Objection Taken to Persecution of Natives While in the City

The question of Indian policing came up at the meeting of the Northern B. C. Agricultural and Industrial Association last night. Alderman Dibb said it was felt by the natives that they were being persecuted and would not come here. While the fair board tried to make things attractive, they were being kept away by the Indian police. The matter had already been taken up by the board of trade and retail merchants.

Alderman Prudhomme explained that the chief objection came from the system by which the constable secured part of the fines.

C. G. Minns said the board of trade had criticized the present system very severely and had taken some action. He thought it might be well to get in touch with them and find out what had been done. He thought there was something wrong with the law.

J. D. Fraser said there was no doubt something was wrong with the law. While efforts were being made to get it changed, he thought they should ask for a transfer of the policeman.

Alderman Casey said the matter was a vital one. He moved that the association co-operate with the board of trade in trying to secure a change. This was seconded by Mr. Minns and carried.

A suggestion was also made that a conference with the Indian Agent might have some effect.

Only a Mongrel Dog But He Stood By the Body of a Young Hunter And Drew Attention To Disaster

NANAIMO, Nov. 21.—Rex is only a mongrel dog but he stood by the dead body of a young Ladysmith man after a disaster in the woods as a result of which David Morgan became the victim of his own gun.

Young Morgan, only 20 years of age, was found shot late yesterday afternoon. He had gone hunting Tuesday morning from his home in Ladysmith. Tuesday night a search party went to look for him and Rex was with them. Soon the dog disappeared and was heard barking, but no attention was paid. Late yesterday when the search was about to be abandoned the dog was again heard and investigation found him standing by the body of Morgan, who evidently had slipped, discharging his rifle into his own breast. The dog had kept vigil all night.

PRINCE HAS CLOSE CALL

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Prince of Wales narrowly escaped a collision in the air while making a practice flight in a moth airplane at Henton yesterday. There was a slight mist over the ground as the Prince circled over the field and it obscured his view of another plane preparing to come down.

The Prince and the other pilot saw the danger in the nick of time and avoided each other by a very slight margin.

Funeral of Baby Held At Osland

Entire Population of Icelandic Settlement Extended Sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kristmannson

The funeral of Elin Marie, two-month-old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kristmannson of Osland, took place at Osland yesterday afternoon with Rev. Canon W. F. Rushbrook officiating. Practically the entire population of the village attended the rites to extend their sympathy to a well known young couple in their bereavement. The service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kristmannson and burial was made in the village cemetery. A number of hymns, including "Nearer My God to Thee," were sung in the Icelandic language at the home service and at the graveside. Four little girls—Asta Einarsen, Elin Einarsen, Inga Jonasson and Inge Anderson—acted as pallbearers. There were many beautiful floral offerings.

HECATE ST. LIGHTS ARE NEXT THING

Dr. King Says He Thinks He Can Get Them at Next Session of the House

Olof Hanson, who returned from Vancouver yesterday, told The Daily News that he had occasion to meet Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Health, while in the south and took with him a number of local matters. He said Dr. King told him he thought he could get the lights asked for in Hecate Straits. It was the aim of the Government to place Prince Rupert on an equality with any other British Columbia port in the matter of insurance rates and he thought the addition of the lights would do that.

Mr. Hanson said he found the doctor keenly interested in the western outlet of the Peace River and he complimented Prince Rupert on the manner in which they had presented the case. The appointment of the director to the Canadian National Railway was also discussed and consideration will be given to the matter.

CORN COB RETURNING

Pipe Sent Around World From Prince Rupert on Way Home

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20.—It's only a "barnyard" Meerschmum, in other words, a battered corn cob pipe, but it has seen the world and is en route home with labels, poems and newspaper clippings to prove it. The globe-trotting corn cob reached Canadian National head offices at Montreal yesterday from England, on the last leg of its journey around the world. Some years ago a baggage agent of the C. N. R. at Prince Rupert started the old corn cob pipe in its world tour with a tag attached asking the recipient to forward it in turn to a C. N. agent in Australia. Since then the pipe has travelled Australia, New Zealand, Hongkong and England where a few of the countries of call, most of the agents at points visited attaching a message in the form of newspaper clipping, poem or photograph representative of his territory.

