Russia Charged With Trying to Alienate Loyalty of Manchuria and Firm Stand Taken by China

SHANGHAI, Aug. 19.—The Chinese Nationalist government has ordered the mobilization of ten additional brigades of Manchurian troops totalling 100,000.

The government views the Chino-Russian crisis as increasingly serious. The brigades will be assigned to duty on the northern frontier.

The Nationalist premier was quoted as saying that Moscow was trying to alienate the loyalty of the Manchurian provinces and declared: "The government is compelled to take a firm stand lest Communism again plays havoc in China."

NO PROGRESS WITH DEMANDS GREAT BRITAIN

Meeting Held Today of Five Powers But No Announcement Made of Result

THE HAGUE, Aug. 19.—Following the acceptance Saturday night by Chancellor Snowden of the proposal of France, Italy, Belgium and Japan that experts of all five of the principal reparations creditors of Germany examine the previous proposals by the four powers for increasing the British share, another meeting was held today to go over in detail the compromise offer whereby the British would be granted an additional 60 per cent increase.

On Saturday Mr. Snowden insisted that after examining this offer carefully in meant only 20 per cent increase, which was unacceptable. No announcement was made as the result of today's meeting but it was felt that Great Britain would remain firm that it would be useless to go ahead with the conference unless her demands were met and the deep conviction seemed general that her demands cannot be met.

HOME OIL GETS ANOTHER WELL

CALGARY, Aug. 19.—Making what has every appearance of being another million dollar well, Home number three blew in early this morning with a gas flow estimated at 18,000,000 cubic feet. Until a production test is made no official estimate can be made but it is expected to yield 500 barrels of naphtha daily. The gas flow was struck at 113 feet in lime. It is considerably shallower than the depth at which the other Home wells came in.

BOY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Teddy Halverson Stuck and Sustained Broken Legs and Head Injuries

Teddy Halverson, seven-year-old son of Carl Halverson, 1125 Eighth Avenue East, sustained two broken legs and minor head injuries when struck by an automobile driven by W. White of 80 Taxi on Hays Cove Avenue, between Bacon and Conrad Streets, at 8:30 Saturday night. The little boy was unconscious for some time and at first a fractured skull was feared, but it did not turn out to be so. He is a patient in the Prince Rupert General Hospital, where, it was reported this morning, he was doing as nicely as could be expected.

The driver of the car, in his report to the police, stated that he was proceeding east along Eighth Avenue at about fifteen miles an hour. The lad, he said, ran in front of him from behind a parked car and he had no chance to avoid striking him. The boy was struck by the bumper as White brought his car to a stop as soon as possible.

BIG FIRE AT LLOYDMINSTER

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask., Aug. 19.—A fire starting shortly after midnight destroyed the Royal Bank, two hotels and about ten business establishments before it was brought under control at 10 o'clock. No estimate of the loss has been made, but it is expected to reach $1,000,000. All the hotel guests escaped.

Prince Rupert to Tokyo by Air

There is a scheme on foot, sponsored in Vancouver, for a trans-ocean flight from Prince Rupert to Tokyo, a distance of 3,770.6 miles, stopping for fuel at Kodiak Island, Unalaska, Attu Island and one of the islands of the Kurile group.

The flight is being financed by donations, each donor to participate in a number of prizes totalling in value $10,000, the first prize being half that amount. The prizes are awarded for calculating the total flying time of the airplane "Prince Rupert," which is to make the flight. Each dollar donated gives a right to make a calculation.

The port of Prince Rupert is chosen as the hopping off point because it is only 3,770.6 miles from Tokyo, as against Vancouver's 4,283 miles.

Hon. R. B. Bennett Makes Attack on Government Through Minister to Japan

NEW WESTMINSTER, Aug. 19.—Speaking at a Conservative picnic Saturday, R. B. Bennett charged the Dominion government with broadcasting propaganda through Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan.

