Russia Would Amend Western Disarmament Plan

Even Premier Is Surprised

With Magnitude of Government's Mandate in Ontario Election

TORONTO (CP)—The size of the victory of the Progressive Conservative party in the Ontario election surprised even Premier Leslie Frost himself. He admitted that he had not expected re-election to office with such a margin. It was the greatest majority ever accorded a party in the history of Ontario.

In the landslide, the heavy vote smashed the Socialist CCF, which all but disappeared, and weakened the Liberal party although the latter becomes the official opposition.

The final standing as compiled last night, with figures after the 1948 election also shown, are as follows:

Progressive-Conservatives	79 (53)
Liberal-Cons.	7 (13)
C. C. F.	2 (21)
Liberal-Labor	1 (1)
Labor-Progress	1 (2)
Total	90 (90)

The Frost administration obtained 49 percent of the vote, the highest percentage since the Liberals 51 percent in 1937 when Mitchell Hepburn was having his heyday. The Liberals got 31 percent of Thursday's vote and CCF, 19 percent.

While the result left the Liberals' seven-man representation as the official opposition, of more interest to political experts was the smashing defeat of the CCF. The party's leader of nine years, E. B. Joffe, lost his seat. CCF stalwarts fell right and left. In only one industrial riding and in one large gold-mining northern seat did the Socialist party elect candidates.

In approving the good government program of Premier Frost— in a sharp six weeks' campaign he made only the one promise—the electorate rejected that put forward by Walter C. Thomson, the leader of the Liberal party. Thomson, who failed to win a seat himself, promised more social services of all kinds including contributory hospital care plan and general reduction of taxation.

For Premier Frost, 55 year old Lindsay lawyer, it was the first campaign as party leader. He took over the provincial mantle doffered by George Drew when the latter became national head of the party in 1949.

Of 17 seats in the Toronto area, one of the province's most densely populated sections, all but one seat went to Progressive-Conservative candidates. The exception was Toronto St. Andrew, where the Labor-Progressive (Communist) candidate, Joseph Salsberg, was re-elected.

Huge British Motor Merger

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. (CP) Two of Britain's biggest automobile producers—Austin and Morris—yesterday announced a merger which will set up an industrial colossus turning out almost half of the country's motor vehicles.

The deal is worth $850,000,000 at current market prices. Together, the two firms produced almost half of Britain's current output of 500,000 cars a year—the balance being split mainly among the Rootes group, Ford and General Motors British branch.

A statement from Austin said the merger, handled by setting up an overall holding company, is aimed at "more efficient and economic production" and as a benefit to export and foreign assembly business.

Gratuity to Be Tidy Sum

OTTAWA (CP)—Gratuities to be paid to Canadian troops serving in the Far East theatre will amount to 50c a day for each day of paid service, the Army announces, plus supplementary grant of one week's pay and allowances for every 183 days overseas.

Cushy Voyage For Soldiers

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANOVER, Germany (CP)—Canadian soldiers moving to Germany are finding there is at least one place where there is too much to eat, and where the price of cigarettes and beer is low. It's aboard the ship bringing them here.

They are facing the hazards of these oceanic oases in the best Canadian tradition but sometimes it seems more than a man can bear: six meals a day, tax-free beer at 15 cents a pint, servants to make your bed and serve your meals.

The transfer of 5,500 men of the 27th Infantry Brigade and their equipment across the Atlantic will cost probably $1,000,000 just for transportation. As far as the soldiers are concerned, it's worth every cent of it.

Of seven shiploads crossing at intervals, the Greek Line's Canberra is taking three. She's providing a passage that would arouse the envy of the average veteran. There are no hammocks jammed in the holds, no queuing for food, no real crowding.

The soldiers, 500 on the trip I made, sleep between white sheets. There usually are four soldiers to a cabin. They leave their beds to be made by stewards, buy a pint of Canadian or German beer or a package of Canadian or American cigarettes for 15 cents, and generally enjoy all the facilities of a tourist-class passage.

EXCELLENT FOOD

There are dormitory-type cabins down in the hold but they are not used.