Though the pipe which was the original shipment is almost lost in a hundred odd tags attached to it, but from Montreal it returns to Prince Rupert to the man who started it in its globe trotting tour.

BEARS NO LONGER MAY BE PROTECTED ALASKAN TERRITORY

JUNEAU, Nov. 21.—Action to solve the brown and black bear protection question has been initiated by the Alaska Game Commission. It was announced today by Dr. W. H. Chuse, President of the organization. Briefly, the Commission has recommended to remove protection from the big brown and grizzly species, except in certain definite areas, and from the black bears all over the territory. Limited protection for the big brown and grizzly bears is given in areas where industrial and commercial development is either nonexistent or backward.

FINAL HALIBUT CATCH OF YEAR

Believed to be the final halibut boat of the season to market its catch at Prince Rupert, the Cape Beale, owned by John Berg, disposed of 20,000 pounds this morning to the Atlin Fish-eries, 13c and 9c being paid for the catch. The American schooners Wizard, Sitka and Radio, the last American boats of the season to report, are now believed to have sold their catches at Alaska ports before proceeding to Seattle.

C. N. R. WILL GO FORWARD

Confidence in the Soundness of Canadian Business Expressed in Policy Set Forth

MONTREAL, Nov. 21.—Confidence in the soundness of business conditions in Canada was expressed in the policy adopted by the Canadian National Railways of going forward for the next year with the purchase of equipment for the Canadian lines to the extent of $20,000,000, only slightly under the purchases and construction carried out in 1929. Next year's program, in addition, will include the continuation of a substantial scale of branch line construction in Western Canada. Announcement of this was made yesterday.

Work Proceeds Rufus-Argenta Mine at Stewart

Duthele Eliminated From Control of Property But Has Some Money in Contract

VANCOUVER, Nov. 21.—F. C. Elliott, secretary treasurer of the Rufus-Argenta Mines, is credited in the Victoria Times with a statement denying the report published by a Vancouver broker that J. F. Duthele had renewed operations at the property.

It is true that work was resumed at the Rufus-Argenta this week, but Mr. Duthele had been eliminated from all control and management whatsoever although some of his money is behind the new contract. Mr. Elliott said: "The new contract has been financed and let to Pete Swedberg, contractor of Stewart, B.C., who carried out the work last winter. It calls for the tunnel to be pushed on this winter to cut the Erickson vein. The work is under Mat Reese, M.E., of Vancouver and San Francisco, and Mr. Duthele will have nothing whatever to say about it."

William Gilchrist and Very Rev. J. B. Gibson Speakers Last Evening

The Parent Teacher Association heard two interesting and valuable addresses at its regular meeting last evening in Borden Street School when William Gilchrist spoke on "Medical Inspection in the schools and the method of Gibson on "Home and Education."

Mr. Gilchrist alluded to the importance of medical inspection in the schools and the methods by which the doctor's recommendations were followed up in different parts of the province. Dr. H. E. Young, the provincial health officer, had stated at the recent Trustees' Convention that the four commonest serious diseases—measles, smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid—were all preventable and correct methods of controlling these would save the families considerable expense and time. Pupils would not lose time by being confined to their homes. Specially trained nurses were available to follow up the recommendations of the doctors. The doctors could not devote the necessary time to this part of school medical inspection so the school nurse was almost more important than the doctor. The school nurse was not merely a curative nurse such as are the majority of hospital trained nurses but was also a preventive nurse. The cost of providing such a nurse in Prince Rupert would add not more than half a mill to the taxes. The municipality paid only half the cost, the provincial government paying one quarter and the other quarter being paid by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Dean Gibson gave an impressive and constructive talk on the place of the home in the sphere of modern education. Too much was left by the average parent nowadays to the school, he felt. Education was tripartite, the body, mind and spirit all needed education and while the modern educational system had provided adequate and expensive school equipment and well qualified teachers, yet the spiritual side was ignored. A lapsed education was the result. While "utilitarians and even statesmen boasted of the wonderful material wealth and financial resources of the country, they rarely devoted much time to the consideration of the greatest potential wealth of the country—the boys and girls. The foundations of the glory of a nation were set in the homes of the people and the foundations were secure only as long as the family life was strong, simple and pure. The supreme test of education was this—did it produce men who loved their fellow men and men who prayed to God?