"The government is broadcasting propaganda through Mr. Marler, who is being sent to Japan as minister but who is acting the role of a glorified commissioner masquerading in gold lace," said the opposition leader, who continued: "The idea of sending a minister to Japan who takes advantage of his position to send out propaganda. MANY ESCAPED FOREST FIRES

Were Trapped But Took to the Lake and Were Picked Up

NELSON, Aug. 19.—The forest fire situation in the Kootenay district still remains serious. On Sunday, Slocan City was threatened with extermination by a fire fanned by a high wind which spread in all directions. It jumped Slocan Lake starting fresh fires close to town.

The town seemed doomed when suddenly the wind dropped and the fighters managed to hold the blaze on the outskirts.

Some fear was expressed for the safety of J. Johnson, a lumberman, his wife and 22 men who were trapped by fire on Evans Creek, but it is believed they sought safety on the lake, as did 15 others who were picked up by a tugboat.

Near Nelson a big fire is burning at Hall Creek. Thunderstorms yesterday brought little rain to relieve the situation.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

There never was a time when overseas people took as much interest in Canada as is done today. Every summer a number of Old Country people visit Canada to learn something about the country and the people. Today Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas is touring Canada and so are Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, formerly chancellor of the exchequer, and at one time a newspaperman, and Rt. Hon. C. M. S. Amery, also a member of the previous government. At the Canadian Chamber of Commerce gathering at Edmonton and Calgary early in September there will be about twenty members of parliament and others from across the seas taking part and one from India. Everything points to the growing importance of Canada in world affairs.

QUICK MONEY INJURIOUS

Earning quick money either by oil or by finding rich mines is very injurious to the regular industries of a neighborhood. At the week-end we heard how people were leaving their usual productive work in the lakes district to taking up prospecting because there was a prospecting flurry in the district and everybody seemed to catch the fever. The Prince of Wales rather regrets that oil is being found in the neighborhood of his farm in Alberta, because it spoils the country and interferes with agriculture. These things are inevitable in connection with the advancement of modern industries, but they are often most regrettable.

PRAIRIE CROP

It is now pretty generally accepted that the prairie crop will not be more than half of the average. While the falling off will affect the railways and there will be nothing like as much casual labor in the country this year as formerly, some farmers will make almost as much as they have in the big crop years. To begin with, the price is sixty cents higher than it would have been if there had been a good crop. Then the cost of handling the crop is very much less and in many cases threshing is done as the crop is cut. Farmers will help each other and save labor and many will thus find themselves at the end of the year as well off as last season.

News of the Mines

AROUND PRINCE RUPERT

Silver Cup Operating in Full Swing Again; North Helps to Speed Up Provincial Mineral Output; Copper River Project Still Alive

After having been shut down for some time on account of road conditions and the necessity of making certain alterations, the mill at the Silver Cup mine, near Hazelton, is again in full operation and trucks are making regular deliveries of ore between the mill and the railway. The road has been greatly improved, which should much facilitate future operations. A new generator has also been installed at the mine and power trouble will now be over. In No. 4 tunnel at the mine a new shoot of high-grade ore was recently struck. So far about 60 tons of this ore have been mined and the full extent of the shoot is not yet known. The No. 4 tunnel is at a depth of 500 feet and the shoot was encountered 600 feet in the hill.

Reginald Beaumont and B. C. Keeley of Vancouver, directors of the mine, recently visited the property and expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the showings.

