The Real Question

IT WAS a dramatic address that General Douglas MacArthur made before the joint session of the United States Congress yesterday. It was an impressive defence of his ideas in regard to the war in Korea and the Far East. No doubt, many people were swayed by the valedictory oration of a great soldier.

Whether or not the policy of MacArthur is the right one or that of the administration is a question that we will hear discussed a great deal in coming days. It may, indeed, be developed into a major political issue. The desirability of this is much to be questioned in view of serious world conditions.

There is no point, however, in discussing here whether MacArthur is right or wrong. In fact, the question of whether or not his policy was the right one is really not the point which led up to his dismissal as commander-in-chief. The reason for that was that he spoke out of turn in advocating policies contrary to those accepted by the administration—and in a free democracy that is taboo since it is the government and not the military that decides and talks about policy. One may not agree with the administration's policy or admire President Truman out the fact cannot be ignored that, in the action he took, the President exercised his proper prerogative. Indeed, the general put himself in the position where the chief executive had little alternative but to do as he did.

Tapping Civic Centre

WE MAY NOT agree with the decision of the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association to lay out upwards of $5000 of its present reserve funds to purchase property for an ice arena that may or may not be built some time in the future. However, it is not likely that any great mistake was made in buying the property which is not liable to depreciate much in value and, conceivably, may be re-sold some time at a gain should the ice arena idea not materialize.

Those who voted for the deal were, undoubtedly, actuated with their enthusiasm for a project that could be a great boon to the city. Those who voted against it did not necessarily do so because they were opposed to an ice arena. Indeed, that was not the question at all. The question was whether or not the Civic Centre should tie itself financially to the project by buying the property on which it is planned the arena should eventually stand.

Nobody can reasonably oppose the desirability of an ice arena in Prince Rupert. It is the manner in which it should be financed that is the controversial issue. It is easy and does not appear to hurt very much to buy $5000 worth of real estate when an outfit has $50,000 of reserve funds but there is always the possibility that some other bright idea, equally meritorious, might be propounded to tap a handy nest-egg now that a precedent has been set.

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

WEIGHING THE FACTS

I just can't think of the Indian sub-continent, in reality, as being two separate nations. Right now they are keen rivals, whose armies still face each other at the most disputed point—Kashmir. There are sober observers in Karachi and in Delhi, who believe that a renewal of actual fighting over Kashmir is possible.

FOLLOWING MY VISIT TO India and Pakistan I shall try to jot down on paper those things most right—and most wrong—with the two twin nations.

Surely the thing that any honest observer would have to put at the top of the Right list would be that, whereas before independence there were some 584 separate states in the vast land, now there are only two free nations.

Maybe I am an incurable optimist. But in the long run I think the achievement of welding those 584 separate states or provinces even into two sovereign nations will vastly outweigh the fact that when India won her independence it was not quite in one piece.

MOREOVER, IT SEEMS to me that the logic of facts will gradually constrain India and Pakistan again to become friends, even if they could not agree to live in one nation together, as fellow citizens.

Even since I was there before, India and Pakistan have made a far-reaching trade agreement. It will go part way to undoing the grave harm that was done when the partition took place.

I HAVE HAD THE CHANCE to read one of the most powerful books of criticism, written in the new India. It is BETRAYAL IN INDIA, by D. F. Karaka (published in England by Gollancz).

Actually, the title is too strong. It might better have been called DISILLUSION IN INDIA. For it deals with a theme that one hears on every hand in India—how the Indians did not get the new heaven and earth they thought they were going to get when they won self-government.

I have no doubt that most of the charges in the book are true, about the Congress Party leaders, who have often become the exploiters of their new political power. Graft, black marketing, bribery are quite probably widespread in India today (as they were, by the way, in the early cruder times of our own Western democracies).

But as ever against the many things that are weak and wrong there are many things that are good and strong and right—and my observation was that the Indian intellectual tends too much to ignore these and to concentrate too much on the negative.