But it's the eating which tops everything. Aboard the Canberra it is axiomatic that the human being should be fed six times a day—breakfast, 11 a.m. snack, lunch, afternoon snack, dinner, evening snack.

Lunches and dinners are five courses. Steaks, chops, beef are served twice a day. The food not only is good, it is good. Small wonder that a good number of officers and soldiers are gathering up copies of the menus to stimulate their memories in more frugal days ahead, or to prove their point when they write their womenfolk at home.

Meals are served by waiters in white jackets, on tables with white cloths, while a four-piece orchestra plays soft music in the wings.

They might have been a bit taken aback at first but towards the end of the voyage it was a common sight to see privates from Flin Flon or Stewiacke urbane scanning a waiter's tray of hors d'oeuvres, making their selections, then turning graciously to applaud something from Beechoven.

To the old term "Officer and Gentleman," the army is appending a new one—"Soldier and Gentleman."

Terrific Blast at Denmark's Capital Port

COPENHAGEN (CP)—At least 18 firemen and sailors died last night when an explosion of half a ton of mines blasted the Danish Navy's arsenal into a charred tangle of death and wreckage.

Others possibly were blown into the harbor or still may be lying under a tangle of concrete and metal debris.

Seventy-nine others were injured. Unofficial estimates set the damage around $1,400,000.

Windows were shattered throughout the city. People were knocked out of their beds.

Grain Ship Due Today

Japanese Vessel Arriving At Local Wharf This Afternoon

Biggest shipping news for this waterfront in several years will be made this afternoon on arrival of the Japanese owned 10,000 ton motorship freighter, Kiokawa Maru, first ship of several to load grain here.

Owned by Kowasaki Kisen Kaisha, Ltd., of Kobe, Japan, the "Maru" enters port here direct from Japan sailing the Great Circle Route. Before press time, she was expected to dock here at 3 p.m., according to Harbor Master William Koughan.

Meanwhile, an advance party in connection with this shipping, arrived here at 2 a.m. on the steamer Chilcotin, one of whom was Capt. George Docherty, pilot, who left this morning to meet the Maru off Triple Island.

Harry M. Craig, representing North Pacific Shipping Agency, general shipping agents for the Maru line, also arrived on the Chilcotin. Along with C. R. Cunningham, department of agriculture inspector to approve the ship's loading facilities.

The Japanese owners' representative, Shimo Komori, accompanied the group, as well as J. Mitchell, superintendent of Canadian Stevedoring Co. Ltd., and representative Hector Perry, whose company has the loading contract.

Meanwhile, some 300,000 bushels of wheat at the grain elevator here awaits loading, which is expected to be completed within three or four days.

Upon arrival, customs officers have first call on the ship for clearance purposes.

Concessions To Reds Off

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—President Truman Friday ordered an end to trade concessions for Soviet Russia and Communist-run Poland. He also directed an embargo on imports of several types of furs from Russia and Red China.

The order is effective January 5.

Congress will be required to enact legislation extending the reciprocal trade act which called in some sections for suspension of tariff concessions to Soviet bloc countries.

Census Satisfies New Westminster

NEW WESTMINSTER — The City of New Westminster, after checking against the list of electric light accounts, has acknowledged the correctness of the preliminary census count for the city of between 28,000 and 29,000. There are about 8000 light bills and each bill represents about 3.7 people, it is estimated.

WEATHER

Synopsis

The cold weather which has gripped the entire province for the past few days is about to end. An active storm is approaching the coast. There are gale warnings issued for the northern coastal waters and rain from the disturbance will spread along the south coast tonight.

Cloudiness is increasing through the interior and temperatures will be generally milder. Snow flurries in the northern sections will change to continuous snow this evening while in the southern valleys there will be rain in the western sections and snow in the eastern portion tomorrow.

Forecast

GALE WARNING
Gale warning continued. Rain today, cloudy with showers to night and Sunday. A little milder. Winds, southeast (30), increasing to southeast gales (40) by noon and shifting to southwest (30) this evening, decreasing to 20 tomorrow. Lows tonight and highs tomorrow—at Port Hardy, Sandspit and Prince Rupert, 40 and 46.

