Danger of Third World War as Great As Ever, President Truman Believes

SENTENCED TO DEATH—

Julius Rosenberg And His Wife Condemned

NEW YORK (CP)—Convicted atom bomb spies Julius Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel, today were sentenced to death. Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman ordered them executed some time in the week beginning May 21.

The judge told the Rosenbergs: "I consider your crime worse than murder. Plain, deliberate murder is dwarfed by your acts."

The Rosenbergs and Morton Sobell were convicted last week of obtaining atomic spy secrets and passing them to Russia.

David Greenglass, brother of Mrs. Rosenberg, who confessed obtaining the atomic secrets while working at Los Alamos, New Mexico, atomic bomb base, and passing them to Rosenberg, was chief prosecution witness of his brother-in-law and sister. He awaits sentence.

Sobell, who never testified in his own behalf, was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment.

Movie Stars Un-American

WASHINGTON (CP)—Academy of Moving Pictures Arts and Sciences award winners Jose Ferrer and Judy Holliday and two prominent university scientists were listed yesterday by the House of Representatives' un-American activities committee among those whose names have been associated with the current Communist "peace offensive."

Their names, with scores of others, appeared in a 166-page report just issued by the committee analyzing the peace offensive, which it called "the most dangerous hoax ever devised by the international Communist conspiracy."

Province To Co-operate in Move for Special
Consideration in Emergency

E. T. Applewhite, MP for Skeena, wired P. H. Linzey, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, today acknowledging the request of the Chamber that he contact authorities in Ottawa with appeal for special consideration in connection with the housing emergency here. Mr. Applewhite had had a long distance telephone conversation with Ald. Douglas Frizzell in Vancouver.

Ald. Douglas Frizzell and Ald. Don Fitch met Premier B. I. Johnson, Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of lands and forests, and J. D. McRae, MLA for Prince Rupert, in Victoria yesterday and won their co-operation in representations being made to Ottawa with a view to having Prince Rupert given special consideration for home building here under joint federal-provincial housing scheme.

Yesterday Ald. Frizzell was in long distance communication with Mayor G. W. Rudderham following the conference at Victoria and, as a result, the city council was called into a special committee-of-the-whole session and agreed to send further information required as to the housing need here.

The council expressed willingness to assume a minor proportion of financial responsibility necessary should this be required under the rental scheme.

If there is favorable response from Ottawa to Prince Rupert's claims for special consideration in view of the exceptional emergency here, T. B. Pickersgill, supervisor for British Columbia of Central Housing and Mortgage Administration, and J. E. Brown, housing commissioner under the federal-provincial scheme, may be coming to Prince Rupert next week.

CCF Preparing For Convention

Resolutions to be brought up at the provincial convention of the Canadian Commonwealth Federation were discussed at a business meeting in the Metro-pole Hall this week.

Delegates will be chosen later for the convention which will be held in Vancouver May 17, 18 and 19.

William Brett was in the chair.

PRINCE FLEW ALONE
LONDON (CP)—The Prince Regent of Iraq and his two pet dogs were all set to fly home to Baghdad. All went well until it was found there wasn't a box the right size for the animals—a big St. Bernard and a small Labrador retriever so the Prince flew home alone.

The President would not comment on a speech yesterday of Speaker Sam Rayburn that large numbers of troops are massing in Manchuria and that they are not all Chinese Communists.

Mr. Truman did say, however, that "the Speaker is a truthful man."

The President also declined to comment on reports that General MacArthur had authority to bomb Communist bases in Manchuria.

EUROPEAN SITUATION
Mr. Truman described the Senate's troops-for-Europe resolution as "further evidence that the United States stands firm in its support of the North Atlantic treaty."

Mr. Truman, in his statement, hailed the resolution endorsing his plan to send four additional army divisions to the Western European defence force. The four divisions are expected to start moving to Europe soon.

TERRIBLE DANGER
Speaker Rayburn, breaking into debate on the draft of a universal military training bill yesterday, said United States is in a "terrible danger" of a third world war.

He warned the House of Representatives against "complacency" over the future.

Fresh from a White House briefing on Korea, the Texas Democrat told of massing of troops in Korea and Manchuria "and not all of them are Chinese Communists by a great extent."

Asked off the floor if he meant Russians, he replied: "I'm standing now on what I have said."

NOT SEEN BY MACARTHUR
Russia's 500,000-man army has shown no tendency to build up its forces within Manchuria, informed quarters at General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said today.

This observation was made in comment on Speaker Sam Rayburn's statement in Congress yesterday that Communist troops, who, he said, are "not all of them Chinese Communists by great extent," have been increasing their strength in Manchuria—refusing to say whether he was talking about the Russians.

Bad Weather Last Month

March gave Prince Rupert its worst weather for that month in years. Digby Island weather station reports temperature on March 5 was 5.2, the lowest for that month in Daily News records. Highest reading was 50 on March 31, the mean, 32.5.

Only 59.7 hours of sunshine were recorded, compared with last year's 106 hours. Total precipitation was 8.06 inches, with 7.25 inches of rain and 8.1 inches of snow.

Highest winds were 41 miles an hour, southwest, on March 11. Barometer readings were 80.27 and 29.34 inches on March 13 and 4, respectively.

Census and Business

BUSINESS MEN everywhere will be watching the results of Canada's 1951 census with a keen eye to business changes.

For to them the census can provide the key to what the future may hold in profits and losses, new markets and new industrial development.

Many advertising firms may re-work all their future advertising campaigns based on what the census discloses: regional shifts in population, swings in buying tastes and buying power.

In fact, so important has the census become to Canadian business that many requests have been made to cut the time-lag between surveys from 10 to five years. But that, say census officials, would be too expensive. So the 10-year survey likely will continue for decades to come.

Mainly, the census will provide a tri-pronged service to Canada's business, expanding at trigger-fast speed.

1. It will show the changes in buying habits and trends of the Canadian consumer.

2. It will give the business man an idea of how he is faring, compared with others in the same business.

3. It will bring to the practical business man a final touch of realism to the saga of Canada's amazing industrial growth in the last 50 years.

Most of the business men will be anxious to know just which way the markets are shifting. Where is the purchasing power being built up? Vancouver? Montreal? Halifax? Prince Rupert?

These questions are important. They lead to intensified advertising campaigns in those areas where selling prospects look good. And, of course, they may lead to establishment of new branch stores, new factories in those areas where marketing is perking up.

Looks Like Controls

IT WAS a pretty shocking increase that the Canadian cost-of-living index took during the month of February—no less than 4.5 points to a new high of 179.7. And, since the wholesale price index has gone up again, another rise in the retail index is to be anticipated covering the month of March.

Inflation is certainly here now and, while we may be reluctant to admit it, something most assuredly must be done to stay the vicious spiral which is quickly pushing the ordinary citizen of fixed income, the pensioner and such like to the economic wall.

It seems to be getting past the point where much can be expected in the way of meeting the situation by merely appealing for less buying and a cutting down of the standard of living. That only can reach one class of people—those in lower income brackets—and can only lead to further discontent.

There would appear to be logic in the contention that an emergency exists which justifies decisive action—just as it did in wartime when Canada had a control system which kept the country in economic equilibrium and which was the model that many other countries envied.