The speeding up of output at Anyox and Britannia has been largely responsible for increased mineral output in British Columbia during the first six months of this year, according to a progress report issued by the provincial department of mines. The report makes special reference to the multifarious activities of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. throughout the province and attaches great importance to promised mining developments in connection with the building of the Canadian Northwestern Railway from Stewart into the Ingenika district. Special mention is also made of the Timmins project at Owen Lake, the new mining development to the west of Francois Lake which is expected to add substantial tonnage to the provincial output of milling ores. Reports of discoveries in the B. C. Silver are said to be authentic. Reports of discoveries in the Premier are credited with sufficient importance to give this property a much longer life than was indicated by the statement of ore reserves in the last report issued by the company. The Ferguson mine in the Ingenika is also singled out as a prospective important producer. The development of the Henderson mine near Smithers by the Duxie interests is regarded as important as is also the commencement of milling operations at the Silver Cup and promising new strikes of ore on the Babine Bonanza. Among the new discoveries singled out for immediate examination by departmental engineers are those of T. Beley and associates on Milk Creek, at the headwaters of the Telkwa River, and by Frank H. Taylor as to copper mineralization in the district northwest of Owen Lake.

Victoria that the British Pacific Industries Ltd., which has been organized to acquire the holdings of the Copper River Coal Mines, will renew its application to the provincial legislature at the approaching session for a charter to build a railway from Kitimaat to a point near Vanarsdel on the C.N.R. line and from there across the mountains to Telkwa. An application for a charter and land grant was made at the last session but action was not taken by the legislature which was desirous of seeking further information. A great industrial development is behind the application. It is the intention of the applying company not to ship coal from the properties acquired by it but to subject the coal to a low temperature carbonization process for which the company has secured exclusive rights for British Columbia. In the lands to be acquired along the Copper River, its estimated there are 400,000,000 tons of high grade coal, so an industry of major proportions may develop out of the undertaking. There would be three major products from the coal treated as proposed—crude oil, smokeless fuel and gas. Also coke would be produced. The plans of the British Pacific Industries call for the erection of a plant in the vicinity of the Copper River coal properties and the anticipated volume of its business is so large that an independent rail outlet to the Pacific Coast is considered essential to the companies success. Representatives of the British company will visit Victoria before the next session of the legislature and submit their plans to the members of the government.

DOUKHOBORS STATE CASE

Say They Believe in Marriage and Education but Not in War

NELSON, Aug. 19.—Terming the Sons of Freedom, fanatical Doukhobor sect as the "Black Hundreds," Peter Verigin, president of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, Limited, also known as the "Named Doukhobors," denounces the carryings on of these fanatics. The Doukhobor leader further states that he and the "Named Doukhobors" did not have any part in the Doukhobor demonstrations recently held in Kamsack, Sask. He further states that he has taken the matter up with the authorities and hopes in the near future to secure "an unbiased investigation in the whole matter and ask for the punishment of the guilty ones."

From a convention of delegates numbering 35 members of the "Named Doukhobors," led by Mr. Verigin, has come a declaration or protocol. This protocol deals with the beliefs and plans of the great Doukhobor peoples in Canada. It was drawn up and adopted at convention held near Kamsack, Sask., on June 27.

Under the declaration adopted the "Named Doukhobors" not only uphold the laws of Canada in many respects formerly doubted, but declare themselves as absolutely in favor of education of their children in Canadian schools, "but teaching of imperialism and hatred in its various forms should not be tolerated."

The society is favorable to a census of its members, house by house, in Saskatchewan. It relates in its protocol its beliefs in regard to marriage laws, military service, registration of vital statistics, attitude towards courts and other vital matters of interest to the Doukhobors and Canadian citizens alike.

Clauses Adopted

Following are more important clauses of the protocol which Peter Verigin says "was adopted and submitted to the highest authorities of Canada." He adds: "The United Doukhobors will rigidly adhere to and actually practise all that is contained in the said declaration."

Marriage

In regard to marriage among the Doukhobors it says: "According to the faith of the members of the society of 'Named Doukhobors,' marriage should be life-long. 'What God has joined together let no man put asunder.' The foundation of marriages is love. Without such love there can be no marriage and members are deemed free."

"The divorced couple must give each other certificates of release in writing permitting each other to remarry according to their wishes."

"All questions pertaining to the support and maintenance of the issue, if any, and the compensation to the damaged party, shall be left to the decision of the elders of the society, whose decision shall be final and binding upon all parties concerned."