Princess Margaret Has Gay Night Doing Paris Rounds

PARIS (CP)—Princess Margaret, kicking up her high-heeled shoes in gay farewell to Paris, danced until 3 a.m. today in two of Paris' smartest night clubs.

The vivacious Princess started the evening with a dinner at Maxim's.

Then, accompanied by the Duchess of Kent and a group of bluebloods, she led reporters and photographers a merry chase.

Dressed in a white evening gown, she danced the rumba and samba with Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia and Comte de Robes.

The party drank champagne at $16 a bottle.

Newfoundlanders Vote Second Time Nov. 26

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland elects its second government as a Canadian province November 26, but it may be two or three days before it learns officially what party has been returned.

Slow returns are the outcome of the island's 1913 Election Act which calls for the collection of ballot boxes from all polling stations and their delivery at 25 district returning offices before counting starts. In the event of water transportation becoming icebound through severe weather, it might be weeks before some isolated areas are heard from.

Premier Joseph R. Smallwood's election announcement, coming when the legislature's first legal term was only half completed, caught the Progressive Conservatives with only a skeleton organization, and brought a fruitless protest to the lieutenant-governor on the surprise move.

Fifty-six candidates were nominated November 16 for the 28-seat assembly. Twenty-four seats are being contested. Liberals having been returned by acclamation in the remainder. The acclamations leave 24 Liberals, 22 Progressive Conservatives and six independents in the election fight.

The Liberals were returned to power in 1949 with a wide majority in Newfoundland's first provincial election. They won 22 seats against the Progressive Conservatives' five. One independent was elected. Mr. Smallwood was already interim premier, appointed after confederation had ended a 15-year period of commission government.

By dissolution, Liberal ranks had been reduced to 20. Finance Minister Herman W. Quinlan was appointed to the Senate and his seat left vacant.

Resources Minister Edward Russell became an independent after claiming he could no longer support the government's economic policies. Samuel Dwyer, fired from the party when he accused the government of failing to keep election promises in his northern district of White Bay, was later welcomed back to the government side.

The Liberals are seeking a mandate for their policy of granting dollar guarantees to industrial groups, mostly European, to get new industries started here.

The opposition, while not against the scheme in principle, urges careful investigation before pledging the public credit to support private groups.

Campaigners in this election are up against the same geographical difficulties which delay election returns. In many roadless corners of this island's 6000-mile coastline, they have to use motorboats or even dog teams to contact the voters and one Progressive Conservative candidate is riding around the remote Labrador hushings in his own plane.

Iran to Have Election Soon

TEHRAN (CP)—Premier Mosaddegh's government announced today it would call immediate national elections and challenge parliament's decision to delay them until December 18.

RHINE IS SINKING

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — The Rhine, western Europe's biggest international waterway, is sinking. In some parts the water level this winter is so low that the bigger barges cannot take their full load of 700 tons.

Vishinsky Not "Angry"

But Rejects Acheson's Arms Reduction Proposal

PARIS (CP)—Foreign Minister Vishinsky of Russia today rejected a western disarmament proposal as a plan "studiously designed to circumvent" arms reduction.

In a speech which he said was made "without anger," Vishinsky denied a contention by Secretary of State Acheson that acceptance of the plan would make a turning point in history.

Vishinsky submitted 12 "serious" amendments which he said would make the western disarmament plan acceptable to Russia.

The amendments had the effect of transferring the west's plan into the plan Russia submitted to the United Nations General Assembly two weeks ago.

US Protests Russ Attack

PARIS (CP)—The United States today accused Russia of attacking "without warning" a United Nations plane over "international waters" near Korea when it was more than twenty miles from the Russian coastline.

Grey Cup—

Ottawa Winner

TORONTO (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders won the Grey Cup and the Canadian football championship today, beating Saskatchewan Roughriders 21-14 in the East-West game.

