Flares Sighted Near Here

Local Man in Plane Crash Conjecture on Missing DC 4

May Be Topographical Survey Party

Flares were seen issuing from mountainous country, supposedly some 15 to 25 miles north of Prince Rupert, this morning. They led to two theories:

1. That they might have been signals from a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC4 aircraft which has been missing since early Saturday morning on a flight from Vancouver to Anchorage.

2. They might have been sent up in connection with the operations of a Dominion Topographical Survey party which is operating in the rugged country between the Skeena River and Khatzmateen Inlet in that general direction.

A single-engined Norseman went out to search the area following reports of the flares and reported sighting "nothing." It was to go out again.

Queen Charlotte Air Lines pilot Norman Jermyn is on the search.

Police were notified by Thomas McMeekin, wholesaler, when he and five others noticed "about 15 small black balls rise over the mountains, then break into smoke clouds."

"Two or three of them would break out at once, then more would come," said Mr. McMeekin.

RCMP boat PML-15 is standing by.

No sighting reports so far have been received by the search aircraft.

William Priest, agent for QCA, estimated that smoke he saw was about 25 miles away.

MEANTIME IN ALASKA

Meantime 21 searching aircraft are continuing their search in "ideal weather" conditions today, their quest centering on the Mount St. Elias area well to the north of the Alaskan Panhandle.

Kamloops Does Not Want Douks

VICTORIA—Adams Lake has been recommended as a suitable location for Sons of Freedom but this is arousing the stronger opposition of the people of Kamloops.

Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of lands and forests, arrived in the city this afternoon by air from Victoria and is leaving by car for his summer home at Lakelse Lake. He was met here by Will Robinson of Terrace.

Gordon Rhodes Not Seriously Hurt Near Edmonton

EDMONTON — Gordon M. Rhodes, aged 22, formerly of Prince Rupert, suffered minor injuries Tuesday when a single-engined Fleet Canuck plane crashed in a farmer's field 16 miles northwest of here.

Rhodes was taken to hospital with facial lacerations and possible arm fracture. His condition is reported as not serious.

Eye-witnesses said that Rhodes' plane, owned by the Edmonton Flying Club, failed to come out of a bank. A farmer who saw the crash pulled him out of the plane.

Rhodes is the son of Mrs. E. M. Viers of Prince Rupert.

Cease-Fire Talk Outlook Better

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—The Communists were reported today to have offered to compromise in Korean cease-fire talks under which withdrawal of foreign troops would not be discussed until after the armistice.

Indications are that the proposal will prove acceptable to the United Nations command.

The Reds heretofore had insisted that the issue of pulling out foreign troops—United and Chinese—should be on the program of armistice talks.

Nucleos declined to comment when asked if the new proposal of the Communists agreed with the United Nations stand that withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea was not a proper subject for cease-fire discussions.

Up to today's sessions the Communist delegates had insisted that withdrawal of foreign troops was an essential part of negotiations.

CCC Dam Aiding Fish

Exceptional Drought Affecting Migration of Salmon To Spawning Grounds

Any suggestion that the Columbia Cellulose Co.'s dam on Cloyah River may be a handicap to the salmon in moving-up that stream toward the spawning grounds is completely exploded by G. S. Reade, fisheries supervisor. On the other hand the dam and the fish ladder with which it has been equipped, is an asset to the movement of the fish because, during the recent unusually dry spell, extra water has been released over the dam to provide more water in the creek between dam and salt water and thus facilitate the migration.

There has been no unusual wastage of salmon in moving up the stream in spite of the exceptionally low water, says Mr. Reade. Some alarm may have been caused by reason of the fact that more people have been seeing the stream than in previous years. "It is quite a normal situation as fisheries officers and others who are familiar know," says Mr. Reade. As a matter of fact, the loss of fish has been negligible.

The fisheries supervisor explains that the sockeye salmon, in their movement upstream to the spawning grounds, travel by night and each night water has been released over the CCC dam to facilitate the movement. Certainly the dam has nothing to do with any loss of fish but, if anything, the contrary is the case.

The fish have been having some difficulty passing through one fall in the river but, to rectify that, the department is planning to concentrate the water, now diffused, into one channel. That will be a departmental job as it has nothing to do with the CCC "which has been doing all it can and everything that could be expected of it."

As for the department, said Mr. Reade, "we do not want to lose a single fish but neither do we want any exaggerated picture of wastage of fish." If the sockeye cannot get up, neither can the steelhead, he adds.

Sockeye are now in Diana Lake Creek in September for spawning. And there is nothing to indicate that goodly numbers have not got through, the drought notwithstanding.

The unusual drought this summer has not been confined to Cloyah area, the department says. Similar conditions prevail in other spawning streams in the district and have caused the closing of the Banks and Aristable Island areas to both seining and gillnetting during the past two weeks to aid the escapement of fish. At that the fish have been milling around in the sea outside waiting for the chance to get up the extremely low streams.

Once in every few years there is a drought such as this has been, says Mr. Reade. Rains of the past week have relieved the situation somewhat but, at that, the rains have been too light.

More Allies Than Russians Yanks-Reds Take Lead

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox won big games in the crucial American League series Tuesday.

The Yankees came up from behind on home run to nip the Cleveland Indians 3 to 2 and the Red Sox belted the slumping White Sox 8 to 3.

The Indians are now one game behind the leaders.