Education

On the school situation it says: "True education should be considered not only desirable, but indispensable, having regard to the present critical times, when mankind is being led to destruction by false standards of so-called culture and education. In order that divine love, peace, brotherhood of man, light of truth, the teaching and spirit of Christ might be brought into the world on the blade of knowledge. It is necessary and desirable for our children to attend the Canadian schools, but teaching of imperialism and hatred in its various forms should not be tolerated."

Military Service

It says in regard to military service: "That the members of the society of 'Named Doukhobors' not only object to, but cannot permit any violence, much less the taking of life under any pretence whatsoever. The spirit of love, forgiveness, peace, toil and of universal brotherhood of man."

The spirit of love, forgiveness, peace, toil and of universal brotherhood of man.

"The society of 'Named Doukhobors' affirm and proclaim that the welfare of the whole does not justify the sacrifice of one single child. Our God is a God of mercy and not sacrifice."

"No man who exercises violence or commits murder, though he may call himself 'Doukhobor,' can be a member of the 'Named Doukhobors' and such a person is a hypocrite and the application of the term 'Doukhobor' to such a person is nothing but an ornamental sound, for no man committing murder shall receive eternal life."

Court Actions

In reference to court actions: "Should any disagreements, quarrels or affronts occur between members of the society the same shall be referred to the executive committee or at the request of one or more of the parties concerned to the general conference of the authorized delegates for consideration and judgment."

Many United States road maps are now drawn showing a highway leading to Prince Rupert down the Skeena River. As a result considerable inconvenience and some times needless expense is often caused. For example, a school teacher and his wife, bound from the States to Alaska motored recently to the district expecting to drive into Prince Rupert. They had to leave their car behind at Prince George when they found they could not get here by road and now they are wondering whether it would pay better to bring the car on or export it back to the United States.

SALVATION ARMY NATIVE MEETING

Proceedings at Port Essington Curtailed on Account of Epidemic Though Formal Opening Held

The sixteenth annual native congress of the Salvation Army in Northern British Columbia, which was held at Port Essington at the end of the week was curtailed, on the advice of the medical officer, on account of an epidemic of black measles which is raging among the Indians.

The opening, however, took place in due course on Saturday afternoon with Brigadier and Mrs. Carter of Winnipeg, Staff Captain Acton of Wrangell and Adjutant William Kerr of Prince Rupert in attendance. A welcome, on behalf of his church, was extended by Rev. W. H. Pierce, United Church minister at Port Essington. Staff Captain Acton welcomed the officers and envoys of the various corps in Northern British Columbia and Envoy Off-fatt of Port Simpson welcomed the visiting leaders. Messages from Commissioner Hoggard were read through Brigadier Carter and a suitable reply was addressed to the commissioner by wire. Mrs. Carter read from the Scripture and spoke briefly and the afternoon proceedings closed with a short address on Salvation Army principles by Brigadier Carter, Staff Captain Acton and Adjutant William Kerr also spoke.

Owing to the epidemic, all other indoor gatherings were dispensed with though a few open air meetings were held. Satisfactory reports on the work of the past year were presented by representatives of various corps from the Naas and Skeena Rivers and along the coast and plans for future activities were discussed.

The leaders returned to the city on yesterday afternoon's train and last night Brigadier and Mrs. Carter took charge of the meeting in the Citadel before a large congregation. Staff Captain Acton left on the Princess Alice this morning for Wrangell and Brigadier and Mrs. Carter will be here until Wednesday morning when they will return to Winnipeg.

THE GREEN SHADOW

by HERMAN LANDON

SYNOPSIS

Police Captain Summers is meditating on the escapes of the Picaroon, whom he is convinced is really his friend, Martin Dale. Mr. Alexander Ferryman calls to relate a tale of strange happenings at 262 Bank Street and requests police investigation. As a watchman employed by Ferryman, he has heard footsteps and seen a eerie green light. Ferryman is showing the captain a picture when the telephone rings. A voice tells of finding a woman's body at the above address—the dead woman is Ferryman's wife. Summers finds only one clue, a bit of green lens.