THE LOAD ON NEHRU

BOMBAY, India.—I had intended to postpone any general conclusions about this Indian trip until the end. But things have a way of happening, to upset plans.

This seems like a good time to say what is really the most important conclusion reached on this trip:

India has made remarkable progress toward solving many of the most difficult questions which faced the newly independent nation. Yet there is, at least throughout that part of the land which I have visited, a deep sense of future crisis.

Amongst all sorts of people you hear expressed in one way or another the impression that there is a big bust-up coming at some time or another. Estimates differ widely as to when that bust-up is likely to occur.

But—significantly and most dangerous of all—everybody agrees that there will be no such bust-up while Mr. Nehru is on the job.

NEHRU OCCUPIES a place in the minds of the people about half-way between that rendered to Gandhi and the rest of the other politicians. That is, the people here put him in a class by himself.

The only other leader who has a personal prestige remotely approaching that of Nehru is Nair, the Socialist chief. But, whereas nobody—not even the wildest optimist in the Socialist Party—dreams that the Socialists can win this year's election, everybody assumes that Nehru will head the government of India for as long as he has the life and health to do so.

THAT BRINGS ME to the very heart of the most important thing I have to say about India:

Prime Minister Nehru is carrying a load, not only as heavy as any other such leader in any western democracy. But he is attempting to carry an even heavier burden. In his capacity as government head he is also trying to act as public educator and political campaigner to an extent that would break the heart and ruin the physique of most men in short order.

LET ME GIVE you an example of what I mean. In the weeks I was in Delhi to which I return tonight India's parliament was in session and the PM was on the job every day. At the same time, he was directing India's foreign policy, dealing with such thorny questions as Kashmir, Korea and the implications and complications of the food grants from U.S.A.

That's a man-sized job. But every single week-end, since I have come here, Mr. Nehru has been off, by plane, opening institutions and making many speeches.

Here in Bombay, for instance, the Prime Minister arrived at six o'clock Saturday evening. On Sunday morning he opened a modern public milk pasteurization plant; opened one of several new branches of the Ramakrishna mission, made one other speech, attended a cricket match and then spoke for one hour and 40 minutes to 150,000 people.

He waited several hours Monday morning before explaining for Delhi because he wanted to see India's great friend, Lady Mountbatten, who was passing through to Burma.

NOW IF YOU multiply that week-end by what happens every week-end, you get what I mean.

I think Mr. Nehru could study, with profit, one thing demonstrated by our own late and great Mackenzie King. That is, that the secret of ability to withstand the strain of public office for many years is to take some time out to relax.

I DO NOT PROPOSE to share the pessimism which I have reported above, about a big bust-up in India at year X or any other time. Nor do I believe that any great leader is indispensable or irreplaceable.

Yet—just as it was a tragedy of gigantic proportions that Franklin Roosevelt was taken from life just when he was—so it would be not only a calamity for India but a tragedy for all mankind, if anything should happen to shorten the span of life and health of Mr. Nehru.

I CANNOT STATE too strongly that such a tragedy would, above all, be a deadly blow to

"You've just been voted the best pastry maker on the block!"

SATIRE

Editor, Daily News,

When I read the deeply moving article in Saturday's Daily News telling of the downfall of the Problem family, tears came to my eyes. I am not ashamed to say that I wept openly because the account brought back poignant memories of a "Johnny" I once knew.

You see, Mr. Editor, three years ago, just after my sixth birthday, my father died very suddenly. The policeman was very apologetic, said something about a warning shot and an unfortunate ricochet. Be that as it may, it did not alter the fact that my mother was now a widow with 16 children of whom I was the oldest—three sets of quints, all girls, made up the rest of the family.

Mother got a job in a welding shop but, as was the case in the paper, there was never quite enough money for everything. There was, of course, only one thing left to do. As every sub-sister writer knows, when a respectable family needs extra money there is only one way to get it and that is by turning to crime. It was the landlord that finally drove us to it. For some reason or another he insisted on being paid. The grocer, the butcher, the clothier, the shoe man, the druggist, the hardware man, the fuel man, the light company, the telephone company and the liquor vendor never raised prices, nor did they insist on being paid. Mother would tell the grocer, for instance, that the bill was too high and that we couldn't pay it. He'd just smile, tell her to forget it and receipt the bill anyway. So did the others. But the landlord insisted on payment.

My mother, being old-fashioned, took a lot of persuading but finally she sold her diamond rings, her wrist watch and a couple of old mink coats she happened to have around and with the proceeds she bought a couple of quarts of liquor. That night the Swillalots had a party. About 1 a.m. they ran out of supplies and telephoned to us for replacements. Carefully wrapping my precious wares, I started on my eight-mile journey to deliver them. I will never forget that night. The temperature was around zero and a 60-mile-an-hour gale whipped icy snow in a wild swirl before it. The thin single cotton garment I wore was scanty protection against the elements and, ere I had gone four miles, my bare feet were quite cold. At this point I spotted a small shed near the trail and, with the idea of resting for a few minutes from the fury of the storm, I went inside. It was there, in that shed, that I met "Johnny." He too was on criminal intent bent, driven to it, as I was, by the rapacity of a landlord. While we rested we talked of various things and finally "Johnny" showed me a pair of ivory cubes with spots on them. He told me that they were called dice and that you could play games with them. As all children do, I liked to play games and I begged him to show me how to play. I will refrain from boring you with the details but in less than 10 minutes I had lost not only my whitehanded knife, my pet bunny, the few pennies I had saved for Christmas presents for my sisters, and my shirt, but I had also staked and lost my two precious quarts. For what happened next, I have no excuse to offer. I was desperate. I picked up a half brick from the shed floor and hit "Johnny" firmly behind the ear (the left ear, I think). I then took my possessions and his, and went on my way. I delivered the Swillalot parcel and was paid. I went to "Johnny's" customer and made delivery and was paid. Clutching the bundles of money, I made my way back through the howling storm to the shed, to rest and see about "Johnny," but when I got inside "Johnny" was gone.

I sat for a long time in that shack and did some deep, deep thinking. At last I reached a momentous decision. If I took all that money home, Mother would only spend it buying food and stuff for those girls and, since they had already gone two weeks without food, I guessed that it wouldn't hurt them to go one week more. So I did not go home. I waited until the real estate office opened in the morning and, taking the money, I made the down payment on the apartment house we now own. Mother was inclined to be angry at first. Bootlegging, she said was one thing but becoming a landlord was something else again. However, the foul deed was done and there was no undoing it.

This move also provided my sisters with an occupation. Whenever any of our tenants got frustrated (Mother pronounces it "thirsty") they hire one of my sisters as a baby-sitter to the younger children and this leaves the older ones free to attend to their bootlegging which they have to do in order to pay me my rent. I have often wondered what became of "Johnny" and when I read Saturday's article I hoped that perhaps the Johnny of that article might have been my "Johnny" who had survived and gone on to greater things.