Saskatchewan made it close with two converted touchdowns in the final quarter, but Ottawa took over with Benny MacDonnell cracking the line for big gains, and it was just a matter of time before Ottawa tackled down the honors.

Bright sunny skies with a nip in the air and a light snowfall was the setting for Canada's greatest sports spectacle, and a record breaking crowd of more than 27,000 watched the Grey Cup finals.

At the end of the first quarter, score was Regina 2, Ottawa 6. Regina counters came on Rouge and a kick to the deadline. Ottawa scored a touchdown when Turner broke loose around the right end and galloped 69 yards to Regina's three. McDonnell plunged over for the score.

Salmon Arm School Bd. Appealing

SALMON ARM.—Salmon Arm board of school trustees will appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against an order of Mr. Justice W. B. Farris in the British Columbia Supreme Court requiring the board to reopen the schools which it closed down several weeks ago because of lack of finances.

Education Minister W. T. Straith said that only $8000 was required to reopen the schools and this could be obtained by borrowing.

House Passes Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—House of Commons gave preliminary approval Friday to legislation increasing pensions of disabled war veterans by an average of 33 1/3%.

Members adopted a resolution to the bill providing for the increases and then gave first reading to the bill itself.

The legislation increases the basic pension for a single veteran with total disability to $125 from $94 a month, the basic allowance to a totally disabled pensioner's wife to $45 from $31, allowance for a first child to $20 from $19 and a widow's pension to $100 from $75.

The increases become effective January next.

Eden's New Approach

ANTHONY EDEN, when he made his first speech to the sixth assembly of the United Nations, made a characteristically British contribution to its work. He did not announce any striking change in British policy, resulting from the change of government, nor foreshadow any shift in the policy of the Western Powers. But he made a sincere and strenuous effort to bring a fresh spirit into the assembly, or perhaps rather to bring back an old spirit—the spirit of restraint, moderation, tolerance and courtesy.

It is a curious and depressing sign of the present time that it now requires a certain courage to declare in an international assembly, as Mr. Eden did, that all men are fallible, or that in no dispute is one party completely a black villain and the other snow white. These are, of course, simple and self-evident truths in the British way of thinking. But one of the evils of totalitarian diplomacy is that it tends, or deliberately attempts, to force its own methods on its supposed adversaries. Because its own chief method is a kind of totalitarian offensive in the fields of diplomacy and propaganda, it forces its supposed adversaries in the direction of a kind of totalitarian defence which, however, unaggressive, is inevitably somewhat rigid and monolithic. There is then the danger that there may be such a hardening of the two opposing diplomatic fronts that no single international problem can be treated or solved on its own merits, but each becomes indissolubly welded into a world-wide pattern of conflict between Russia and the West. If once this stage is reached, then there will in the end be only two ways out: either world war or one single comprehensive settlement of all outstanding problems. And by that time the second alternative would be most difficult to achieve, even with the wisest of statesmanship and the most genuine good will on both sides.

Mr. Eden, however, contended that differences could be resolved step by step, by gradual and successive stages. For, in disarmament as in political problems, each step forward, even if not a great one, creates the international confidence needed for a further greater step. If the United Nations can go ahead and work its proposals out in detail, Soviet Russia may at some stage see their value and decide to co-operate in this work.

Were You Missed in 1951 Enumeration?

The Daily News check on the 1951 census, which is being challenged for its short count of 8,465, is revealing established city residents who were missed by the enumerators.

They are from all parts of the city.
People who were missed are being asked to communicate the omission with as little delay as possible so that basis may be established for the contention that there was such a serious short count.

Can UN Survive?

IN HIS SPEECH of November 12 Lester Pearson said right out loud what many ordinary people have increasingly feared:

That the United Nations Organization may not survive.

Trygve Lie recently hinted at the same danger. It is becoming more and more clear that the world tension is reaching the point where it must either make or break the UN.

If there is enough statesmanship on BOTH sides of the Iron Curtain to settle the gravest immediate differences, that very settlement should "make" UN—in the sense that UN should then be able to work as its founders hoped it would work.