Meantime, the Picaroon has written a note to Adele Castle requesting a meeting in Central Park. Adele has had a terrifying experience. Taken by a mysterious Miss Conway to a strange light through which she could glimpse only the faint outline of a man, calling himself Dr. Moffett, she is told that her father has been connected with a crooked financial deal. Dr. Moffett demands $100,000 for his silence and certain papers.

Adele and Dale meet. He tells her he was present during her strange interview with Dr. Moffett and promises to help her. Dale also meets Adele's friend, Paul Ainsworth. They become suspicious of one another. Dale "on his own" enters the house where the murder occurred and is trapped within by Summers, Ferryman and Axelsson, who discover Dale taking a rope of pearls from behind a sliding panel. Dale darkens the room, throws Axelsson through a window, and in the resultant confusion escapes.

Summers at luncheon next day receives a note and package from the Picaroon. In the package he finds the missing pearls.

Meantime, Dr. Moffett is getting anxious and telephones, giving Miss Castle just 24 hours in which to make payment to save her father from disgrace and prosecution.

Dale draws cash from his bank and makes an appointment with Adele. He then visits the Ferryman home, agreeing to capture the murderer within a week.

terms are fulfilled within 24 hours.

"You haven't told your father that?"

"Oh, no. What would be the use of worrying him? I know that at present he couldn't possibly produce $100,000, or even a small part of it. Oh, what shall we do?"

Dale smiled reassuringly, although his heart was heavy. Last night the problem had seemed as good as solved. Tonight it was as difficult as ever. He glanced at his watch.

"Where is the telephone?"

"In the hall, just outside the door."

"Can you trust the servants?"

"Oh, yes. They have been with us for years, and they are absolutely honest and reliable."

Dale went lightly across the floor. With a quick jerk he flung the door open. A portly manservant straightened up abruptly and shrank away with a startled and shamed face.

"Hello," said Dale, "what's up?"

The servant, thick, round-faced and portly, cringed within his conventional black garb.

"I only wished to see if Miss Castle was in the drawing room, sir. She left orders she was to be called if wanted on the telephone and I thought I would make sure where to find her."

"Oh, I see. Do you always peep through keyholes when you are looking for your mistress?"

"Keyholes, sir? Why, I—I—"

"That will do," said Dale, and closed the door. "You see, Miss Castle?"

"That was Wambley," the girl murmured perplexedly. "I never imagined he would do a thing like that. Do you suppose Doctor Moffett has bribed him?"

"Doubtless. If so—"

He paused, but his brows went up as if he had suddenly conceived an idea. He pursued it silently. If Wambley were in Dr. Moffett's pay, then it might be possible to shake a few truths out of his portly hide. "It shows we must be careful," he added.

She looked at her watch. "Dr. Moffett will telephone in a few minutes. What shall I tell him?"

"Tell him you are ready to deliver one half of the amount now and will give him the balance of the $100,000 later."

"What?" she exclaimed.

"I don't think the doctor expects payment in one lump sum," Dale explained. "One hundred thousand dollars is too bulky for easy handling. He will be satisfied with half for the present."

"But that's fifty thousand! Where would I get all that money?"

"Here," said Dale, and handed her the packet he had received at the bank.

She took it mechanically, looked at it, turned it over with a dazed air, and shook her head.

"No arguments," Dale interrupted. "We haven't much time. When Doctor Moffett telephones, he will probably set a time and place for the delivery of the money. Tell him you have fifty thousand now and expect to have the balance within a week."

"But I can't accept fifty thousand from you, not even as a loan."

"Nonsense! I am only making you the temporary custodian of two thousand and forty-eight dollars, and I expect to get every penny of it back."

She stared at him for a moment, then looked down at the money in her hand. Her spirits buoyed upward with a little laugh.

"Oh, I see! I had Dr. Moffett or his agent this packet, and in return he will hand me the evidence without suspecting the padded packet. But—"

Her face fell.

