

OPTIMISM VOICED IN CEASE-FIRE TALKS

Contending Sides Yet to Settle to Real Business

MUNSAN, Korea (CP) — Cease-fire talks are progressing in "military formality" with every reason to be optimistic, a United Nations briefing officer said tonight. An official communique was less enthusiastic but hopeful. It said: "A better understanding between the negotiating parties" developed on Wednesday. It credited a changed attitude by five Communist generals.

But Allied delegates, returning Wednesday from second-day talks in Kaesong, made it clear that they would not talk about one of three points—demand that foreign troops get out of Korea immediately.

The Communists also want a 38th parallel border with buffer zone and suggest exchange of prisoners.

Read Admiral Raleigh A. Burke, member of the five-man United Nations team, said this was a political question. The Allied negotiators will not discuss political issues.

The briefing officer said negotiators "may not get down to brass tacks" until Thursday sessions. They are still discussing what items are to go on the agenda and in what order they will be taken up.

It is said there was much less tension at Wednesday's meeting. Things went forward in "business-like manner." It could not be disclosed, however, just what had been accomplished.

NEW RICHES FOR ALBERTA—The largest earthen dam in Canada stretches across the St. Mary River, southwest of Lethbridge. The $6,500,000 clay-and-gravel structure stores water of the St. Mary-Milk River Irrigation Project. When the project is completed 10 years hence, an estimated $40,000,000 worth of productive wealth will flow, like the water, across southern Alberta. More than 3,000 dust-bowl farmers will have new homes on irrigated land where crop failure is unknown. In the far distance can be seen the Rocky Mountains. (CP PHOTO)

Air War Still on

U.S. Sabre Jets Down Three MIG's Over Korea

SEOUL — United States sabre jets today shot down three Communist MIG-15 jets and damaged another in a 20-minute air battle over northwestern Korea. Thirty-four Allied planes tangled with an estimated 30 MIG's in dramatic dog fights over northwestern Korea.

Election in New Zealand

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Premier Sydney Holland said tonight that he will dissolve his Parliament and call a federal election to vindicate his handling of New Zealand's waterfront labor war which began three months ago.

Mr. Holland said the election should be called at "the earliest opportunity."

The National Council of New Zealand Dock Workers' unions today recommended its branches at all ports to end their five-month strike. The government had de-certified the unions and formed independent ones.

The greatest New Zealand industrial crisis in a generation entered its final stage when seamen returned to work.

Miners had already resumed work, leaving only longshoremen, who began the crisis with a strike on the wage issue, still idle.

Hospitals in Sorry Plight

VANCOUVER — British Columbia hospital officials will meet here August 3 to plan a campaign to meet their "critical" financial position.

They said yesterday that they are faced with bank overdrafts, mounting deficits and soaring costs and have been crippled by a $750,000 slash in 1951 operating budgets imposed by the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

E. J. Swercinsky, president of the British Columbia Hospitals' Association and chairman of the board of St. Paul's Hospital here, said the meeting was being called to draw up a brief of "broad principles" to be submitted to the legislative committee probing hospital insurance.

OCEAN FALLS — Arthur Blue of Ocean Falls, a 37-year-old fisherman, was presumed dead Tuesday. Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they believe he fell overboard Monday night from his gillnet fishing boat in Smith's Inlet. The boat was found aground in the inlet.

Power Cable Stringing Across Skeena Big Job

Damage From Winter Storms Near Tyece Being Repaired

A big and tricky job of stringing six 4500-pound cables across more than a mile of the turbulent Skeena River has been started by Northern British Columbia Power Co. Ltd. First of the 19-strand, three-quarter-inch-thick wires was strung yesterday after two days of labor by 25 men, T. B. Black, power company manager, said today.

Location of the project is two miles above Tyece, where the high tension wires cross the Skeena to the Falls River hydro installation.

Installation of the six new conductors, suspended by five 175-foot towers, was made necessary when bad icing conditions last December caused three cables spanning the river to snap and three others to be damaged.