J. W. Plommer delighted the meeting with vocal solos accompanied by Mrs. E. P. Grassie. Mrs. R. M. Winslow presided over a good attendance.

WHEAT IS COMING UP

Further Reports of Argentine Crop Failure Cause Bullish Movement on American Markets

WINNIPEG, Nov. 21.—Announcement by the Argentine government that more than three million acres of standing wheat have been abandoned as a result of excessive drought, leaving only 16,000,000 acres to be harvested, caused a bullish sentiment on the American grain markets today. The local market closed at from 2c to 2 1/2c up. The close for November wheat was $1.35 1/2.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 21.—The price of wheat also moved up sharply on the Vancouver Exchange, the day's price being $1.36 1/2.

Hospital Board Airs Grievance

Objection Voiced At Doctors Admitting Compensation Patients To Institution Unnecessarily

The hospital board last night expressed its displeasure at medical practitioners of the city having admitted to the hospital under the Workmen's Compensation Act patients for whom the Compensation Board later finds treatment was not necessary, refusing to pay for same. The matter came up in connection with a recent case where a patient was admitted to the hospital, on the order of a local physician, the Compensation Board later finding that only an X-ray examination was necessary and refusing to pay for eleven days' treatment the patient had received in the institution. Hospital records supported the ruling of the Compensation Board that hospital treatment in this particular case had not been warranted.

President Thompson and other members of the board objected to the hospital thus being made a convenience of and it was decided, on motion of Ald. Brown and E. E. Benson, to take the matter up with the local Medical Association and offer the suggestion that doctors in future use more discretion in the admission of such patients to the hospital.

Under the Workmen's Compensation head there were a number of other letters before the board in some of which outstanding settlements were made.

The board decided to accede to a request from the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. whereby patients of this company will receive hospital treatment on the same basis as Workmen's Compensation Board patients.

DUNNING IS LIKELY FOR PROMOTION

Minister of Railways Expected to Be Minister of Finance Succeeding Robb

REGINA, Nov. 21.—A remark made by Premier Mackenzie King in the closing political speech of his western tour here last night that his colleague, the minister of railways, Hon. Charles A. Dunning, had recovered his health and would be assuming heavier burdens in the interests of the state than he had ever before assumed, may not be so significant. Many of his hearers, however, were quick to connect this with rumors that Mr. Dunning would succeed Mr. Robb as minister of finance. He is acting minister now.

The declaration that his government was firm in its belief that no extreme measures would ever best serve Canada, whether in regard to tariff or anything else, featured the Premier's remarks in reply to speeches of the Conservative leader, Bennett on his tour last summer.

PEACE PACT IN SCHOOLS

Full Description of Impressive Ceremony at Ocean Falls Which Led To Move

ADDRESS OF PREMIER

Head of Government Tells of Historic Scene at Paris When Pact Was Signed OCEAN FALLS, Nov. 21.—One of those remarkable series of coincidences which amaze us occurred this week at Ocean Falls, B.C. Armistice Day, Thanksgiving Day and a visit of the Prime Minister of Canada in a small community like Ocean Falls all coinciding in one day is a combination not likely to happen again in a life-time.

On the initiative of the United Church minister a community Armistice and Thanksgiving service was arranged to take place on the arrival of the Canadian National steamship on her way south from Prince Rupert to Vancouver. An invitation was extended to the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to address the meeting on the double theme of Thanksgiving and Armistice. To commemorate the event an illuminated copy of the Peace Pact was prepared and the Prime Minister asked to unveil it.