As for me, I can't complain, although I fear I will never rise to great heights. I have never "heisted a keister," peddled a fix, "muscled in" anywhere, "lifted a leather" or taken anyone for "a ride." I have never even set fire to an orphanage. The only thing I have accomplished in that line is to become a landlord but, according to some accounts, I have, by that means, attained some stature in the underworld.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, IZZY KIDDEN.

WOULD GRAB IT
Editor, Daily News:
"Stromberg" quoted in yesterday's paper that there is too much irresponsible complaining about rents in this city. According to his belief the average rent for December 1950 was $22 to $26. I have an average family, my husband, two children and myself. If he should hear of a vacancy at this remarkably reasonable rent I surely would appreciate it if he would let me know.

Fool's Gold Badly Needed

MONTREAL.—The current sulphur shortage may make what prospectors often refer to as "fool's gold" (iron pyrites) look more like the real thing.

Canada's pulp and paper makers, who use 200,000 tons of sulphur a year, are on the look-out for an alternative source. That's because of the expected 20% cut in supplies from the U.S. Among other things, they're looking at the possibility of installing roasters at a cost of about $500,000 each to treat iron pyrites concentrates right at their own plants. From these they would produce sulphur dioxide for sulphite pulp.

At the moment, however, iron pyrites concentrates are getting almost as hard to come by as the sulphur itself, in the quantities pulp producers would need. There are many deposits, but in most cases it hasn't been profitable to develop them. Higher demand and prices are leading to a re-examination of properties.

Prices of pyrites, although they've increased, are said still competitive with sulphur. St. Lawrence paper mills have used them for years, getting its supplies of concentrates from Noranda and Wabigoon. It's understood that Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. at Grand Falls, Nfld., is also looking into the possibility of using pyrites from the Buchans Mine in which it holds a half interest. Whatever extra cost might be involved in sulphur made by this process wouldn't affect the cost of newsprint or sulphite pulp much.

Suggestion has been made that Festall River iron pyrites might be used to provide sulphur for the Watson Island pulp mill.

Schools Catholic School Delayed Makes Request

Request by Annunciation School that its Grade VII pupils be permitted to attend manual arts and home economics classes at Booth Memorial High School was referred to the Department of Education last night by the school board.

In view of the department's policy regarding private schools, it was decided to make no recommendation but to inform Victoria of the request, pointing out that potential Annunciation students would be "quite high."

It was the intention, the board found, that if the students gained entry to the high school classes the practise would be progressive. That is, Grade VII pupils promoted to Grade VIII would be followed by a new class of Grade VII's etc.

A. M. Hurst, principal of the high school, will be contacted to see if extra accommodation exists.

Tightening up Harbor Rules

E. T. Applewhite, M.P. for Skeena, has advised the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce that there is to be a tightening up in the matter of fire regulations on the Prince Rupert waterfront, recent close calls having prompted a new drive to enforce the regulations.

Efforts are also being made to clear the waterfront of unattended boats, this having been one of the factors in establishing the Fairview floats.

A SMART NEW HABIT FROM HOLLYWOOD—Now you can carry hand lotion in your purse, take it with you wherever you go. This attractive little jeweller-styled purse-size dispenser for a new hand lotion that offers worlds of beauty for your hands is something that should have been thought of long ago. Hollywood's Max Factor, Jr. is responsible for the idea and Columbia Studio's lovely star, Barbara Hols, is pictured happily taking advantage of it. Think of all the times you've been traveling, working, or just out for the evening, and wanted to carry a handy supply of hand lotion in your purse. The dispenser comes filled with a week's supply and can be refilled in a few seconds.

Japanese Display Creates Interest

Display of colorful Japanese kimonos in the natural silk and of design and workmanship which is said to be dying out is attracting interest in the show window of Wallace's Store. One kimono, particularly, is declared to be a priceless heirloom.

The costumes were worn at a Japanese folk dancing display a few days ago at Port Edward in aid of the Red Cross, the show to be repeated here this Saturday under Job's Daughters auspices.

Mrs. Tanaka came in from Port Edward yesterday to direct the arrangement of the display which has a setting of orange blossoms and gay parasols. Joe Kameda and other Japanese ladies besides Mrs. Tanaka were also here.

Armine Boas and Hugh Hart, public health sanitarians, returned to the city on the Prince Rupert yesterday. Mr. Hart continued to his Terrace office by the evening train. They have been attending conferences with other provincial health officials in the south.

ASKS HELP—

Drives 68 Miles Daily to Bring Children to School

Taking children to school runs into money when it is necessary to drive 17 miles four times a day. That is the reason Leroy Stone approached District 52 school board at their meeting last night. He would like the board to "share expenses" with him.

Mr. Stone told the board he lived at Rainbow Lake and had four children whom he had to drive to city schools every day. Also, he was getting a neighbor in the near future who had requested his two children be taken to school.

"I think I should get the same return as the buses," he said, explaining he would get passenger liability insurance and a common-carrier licence.

Mr. Stone was told by the board they appreciated his circumstances and that they would see what could be done. However, it was a case for the Department of Education to rule on and later, Secretary Mrs. M. M. Roper was instructed to write a letter to the department to find out "what can be done."

Century of Work Among Children Civic Centre Not Exempt

Canadian Press Staff Writer
By TIM DICKSON

TORONTO (CP)—A gift from singer Jenny Lind led to establishment of the Protestant Children's Homes which now provide a foster home service for between 250 and 300 Toronto children.

The organization, celebrating its 100th anniversary this month, dug into its files for a glimpse of the circumstances surrounding its beginnings in Toronto's early days as a city.

In 1851 the Swedish Nightingale sang here and the warmth of her reception prompted her to donate the proceeds of one of her concerts to city charities. Two hundred pounds was offered for a new building for the Orphans' Home, then a struggling venture in a downtown building, provided that citizens matched that amount with donations within 10 days.

The money was raised and in the new building orphans and other children whose parents were unable or unfit to care for them found the shelter and attention that had been largely lacking after the old village neighborhood gave place to the impersonality of a young city.

With moves to larger and better quarters, the organization carried on a residential program for orphans and operated a girls' residence until 1926, when it changed over to finding and supervising foster boarding homes for children.

KEPT CLOSE TO HOME

It looks after Toronto children up to 16 years, placing them temporarily with families within a 35-mile radius of the city. The children with whom it is concerned are those whose special needs cannot be met in their own family circle and for whom a substitute home is desirable.

Among such children of all ages are those whose mothers are ill, deserted or dead, those whose physical condition requires a particular type of care and emotionally disturbed children who are under psychiatric guidance and for whom foster-home care is requested as part of the treatment.

"We no longer speak of underprivileged, destitute or delinquent children in categories as they did 100 years ago," says Nora Lea, executive director.

With an operating budget of roughly $200,000 a year, contributed in part from the Toronto Community Chest, the home pays foster parents out-of-pocket expenses averaging $28 to $30 a month, depending on the age and condition of the child to whom they open their hearts and home.

Couples who have had happy experiences in acting as foster parents tell their friends who are interested in looking after a child for a few months. Most offers of homes come from this group. In some cases, the foster parents are found through advertisement. Always, the organization interviews applicants and considers their home atmosphere before sending out a child.

It has no authority to handle adoptions, which are arranged by the Children's Aid Society.