"Yes, there is a but," said Dale. "Dr. Moffett will be suspicious. He knows we are not going to hand him so much money until we have tried everything—else. On the other hand we know that Dr. Moffett isn't going to kill the goose he expects to lay the golden egg."

She nodded thoughtfully. "Yes, I see that now. I don't know what I would do if you weren't here to reason things out for me. I've been too worried to think. This money—"

"This is our first card in the game we are playing with Doctor Moffett. Tomorrow morning you will have the two larger bills marked in the presence of two reliable witnesses. A small cross or an initial will do. We are going to force Doctor Moffett to play one of his trumps."

She brightened again. "I am positively thrilled!" she declared.

Wambley's stately form appeared at the door. "There is a gentleman on the telephone," he announced.

The girl rose, a little tremor at the corner of her lips. Dale gave her an encouraging smile as she walked out. Wambley held the door open and stood bowing until she had passed through, then he started to follow.

"Oh, Wambley," said Dale evenly.

The servant turned and regarded him with respectful but uneasy attention.

"Please close the door and come here," Dale added. "I have something to say to you."

Passively the servant obeyed. His face, round and sleek as a swollen apple, showed no expression. He passed into the light where Dale stood leaning carelessly against an antique cabinet.

"Don't be bashful, Wambley. Closer, please."

Wambley advanced until the soft, clear light fell full on his pudgy face. Dale, toying with his watch chain, merely looked at him with his steady, faintly smiling gaze. Moments passed, and still he said nothing. Wambley was growing uneasy. He shifted his weight, swallowed and twisted his neck. His eyes fell beneath the level, humorous scrutiny of Dale's gray eyes. And still Dale only looked and looked and said nothing.

"Wambley," he asked at length, when the silent inspection had proceeded to the limit of the servant's endurance, "what is your price?"

"Sir?"

"I mean, what is the present market value of your honesty and loyalty?"

Wambley jerked his head back for a moment. "I don't understand, sir."

"Then I'll speak more plainly. How much do you receive for your services as a spy?"

"Spy?" The portly form shook a little. A look of indignation came into the chubby face. "This is too much, sir!"

"No indignation, please, Wambley. You can't do it convincingly. What I want to know is," and he paused and bent his head closer to the servant's, "how much is Paul Ainsworth paying you?"

Wambley jerked his head back with a gasp. His face turned pale. Dale laughed.

"Thanks, Wambley. You have told me all I want to know. On second thought I won't bid against Ainsworth. He is probably paying you all you are worth. You may go."

The servant stammered something, moistened his lips, and turned quickly away. At the same moment Miss Castle returned. A look of perplexity entered her anxious face as she glanced from Dale to Wambley.

"What did you say to him?" she inquired when the door closed behind the servant. "I'm sure he looked flustered enough."

"I just asked him a few questions. He is Dr. Moffett's spy, as we suspected, but he isn't clever enough to be really dangerous. What did you hear from the enemy?"

Her head dropped a little. Her lips quivered. "He told me he has a friend on the district attorney's staff—a deputy or something. Tomorrow he intends to mail a transcript of the evidence to this friend, with instructions on the envelope that it is not to be opened until the following day. I am to give the money to his representative tomorrow night, at the Mummies' Frolic."

Dale's eyes widened. "So that's it! At the Mummies' Frolic? There will be hundreds of people at that giddy affair. How is Dr. Moffett's agent to identify himself?"

"By a password. He is to use the two words, 'yellow' and 'blue' in a single sentence."

"Appropriate!" Dale laughed after a moment's thought. "Yellow and blue. Mix them and you have green. Green is the intermediate between yellow and blue in the spectrum. So that's his little game! If you give him the money tomorrow night, he will go to the district attorney's office next day and reclaim the envelope."

"If you fail, the district attorney will have not only the transcript, but Dr. Moffett will give him the original documents as well. Was that what he threatened to do?"