I ONCE HEARD A FINE TYPE of British political officer give a confidential talk on India, in which he had spent his whole life. The crux of what he said was that the Indian problem was insoluble, because the country had to be consolidated before there could be adequate reforms—but it could not be consolidated because of Britain's treaties "in perpetuity" with the Princes.

The treaties are gone, and the country is consolidated—at least into twin nations. That is the greatest of all facts about India in 1951.

CNR-Union Management

CNR Faces Greater Mechanical Problems This Year

MONTREAL—The mechanical department of the Canadian National Railways will be faced with greater problems this year than in 1950. This was revealed here by E. R. Battley, chief of motive power and car equipment, when he opened the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the CNR's union-management co-operative movement, motive power and car equipment section. The meeting was attended by railway labor leaders and railway officers from various departments in the company.

To carry an increased traffic load, Mr. Battley said that sufficient rolling stock will have to be maintained in spite of rising costs and shortened supplies of material.

The 40-hour week, soon to be introduced, will present the department with problems that it has never faced in the past.

He added: "I am not skeptical of the future, however. We have worked as a team for many years and I know of no difficulty that could arise in the future to alter our record of co-operative achievement."

Speaking on behalf of the labor delegates, J. J. Cupello, president of System Federation No. 11, A.F. of L., assured the meeting that he and his associates would spare no effort to advance the prestige and interests of the company. He reported that the high level of employee morale existing across the system is due in large measure to the fine job being done by President Donald Gordon. "We are aware of and appreciate the efforts the president is making to promote the interests of the system."

B. L. Daly, a member of the board of directors, said that the co-operative movement had survived periods of prosperity, depression and war and now could be declared a complete success. In that time it had improved labor-management relations and had brought about improved service.

J. A. Arge, assistant vice-president, traffic, praised the excellent job which employees in the mechanical department had done to keep equipment in service. He said that in 1950, the CNR had handled more traffic than in the war years. Its handling was more difficult because it came from widely scattered points. The fact that it was handled, he said, is an indication of the co-operation his department has always received from the mechanical division.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Outlining the functions of the public relations department, R. E. Beamish, assistant director, said the development of public goodwill is far from the responsibility of one department. Good public relations is the cumulative effect of individual employees in daily contact with the public.

Dr. K. E. Dowd, chief medical officer, reported that his department had conducted 44,000 medical examinations throughout the system in 1950. He urged the

Tramp Poet Is Recalled By Sister-in-law Here

A Prince Rupert relative said: "He was for the underdog."

Mrs. George Hill, 109 Fifth Avenue West, was referring to W. H. (Will) Davies, tramp-poet and her brother-in-law. Had he lived, this would have been his 80th birthday.

Davies sat around the beggar's camp fire. His poems are now read by the royal family.

This king of hoboos is now marked to be one of the greatest lyricists of this generation.

George Bernard Shaw endorsed W. H. Davies' first book of poems after the publishers failed to recognize the poet.

The adventures of his begging life through the States and part of Canada may be read in "The Autobiography of a Super-Tramp," for which G.B.S. wrote the preface.

Davies, who was born in Newport, Monmouthshire, England, April 20, 1871, was the step-brother of the late George Hill, Prince Rupert shoe merchant.

He was a strange man at times," said the poet's sister-in-law.

"Once, in the Old Country, sitting in our living room, he got up and pushed back the curtains with his cane, saying, 'What do you mean by shutting out a beautiful room with three-and-six-penny curtains?'"

The poet taught his nephew, the present assistant fire chief of Prince Rupert, W. H. (Buster) Hill, to take his first steps, Mrs. Hill remembers. She, with the family, had returned to Newport in 1913 for a visit.

"There was no need for him to beg. His grandfather left him some money," said Mrs. Hill, describing the poet's character as very direct but quiet.