CIVIC CENTRE

Friday films at the Civic Centre are from a special group which have been purchased by the Prince Rupert Film Council. The titles of these films are "New Faces For Old," which deals with the art of plastic surgery during and after the world war II, and "Apprenticeship Training," which deals with the training of young tradesmen.

LADY FLETCHER SPEAKS—

Dark Africa Needs More Enlightenment, She Says

Local Women Head of Life and Customs In Remote Areas

"I am a very ordinary person who has had many chances to learn of people and countries," said Lady Fletcher in speaking to the Prince Rupert Women's Canadian Club yesterday.

Lady Fletcher gave her audience rare first hand facts about Uganda, Tanganyika and Eritrea. These countries are under the protection of Great Britain but the British have no authority to enforce the laws. All changes must come by persuading the native tribe leaders to adopt their suggestions.

"I was prejudiced against our civil servants at first but that was before I knew conditions. The civil servants must learn the language of the tribes in his district and there are 180 different tribes in East Africa," stated Lady Fletcher.

The speaker described four tribes. Some learn quickly and forget just as quickly. One tribe has a logical mind and is able to grow coffee and other produce for market. The Pigmy is three feet tall and builds his home in the top of trees. He has the lowest mentality of the human race and it is impossible to teach him.

WIVES FOR COWS

Among all the tribes a wife must be purchased (with cows). In some districts a wife will cost as much as 80 cows. This custom encourages the people to raise many cattle regardless of pasture and feed. The stock is of a low grade and it takes six cows to give one gallon of milk. The land is overstocked and erosion of the soil results.

Efforts are being made to educate the people, especially the women, as they do all the work. Some husbands have as many as three wives. If twins are born to a couple one is killed unless the white people take one away. Girl twins are especially welcome as then they can be sent to school. Orphan girls and sterile women, too, are given training to become nurses and social workers.

Less than 12 years ago the natives preferred the witch doctor but now they will travel for two or three days to see a medical man who is often one of their own people who has been to school in England.

Lady Fletcher spoke of the animals and asked her audience how they would like to have a Speaks to Women ...

giraffe sneeze in their picnic lunch. It is not unusual to see signs which read "Beware of Elephants crossing the road."

The speaker told of the success one Canadian had in discovering diamonds. He owns 10 percent of the world's diamonds and is using his great wealth to better the conditions of the people by building schools, hospitals and houses.

"There is no such thing as a superior race or nationality and it is up to the white men to set the example in East Africa." These were the final words of Lady Fletcher.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. R. E. Mortimer on behalf of the club. Mrs. G. R. S. Blackaby, president, was in the chair.

Lady Fletcher left by train last evening for Vermilion, Alberta, and Peace River before going to Edmonton.

Important Discovery!—That's how you'll feel about it when you discover the extra comfort of 3-PLY tissue handkerchiefs. You may not realize it, but there are only two plies in ordinary tissues... and I'm told by druggists that the only 3-PLY tissue hankie they sell is FACE-ELLE! This extra thickness means extra softness and absorbency... the extra strength you need for "sneezing" days and to prevent shredding when you use Face-ELLE for make-up purposes. What's more I've found that the times when I use only one 3-PLY Face-ELLE instead of perhaps two—or even three—ordinary tissues—saves a worthwhile saving! And for discovery No. 2, I've noted that Face-ELLE is sold only at drug and toiletry counters, grocers offer some 3-PLY quality in Gibson's 3-PLY, Gibson's Tinted Tissues or in size Gibson's.

Take A Bow when you take to suits this Spring... and here's a wonderfully inexpensive way to make your last year's blouses look like new! Remove old color with Tintex Color Remover... then, for just a few cents, the "magic" of All-fabric TINTEX TINTS AND DYES will give you a blouse in this Spring's most fashion-wise shade, Orchid (Lavender) or Old Rose. Navy Blue might be your choice. But whatever color you choose, you can be sure it will be right if it's Tintex! Tintex eliminates all worry and guess-work from home dyeing. I hear of more and more women who keep their homes and their wardrobes looking like new with Tintex! Costs just for a package at your drug, department or variety store!

No Rubbing! My neighbour's daughter was fascinated! Imagine just spraying Windex on windows and wiping them sparkling clean in a matter of minutes instead of hours! Of course... only WINDEX SPRAY can give you such lightning results with so little effort in so little time. What a boon to busy housewives! I clean all windows, mirrors, and picture glass with Windex—saving work, time, and money! Choose the big 20-ounce refill size... use it sparingly for best results, and you'll agree you pay less than half as much for Windex—cleaner twice as wonderful! Your grocer and housecleaning supply store have Windex Spray for you.

In Wonderland saw many wondrous sights... but nothing to match the brand new 1951 Master Model MO-81 FRIGIDAIRE REFRIGERATOR. It brings you, for the first time in the medium price range, a refrigerator with "across-the-top" Super Freezer! It's a big refrigerator in a small space! It has 81 cubic feet food storage! Yet it requires no kitchen space taken from former days! Beautifully designed by Raymond Lowry, it has two extra-large Hydrators, Chill Drawer, Freezer, and Trays, famous for their mechanism, full-size door and a score of other useful features. It's just the kind of beautifully-designed, dependably-built refrigerator you expect in a product of General Motors!

Want Your Favourite Husband to shine with his dinner tomorrow? It's the lemon dressing that gives it zest. Just mix 1/2 cup of fresh lemon juice, 1/2 cup salad oil, 1 teaspoon salt and paprika and a dash of sugar. Add garlic clove if you like. Pour it over crisp greens. Wonderful! Our family loves a fresh lemon flavoured everything from drinks to desserts. Lemons are good for you too... lots of Vitamin C! An extra tip... always ask for SUNKIST LEMONS. Full value in juice and quality I'm never without them.

Every Happy Married Woman Knows, it's the "little" things that are important in married life. That's why so many wise women agree that ZONITORS are the perfect answer to an important problem—intimate feminine hygiene. They're the modern method of feminine hygiene—graceless, stainless, snow-white vaginal supportors—powerfully germicidal, yet absolutely safe to delicate tissues. And they're so dainty and convenient to use! Ask your druggist for Zonitors—and for some important facts about feminine hygiene write to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. Provinces Being Asked to Organize Defence Plants

OTTAWA.—First important decision by the new Small Industries Division of the Department of Defense Production is that responsibility for lining up small industries for defense business will be channelled through the existing industrial development offices of each province.

That means there won't be any attempt to parallel the "bits and pieces" program of World War II. Contracts for defense work will be placed through prime contractors as at present. But the new federal division under G. Douglas Mallory will act as liaison with provincial authorities to supply complete and, if possible, advance information as to what business is being placed. Chief responsibility will therefore rest with the provincial governments Trade and Industry Council and its individual members.

STAND ON OWN FEET Aim of the new policy is to have each province stand on its own feet in lining up small industries and dispersal of defense business. As yet, for example, there is no disposition here to have the new Small Industries Division take responsibility for getting critical materials like steel to enable small or isolated firms to get government business.

Nor is there as yet any new policy of bonusing out-of-the-way firms by way of higher prices. This may come later or may come when government business increases to the point where allocations of a certain percentage of all Canadian production must be levied on certain industries, irrespective of the individual cost per order.