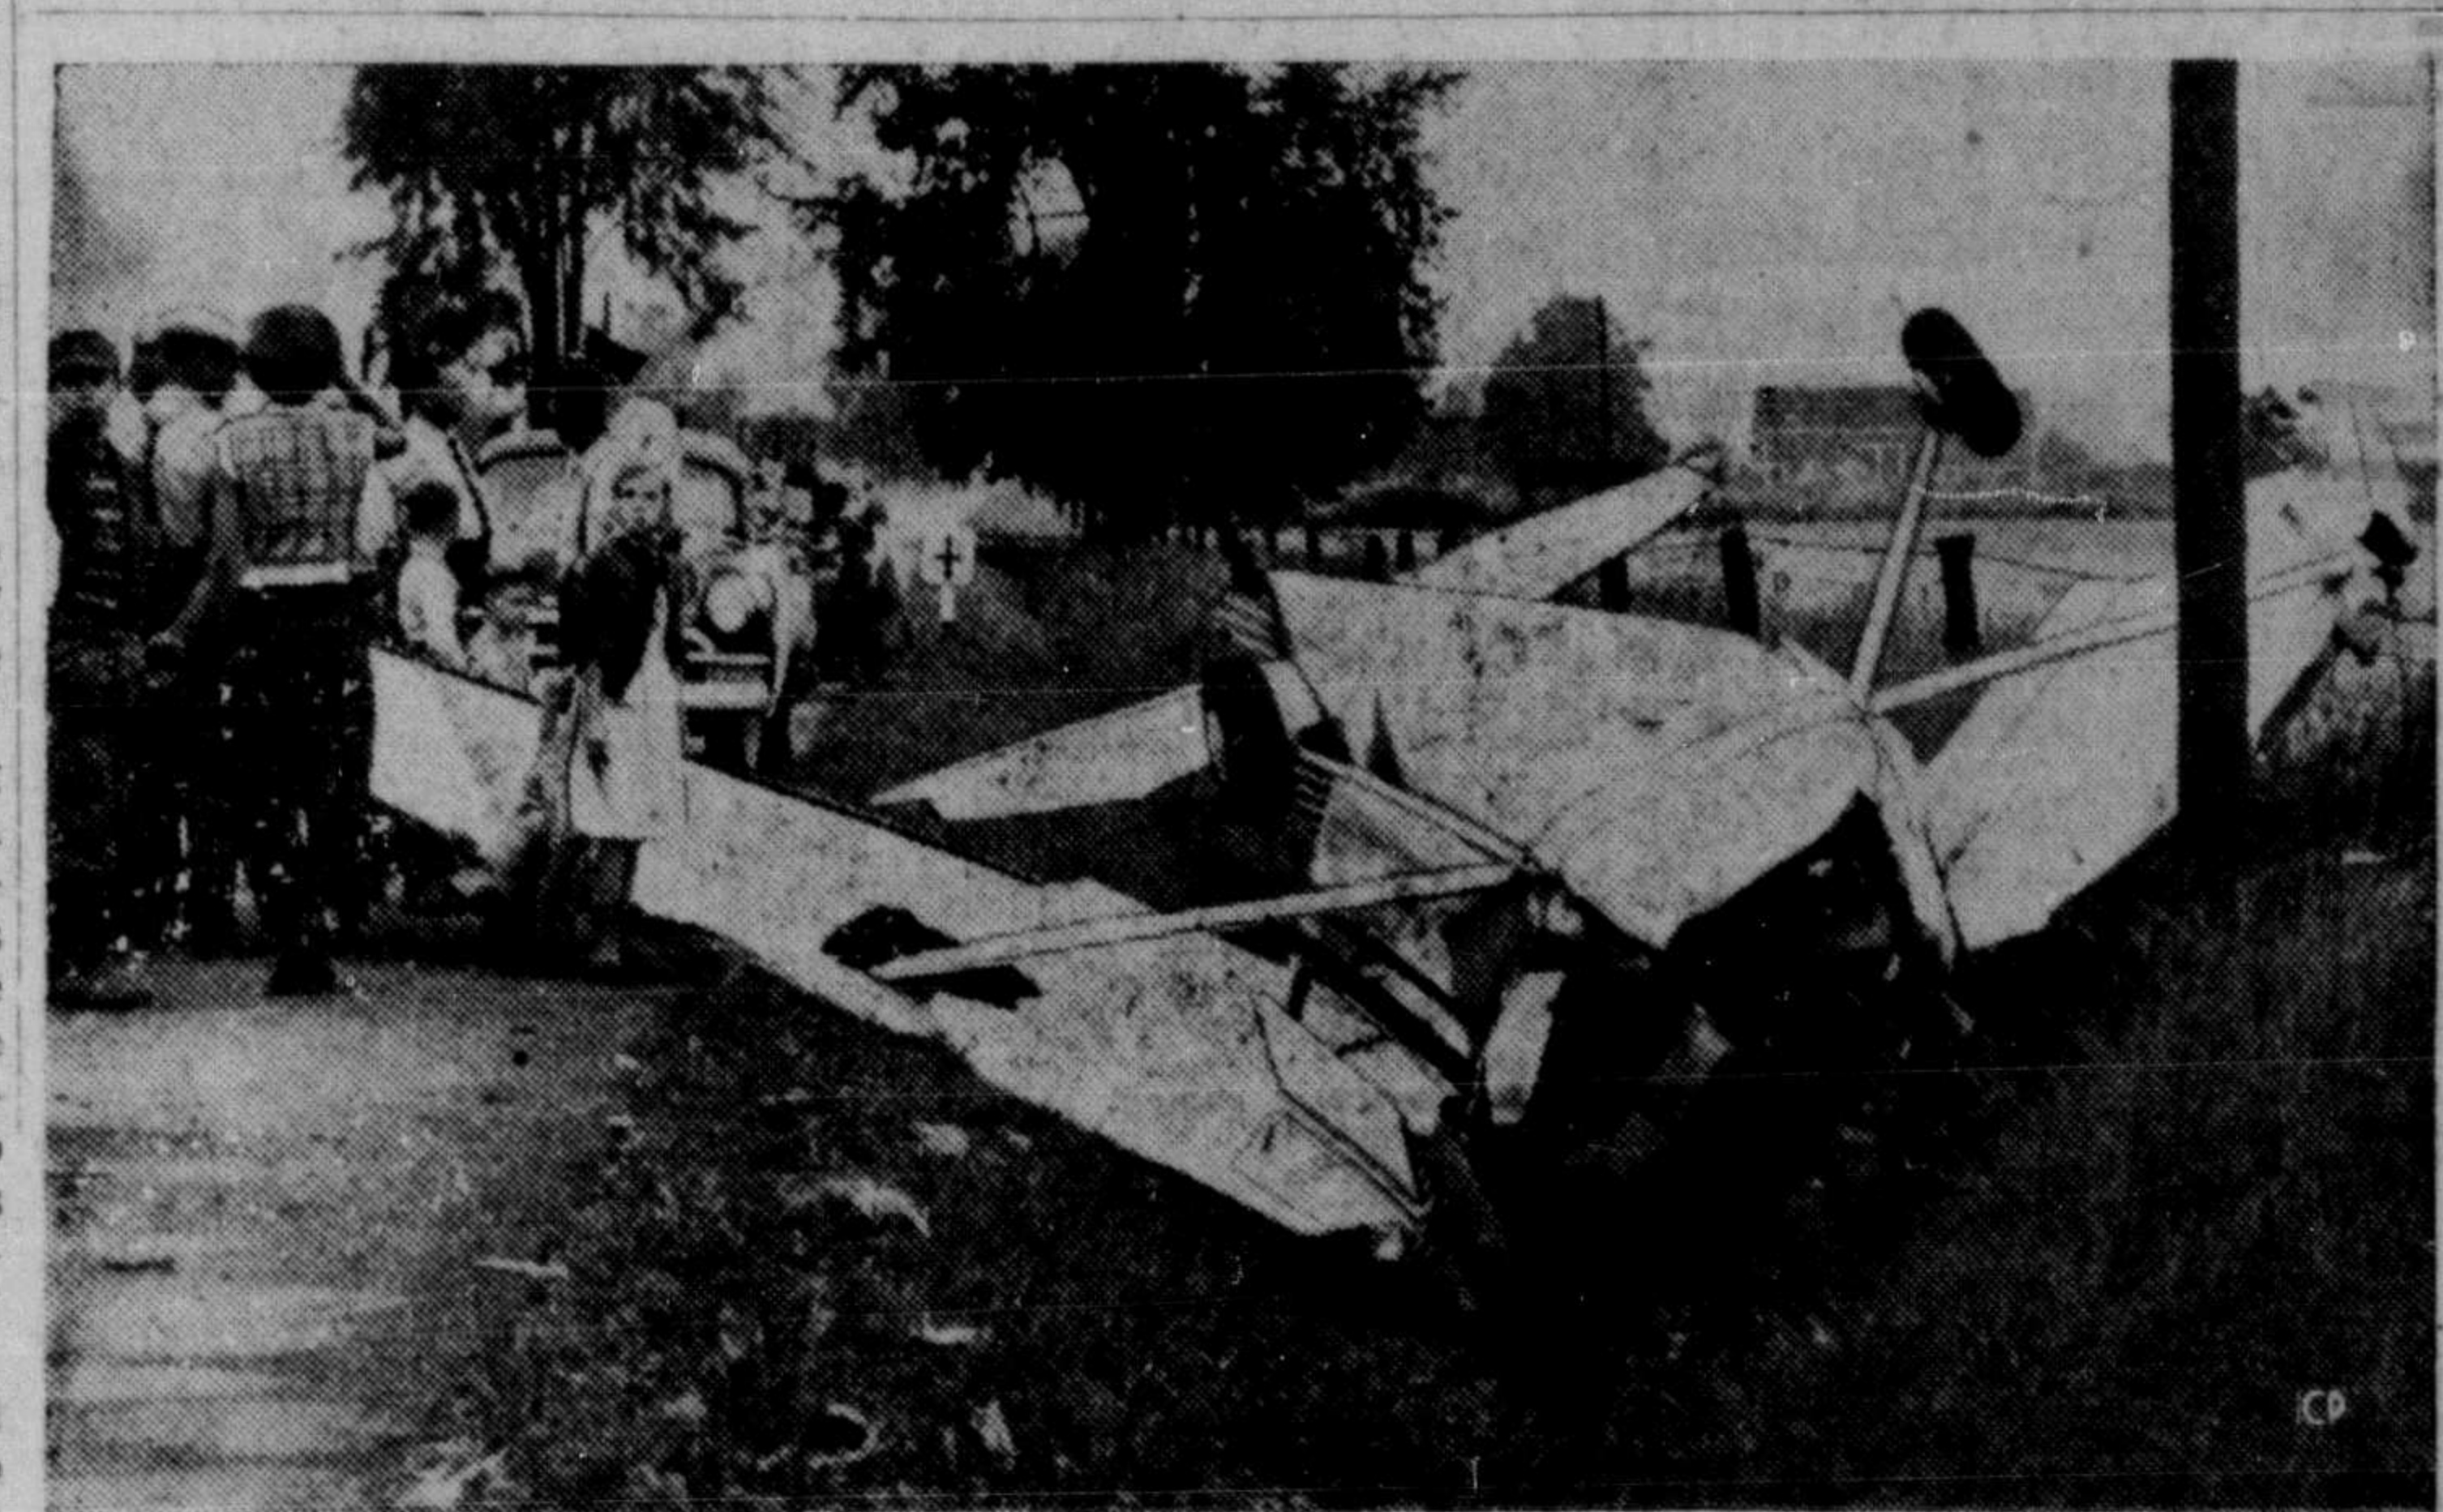

Gene Woodling homered with one man on base to put the Yankees even with the Indians and Johnny Mize applied a crusher with a solo homer in the eighth inning as the New Yorkers claimed their 12th straight over Cleveland in the Yankee Stadium.

This put the Yanks half a game in front of the Boston Red Sox for a few hours but the slugging Sox, a great home team, tore into the White Sox for five runs in the first inning at Boston. The White Sox dropped to 3½ games off pace.