"When he had just returned from his trip to America, Polly, his sister, was cleaning up and burned all the notes he had kept of his experiences. Will had planned to write from them. And the notes meant years of work. After Polly had burned them, he didn't say much then," said Mrs. Hill.

One of the many experiences Davies writes about was the time he was catching a freight in Winnipeg for the Klondike gold rush. He slipped from the train and lost a foot. From that day on, the poet-trump said that the best means of travel for the "bum" was the open road.

W. H. Davies writes in "Beggars," one of the autographed books at the Hill home:

"Honestly, if I had not been cursed with ambition to excel in literature, I would have remained a beggar to the end of my days."

VARIETY IN CARROTS—A bit bored with carrots these spring days? Home economists suggest mixing them with other vegetables for variety.

Shredded carrots and onions make a good combination. The proportions: 12 medium carrots; two medium onions; one-half cup water; four tablespoons butter; one teaspoon salt.

Peel the medium carrots and onions and shred them through a coarse grater or shredder. Cook together in the water and add salt and butter. Cook in a covered saucepan for 10 minutes. Six servings.

SOUP STOCK HANDY

A pot of basic soup stock in the refrigerator always will come in handy when emergencies arise.

In addition, health officials agree that soup makes a nutritious luncheon or supper course.

Brown stock, made from beef or dark-colored meat bones, and white stock, made from veal bones or light-colored meat, are the types most commonly used.

Home economists suggest browning the bones before putting them in the soup kettle—adding the water and vegetables, bring to a boil and simmer slowly for two or three hours. If spices are used to tie them in a bag so they can be easily removed.

Strain the soup through fine strainer or a piece of cheesecloth and allow to chill. Remove the layer of fat from the top before using.

CREAM OF CORN SOUP

This is a tasty dish which the home economists recommend. Ingredients: one 20-ounce can of corn; one medium onion (sliced); half a cup of diced celery; two cups of water; three cups of thin cream sauce well seasoned with salt and pepper.

In a saucepan combine the corn, onion, celery and water. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes.

Make three cups of sauce using three tablespoons of butter, three tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, a little pepper, three cups milk. Rub the corn mixture through a coarse sieve and add to the cream sauce.

Serve hot and sprinkle with a dash of paprika. This will serve six.

If you've been having trouble lately with your meringues, better take a tip from the home economists on how to make one. For each medium sized pie use two egg whites and four tablespoons of fruit or powdered sugar. Fine granulated sugar will do but never use icing sugar.

Along with the two egg whites and sugar use one-eighth table-

Gardening

SOMETHING WILL GROW

There are few places, if any, in the whole of Canada that something will not grow, and certainly none in any garden or corner of the garden no matter how unpromising. The great run of flowers and vegetables, of course, prefer an open position with lots of sunlight and in a nice, rich, well-worked loam. However, in small urban gardens especially, one cannot always have the ideal. But that does not mean that one cannot have plants, and especially flowers.

Certain flowers, like the tuberous rooted begonia, actually need a dark, shaded corner. Anything like full sun for them would be disastrous. And there are some other flowers which like varying degrees of shade. There are others, many more indeed, that prefer a little shade throughout the day. Actually full sun will spoon of cream of tartar and pinch of salt.

Beat the two whites until frothy. Add the cream of tartar and salt. Continue beating until whites are stiff and then add and continue beating.

Cover the entire surface of the cold pie filling with the meringue and put into a moderately slow oven (325°F.). Bake 20 minutes.

often bleach out delicate coloring. Then, too, not all flowers prefer very rich soil, some, like the portulaca, like the other kind and very dry. Again there are certain flowers and a few vegetables, too, that will thrive best in soil that is slightly acid or wet, while others insist on no acid at all and a well-drained position.

All these points one takes into consideration when planning to have a garden, especially one in a rather unusual place. All these special likes and dislikes are usually mentioned in the seed catalogue. Also mentioned will be time and flowering, coloring, whether the flower is scented or not, whether it has long stems and is, therefore, suitable for bouquets.