But if there is not enough statesmanship and goodwill to settle the sharpest outstanding quarrels then the end of UN is only a matter of time.

THE QUESTION of who killed Cock Robin is premature when the bird is still alive.

But on one point I want to raise my voice against one of the implications by Mr. Pearson.

"The United Nations remains our last, best hope for peace," he says. "But the emphasis is shifting from BEST to LAST."

I notice that the words BEST and LAST are underlined, exactly as above, in the official release of our Canadian spokesman's speech. The obvious inference is that Mr. Pearson thinks that if the UN folds up, or splits, world war is inevitable.

But is this so? I am not at all sure that a clean break between the Communist and non-Communist parts of the world would bring on a world war.

Year after year as I have watched the UN in action—with Russian and the USA delegations facing each other like two hostile armies—I have asked myself whether there would not be a better breathing spell to organize the world if the two camps agreed to stay apart.

What UN has been in the past few years is nothing but a gigantic sounding board for the war of words. I am not at all sure that we would be as close to world war as we are if the Russian bloc had walked out, and stayed out, and the two parts of the world agreed to live entirely apart. That sometimes helps to keep the uneasy peace between bad neighbors—who are better kept apart.

Hence, even if the UN does split, I would not agree that world war becomes inevitable. The shock of the split itself would be the proof of the awful gravity of the world war dangers. But if the world kept its head at that first moment of crisis—the next stage of history might be more constructive. At least the statesmen would not hurl their insults face to face.

THE ONLY sure road to world peace that I see is for the western democracies to begin to build peace "from the inside out."

Regardless of Russia's attitude, the western democracies can either form themselves into an out-and-out Atlantic Union; or, better still, they can lay the foundations of actual world government. They still legally lead at least two thirds of mankind.

But, as a great French states-

RCAF Defence Centre Here

Prince Rupert has been chosen as a "filter centre" by the Air Defence Command, Provincial Co-ordinator Squadron Leader C. H. Hoseason told city council last night. Council granted use of an unoccupied lot behind the fire hall to Department of National Defence if needed for a building to house the filter centre.

Sgt. Ldr. Hoseason said definite plans in this connection would be forthcoming by February when a nationwide press release would explain this particular activity of the Air Defence Command.

Meanwhile, he stressed the necessity to the council that the property must be available "in case we need it."

Reflects and Reminisces

Public life in Canada is becoming a career of contrasts. One day you're making a speech in Ottawa. The next, you're near the front lines in Korea, listening to shells bursting.

More people are re-discovering Prince Rupert. Many, here for the first time are quick to comment on how surprised they are—not that the city is not larger and more advanced—but that that this northern centre is as well developed as it is. But wait until you see us next year, or the year after.

If all the commissions, probes, surveys and investigations of the past three years were put into one, we would still have to win the war.

Federal members of Parliament have given further consideration to the proposal that the word "Dominion" be expunged. It should, instead, be "Canada." The projected change was given a rough passage. "Dominion" has been in effect for about a century, and appears just as correct and popular as ever.

Seattle was a hundred years old this month. The first winter was cold and stormy. Settlers lived chiefly on game. They had no bread, or salt, vegetables or fruit. First little buildings were a church and a school. By 1889 there was a prosperous town. Fire wiped it out—from scratch. Once again, Seattle rebuilt. It's been a long and a hard battle.

The Progressive Conservative Leader in the Senate, J. T. Haig, speaking of the possibility of war, said it was his opinion Soviet Russia would invade Canada from the north. One might question if any attack would be by way of Bermuda, Venezuela or Labrador.

LEICESTER, England (C)—Authorities here are trying to avoid power cuts this winter by dividing the city into five zones, with each zone stopping work one morning a week in rotation. Overtime will make up for loss in production.

man said, to build a federation you have to have a federating power. To date there is no real "federating power"—to push through federation, for instance, as the great Sir John A. Macdonald pushed through Confederation in Canada.

Not even one of the Big Three founders of the UN—U.S., Russia or Britain—has backed the UN, first, last and all the time.

Even now if the United States were to be converted to the support of "the UN, the whole UN, and nothing but the UN," the whole picture could change for the better overnight.