In Ottawa informed quarters said that it was expected Canada will start to move both Army and Air Force units to Europe this fall. The Army will have the 7,000-strong 27th Brigade and the Air Force will send a three-squadron jet fighter wing as a starter and an 11-squadron air division.

New Halibut Season Opens

Forty or More Prince Rupert Boats Head Seaward

Forty or more Prince Rupert halibut boats are among a fleet of upwards of 156 Canadian and American vessels heading today for the two halibut areas off the British Columbia and Alaska coast which are being opened at midnight tonight for the long advocated split season. They will have their gear in the water by dawn tomorrow.

One of the areas is that designated as 2B in the southern part of Hecate Straits between Cumshewa Inlet on the north to Cape St. James on the south and across to Price Island on the east.

The other area is off the Alaska coast between Cape Spencer and Dixon's Entrance.

The fishing period extends to August 4 and there is no quota limit.

Estimates are that the total take for the split season may run from six to ten million pounds, depending on weather and tidal conditions. One thing certain is that fishing will be intensive and that no time will be wasted running in and out of port.

It was officially expected that some forty boats would go from Prince Rupert, 30 from Vancouver, 46 from Puget Sound and 40 from Alaska.

DEPARTING VESSELS

Vessels departing last night for the new areas were: Ingrid H, Capt. C. Lindquist. Zapora, Capt. L. Solway. Teeny Milly, Capt. S. Norwall. Balsac I, Capt. Einar Teiseth. Northern Breeze, Capt. J. Ellertsen. Sea Maid, Capt. Henry Doiron. Relief, Capt. M. Sollows. Prosperity A, Capt. A. C.

Fighting In Korea

TOKYO (CP)—United Nations patrols battled a Communist platoon northwest of Musan, United Nations advance headquarters, today while both sides pushed probing attacks elsewhere along the front.

Several clashes are reported on the central front.

Two light probing attacks by the Reds were repulsed at Chorwon and Red platoons were scattered northeast of Kumhwa.

Other United Nations forces battled with the Communists south of Kunwon, suspected new Red build-up area.

Cellulose People Beat Housing Problem—They Build Homes Themselves

Twenty Houses To Be Ready by Christmas Through Co-operative Effort

There is a way to beat the housing shortage but it takes plenty of hard work—get your friends to help you build your own house. That is just what some 36 employees of Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. Ltd. at Watson Island are doing.

Construction of the basement of the first home is nearing completion. By Christmas, Celco Co-operative Housing Association has to have 20 homes for occupancy.

The sites already have been laid out for them. More than 40 lots in the Port Edward townsite have been purchased by the future homeowners who plan to create there a community of which they will be proud.

It all began with a dire necessity which saw no way of being satisfied.

"I wanted homes to bring families to," says Len electrical superintendent of the pulp mill, "and we wouldn't have any homes unless we built them ourselves."

After several months of studying literature on co-operative housing with his friend, Englishman Fred Gray, the two decided they would put their plans to the test of popularity.

"They saw no loopholes which they couldn't plug. From their own experience and that of many before them whose work they researched from one end of the continent to the other, Louis and Gray felt they had a workable idea.

But how would the others feel about the plan? Without the support of a good majority they might as well scrap the whole idea.

A meeting was called of all employees who wanted homes for their families. The plan was presented. Yes, they said, "We'll take it!"

TWENTY-SIX ALREADY

Right there an executive was formed which saw Loucks president of the Co-op, and Gray, secretary-treasurer. A charter was drawn up and approved.

That was little more than a month ago. Today there are 36 members who have undertaken to buy $2000 worth of shares each at $5 a share over a period of 16 years.

The Co-op has enough money now to build the first house. When that is completed, the house will be mortgaged to help finance the second home. This process will be followed until all homes, planned for completion by Christmas, 1951, are finished.

And then we'll take stock to see how we stand," says the president. "But we want to get these first 20 homes up just as

PARIS (AP)—France — Marshal Philippe Petain was executed today from the little church of Notre Dame du Port.

1,700 persons stood in the village square to watch the funeral.

The old soldier died Monday on his black island at the age of 84, ending a career which won him a hero's acclaim in World War I and brought him disgrace in World War II with the loss of life imprisonment.

He was buried near the graves of other Canadian airmen who died during the war.

The court would pass judgment on him.

Wanted - Farmers

IT IS a rather sad reflection on the Canadian economic situation that, for the first time in the Dominion's history, we are importing eggs and doing it by the thousands of cases at that.

We don't raise chickens in our backyards as so many of us used to do in the good old days. It might help some if we did but that, of course, is not the answer.

The trouble is that, with the development of the big industries, which is going on with such leaps and bounds these days, we are losing our agricultural background.

The young people are leaving the land. Agriculture is no longer accepted as a career by young Canadians, notwithstanding the changes that have been brought to living on the land with the automobile, good roads, electrifications, mechanization and other scientific improvements and conveniences.

We have simply changed from an agricultural people to an industrial. We do not want to work on the land anymore. One need not leave Prince Rupert's own back yard to see the tendency which has become appalling on the prairies and more extensive agricultural areas.

Yet we need the agricultural base and have abundant capacity of the finest of land to support it.

Now that we have not the agricultural people ourselves, the answer, of course, is immigration—immigration such as the Dutch people that are coming into the Terrace and elsewhere in the central interior—and, of course, our own good British people.

Europe is anxious to emigrate some of her compacted, poorly living and agriculturally-trained people. Canada needs such people. They can and do make good citizens, providing they are properly selected.

Unless we do something soon about supplying our own eggs, butter, etc., there will be other deplorable importations as well—and at a time when we are trying to sell arms and ammunition in the United States to bolster up our slipping trade balance.

The restoration of our agricultural economic base and the balancing of the topheavy industrial trend is one of Canada's most serious economic problems today. And the answer to it appears to be immigration on a substantial scale.