WORKING IT WILL HELP—Around some of the new houses completed since last fall will be some pretty unpromising garden material. No matter what it looks like now, it is amazing what a difference there will be in a few months and still more in a few years.

Quickest results with the new garden, of course, will be obtained where a few loads of rich earth are brought in and spread over the whole lot. This applies to lawn, and flower and vegetable gardens. Where this is not possible or is too expensive, one can go at things more gradually. Thorough and frequent cultivation will work wonders and also digging in all sorts of green materials, like grass clippings, leaves or special crops. These things supply humus and that is the big need of both heavy and light soils.

FOR DIVISIONS—In place of fences or walls one can use growing screens and even the fence or wall will look more attractive if partially hidden in this way. There are all sorts of planting material available for this purpose. It will be listed in any good seed catalogue. The perennial types are well known. Many people do not realize that one can get quite good and quick results from annuals too. Dahlias, ornamental sun flowers, cosmos, spider plants are only some of many things that will reach three or four feet in height in a few weeks. And there are quick-growing vines, too, like scarlet runner beans, sweet peas, hops and morning glories.

Blackwood on Bridge

Mrs. Keen had to time her play just right to bring home her contract on today's hand. The opening lead was the queen of clubs. How would you play?

The bidding:
South 1 NT
North 3 NT
West Pass
North 2 NT
East Pass

Pretend you can't see the East-West cards for a moment. Now if the diamond finesse wins you can run off nine tricks in a hurry—five diamonds, two spades and two clubs.

But if the king of diamonds is wrong you have to win one heart trick to make your bid. In that case you have two enemy high cards to knock out—and you have only two stoppers in the danger suit, clubs.

So a hold-up play is indicated—and that is what Mrs. Keen used. She let Mr. Abel win the first trick. He continued with the jack of clubs and Mrs. Keen won with the king.

Usually at no trump contracts you tackle your longest suit first. But not in this situation. If Mrs. Keen had taken the diamond finesse at this point, Mr. Dale would have won and returned a club eliminating the last stopper from the closed hand. Mr. Abel would still have the ace of hearts to get in with to run the rest of his clubs.

At the third trick Mrs. Keen led the five of hearts. Mr. Abel played small (it wouldn't have helped him to go in with the ace) and dummy's king won. Now the heart suit was promptly abandoned.

If Mrs. Keen had become a little greedy and tried for a second heart trick Mr. Abel would have won with the ace and led a third round of the suit. That would have set up two heart winners in Mr. Dale's hand while he still had the king of diamonds for an entry.

Mrs. Keen's play at trick four was a spade to the ace in her hand. Then she finessed the jack of diamonds. Mr. Dale won his king and led back a club. But Mrs. Keen had the ace for off.

MISSING—Everyone missed on this close play in the second period of the first Stanley final playoff game at Toronto. Rookie Paul Masnick of Montreal Canadiens fooled Turk Broda with a flip shot over the Toronto goalie's head. Broda missed the puck, Masnick missed the rebound and defenseman Fern Flaman swooped in for a rebound that didn't bound. Leafs won, 1-0, in overtime. (CP PHOTO)

Racing Yacht For Bermuda

BOSTON—When the Canadian National Steamships liner Lady Rodney sailed from Boston last evening she carried, securely lashed to her forward deck a sleek, thirty-two foot racing yacht, The Pioneer, the United States' only entry in the annual Bermuda sailing races beginning next Monday.

The racing yacht, which sailed under her own power from Marblehead to Commonwealth Pier where the Lady Rodney was taking passengers for the West Indies, was hoisted aboard the CNES ship and secured in a special deck cradle for the trip to Bermuda.

Accompanying the racing yacht was its owner, Ralph S. Hood, of Marblehead, whose son, Frederick, will skipper the pioneer in the races.

Civic Centre to Purchase Proposed Ice Arena Site

Overriding the recent rejection by the board of directors, the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association, in general meeting last night, decided to purchase for $5800 from the Canadian Legion property on First Avenue as a site for an ice arena or Civic Centre expansion.