Saturday Sermon

(By GRACE HUMPHREYS, South Burnaby)
"Ye Servants of God, Your Master Proclaim."

The hymn, "Ye Servants of God, Your Master Proclaim," was written by Charles Wesley. It first appeared in a book published by the Wesley brothers entitled "Hymns for Times of Trouble and Persecution." This hymn, which was under the caption "To be sung in a tumult," is the best of the 33 in the book.

When the hymn was written England was in a state of great turmoil. Therefore it fitted the times well. Walpole, prime minister until 1742, had been friendly with France. This was the only power to whom the Roman Catholic Jacobites in England could look for help. After his resignation England went to war with France. This outbreak was caused by the sudden alliance of Frederick of Russia with France.

Charles, grandson of James the Second, planned to come to England and to dethrone George the Second. When he landed in England he met with brief success but was shortly defeated. It seemed rather strange that the ardent Protestants Charles and John Wesley, should be suspected of being in league with Charles the Pretender. Because of this suspicion they met violent opposition wherever they went. All kinds of missiles were thrown at them. Occasionally they were wounded. They were constantly interrupted while preaching, and were even hauled before magistrates.

Undaunted they continued their evangelistic work. They were strong in the strength of the Lord and believed that as "Servants of God" it was their duty to "Publish abroad His wonderful name." To political alarmists Wesley replies "His Kingdom is glorious, and rules over all."

One verse usually omitted from the hymn explains their spirit throughout this time of tumult: "When devils engage, the billows arise, And horribly rage and threaten the skies: Their fury shall never our steadfastness shock. The weakest believer is built on a rock."

Novel Program at P-TA

Drills, Games and Square Dancing Display

A special program by the classes of Principal R. G. Moore, Paul Tapalian and Joos Goscoe featured the regular monthly meeting of King-Edward School Parent-Teachers' Association in the activity room of the new school. The effort was well received by the audience of over 150 people.

Skipping and ball drills were presented by Mr. Moore's class, a basketball game by Mr. Tapalian's boys and square dancing by boys and girls of Mr. Goscoe's class.

In addition to seeing how adept the youngsters were at gymnastics, the program gave the audience the opportunity of seeing some of the equipment provided by PTA in actual use. The basketball equipment, including the smart sweaters and shorts, was seen, also ping pong table and set and badminton outfit.

Following the program came the business session with Mrs. Kenneth Hardy, the president, in the chair.

Mrs. W. W. Bowes presented a concise report on the progress being made today in connection with the organization of a dental clinic.

For the membership committee, Mrs. A. Kristmanon reported 141 members.

Mr. Moore spoke briefly on the subject of safety after which it was decided to write a letter to the Parent-Teacher Council, bringing to the attention of the city council that a speed limit is desired in front of the Civic Centre in view of the fact that many children are attending after school classes there. Yellow lines at Eighth Avenue and McBride Street, it was advocated, would cut down the element of danger for children having to use that intersection.

A pamphlet explaining the work that is being carried on at the public health unit was distributed and Miss Lucas of the health unit was introduced to the meeting.

Mr. Hewitt's class won the prize for the largest number of parents present.

The meeting closed with Mr. Goscoe giving instruction in square dancing, this being much enjoyed.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Peterson and her helpers.

Former Rupert Man Married

James Evan Love (AC1, Royal Canadian Air Force, second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Love, formerly of Prince Rupert and now of Vancouver, was the principal in an interesting wedding ceremony last Saturday evening in St. Andrew's Cathedral at Victoria. The bride of this young man, who was born and educated in Prince Rupert, was Miss Frances Patricia Crossley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crossley of Victoria.

Miss M. McKay played the organ and Mrs. William Rogers sang "Ave Maria."

