A few showers, the remnants yesterday's thunderstorms, have continued throughout the night in the Kootenays and it is expected that by mid-afternoon there will be a sharp re-development of this activity in this region. The remainder of the province will have predominantly sunny skies both today and tomorrow with the exception of the north coast. In this section increasing cloud and rain is expected as a weakening Pacific storm moves in against the coast.

Temperature will be cooler in most sections today than those, recorded yesterday but tomorrow should see somewhat higher reports as sunny skies prevail.

CONDITION of serious delay in delivery of I, freight shipments from Vancouver to Prince Rupert is developing. Complaints are heard here that it is taking as long as three weeks after ordering to get such deliveries made and, in some cases, longer than that. Docks in Vancouver, it is said, are getting piled high with the accumulation of undelivered eargo and already shortages are developing at this

With the new industries such as aluminum and cellulose making more and more demands on coastal cargo space, steamship companies explain that they simply have not the space to handle the business.

This is only spring and seasonal industries are just beginning to open up. The Prince Rupert cellulose mill will be operating in full soon. The freight traffic for Alcan into the Kitimat area is only beginning in a small way compared with what it will be.

It is obvious, without any explanation, that the shipping companies are not providing the facilities which are necessary to handle the traffic offering today, to say nothing of the further increase in volume that will be developing not within months but within the next few weeks. So something must be done by the companies already supposed to be serving the coast or by some other interests who may be available to enter the field. And it will have be done and it will have to be done quickly or there will be even more delay and inconveniences to shippers and consignees—and, of course, more discontent and complaints.

The business is offering and crying for service. It simply just cannot be allowed to go unattended to.

Let's Clean It Up

IT IS gratifying to note the interest that is being I taken in the move to clean up the city with the city council itself taking the lead in the matter. Tomorrow the mayor will publish an announcement officially designating May 21-26 (next week) as "Clean Up Week." He will appeal to citizens one and all to exercise civic pride with every one making an effort to clean up in every way possible. Special disposal services are being arranged by the city. By the end of next week, it is hoped there will be a vast improvement in the general appearance of the commu-

Now it is up to the citizens themselves. The way the idea is catching on, the clean-up campaign should develop into a friendly competition which will result in benefit to all and a sense of satisfaction over a good job. The whole thing, of course, depends on every citizen rising to the occasion and doing his between second and First Aven- been drawing around $100,000 share.