This has happened in respect of boot and shoe purchases for the armed forces, it is learned. There has been a wide distribution of orders irrespective of price, because the volume required could not have been otherwise obtained.

One place where small or regional industry is likely to get help is in machine tool assistance and priority. There will be every effort made to give subcontractors assistance in rounding out equipment where one or two tools would make it possible to tackle an order not otherwise obtainable.

As yet there is no decision here to underwrite or subsidize a firm or industry merely to achieve better regional distribution of defense orders that may come later.

COUNCIL IDEAL MEDIUM The recently formed Provincial Council has its headquarters in Toronto. It is an intergovernmental agency set up for closer liaison between development branches of individual governments and ideally suited to the present program.

Douglas Mallory has been working closely with the Council from its inception. He is planning to set up a small group of industrial engineers in Ottawa who will sift new and potential defense orders with a view to getting facts and information out to provincial offices as fast as possible.

Mr. Mallory's successor as director of the industrial development commission in the department of trade and commerce will be Basil R. Hayden. Mr. Hayden has been assistant director under Mr. Mallory.

Gardening....

Data on Space Required By Long-Harvest Crops

Most of the vegetables which have a long harvest are slow growing. One sowing will usually suffice but it is easy to sow so much for family needs:

This is especially likely to happen with greens such as Swiss chard and spinach. These are among the most efficient of crops, comparing their yield by the space occupied. One sowing of either will be ready to start harvesting in 60 days, and a family serving can be harvested from six inches of row.

They can be sown as soon as the frost leaves the ground in the early spring. In 60 days you begin to cut the leaves as needed, and this can be continued in a normal year for 16 weeks, occasionally for three or more weeks longer.

So for one serving a week you sow eight to 10 feet. These crops replace the leaves you have cut. You do not actually cut a serving from the plants growing on six inches of row; but their replacement activities provide repeated harvests from the same space, so that this small unit is your guide for planning.

Overplanting of these crops causes poor quality. They must be cut hard to maintain tenderness. Chard leaves should not grow longer than 10 inches, and only the tips of spinach stems are cut. The harder you cut, the more tender leaves are produced. Parsley is a similar crop, usually overplanted.

Broccoli, the home gardener's cauliflower; saffish, vegetable oyster plant, parsnips, which give an all-winter harvest, are all crops which require only one sowing or planting to produce a harvest that continues until winter's arrival.

Data for estimating the garden space required for these crops follows:

| | Days to table size | Grow for a family serving |
|-------------|--------------------|---------------------------|
| Broccoli | 70 days | 2 ft. in row |
| Celery | 140 days | 1 ft. in row |
| Kale | 60 days | 1 ft. in row |
| Leek | 90 days | 2 ft. in row |
| Parsley | 70 days | 6 in. in row |
| Parsnip | 95 days | 2 ft. in row |
| Salsify | 100 days | 2 ft. in row |
| Swiss chard | 60 days | 6 in. |

New Zealand spinach, though easily killed by frost when mature, germinates better in cold soil than in warm. Sow the large seeds at the same time you sow hardy vegetables, and you will usually get a fine stand.

Puppets Success In School Use

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—Puppet shows are being used in Yorkton schools to teach social studies, hygiene, drama and literature. Teachers report that the idea is received enthusiastically by students of all ages.