The pretty bride, given away by her father, wore a gown styled with fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves of lace, net yolk and full net skirt, all over white satin. Her veil of Spanish net was held by a coronet embroidered with pearls and beads. For "something borrowed" she wore her mother's pearls and carried a bouquet of red roses, pink carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Rita Crossley, bridesmaid for her sister, chose a gown of pale blue lace with bouffant net skirt over blue satin. She wore a tiara of blue beads and sequins, blue lace gloves and carried pink carnations and white chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom had Clifford Robbins as best man, and ushers were Roy Chudeigh and John Crossley, cousin of the bride.

The parents of the young couple welcomed guests with them to the reception held at the Connaught Seamen's Institute. White chrysanthemums in vases at graduating heights and four lighted white tapers flanked the

CREATING AN ESTATE...
When you pay the first premium on a $5,000 life insurance policy, you immediately create an estate of $5,000. If you die the full amount is available for your family. If you live you can take as long as thirty years to pay for it. Why not create your estate today?

Ketchikan-Prince Rupert Barge Service?—Interesting History of Davis Raft

Several major transportation companies, including Alaska Steamship Company, are figuring on the problems involved in operating a freight barge between Prince Rupert and Ketchikan, according to word from Ketchikan.

Alaska Steam has sent representatives to Bellingham to learn exactly the needs of the Ketchikan Pulp and Paper Company for transferring loaded railroad cars from Ketchikan to the Canadian National Railways railroad at Rupert. Other conferences are planned in the near future.

Foss Tug & Barge, a major Puget Sound barge operator, also has consulted the pulp officials and it is understood that several of the transcontinental railroads are gathering cost information. They are hoping that the eastbound pulp, running up to 300 tons per day, could be delivered by water to Seattle for pickup there and delivery in the east via the northern transcontinental railroads. Whether they can quote a figure that would compete with the shorter water haul into Rupert remains to be seen.

Alaska Steam reportedly is not interested at present in operating a combined railway and auto ferry system into Ketchikan or other Southeastern Alaska ports, but is concentrating on the freight barge only. Whether the other companies consider the feasibility of taking tourists with or without cars between Rupert and Haines, with stops at way points, has not been learned. That operation would be a speculative one, while the pulp mill barge service would probably be on a long-time contract.

A Juneau concern already is negotiating for waterfront property here and in Ketchikan for ferry slips and railway sidings, although it may sell its holdings to one of the larger carriers if assured the ferry service will develop properly.

To do considerable repair work, which is being done in Vancouver, the Prince Rupert fishing vessel Silence will have included in the job, the rebuilding of her stern. Several tugs to be given an overhauling are the Best, the Cuprite and the Robert Rachel.

Now that grain is moving through Prince Rupert it is timely to call attention to the new type of grain car door, developed by the Canadian National Railways, and which brings undoubted advantages. For one thing, this kind of a door not only has longer life. It practically eliminates loss of grain while in transit. Unloading is greatly facilitated. There are three paperboard panels on the lower side of each car to let the grain out, the flow being regulated by the size of each puncture in the panels.

The towing of the Davis raft has become a somewhat adventurous feature of the logging industry in northern B. C. waters where change of weather can develop so quickly. The first ever towed across Queen Charlotte Sound was in 1915, when several were taken from Ocean Falls to Vancouver. The following year the Sea Lion towed the first Davis raft from the west coast of Vancouver Island to Burrard Inlet, going from Quatsino Sound and down the inside passage.

Another boom boat for Kelley Logging Co. for use in Queen Charlotte Island waters, may be completed before the end of the year. It is 16 feet and is powered with a Cummins diesel engine. The contract is in the hands of John Manly Ltd. of New Westminster. This yard has turned out 48 steel hulls, nearly all intended for towing and the boom industry.

PASSING PUBLICITY BET

Sea stories are among the best. Ships and sailors are sources of news so why not more in print? Compared with the press of years ago (so far as this coast goes) the papers of today are curiously scarce of real marine pages. Behold Vancouver, a city of substantially more than half a million. What does Vancouver's shipping amount to, should you wish to read about it? Thousands of vessels, from stately liners to the weatherbeaten fisher-craft come and go. Names are recorded. Wheat goes forth. There's no question as to the magnitude of the port. It is one of the major ocean centres of the world. But her deep water and coastal publicity is handled in a commonplace way. The guiding principle appears to make the least, instead of the most, of what there is. There seems no instinct whatever to "play her up." There are some ports where a good maritime yarn can almost make the page smell of tar and oakum. And incidentally, people enjoy it.