"Yes; exactly."

"Well," said Dale, musingly, "I think it is a bluff, at least as far as the transcript of evidence is concerned; but we can't be sure. Anyway, it's a good bluff. Once the transcript reaches the district attorney's office, the thing is final and irrevocable, subject only to your compliance with Dr. Moffett's demands. You agreed, of course?"

"Yes"—she forced a little smile— "with tears in my eyes and a catch in my throat."

"I'll wager your acting was perfect. Did Dr. Moffett express a willingness to accept fifty thousand on account?"

"He said it would be satisfactory, and that in return he will give me half the documents."

"And you will be at the Mummies' Frolic tomorrow night?"

"Yes; I got tickets three weeks ago."

"It's an odd thing," Dale's eyes twinkled. "So did I. Didn't mean to go; but now—will you reserve a dance for me?"

"Two," she promised.

"I'm a lucky beggar," said Dale, airily. "By the way, is Mr. Ainsworth to be there?"

"No." She looked at him curiously, as if puzzled by the strange quality in his voice. "Paul has another engagement."

Dale's eyes were intent for a moment. "All settled then."

"Except what I'm going to wear." Her brow wrinkled as she contemplated the eternal question. "Oh, I know! I shall go as a Spanish gypsy—as Carmen, maybe. And you?"

"I?" He smiled whimsically. "I shall go as the Picaroon."

THE HOME OF HOME GAS

Panorama view of the refinery of Home Oil Distributors, Ltd., on the north shore of Burrard Inlet—the British Columbia plant where Home Oil is manufactured.

The above view of the modern refining plant of Home Oil Distributors at North Vancouver shows one of the great and rapidly expanding industries of British Columbia. This plant has been established, equipped and constantly expanded during the past two years as the result of the vision and enterprise of a number of prominent western Canadians, who organized a 100 per cent western Canadian company for the manufacture of gasoline in British Columbia, thus establishing a strictly home industry to supply the demands of the large and growing army of British Columbia motorists.

The plant above shown is complete in every particular. Nothing has been omitted or left undone to make it one of the most modern and efficient plants of its kind on the entire continent and the layout and equipment is in accordance with the advice of the foremost refinery engineers of the day. It is because of the completeness and efficiency of the equipment that the company has been able to offer its well known Home Gas, a motor fuel manufactured in British Columbia that excels in quality and purity—"There No Gas Like Home." This plant, to use the phraseology of Home Oil Distributors, also enables western Canadian motorists to "Clip the Wings of Their Gasoline Dollars and Keep Them at Home."

The plant as shown includes the immense stills for the distillation of the crude oil from which gasoline is manufactured, the high "bubble towers" which play an important part in the refining process, the special fractionating equipment for which Home Oil Distributors have exclusive rights and which enable them to turn out a gasoline of superior quality, the large storage tanks where the product is kept in safety against the demand and the fully equipped pumping house shown in the foreground. Included in the view are also the warehouses and buildings in which other Home products such as oils, greases and special motor fuels are prepared for shipment to Home service stations in all parts of the province.

The plant is a striking evidence of the popularity of Home Gas that it has been trebled in production during the past two years to keep pace with the demand. It is a "new fractionating system, an additional pumping station, additional pumping facilities and a tremendous increase in storage tank equipment has been provided during that period. It is from this refinery that every gallon of Home Gas and Home Oil products come to distribution station at Princeton, from which point they are distributed to the numerous Home Gas service stations in this district.

ATHLETICS AND YANKEES LOSS

Chicago Cubs Retain National League Leadership; Hank Gowdy Stages Comeback

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Following Philadelphia Athletics were forced to bow before the St. Louis Browns as Gray chalked up his fifteenth victory of the season on Sunday. Lyons pitched and batted Chicago White Sox to victory of the New York Yankees. He led the champions to six hits and tied a single in the last of the ninth, which won the game.

Boston Red Sox won their eighth victory in nine straight games and defeated the Detroit Tigers.