He graciously accepted. On the arrival of the S.S. Prince George he proceeded straight to the church. A simple service fitting for the occasion was arranged. The service was conducted by the United Church minister, Rev. W. Deans, B.A., B.D.

The Venerable Archdeacon E. Hodson, L.H., read the prayers for the day. Rev. Captain R. C. Scott, B.A., of the Mission ship "Thomas Crosby", read the scriptures.

The assembled congregation stood to attention while the "Last Post" was sounded and during the period of silence which was followed by the "Reveille". The trumpeter was the United Church choir leader, Wm. K. Nevard, who, during three and a half years of the war was with the 29th Canadian battalion.

In introducing the Prime Minister Mr. Deans said: "We are highly honored in having with us today the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister of Canada. We are especially pleased that he is able to take part in this service. It will stand out as a great historic occasion."

NERVES WERE BAD Could Not Sleep Tired All Day Long

Miss Florence Coutier, Bark Lake, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with my nerves, could not sleep at night, and felt tired all day long."
"A neighbor came in to see me, one morning, and advised me to take livered his historic address. Mr. Stressemann was the first to rise and slowly make his way to the small table where the general pact for the renunciation of war lay, awaiting the signatures that were to make it practical, and taking the pen he wrote the signature that pledged his country the first of all the nations of the world to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

The representatives of the other nations followed, and the promise of a new era had come to the world.

Simple Pact

Mr. King said: "The pact is very simple and brief. It contains two articles, the first, agreement to renounce war; the second, agreement to solve differences by peaceful means. To make these real in international affairs two things are necessary. First, disarmament; second, the creation of an instrument—world court or commission—to which problems that arise may be referred."

He was glad to say that at the meeting of the League of Nations Council in Geneva he was able to point out that Canada had already found these things practicable.

The treaty of 1817 with the United States had provided for disarmament on the lakes and had been extended to include the four thousand-mile boundary line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. If similar treaties were made in Europe the people would be saved untold millions in taxation which today are needed for boundary fortifications and other military and naval expenditures.

The other day when Ramsay MacDonald was in Ottawa he was able to say to him that what he and Mr. Hoover had been trying to discover was already to be found in Canada. In 1909 Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government concluded a treaty with Secretary Root of the United States Government for the appointment of an international commission to deal with waterways and kindred problems in which both nations were concerned. Of twenty-three issues submitted, some were still pending, but all the others save three had been settled by unanimous decision of the commission consisting of three representatives of each nation.

He suggested to Mr. MacDonald that a similar commission might be formed to include all the British Dominions or the present commission enlarged. It may be that this experiment of twenty years will provide the way for all the nations.

Placing his hand on the Bible and referring to the comparatively small population of Canada he said: "It may be that once again this 'Word' is being fulfilled and God is using the weak things to confound the mighty."

Message of King

"These are the contributions of the new world to the age-old problems of humanity. To you and the whole Canadian people on this occasion I would give this message. While our hearts are filled with thanksgiving to Almighty God for His bountiful providence during the year, we link up with this day the additional thought of thanksgiving for the restoration of peace among the nations. The message of the trumpeter and the period of silence remind us of the men who paid the supreme sacrifice in the interests of peace and of those who under tremendous handicaps are quietly carrying on with a courage equal to that evinced in the field of battle."

"What more enduring and worthy memorial can we raise to the memory of those men than this pact. The enemies we have to fear today are those who sow seeds of distrust among the nations. Let us sow seeds of friendship and confidence and help create the atmosphere where the ideals of this pact may flourish and bring healing to the nations."

After the service the copy was taken down and the man who had signed the Peace Pact on behalf of Canada signed this copy and dated it Armistice Day, 1929.

To members of the board of the church and many of the friends who waited to see this additional little ceremony which gives to our copy of the pact a very special value the Prime Minister spoke of the educational value of this action of the church. He recalled the letter from the Prince Rupert Presbytery, but as all matters were under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Government he could take no action.