It Costs Nothing

WE ARE "touched" so often with cash appeals that are getting to a point in Prince Rupert where they really hurt that it is refreshing to have an opportunity to give something other than our dollars, something that does not hurt us at all and something that can satisfy as important a humanitarian function as all our dollars and cents. We refer to the forthcoming third annual Red Cross blood donor clinic which has been set for August 20, 21 and 22 in Prince Rupert and for the organization of which a preliminary meeting has been called for tomorrow night.

Here is something that should go over strong in Prince Rupert which is always known for the spontaneous and generous manner in which it responds to all humanitarian appeals.

Prince Rupert has 12,000 people and in the first two annual clinics here there were about 500 donors each. Kamloops, with certainly no more than 12,000 people, had 1000 donors in one year and 2026 the next. Organizer Norton Youngs is right in feeling a little unhappy about Prince Rupert's response in the first two years. He contends that we should at least equal Kamloops and we agree.

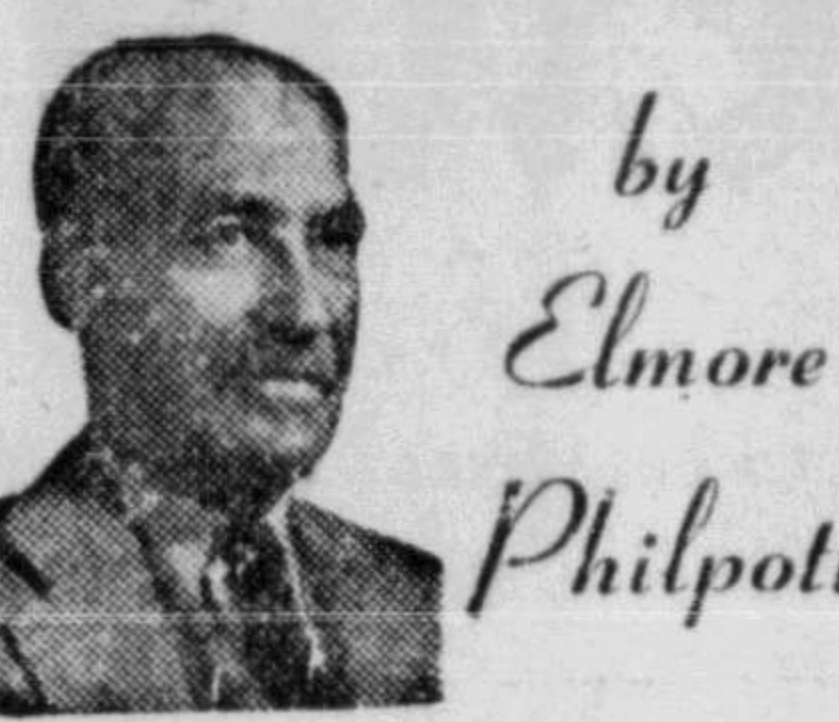

Prince Rupert people should go really over the top in this campaign if they will just catch the spirit of this very worthy effort and respond accordingly.

And it is also important to remember that the Red Cross organization is such that Prince Rupert, through its own refrigerated bank at the hospital, replenished weekly, can receive the full benefit of the service whenever the need or emergency may arise, right here at home.

Scripture Passage for Today

"Seek thou great things for thyself? Seek them not." —Jer. 45:5.

As I See It

Hot Spot Movie

IF YOU WANT to know one of the reasons why Arab kings are being assassinated these days, and why Persian prime ministers hide permanently in parliament buildings, you could do worse than see SIROCCO. It's better than most, anyway.

For the scene of the movie, Sirocco, is in Syria, next door to Jordan, where Abdullah was murdered a few days ago. The picture shows how, a few years ago, the French tried to hang on to one of their imperial outposts. But the French are gone now from Syria and Lebanon, the British are gone from Palestine, and all over the rest of that hottest of world hot boxes the overwhelming sentiment is FOREIGNER BOSS GO HOME.

WHEN WE were there, the British papers were full of the pictures of the new star, Marta Toren. If I remember correctly, she is the North African Arab girl who was going through for a doctor, but gave up the idea to go on the stage.

But maybe I am getting her mixed up with some other sultry damsel. I never can remember the movie actresses' names, though I never forget the looks of those I like.

I guess I'm just like the folks in a northern Canadian airport town. During World War Two a famous movie actress was forced to alight there, on the way home from entertaining U.S. troops overseas. She got herself all set to make a personal appearance for the benefit of the gaping crowd. She emerged from the plane with her best professional Hollywood smile and gestures, with concealed pencil all set to sign scads of autographs. But nobody was even interested.

The outraged lady had the word passed around: "Miss _____ is here. But the airport folks gave the appalling answer: "Miss _____? Who is she?"

ON OUR trip overseas this year my wife and I went to the theatre wherever we happened to be. We came home convinced that Canada is miles behind most other countries in one respect:

We have no live theatre worthy of the name. Yet Canadians are doing really well on the British stage.

And yet when we went to the new Totem theatre in Vancouver the other night we saw a performance quite as good as you would see in most any country. It was, by the way, PERSONAL APPEARANCE with Doris Buckingham playing the part of the vamping movie actress. Obviously, Canadians have what it takes.

YEAR AFTER year Vancouver's Theatre Under The Stars goes on chalking up success after success. Some people attribute that to the natural setting—the stars, the open air, the majestic trees in the background.

To which I answer—nuts. Of course some people would sooner go to a show outside—and naturally more people will want to do so in midsummer. But the people who will go to an outside show once a month, or once a week in summertime, would surely also go once in awhile to a live show in a proper theatre in wintertime.

Hence I ask, if we can make such a marked success of outdoor theatre in summertime, why in tarnation can't we support at least one all year round indoor live, theatre?

I HAVEN'T got around to reading the famous Massey Report, about culture in Canada. Nor am I going to get in any arguments about endless ring subjects like —What Is Culture Anyway?