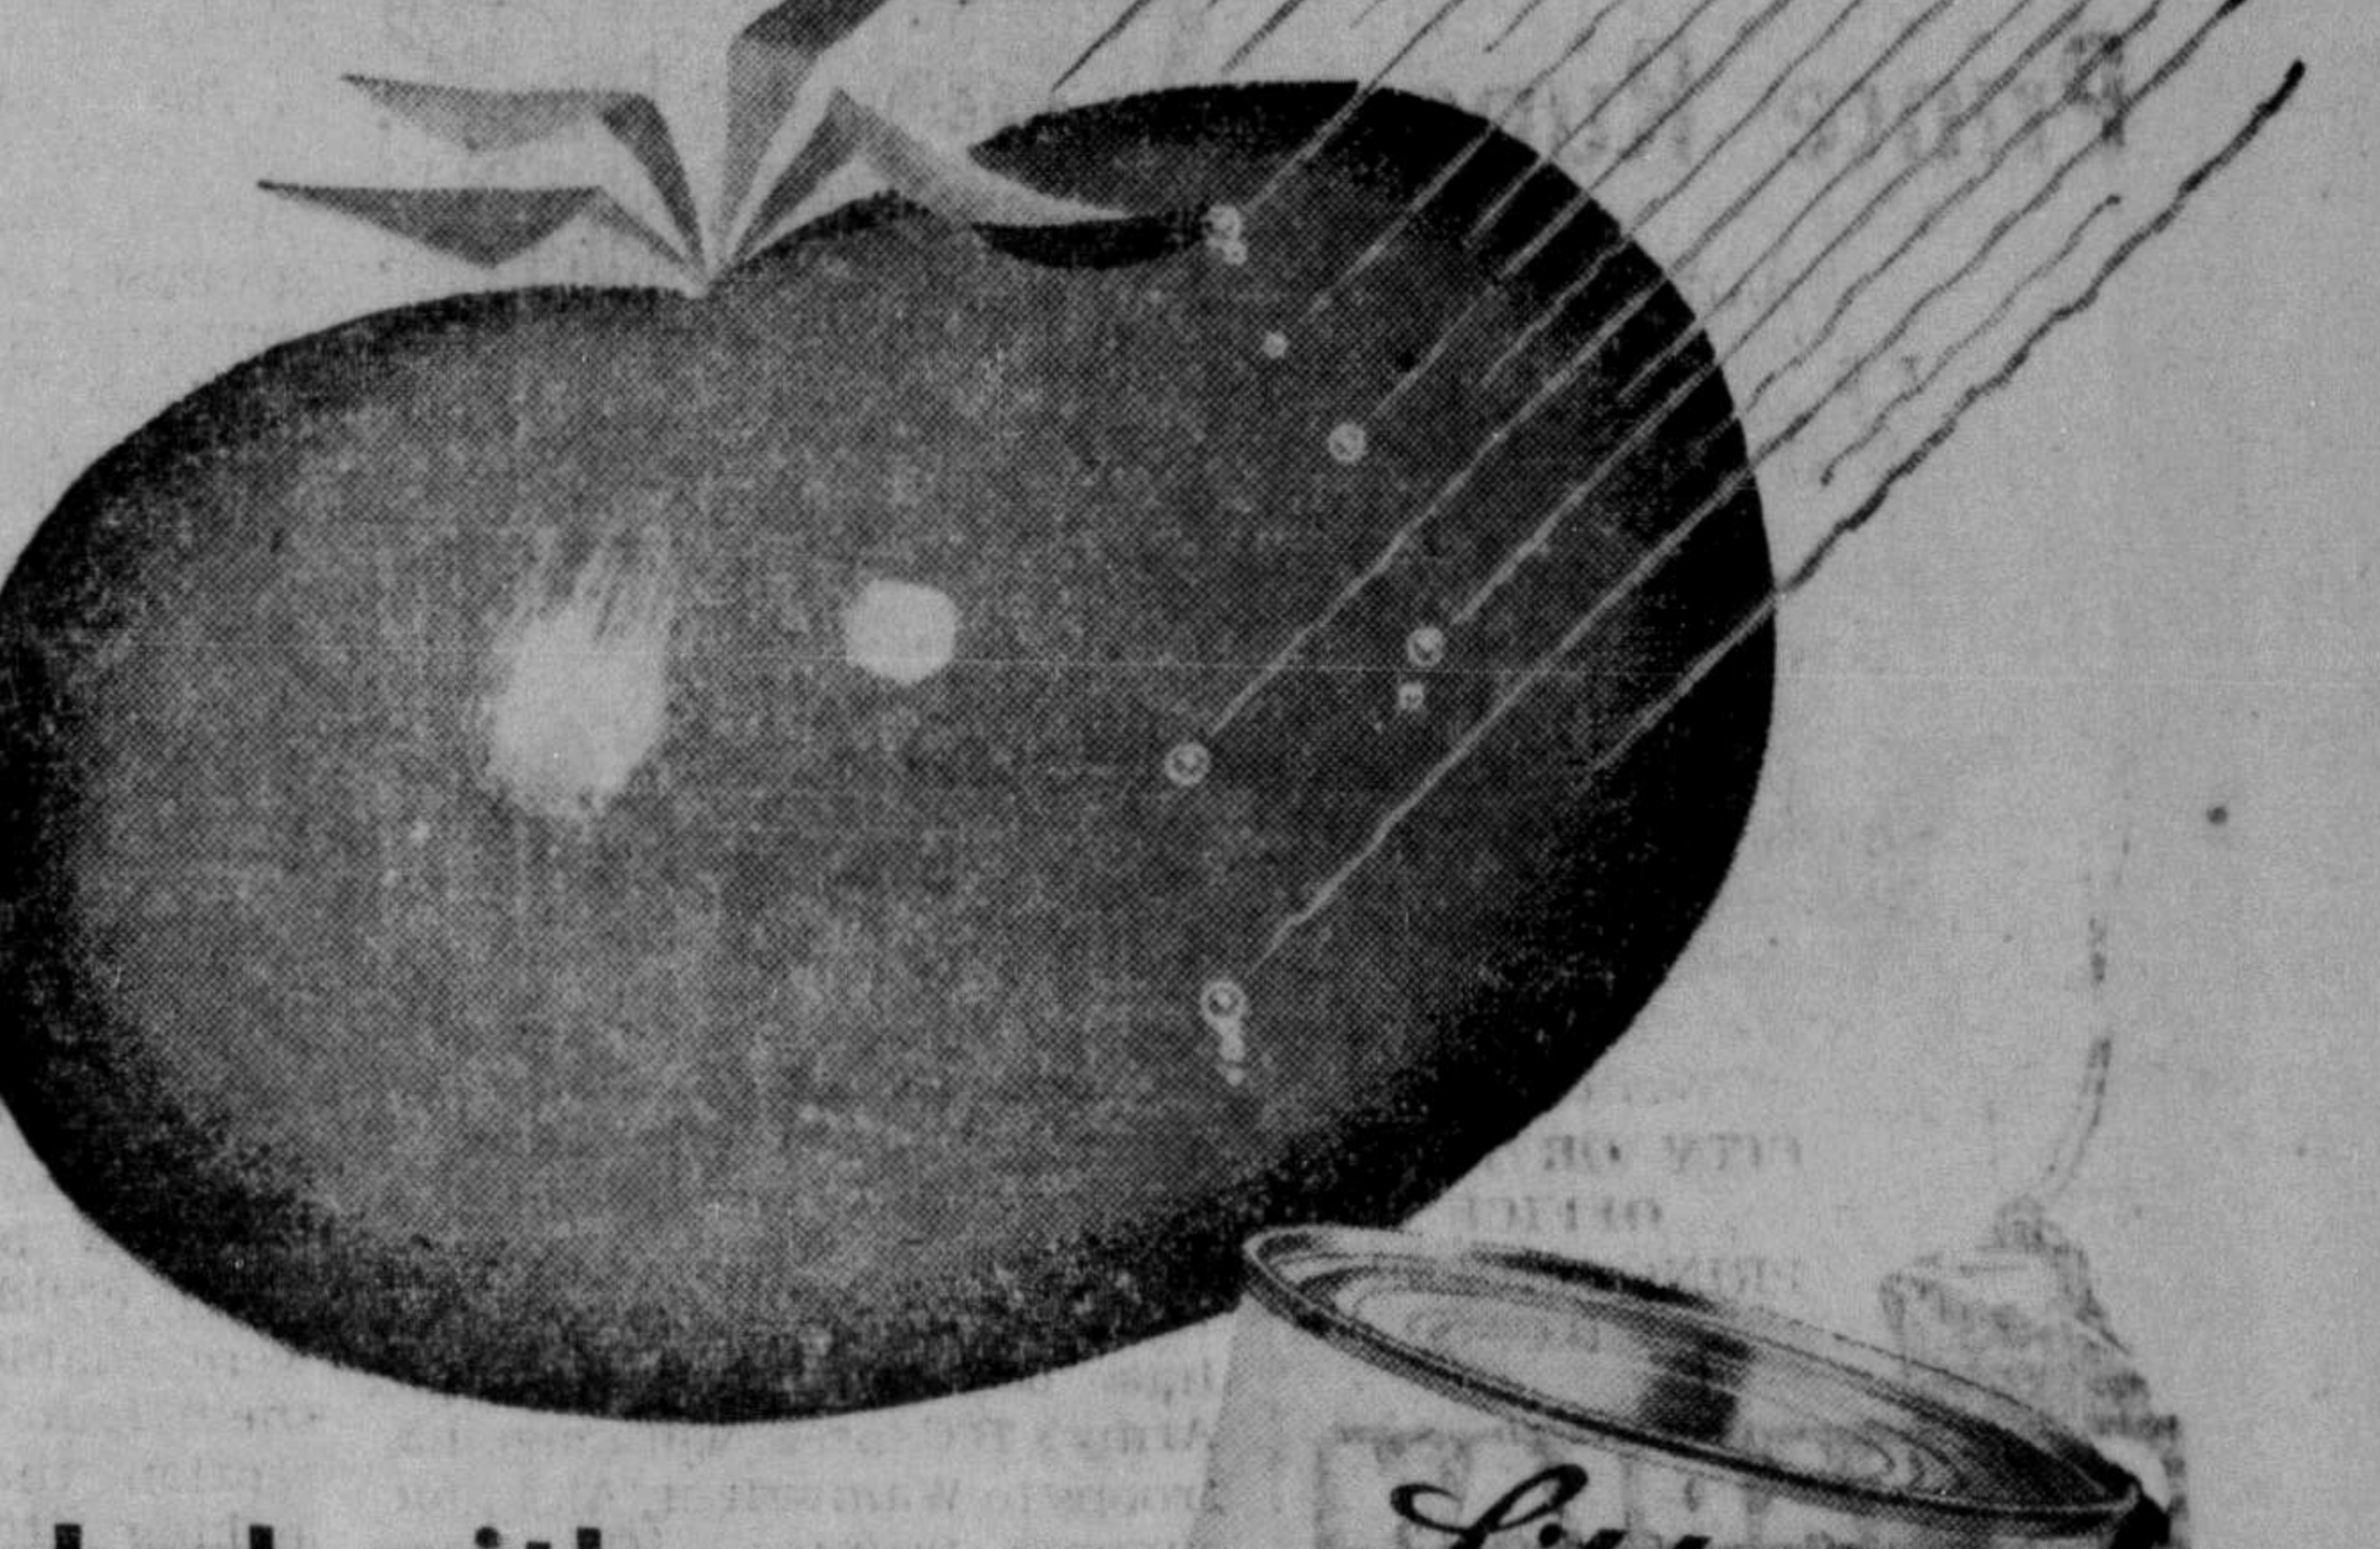

A recent teachers' meeting, Miss B. McClure and her Grade II students of Victoria School worked string puppets to demonstrate the fairy story of Goldilocks and the three bears. Grade IV Simpson School pupils of Miss P. Summers used glove puppets to act out an Indian legend.

Miss M. Gould of the Collegiate staff, who this year is teaching the play Julius Caesar with the aid of puppets, told the B.C.

meeting that Egypt probably was the first home of puppets. Some puppets seen in modern theatres, Miss Gould said, are from three to five feet in height and have to be moved by iron rods. She said that for school use an important point to bear in mind is that the crudest puppets are usually most effective. Children enjoy making the heads and the costumes. The former are made of paper-mache (torn-up and soaked newspaper), sawdust or rags, the latter being as satisfactory as any because you can use pins on them easily. Steel wool, cotton-batting and ravelled-out rope of yarn make realistic hair, Miss Gould said.

ANCIENT ART Recently discovered granite carvings indicate the art of making puppets goes back to 2,000 years ago.

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

My friend Mrs. Keen started playing rubber bridge less than a year ago. Before that she had played party bridge for many years. In that rough and tumble game she didn't pick up many fine points on bidding. But she did learn a lot of good plays to keep her opponents from making the game contracts so sought-after at party bridge.

In today's hand Mrs. Keen made a fine play to upset Mr. Champion, who was playing a three no trump contract. Her opening lead was the queen of hearts and Mr. Champion won with the king.

He saw that he had to bring the diamond suit home and led the four of diamonds at the second trick, intending to take a double finesse against the king and queen. If he had been permitted to do so, he would have lost the first diamond trick to Mr. Masters' king but subsequently would have won five tricks in the suit.

But Mrs. Keen blew this plan wide open by playing the queen on the first diamond trick.

Mr. Champion was really fixed if he won with the ace, that would be his last diamond trick as dummy had no controls in the other suits. He offered a quiet prayer that Mrs. Keen's play was from the king-queen alone or the king-queen small and, to preserve his entry to the board, let her hold the trick.

Mrs. Keen came out with the jack of hearts. Mr. Champion won with the ace and led his last diamond, finessing dummy's ten. Mr. Masters calmly took his king and laid down three good hearts to defeat the contract.

Mrs. Keen told me she would have made the same play if she had held three diamonds to the queen. If that had been the case Mr. Masters would have had a doubleton king. But Mr. Champion would have had no way to know that and undoubtedly he would have made the same play.

He would have finessed dummy's ten on the second diamond lead—losing to the then singleton king. If this had happened I don't think Mr. Champion would have forgiven Mrs. Keen.

A stove oven in an Exchange Block apartment caught fire last night, calling out the fire brigade at 8:30. Damage was negligible. A flooded oil burner at 711 7th Ave. W. summoned the fire department at 5 a.m. the same day while a smoke scare in the Letourneau Apartment district caused a precautionary alarm to be sent in Tuesday night.

THE ALGER though small in area, contains all the features necessary in any home, whether large or small.

All the rooms of the Alger are on one floor without basement, or second floor. In addition, a third bedroom can be installed by a simple conversion of the storage closet into a connecting corridor.

The first floor slab rests on a gravel fill, with the super structure of frame with siding, except that the front living room wall is faced with stone or face brick.