An old seafarer, with a record of gallantry at Gallipoli, passed away at Shaughnessy Hospital this week, in his 77th year, John Kerr, master of the steamship river Clyde, was one of the many seamen who shared in the landing of troops at the ill-fated Turkish actions in the First World War. He was awarded the DSC for his heroism.

ON SEEING THINGS
A down east news writer employed on a morning paper liked nothing better than to prow around ships and mix with the sailors when any had leisure.

Friends called him "Dutch," which was pure slang. He liked it. He could go places, be told things, and see sights denied others. He knew news but couldn't write it. He could, of course, but only in an awkward way that made reading his stuff more or less difficult.

Dutch rigged up a little scheme with a staff member who usually failed to find news but was a wizard when there was something to write.

Together, they made the ideal team. Stories had color and "punch," particularly if they came from the ships, some of them old wind jammers. Going to sea then meant months before the mast, and sailing almost wherever hull could steer. Any number of these craft had been built in the Maritimes, and lasted a long while—from the full rigged fleets down to schooners, many of which had regular traffic with the West Indies, a convenient neighbor. From the islands would come great hogheads of molasses whose purpose in life was to put hair on your chest.

Well, around midnight early one morning Dutch entered the office and after a moment in the washroom, settled down for a session with the typewriter. By and bye the editor strolled downstairs, also on his way to the washroom. A few minutes passed. While not temperate, he had the useful knack of drinking more than what was good for him with but few being aware of it.

Dutch glanced up, to see him beckoning.

"Come in," he called. "I'd like to ask you something."

He pointed to the washbowl, partly full of tepid water. In it floated a small sea-tortoise.

"Do you see anything there, except water?"

"Oh that, I've just put it there, until I go home. It was given to me by one of the boys aboard the here from Panama."

"I was in the club less than an hour this evening," remarked the editor, in a relieved voice, "but I never imagined I was seeing things. Dutch, I'm greatly obliged."

Another bargeload of chlorine arrived at Watson Island this morning. Barge Griffco was towed by tug Mogul, Capt. W. A. Worden.

FISHING QUIET

Commercial fishing at Prince Rupert is now in its annual doldrums. It's still too early for out-and-out trawling or herring fishing. Crabbing, however, is more popular this year than ever and many trawlers have seen a good profit in holding the crabs caught in their last set just before they come in.

The Tauranga, Capt. H. Pinchin, for instance is such an example. It unloaded 11,000 pounds of flat-fish last week at Atlin Fisheries and also 500 crabs. Other crab-loads were turned in by Northern Girl, Capt. Fred Auckland, 500, and Rio Rita, Capt. C. Leask, with 700 crabs.

Meanwhile, the Anthony J. Capt. Frank Jones, and Iris S. Capt. Denver Secord, are rigging up for trawling, while Jack and Alf Ritchie are out with the New Laurel.

British freighter, Falcon, loaded with sulphur for Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., Watson Island, is due Monday, according to agents' report.

Gracious Big Fans Popular

LONDON (CP)—The inclination of London and Paris dress designers to couple ostrich and lace fans with some of their more exotic gowns is causing British fashion writers to recall the "language of the fan."

In the old days the fan in a lady's hands spoke a language of its own. If she wished to communicate with a gentleman without speaking, she could do so by judicious use of the fan.

If she were annoyed at something, for instance, a twirl of the fan in the left hand meant "Do not speak to me." A warmer message, "I love you," could be conveyed by pressing the tip of the shut fan, or its handle, to the heart.

Holding the half-open fan, or its handle, to the lips meant "You may kiss me." If the lady wished to talk to the man, she would touch the tip of the fan with her fingers. And if he was neglecting her, she would fan herself with a short, quick motion.

Fashion writers note this could still be a useful method of silent telegraphy—providing the modern male takes the trouble to learn the code.