But I say this: No nation is a cultured nation unless it gives

MORE ROOM

A handsomely bound and illustrated booklet entitled "Port Edward, Prince Rupert's Industrial Annex," came our way the other day. This was about forty years ago—before wars and disasters. Small wonder it was thought the new railway terminus might need an annex. Fancy real estate selling at $1,160 a front foot. Behind the Port Edward townsite were the following: R. H. Thompson, Seattle city engineer; field supervision, Ritchie and Agnew; directors, E. J. Matthews, Seattle; Wm. A. Agnew, Montreal; L. W. Patmore, Prince Rupert; Dr. W. T. Kergin, Prince Rupert; A. W. Agnew, Samuel Harrison, financial agent.

INDUSTRIOUS, ALL RIGHT!

Afairs did look promising. The opening of the Grand Trunk Pacific was just around the corner. This was also true of the Panama Canal. Prince Rupert, as a terminus, was commanding nation-wide interest. Yes, this was the launching of a golden era. Thus, the public talked and doubtless thought, Port Edward, that name on the railway a few miles from town was being called the industrial annex. And today, looking back across the years, can it be said there has been a misnomer? For there is industry out there, surpassing fondest hopes.

It's sixty years this summer since the three white Empresses gave the North Pacific and British Columbia coast, a notable renown. Pat Keatley, Sun marine editor, tells about them. One does not have to belong to Vancouver to feel the call of the Empresses of India, China and Japan, yacht-like and creatures of grace. Though their physical shells have long since vanished under the breakers' hammer, and the green waves of the sea, Pat so truly says they live on in the hearts of mariners and landlubbers everywhere.

It has been announced that a scientist will attempt to ascertain what is the most horrible noise known to man. Well, the jangle of an alarm clock the first Monday after vacation must rank fairly high.

MORE LIKE IT!

It's an old saying that "money isn't everything" but the modern version is that at current prices it almost isn't anything.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

its people a chance to express themselves through the theatre. People who have it in them should have an outlet through which they can write plays, through which they can act in plays. And above all, they have a right to be able to see plays.

I say also—hats off to the people who gives us TUTS or Totem outdoor theatre. It's a grand place to take the girl for the evening, even if, like mine, she's the same one you've been taking for these last years.

But personally I'm an indoor man when it comes to the theatre. I think the actors have enough to do without having to shout their lines to get above the noise of the roaring fans at the baseball game next door.

MONTREAL—This is not the first time horse meat is being eaten in Canada, but it is doubtful if it has ever been mentioned in a Canadian history.

Prince Rupert's third annual Red Cross volunteer blood donor clinic has been set for August 20, 21 and 22 and Organizer T. Norton Youngs is calling a meeting for tomorrow night to make preliminary arrangements. As usual, there will be a canvass for blood donors who will be dated to give their "painless pint" when the clinic of experts comes here at the appointed time to draw it.

Mr. Youngs, not so very happy about the fact that in the past clinics only 500 volunteers came forth, is setting his sights higher this time. "There should be at least 800," he says, pointing out that Kamloops, certainly with no greater population than Prince Rupert, had 1000 donors one year and boosted the number to 2026 the next.

"This is one really humanitarian donation that costs nothing and doesn't hurt a bit," says Mr. Youngs. "And the benefits are constantly available for Prince Rupert through the refrigerated bank, replenished weekly, that is maintained at Prince Rupert General Hospital."

The process of the clinic, as is well known, is to ship the newly drawn blood to Vancouver by air where it is treated and stored for systematic distribution to the various banks all over the province.

While there is to be a canvass, Mr. Youngs is hoping that there will be plenty of volunteer donors well in advance—the sooner the better.

Headquarters are at his office.

THE RH TWINS—Two little British Columbia citizens whose lives were saved by the ready availability of the right type of blood when they were born with the Rh factor. They received replacement transfusions of blood, rushed from the Red Cross Blood Bank the night they were born and for several weeks after. Now they are healthy, normal little girls. In addition to the Free Blood Transfusion Service, the Red Cross Provincial Lab. in Vancouver conducts a free service for the doctors of this province by testing the blood of expectant mothers for the Rh factor. More than 60,000 such tests have been made.

Textile Manufacturers From Eastern States Visit Here And Terrace

Party of prominent textile manufacturers of the United States, customers of Celanese Corporation of America, were in Prince Rupert yesterday, as guests of the company, to visit the Columbia Cellulose Co.'s pulp mill at Watson Island, a new original source of their material supply. On Monday they had been at Terrace to see the company's woods operations and enjoy a spot of trout fishing in Lakeview Lake.

Prominent in the group was Royal Little, president of Tectron, Incorporated, of Providence, Rhode Island, whose multimillion industrial organization has 14,000 stockholders, 8000 employees and 28 plants for the making of rayon and cotton fabrics, sheets, blankets and dyed cottons in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Porto Rico.

It was the first visit to British Columbia for Mr. Little and he was keenly interested in the industrial and business life as well as the history of the country, testing the local knowledge of his guides with his questions. While he was here, Harold Thom, manager of Atlin Fisheries, took him in charge and showed him through the company's cold storage and salmon canning plants on the local waterfront.

Today Mr. Little went to Vancouver by air, accompanied by Gordon Root, C.C.C. public relations officer who had assisted in piloting the party on the tour of the district. Other members of the group returned East today by the Celanese Corporation's DC3 aircraft which had brought them west. Mr. Little will visit Vancouver and Victoria and fly east from Seattle.

Others in the party were Edward Luke and Deane Quinton of the Bates Manufacturing Co., Lewiston, Maine; Oakman Hay, Wellington-Sears Co., New York; Donald Owler, Aimardon Mills, Providence, Rhode Island; Bartlett Guild of Boston, New England sales representative of the Celanese Corporation; Harry Price, vice-president of Celanese Corporation in charge of sales; James Black, assistant controller of Celanese Corporation.