Copies of the Pact

Mr. Deans informed him that the secretary of the church board had a letter from the Minister of Education to the effect that if the Dominion Government would undertake the expense the Provincial Department would have the copies placed in the schools.

Mr. King replied: "We will find the money if he will do that." Later he confirmed this statement in conversation by saying: "If we are asked to co-operate in this way by the Provincial Department of Education, the Dominion Government will be pleased to provide suitable framed copies of the pact."

Some of us think that this is probably the most important result of any Armistice Day service anywhere in the Dominion of Canada in this year of grace.

The official board of the United Church held its regular meeting the same evening and decided to wire the Minister of Education of the Prime Minister's decision. Further, it was decided to circulate the secretaries of Presbyteries informing them of this event and suggesting that they immediately get in touch with their respective Provincial Departments of Education and have them take the initiative that will lead to the placing of copies of the pact in every school in the Dominion.

SALMON FISHERMEN

Editor, Daily News:—

As newly elected secretary of the Northern B.C. Salmon Fishermen's Association, I read with more than passing interest your editorial in your issue of even date.

I take pleasure in thanking you for your criticism, realizing that it is at the worst, a cheap method of advertisement.

Knowing that it reaches the public at large, and feeling that your remarks may place a wrong construction on the policy of our association, I feel constrained to reply forthwith.

Your statement gives to your readers the impression that we, as an association, sold all our fish to one buyer, and that it was to be regretted that that buyer was not the Cold Storage.

We flatter ourselves that we possess enough grey matter, to know that it would be idiotic, to curtail competitive markets, and assure you that the benevolent Cold Storage were invited to buy our fish on equal terms with their competitors.

They elected to refuse these terms, and appear to have regretted it ever since. Naturally, as business is business, we offer no sympathy, and in fairness would state that none has been asked.

Our members feel that, as the price obtained this season was higher than ever before, we must have embarked on a successful policy. As to the Cold Storage being as it were the Paterfamilias of the industry, we as salmon fishermen, can not accept it in this role. We as an organization, deny being one of restraint; but hope our market is an ever increasing one.

We also are able to know, that as long as we have fish to sell, then the buyers are somewhere in the offing.

We fail to see why when the larger interests employ any method to increase their profits, then it is considered diplomacy, and if the laborer endeavors to get a more adequate return, then his color is considered pink, if not red.

We seek for pleasant business relations with all interested in the industry, but our period of being led by the nose is past and with the raven we respond "Nevermore."

I ask you to please print this letter, and thus give the publicity your own editorial received.

Yours sincerely,
CHARLES LORD.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

Cocktails were brought in and the subject, to Miss Brown's relief, was temporarily dropped. They spoke of the party of the night before, Malakoff explained his absence by telling them that while in London he lived almost the life of a recluse except for a little occasional intercourse with one or two English musicians.

"Before the production of a new work," he confided, as they made their way to the dining room, "I, as a rule, shut myself up for a fortnight. I am afraid of losing the inner sense of what I must help my musicians to interpret. It is extraordinary how many difficulties a work of one's own composition presents if suddenly confronted with it when one's mind has been traveling in other directions."

"I know a modest authoress," the Princess remarked, as she waved them to their places at the table, "who often forgets her own plots."

"Your art, dear Princess," Malakoff observed, "nevertheless lives nearer to you than mine. I mean that you can send your mind more easily into the places where your ideas are born. Sometimes my music escapes me, and I think that it must travel into infinity, for there are phrases which have come to me sometimes in the night, have vanished with the dawn and never reappeared. You are interested in music, Miss Brown?"

"I am ashamed to say," Miss Brown confessed, "that I am utterly and entirely ignorant of it."

"It is a state which has its advantages," he declared, talking all the time, but making also astonishing inroads upon the first course of his luncheon. "The base of the musical world is the person with technical knowledge and no appreciation—none of the finer sense of appreciation I mean. It is torture to talk with such a person. They speak with the words of understanding and with a closed soul. My dear Princess, what caviare!"