Storage space is generously supplied, by 12 closets in all, distributed in every room. These twelve closets range in type from wardrobe closets in the bedroom to large storage closets in the utility room.

The dimensions of the Alger are 50 feet by 26 feet. Floor area is planned to be 1163 square feet. The cubage of this house totals 14,405 cubic feet.

HERE and NOW

(It is the democratic privilege of the people in this country to express their opinions and views on matters which concern their community and country. Through this column, a new feature of the Daily News, the people of Prince Rupert will be given the right by answering a direct opportunity to exercise this question.)

TODAY'S QUESTION: "Do you think sweepstakes or province-wide raffles conducted annually by the government would solve the financial problem of our hospitals?"

Many citizens voiced strong opinions when this question was put to them but few would commit themselves or felt it wise their names should be used.

It was thought, however, that because the hospital insurance question and problem of hospitals in this province have been bandied around so much lately, some of the expressed opinions would be of interest.

The first person interviewed on Third Avenue wanted to know if tickets were being sold and what was offered. He was told that only opinions on such an idea were wanted.

"Well, if the Irish can do it, I don't see why we can't. They seem to get a lot of money for their hospitals with the sweepstakes and most of it comes from people outside their own country. Lots better than having to dig in my own pocket every few months."

LADY SHOCKED.
Then a lady was contacted on the phone. She abhorred the suggestion that the government allow gambling, let alone venture into it itself.

"I definitely don't think raffles or draws of any kind should be allowed. Too many people would make a racket out of it." But she did think the government should have left hospital insurance to private insurance firms who "know what they are doing."

THIS MAN FAVORS
Another man immediately gave his approval. He had a large family, he said, and was in favor of some kind of hospital insurance. But he didn't think he should be paying for the building and maintaining of hospitals.

"That should come from some other source. If the government supervised a country-wide raffle each year, they could build up a fund for building new hospitals and for hospital equipment."

And he was worried about a new tax the city might impose to get $50,000 for the local hospital or so he had heard.

"I think everybody should help with the hospitals," but I don't think taxes is a fair way or high insurance premiums."

Then a young man with religious motivations was consulted. He was not for gambling of any kind and called it "gross corruption of morals."

"There is always more money lost than won in a gamble. I don't think it would work even if they tried it."

But everybody thought someone was trying to "put something over on us" and several vowed confidentially they "will quit paying" the insurance.

NOTICE

Regulation Loads and Speed on the Northern Trans-Provincial Highway from GALLOWAY RAPIDS TO TYEE

The Undersigned, being a person authorized by the Minister of Public Works, in writing, to exercise the powers vested in the Minister in Part 41 of the "Highway Act," and being of the opinion that that portion of the Northern Trans-Provincial Highway from Galloway Rapids to Tyee is liable to damage through extraordinary traffic thereon, hereby makes the following Regulation pursuant to Section 35 of the Highway Act.

The following load and speed limitations are imposed on the said highway until further notice:—

No person shall operate an vehicle over the Northern Trans-Provincial Highway from Galloway Rapids to Tyee having a maximum gross weight or loading in excess of fifty per cent of that allowed in the Regulations made pursuant to Section 36 of the "Highway Act," R.S.B.C. 1948.