New Hall at Miller Bay

Latest of the amenities at the Miller Bay Hospital is a commodious and well appointed recreation hall for the staff which, now nearing completion, was used for the first time last Sunday when it was the venue for a reception in connection with the visit of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Originally erected during the war as the general recreation hall at the Seal Cove base of Royal Canadian Air Force, the structure was taken down and re-erected at Miller Bay by Mitchell & Currie, local contractors.

Measuring 100 by 50 feet over all, the hall's main feature is a 77 by 50 auditorium or recreation venue fitted out with such adjuncts as kitchen, locker room and shower and dressing rooms.

The main floor will be marked off for basketball, badminton and volleyball. About Labor Day it is expected a formal opening dance will be held.

Winnipeg Boasts Dreamiest Music

WINNIPEG—The dreamiest music imaginable comes out of a strange old instrument standing at the foot of the staircase in a suburban Winnipeg home.

The instrument, owned for 25 years by a publicity-shy Irishman, stands nearly seven feet, and is encased in a carved and polished cabinet. It is called a symphonion, and works on much the same principle as a piano. The music, for comparison, resembled that of a giant musical box.

The notes are made by tiny pegs striking on metal, the pegs being set in motion by a slotted metal disc which is clamped in position across the front of them. The instrument is then wound up, and for minutes will strum out soft, tinkling music.

There are 24 discs, measuring about 2 1/2 inches across. They give a clue to the instrument's birthplace as "J. W. Gunner" and "made in Germany" are stamped across them in gothic letters.

The simple tunes—"Home Sweet Home," extracts from Gilbert and Sullivan, pieces by Mendelssohn, and hymns—are carved out on the discs and are elaborately and skillfully orchestrated.

A deep, resonant bass beats the rhythm, a singing treble outlines the melody, and a trilling descant adds ornamentation.

The only thing which the mechanism cannot control is the dynamics. The symphonion cannot play loud and soft. Like a harpsichord, it can indicate fortissimo by playing extra-thick chords and then pausing. In the same way, a single note can sound as pianissimo.

The machine is widely-travelled. Its present owner, when in Ireland, inherited it from a relative who in turn inherited it from his forefathers in the United States.

This week the co-operative seeks to gain incorporation as a village. When this comes into being, a regular civic administration will be elected, says Loucks.

"If we all stick together, this project can't fail," Mr. Gray is convinced. He has had considerable experience in co-operatives, and several such have failed in the past.

Engineer Gray says that the first enthusiastic pre-fabricated houses are now being built. "We are not going to have a big advantage of help we're trying to get at the beginning of the project of his own low gauge in solid

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Mr. Champion was kibitzing Mr. Muzzy when this deal was played and these two got into a brilliant discussion about the handling of the diamond suite. It ended—as most arguments with Mr. Muzzy end—nowhere.

Mr. Abel opened the jack of hearts against Mr. Muzzy's contract of three no trump. The queen was put up in dummy and it held. Now Mr. Muzzy went to work on the diamond suit. He led a low diamond to his ace. Then he entered dummy with the ace of clubs and led the ten of diamonds. Mr. Masters played the eight spot and after a moment's thought Mr. Muzzy slapped the king on the table, dropping Mr. Abel's queen.

"Worst play I ever saw," commented Mr. Champion. Mr. Muzzy turned on him angrily. "You're crazy, man," he stated flatly. "How could I do better than lose no tricks at all in the suit?"

"That's not the point," said Mr. Champion impatiently. "You've got to take the diamond finesse because that play absolutely guarantees three no trump on the hand."

"But the way I played it, I make four," Mr. Muzzy pointed out. "Look, I'll leave it up to Masters."

"Oh, no you don't," said Mr. Masters with a grin. "Kindly include me out of the discussion. I am neutral."

"And as for me," broke in Mr. Abel, "I know it seems unreasonable, but I am silly enough to hope that we can get on to the next hand in the not too distant future."

"Well, let me say just this one thing," lied Mr. Champion. (Actually he had several things in mind to say.) "Suppose the queen of diamonds doesn't drop. That means that Masters is left with the good queen in his hand. Not let's see you make three no trump. You haven't nearly nine tricks without bringing in the diamond suit. So you have to let Masters in with the queen and he simply leads spades through and takes four spade tricks."

"Now suppose you take the diamond finesse," continued Mr. Champion, "and it loses, as it would have on this particular hand. So what? You're losing to the hand that can't lead through the king doubleton of spades. And you'll still make game, winning four diamonds, two hearts and three clubs."

Gordon & Anderson
In Second Victory

In the most exciting baseball game of the season, Gordon & Anderson—the long-time cellar boys—came out to win their second game of the season last night, with a victory of 3-2 over Commercial.

Verne Ciccone was on the mound for the winners, giving up only five hits. In the last of the seven-inning night game, Ciccone was in real difficulty as Commercial's second run, on base by an error, came in on another error. With a man on second—the tying run—Ciccone worked himself out of the clutch when both Miner Simundson and Bill Gunn flew out, ending the game.

John Rosedale, pitching all the way for the hotelmen, gave up seven hits and allowed the first run in the first inning when Don Scherk batted in Marshall who had gained first on balls. Next two scores by the winners came in the fourth inning which saw five men on bases from a walk, two errors, a hit and a fielder's choice.

Leading off, Scherk flew out to the left fielder, Deac Linney. Catcher Carelli was walked and Hartwig got two bases on an error by rightfielder Gunn. Youngs hit a single to knock in Hartwig. Carelli was out at the plate. Sunberg got on by a short-stop error which also allowed Youngs to come home with the winning run.

Although Rosedale is held responsible for the defeat, he was the only man to score for his team, and accounted for the longest hit of the game, a double deep into left field near the edge of the diamond.

A fast double play in the fifth inning erased Shopstop Shier's error which allowed Gunn to gain first base. Clean-up batter Benny Windle followed with a hard grounder, picked up on the run by Shier and tossed to Sunberg on second for the forced play out, then by Sunberg to Hartwig on first in time for the double play.