While the board of directors had recently rejected the idea of sinking Civic Centre reserve funds in the property purchase, it agreed the issue should come before the association as a whole for final decision.

The vote at last night's meeting was 14 for the purchase and 10 against.

Meantime, the ice arena project had already been deferred, on committee recommendation, because of lack of sufficient financial support on the part of the public to justify going ahead.

Estimated cost of the ice arena is $125,000. The maximum that it is estimated could be raised at this time is $45,000. A survey of about half of the citizens brought forth pledges of $9000 in cash and $10,000 in volunteer labor. In all, it was estimated that $15,000 might be raised in cash from the public with possibly $15,000 from the waterfront while downtown business had not been canvassed.

However, the ice arena committee felt the project should be kept alive and had recommended the Canadian Legion property be taken over, the city council giving assurance that it would be given exemption from taxation.

THE ARGUMENTS

In view of the expression of opinion of "progressive citizens" in favor of an ice arena as indicated in the poll, Dr. L. M. Greene, leading ice arena advocate, argued that the Civic Centre Association was justified in purchasing the proposed site. He so moved.

George Viereck was of the opinion that, since there were so few at the meeting, they should not proceed further.

Dr. R. G. Large felt that Civic Centre funds had been raised originally for the Civic Centre—and a swimming pool. The swimming pool idea had been deferred owing to high cost. Any fair survey should, he felt, have taken the swimming pool into account. He suggested that the city might be approached with a view to having the property held for an ice arena.

Further, Dr. Large felt that the Civic Centre should conserve its reserve funds ($50,000) against heavy expenses that might be required on the building—$3000 was needed for furnace repair alone now.

Dr. Greene felt that the Civic Centre should look beyond the limited scope of the building. His idea was that it should be the medium of fostering and supervising all recreational activities—especially the children's. That was why he was so interested in the ice arena.

The vote in favor of the purchase of the site being recorded, the meeting adjourned.

Dr. R. G. Large, Civic Centre president, was in the chair.

Three Club Ball Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Big league managers expect three-club races in each league this summer with Boston, Cleveland and New York battling in the American, and New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn in the National.

Chuck Dressen, new Dodger manager, put himself on the spot by picking Brooklyn to win the pennant. Casey Stengel, boss of the world champion New York Yankees, also said he expected to win again.

Paul Richards, taking over as Chicago White Sox manager, would not pick anybody to beat his club which finished sixth last year. And Luke Sewell of Cincinnati also shied from predictions.

Bucky Harris of Washington and Stengel leaned toward Cleveland as "the team to beat," but Al Lopez, new Cleveland boss, thought he would have to beat the Yanks to win.

Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs and Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves figured the National a five-club scramble with St. Louis and Boston also involved. Most of the others predicted a Phil-Dodger-Giant struggle.

Naval Director Is Coming Here

Captain Angus C. Boulton, Director of Naval Reserves, from Ottawa, will visit HMCS Chatham, Prince Rupert, May 16 in the course of his first inspection tour of western naval divisions since taking up his present appointment. He will be accompanied by Commander W. A. Childs, Assistant Director of Naval Reserves. They will arrive here from Victoria and go from here to Edmonton.

Captain Boulton will examine the physical aspects of the division and inspect training organization and facilities. In addition, he and Commander Childs will discuss the state of recruiting both for the RCN and the RCN (Reserve).

Taxi Men Talk Over Problems

Taxi fares, meters and parking were discussed at a meeting of the city cab operators in the Carpenters' Hall Tuesday night.

Of the 24 taxi operators represented at the meeting, 17 voted against installing meters in cabs.

Cab fares were automatically to go up with the installation of meters, Samuel Julian, of the taxi association said.

Parking decisions will be held up until April 23, when the cabmen will have a final meeting. Some controversy with city police over double parking at show time by cabs in front of theatres will be further discussed, taxi-men reported.