The Princess made a sign, and his plate was refilled.

"In the regrettable absence of vodka," he said, with a reproachful glance at his hostess, "I clamored for a glass of kummel."

The liquor was duly presented, and he drained the contents of a large glass. From then onward the chief interest which Miss Brown had in the luncheon was in watching her neighbor's gastronomic exploits. He was frankly, almost childishly, aware of them.

"And now," he announced, turning to Miss Brown abruptly when the coffee had been served and the servants had left the room, "I will come to the object of this little meeting. I do not accept invitations to lunch, as the Princess knows very well. I came here to meet you."

"Me?" Miss Brown repeated, with a sinking heart.

"Entirely. I am a man who likes to disclose himself. If I had reached here before the death of my friend Dessiter, he would know, have made me his literary executor. He had the same tastes: we detested the same institutions. He had confidence in my judgment. He realized that sometimes he was too impetuous; that he would put things down on paper which might never find their way into print. He disclosed an abuse, let us say. People sometimes doubted his facts because of his adjectives."

"A very good line," the Princess murmured. "May I use it?"

Malakoff ignored her. He was engrossed in what he was saying. His eyes were fixed upon Miss Brown: the little wrinkles in his face seemed to have become deeper. He was nervously clasping and unclasping his wonderful white hands, with their long, bony fingers.

"Young lady," he said, "I gather that my friend Dessiter died so unexpectedly that he had no time to send for me or any of his friends. You yourself know how suddenly things were over."

His eyes seemed to be boring their way into the back of Miss Brown's head. Miss Brown was listening attentively, with a puzzled frown upon her forehead.

"Well," he concluded, "this is what I wish to ask you. You have by chance in your possession Dessiter's last messages to the world: the result of his last exploit and explorations. What are your instructions from him? What are you to do with them?"

"May I, before I answer, ask you something?" Miss Brown begged.

He waved his hand in assent, and she continued.

"How did you know that I had these notes in my possession?"

"From Dessiter's servant, Mergen," was the prompt reply. "Mergen is of no consequence. Already I believe he has taken another position. What I am suggesting to you, Miss Brown, is that you tell me what instructions you have with regard to your notes."

"I am sorry," Miss Brown replied, in a tone as colorless as her personality when she wished it to seem so, "but I cannot answer your question. As a matter of fact, I have not yet received my final instructions."

"Not tell me?" Malakoff exclaimed, with a flash of the eyes. "But it is absurd! I was Dessiter's friend and confidant. Now, listen. This I demand of you. Before you part with those notes you and I must go through them together, and the sooner the better. I will point out what it is wise to delete. That would have been my office if Dessiter had been alive."

Miss Brown had never looked so gentle, so almost insignificant except for her blue eyes. Nevertheless, there was something curiously definite about the shake of her head.

"What a pity that you arrived in England too late to see Colonel Dessiter, Mr. Malakoff," she said. "Now, of course, what you ask is impossible. I am only a servant in this matter. I have no latitude. I cannot depart from my instructions. Just as they were given to me I must fulfill them."

Malakoff leaned across the table. There was fury in his face. Suddenly he tore from the third finger of his left hand the one marvelous ring he was wearing—a ring containing a huge and amazing emerald. He threw it across the table.

Managing Secretary H. W. Birch read at last night's meeting of the hospital board a statistical document issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce wherein it was shown that per capita treatment costs per diem in British Columbia hospitals had averaged from $3.19 to $3.29 in a period of five years, the average costs in most other provinces being higher than this. DIRECTORS CHOSEN FOR 1930 FAIR

Balance on Right Side of Ledger
Shown in Annual Report
Read at Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Northern B. C. Agricultural and Industrial Association held last night in the city hall, Alderman Prudhomme in the chair, directors for the coming year were elected, the financial statement read and the president made his annual report. New directors were H. F. Glassy, George Casey, N. Mussallem, G. C. Minns, W. H. Sherman, D. Jabour, Alderman Dibb, Alderman Prudhomme and John Bulger. This board will meet Tuesday evening next to organize for the coming year.