As you see, Mr. Champion was absolutely right, as usual. But Mr. Muzzy got the last word, "The fact remains," he said, "that on this hand I make four no trump and you would have made only three."

Mr. Champion gave up. He ordered a drink. "Better make it a double one," he yelled to the waiter.

New Theatre For Terrace

Charles Adam Announces Plan For New 600-Seat House
Flourishing Terrace, 95 miles east of Prince Rupert, is to have a new moving picture theatre.

Charles Adam, proprietor of the present Totem Theatre there, announced his plans during a visit to Prince Rupert yesterday.

Vancouver architects are being engaged to prepare drawings for a 600-seat fully modern house designed to keep pace with the rapid growth and development of the community which is now riding high on the new logging operations of the Columbia Cellulose Co. and expects to be connected soon by highway and railway with Kitimat, the new north coast aluminum port.

The site of the new Terrace Theatre will be alongside the present Tillicum Theatre on Lakelse Avenue.

"It will be a modified edition of your new Totem Theatre in Prince Rupert," Adam says. Early construction is planned, depending on the type of construction that is finally decided upon and the availability of materials.

Mr. Adam already has three hundred seats and new projection machines available.

Power Commission Officials Pay Visit—Alcan Chief to be Entertained

S. M. Weston, managing director of the B.C. Power Commission was in town last week in company with T. Bird, plant maintenance manager of Victoria. On Friday evening they met with the members of the executive council of the Board of Trade and the village commissioners at the home of Lloyd Valle, local power house manager, where an informal talk on local matters dealing with power supply here took place. Later, refreshments were served by Mrs. Valee and Mrs. John Kill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith and family left at the week-end to spend a two weeks' holiday at Lakelse Lake.

Archdeacon and Mrs. Hodson had as their guests last week their son-in-law and grandson, J. Edgar and John of Westview, Powell River. Mr. Edgar left on Sunday for Prince Rupert but John is staying with his grandparents until the arrival of his mother sometime next month.

Mrs. Dorothy Mangnall and two children of Vancouver arrived in town last Thursday to spend a holiday visiting relatives here. Mrs. Mangnall is at present staying with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Little, whose young son, George accompanied her home from the south where he has been on holiday.

M. and Mrs. Morgan and children of the staff of the Home for the Aged have returned home from the holiday trip to Vancouver.

Having spent the first few weeks of the summer holidays in the hospital in Prince Rupert where he has been having surgical treatment, 13-year-old Clarence Baker returned on Tuesday to his home here with the prospect in view of another operation later on in the summer.

The executive of the Board of Trade met with the village commissioners in the municipal office on Monday evening to make plans for the entertainment of Aluminum Company President R. E. Powell and party and their wives next Sunday. Committees were struck and another meeting will be held on Thursday night to complete the plans. Hon. E. T. Kenney, who is expected in town on Wednesday, will be present at that meeting. The minister's summer home at Lakelse Lake will be used for the outing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ingram and son Richard of Vancouver drove into town last week to visit with relatives here. Mrs. Egel Sargent, sister of Mrs. Ingram, entertained at the tea hour last Thursday in honor of her visiting sister. Later the party left to visit in Hazelton before returning to their home in the south.

Girl Guides Enjoy Camp

TERRACE—Twelve Girl Guides and their leader, Mrs. Gladys Clifford, returned at the end of last week from Lakelse Lake where they spent the past ten days camping. With them were Mrs. R. Squires and Mrs. J. McCall, the latter cooking for the girls. The Scout camp at the north end of the lake has been used by the Guides and the arrangements for the holiday had been in the hands of the Guide Association. The girls slept in tents and, altogether, had a very enjoyable and instructive holiday.

Several of the parents visited them on the Sunday and some of the local citizens gave generously in the way of supplies for the camp.

Former Officer Here, On Case

According to yesterday's dispatches, a new development is reported in the Princeton murder case of October 23, 1949, when Mrs. Mona Mathewson, 24, a bride of four months, was found shot and stabbed. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Genderton of Wainwright, Alta. At the time a reward of $1,000 was posted by her parents. As far as known, no arrests have been made. A provincial police constable, well known in Prince Rupert, was on duty in the Princeton country at the time of the tragedy.

PRETORIA, South Africa (CP)—"Your parties—I have been to more than 1,000 in two years," said Dr. L. M. A. Dollot, saying goodbye to South Africa after two years as French Consul here.

"Lucky South Africa," he said. "With your many domestic servants, your many modern amenities, your cities unscarred by bombs, with few or none of the sorrowful memories of war, with no rationing or shortages to speak of, you may rank yourselves with the favorites of fortune."

"Appointment With Danger"

In Paramount's "Appointment With Danger," which comes to the Capitol Theatre this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Alan Ladd has plenty of opportunity to show what he can do with his fists, a gun and a girl, and the result is an hour and a half of sustained suspense and excitement.

In the role of a rough and tumble U.S. Postal Agent, Ladd serves as the focus for the story about the exploits of the men who guard the mails. The screenplay highlights the adventures of a little known but rugged and determined government agency—the mail protection.

Phyllis Calvert and a featured cast that includes Paul Stewart, Jan Sterling and Jack Webb, lend pace and punch to an adventure drama.

The action gets under way when Ladd is assigned to investigate the death of a fellow inspector. He locates the sole witness to the crime, a nun, and with her assistance he trails the murderer to a seedy Midwestern hotel. There he discovers that the killer is a member of a gang that is planning a million dollar mail robbery, and Ladd's attempts to trap the gunmen and save the nun from death provide an exciting series of consequences.

Jamieson and George Bunn on the guitar and Sam Kirkpatrick on the violin. A supper was served after the close of the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Jamieson and family are holidaying here. They are residing in the Newell house on Sixth Street. Mr. Jamieson is with the game branch of the provincial government.