Louis Knutson was chairman of the meeting.

Pre-Enfranchisement Meet METLAKATLA STATUS CHANGE DISCUSSED

Fire interrupted a pre-enfranchisement meeting attended by top provincial and Dominion officials Thursday evening in the nearby native village of Metlakatla. After some hours of legal talk, a young native boy, Jimmy Ryan, ran into the community hall to report a brush fire was endangering the village.

Jeannette Ryan, 13, and a playmate, caused the fire, Jeannette's mother, Mrs. L. Ryan believed.

Volunteer fire brigade, headed by Fire Chief Henry Ryan, subdued the blaze with the use of one of the three hydrants in the village. There was no serious damage.

Within half an hour the meeting, called by W. S. Arnell, commissioner of Indian affairs for British Columbia, to settle legal matters on the enfranchisement, was resumed.

Commissioner Arnell stressed that this meeting did not give the natives enfranchisement. He said that final word would be publicly announced by the minister.

"It only gets us over the hump after years of preparation," said Leonard Brown of Ottawa, department solicitor representing Hon. Walter Harris, minister of citizenship.

As the 10,000 acres of Metlakatla reserves are about to be turned over by the Dominion, the 152 village natives of the band, with their 10,000 acres of reserves, are about to set a precedent in Canadian history. They will be the first Indian band enfranchised en masse.

The reserve land, now held in trust by the Dominion for the band, will be transferred—some to individuals, some to the new municipality and about 60% will be offered for sale.

Other officials attending the meeting were B. C. Bracewell, deputy minister of municipal affairs from Victoria; F. E. Anfield, Indian superintendent, Prince Rupert, and assistant Superintendent W. B. Bailey. They travelled to the village on the department boat Naskeena, Capt. Vincent Wells.

Mr. Bracewell officiated when affidavits were sworn in connection with transfer of land by four top Metlakatla natives, Cecil Ryan, chief of the village council; Peter Leighton, Robert Nelson and Edward Leighton. The oaths were taken at the end of the meeting, with Mr. Anfield acting as witness.

Other members of the present village council who were elected in January are William Leask, Matt Leighton and Alvin Leask.

Ketchikan Mill Site Inspected

KETCHIKAN.—W. D. Brown and Howard Barringer flew to Juneau after looking over the Wacker pulp mill site yesterday with Charles Marler and Gerald Banta. They will spend the day in Juneau and return to Seattle tomorrow.

Mr. Brown is secretary and treasurer of Howard S. Wright & Co., of Seattle, a firm that builds and maintains pulp and paper mills in the northwest.

Barringer is from New York and an official of the Dodge Publishing Co., operator of a chain of newspapers and large user of newsprint.

The Wright Co. is a specialist in industrial plants, having built the Seattle P-I building. Two years ago it was interested in building the pulp mill at Wacker and presumably would have a hand in it if work begins this year.

LONDON (CP)—For months 84-year-old Sybil Cutler visited his wife in hospital. On his last visit he was struck and injured by a motor car and now he's in the same hospital.

New Chief Of Police

KETCHIKAN.—The city council at a special meeting amended the city salary ordinance to provide for a five per cent pay boost and authorized City Manager Barton to secure a chief of police from the States.

The resignation of Chief of Police R. D. Lang was read and Mayor Talbot expressed regret that the city was losing his services. Lang has been in ill health for some time due to a heart ailment.

After the city manager explained difficulties in securing police department personnel at current salaries, a new position of police captain at a salary of $390 a month was created. Walter Carter, patrolman, will be captain and if a new chief is not secured by the first of May, when Lang's resignation becomes effective, he will be acting chief until such time as a successor is chosen.

Authorized by the council to fly south to interview applicants for the position, Manager Barton plans to leave tomorrow.

Meanwhile, James Williams, a retired army sergeant, joined the police force this week, succeeding Gusto (Chet) Pearson, who resigned to go fishing.