The speed limit of vehicles with pneumatic tires is restricted to twenty miles per hour. Vehicles with solid tires are prohibited from using this Highway during such times as this regulation is in force.

DATED at Prince Rupert, B.C., this 21st day of March, 1951.
L. E. SMITH, District Engineer,
Department of Public Works.

The Traffic Cop

Police are reminding motorists once more they must get their new drivers' licences on their birthdays if that date falls between March 1 and August 31. Outside of that period, licences should have been obtained by the end of February, 1951.

However, if the birthday does not come until some time in August, for example, driver will have free use of his 1950 licence for six months.

For driving without a licence the fine now is $25, instead of the former $5, and there are no more blue and yellow restricted permits. Licence can be suspended on first driving offence, says the traffic officer.

Speeding in Prince Rupert is a special hazard, because of narrow streets, he adds. Speed limit in the city is 25 miles per hour.

"Give the other fellow a chance and dim your headlights," is today's special advice from the police office. With roads wet most of the time, blinding headlights can be that extra factor contributing to a serious accident.

Railway Chief Tells His Story to Gyro Club With Graphic Film Display

Colorful moving pictures depicting the thriving industries of Northern Ontario between North Bay and James Bay which makes the government-owned and commission-operated Ontario Northland Railway the only privately owned railway in North America which is making a reasonable interest on investment were shown to the Prince Rupert Gyro Club at luncheon yesterday by Col. C. E. Reynolds, chairman of the railway.

The picture "Northern Challenge" gave the Gyros a view of another part of Canada with scenes of lush agricultural lands, rich gold mines, great water power potentials, huge timber operations and paper mills, outdoor recreational and tourist attractions and modern and complete amenities of life in growing cities such as North Bay, Timmins, Kirkland Lake and Cochrane which are served by the enterprising and up-to-date railway running some 500 miles from North Bay to Moosonee on James Bay.

Of particular interest to sports hunting element of the club was a second reel of pictures entitled "Goose Camp" which Col. Reynolds presented to show flights of millions of migratory birds—blue, snow and Canada geese—the organized hunting of which along conservation-protecting lines which has been developed by his railway line. Some new tricks of the goose hunting trade were depicted by the impressive film centering around a James Bay hunting resort 200 miles from Moose Factory which is reached from the end of railway steel by air transportation.

President E. D. Forward was in the chair at yesterday's Gyro luncheon. Col. Reynolds was introduced by Orme Stuart and thanked by A. J. Dominato. Other guests were W. H. Doumont, L. C. Lycett and C. A. Berner.

THE EXPERTS Say...

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bucking H.C.L.—Pamphlets fluttered recently from envelopes containing Family Allowance Cheques—telling Canadian mothers how to stretch their dollars.

The green sheets held the health department's recommendations for bucking the rising cost of living. There were several economizing hints. Housewives were urged to make their own relishes and salad dressings; supplement whole milk with skim milk, fluid or powdered; use grade B eggs for baking; serve fish, eggs, cheese, beans, liver, kidney, heart or tongue instead of roasts and chops, and do their own baking.

Distribution of the first several thousand pamphlets evoked letters from only nine recipients. These included one from a bakery firm which complained about the home baking recommendation.

The health department does not make a habit of including pamphlets with its family allowance cheques. In fact these bulletins are not distributed more than once or twice a year. It wouldn't be psychologically sound to distribute them more frequently.

Those in the know say it's human nature to pass up reading material that's always there. On the other hand an occasional pamphlet whets the immediate interest.

Diet for Elders—Nutrition experts in the Federal Health Department say it's time to get away from the "toast and tea" idea when considering the diet of older persons.

"We think very strongly that old persons need more protein than they are accustomed to eating," said one official. He explained this partly is because of a "slower down" of the metabolism.

"Old persons rationalize themselves out of their protein," he said. "They say meat is hard to chew, cheese is constipating, milk is for the babies..."

While they should be eating a variety of foods, they tend to "narrow their diets down more and more."

High Ovens—Do you prefer a high oven to the low ones that manufacturers now are putting on the market? It would seem most women do.

The Canadian Association of Consumers has a survey under way to determine family preference on this matter. It grew out of complaints from several housewives that they are unable to buy any "high oven" stoves.

Members still are flooding C.A.C. headquarters with their views, and so far most of them favor the high ovens.

Suggestions from Canadian housewives soon may be cutting kitchen capers in the industrial design committee of the national gallery. At the suggestion of this committee the C.A.C. asked its 13,000 members for ideas on improved design for household articles, and they're getting plenty.

One housewife asked for "an egg-beater that doesn't get out of the bowl." Another suggested "plastic lamp-shades without cotton trimmings" in order that all parts of the shade may be washed.

Log Scale Mounting

District Timber Production Showing Gain, Apart from Pulp Mill Take

Log scaling in Prince Rupert forestry district for the first three months of 1951 has reached a total of 35,483,419 board feet compared with 29,297,510 board feet in the corresponding first quarter of last year. This does not include the scale from management licence of Columbia Cellulose so the output this year is really considerably larger than figures indicate.

The scale species this March and last was as follows:

| | Mar. '51 | Mar. '50 |
|---------------|-------------------|-------------------|
| Fir | 2,427 | — |
| Cedar | 555,623 | 1,536,502 |
| Spruce | 11,926,106 | 9,287,165 |
| Hemlock | 3,599,842 | 1,305,198 |
| Balsam | 1,036,262 | 508,940 |
| Jackpine | 2,299,828 | 1,745,172 |
| Miscel. | 4,059 | 7,415 |
| Totals | 19,424,147 | 14,390,392 |

Scaling on log production from forest management licences, on which Columbia Cellulose operates, is now being recorded in cubic feet (approximately 170 cubic feet corresponds to 1000 board feet) and is over and above the straight log scale figures. This March 208,348 cubic feet were scaled.

The count this March was 7,150 pieces as compared with 4,958 pieces in the same month last year.

The lineal feet scale of poles and piling in the interior for this year to date is 484,641 compared with 479,108 in the first three months of 1950. The scale this March was low at 33,607 lineal feet of which 26,360 feet was spruce, 5,990 hemlock and 1,257 balsam.

Cordwood in March amounted to 332 cords compared with 201 cords in 1950.

Enrolment is Still Rising

An increase of 88 pupils in Prince Rupert schools this year over last brings last month's total enrolment to 1,349. Booth Memorial High School saw the biggest increase—30—with a March enrolment of 451 students, according to the teachers' reports at last night's board meeting.

Other comparative figures are as follows:

| | 1951 | 1950 |
|-------------|------|------|
| King Edward | 320 | 307 |
| Conrad | 270 | 254 |
| Borden | 278 | 249 |

Attendance during March was about 90 per cent, slightly lower than February.

The board decided it would investigate conditions of schools at Sunnyside, and would have the old Seal Cove school surveyed as to fitness for retaining it as a potential school. There had been several offers from individuals to buy the building for the lumber, Secretary Mrs. M. M. Roper told the board.