Malone, speed ball master of Chicago, blanked the New York Giants and the Cubs edged a game further from the pursuit. Pirates, who idled in Philadelphia 1914, who had not been active big league baseball for five years entered the lineup again on Sunday and, getting four hits in five times at bat, enabled the Braves to win.

Yesterday's scores were as follows:

Saturday
National League
St. Louis 5-7, New York 3-5;
Chicago 10, Brooklyn 4;
Cincinnati 2-3, Philadelphia 8-2;
Pittsburgh 3, Boston 2.

ONE GAME PLAYED SATURDAY AFTERNOON AND TWO MORE ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

With one game Saturday afternoon and two yesterday, the Canadian National softball grounds were kept busy over the week-end.

On Saturday afternoon the Biological Station played the Drydock team of the C.N.R. league, the latter winning 14 to 3.

In the first game yesterday afternoon, a C.N.R. pick-up team won 5 to 3 over a squad representing 99 Taxi, while, in the second match, the Station team of the C.N.R. league beat a Commissionery Department aggregation 14 to 3. A second game between the latter contenders was started but was called off when rain came up.

SUNSPOTS & TREE GROWTH

In some localities the thickness of the annual growth-rings of trees varies in a period of about eleven and a half years corresponding to the sunspot variations. It is believed that changes in ultra-violet light, cloudiness and rainfall, are the chief variables in causing this relationship.

Ore at Mine Being Sacked and Sent Out Over This Wire

Construction of the aerial tramway at the Saddle property on Hastings Arm is almost completed, says the Alice Arm Herald. The Silver Crest Mining Co., who are developing the mine, are striving to have all outside work completed before the snow settles on the hills.

One cable of the tramway is already strung to the mine. Material for the mine and ore sheds, etc., is being transferred over it. A crew of men are now busy sacking ore at the mine, and this trial shipment is also being taken to the beach over the tramway.

A contract has been let for 300 feet of drifting. The main drift will be extended this distance and will be of sufficient length to strike the rich ore at depth that has been developed by sinking a shaft on the surface. It is expected that development work will be continued underground throughout the winter, and that by next spring a large tonnage of rich ore will be available for shipment.

About seventy went south on the steamer Prince George Saturday evening.

"SHE GOES TO WAR"
AT THE CAPITOL

The dreams of the average woman of possessing a huge wardrobe of pretty gowns are ordinarily unknown to the movie star.

The taste for finery among screen actresses is usually satiated after several years of studio work, during which time they are called upon to make from eighteen to twenty changes of dress in each production.

Upon being notified that she would have but few changes of dress in depicting the leading role in "She Goes to War!" Eleanor Boardman related that she was quite elated by the announcement.

The experience, however, did not prove a happy one. For the first few weeks it was quite a novelty, but after appearing day in and day out in the drab uniform of a woman worker at the front, the uniform actually began to affect her nerves, she avers.

"She Goes to War!" was directed by Henry King from Rupert Hughes' story of the same name.

John Holland has the featured male lead with Al St. John, Edmund Burns, Margaret Seddon, Eulalie Jensen and many other screen notable in other important roles.

Perley officiating, when Thomas Gordon Gilliland, assistant purser of the steamer Prince Rupert, was married to Miss Doris Mary Price, who has also been on the staff of the same steamer this summer. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Alfred Price, was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Claire Gilliland, sister of the groom, and her own sister, Miss Elsie Price. The groomsmen were Harry Gilliland, brother of the groom, who will be teacher of the local high school after the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland are at present on a honeymoon trip to California and will later take up residence in Vancouver.

Keep Up With Yourself

MEN who forge ahead in business raise their standards of living. Their wants increase; things that were once luxuries become necessities. But too often, the amount of life insurance remains the same. Should the inevitable happen, the widow and children must effect a drastic cut in their scale of living.

Keep up with yourself—don't let your life insurance fall below a safe ratio to your family's living expenses.