President's Address

President Prudhomme in his annual address said:

"We started the year with a small deficit from the year 1928, which was caused by the extra amount of insurance that had to be taken care of by the 1928 board, and which covered a three year term.

"The Auditor's report, which is herewith presented, shows a credit balance of surplus of $1614.80 for the year 1929, which, in my opinion, is a very satisfactory showing, when you consider that our membership drive was approximately $1000.00 less than last year, and donations approximately $500.00 less. Had these two items been up to last year, our surplus would have been over $3000.00.

"Considerable improvements were made to the buildings and grounds, in the way of a permanent stage inside, and the removing of rock and surfacing the carnival grounds at the rear of the building.

"While the exhibits this year were not up to standard, this is accounted for by the backward season, which was general all over the country. Considering this, however, there were a number of exhibits of excellent quality, and all the exhibitors were perfectly satisfied with results.

"Regarding attractions, the board provided a number of good clean acts for inside the building, all of which proved very pleasing to the public and proved a good drawing card, among which might be mentioned, Miss Myfawny Campbell and her dancing girls, also the Three Naths, both of which were outstanding numbers.

In addition to these we had outdoor attractions in the way of baseball, Ocean Falls vs. Prince Rupert, softball between local teams, and Indian championship baseball and football games.

"To the incoming board I would recommend that in arranging for attractions for 1930, they consider continuing along the same lines as above mentioned, and in addition to this to provide an Indian Band Contest, if possible, as this seems to be the wish of a great number of citizens, and would be the means of bringing to our city a large number of visitors. The reason this year's board did not have an Indian Band Contest, was due to the fact that the pieces selected were not placed in the hands of the several bands in time for them to prepare same for the exhibition, the members having left their homes for the fishing grounds, and were scattered all over the country. I would, therefore, suggest that an early start be made in this matter.

"I wish to take this opportunity to personally thank all those who in any way assisted in making the fair the success it proved to be, and particularly the directors who were untiring in their efforts, and assisted in carrying out the program."

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officers for their work on motion of N. Mussallem seconded by George Casey.

AFFAIR WAS SUCCESSFUL

Substantial Sum Realized as Result of Sale of Work by Lief Erikson Ladies

A highly successful sale of home work was held by the Ladies' Club of the Lief Erikson Society last evening in the Metropole Hall. About 150 persons were present and close to $200 was realized as a result of the effort.

An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Karl Dybhavn, president of the Ladies' Club, and the function was formally opened by Karl Dybhavn, president of the Lief Erikson Society.

A musical program included selections by a ladies' choir, directed by Mrs. Karl Dybhavn, and by a men's choir, led by Peter Lien.

There were a number of raffles in which a total of twenty-seven prizes, mostly fancy work, were offered.

During the evening, delightful refreshments were served.

All the twenty or so ladies who are identified with the club were responsible for the success of the affair. E. Stockland and O. A. Bruskeland presided at the door. The proceedings came to an enjoyable close with dancing for which music was furnished by Hanson and Farstad.

Hospital Refuses To Pay Duty Upon Sterilizer Stand

There was further correspondence at last night's hospital board meeting from the medical supply firm of Ingram & Bell which is seeking to collect from the board the sum of $21 which was recently assessed as duty on a sterilizer stand which was delivered to the hospital. The original understanding upon which the purchase was made was that the stand would be delivered duty free, but this did not turn out to be the case, and now the supply firm is endeavoring to collect. A letter from the company read at the board meeting stated that the stand could be confiscated in the event of the duty not being paid. It was suggested that the board reconsider a previous decision not to pay the $21.

Since the original understanding had been that there would be no duty, and as payment for the equipment had already been made, the board decided to stand pat on its previous decision and a letter will be sent to Ingram & Bell expressing the belief that that concern and not the hospital is now responsible for the payment of the duty.