Total cost of the job will be around $30,000.

"The biggest difficulty in the job is the tide problem," Mr. Black explained. "This morning, men were at work at 5:30 to take advantage of high tides, as several sandbars lie across the centre of the river."

In stringing a cable, three boats are placed in the river near the foot of the towers. At one end of the cable crossing, a winch is anchored which hauls a lead cable through pulleys across the entire suspension of 8000 feet. The men have only one hour in which to get the lead cable across, for it requires the assistance of men on the boats. When the tide recedes, the boats have to move or they will be caught on the sandbars.

And each cable, suspended from the towers by insulators, has to be "sagged just right," Mr. Black said, "in order to compensate for the strain." A tension machine at one end computes the tension which has been calculated to be correct by the engineers.

Railway Vice-President Here

J. F. Pullen, vice-president in charge of traffic, Canadian National Railways, is a visitor in the city today in the course of a western tour. Mr. Pullen, whose headquarters are in Montreal, arrived in the city on last night's train and will be leaving tonight on his return east.

CCF Wins Sask. Seat

GRAVELBOURG, Saskatchewan (CP) — The Saskatchewan CCF government yesterday added to its majority in the Legislature when its candidate won the by-election here.

Edward Walker, 28-year-old university-trained farmer, received 2591 votes compared with 2510 for Ron MacLean, his Liberal opponent.

MacLean is the former law partner of E. M. Culliton, who won the seat for the Liberals in the 1948 general election with a substantial majority.

The Liberal candidate immediately announced that he would ask for a recount.

Iran More Conciliatory

Premier Mossadegh Would Welcome U.S. Envoy

TEHRAN (CP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh tonight told United States Ambassador Henry Grady that he would be glad to receive Averill Harriman, as suggested by President Truman, but insisted Iran stood pat on the principle of oil nationalization, informed sources said.

Truman had suggested earlier this week that Harriman, presidential adviser, help Iran settle the oil dispute with the British whose oil empire here is crumbling in the face of the nationalization drive.

There is also indication of softening of the British stand in the way of co-operation with its expert personnel which is essential to continued operation of the British-Iranian Oil Co.'s plant and production.

Leonard Still Champion

HAMILTON GOLF CLUB, Ancaster, Ont. — Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Canada's golfing ace, whipped the field, par and a miserable dose of flu yesterday to retain his Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Leonard hit a sensational 65, one stroke off the competitive record for the Ancaster golf course and finished the 54-hole tournament in 206, four strokes under par for the distance.

His 65, five under par, was the best round in the tournament and his putting was brilliant.

Who's Holding up Housing?

City Finds Application Never Made

The housing committee of Prince Rupert is wondering what happened at Ottawa. A recent letter to City Clerk R. W. Long from E. T. Applewhite, MP for Skeena, states the Dominion government never had an official application for housing in Prince Rupert.

Mr. Long has written to E. J. Brown, provincial government housing representative who visited the city in April with E. B. Pickersgill, Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation representative for B.C., asking for further information.

"We had definite word from Mr. Pickersgill that application on behalf of Prince Rupert was made to the head office of CHMC. That was more than a month ago. Now we find out no official application to the government was ever made," said Mayor G. W. Rudderham today.

"Apparently the provincial government should have made the application."

"The way it looks now, we'll have to start all over again."

"Either somebody slipped up on something or we are getting the run-around."

"It certainly puts us at the end of the line as far as getting houses is concerned."

It is expected the housing committee will meet as soon as word is received from Mr. Brown at Victoria.

Plumbers in South Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 600 plumbers went out on strike today in the Greater Vancouver area tying up 52 plumbing and heating establishments in Vancouver, New Westminster and Burnaby and Richmond municipalities.

Two Killed in Alaska Crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (CP) — A rescue plane landed here Tuesday with the remains of two Anchorage men who were killed Monday when their light plane crashed on the side of Mount Sustina, about forty miles northwest of here.

The victims are Homer Mosely Jr., aged 25, and Dale Neunier, 25.

The search started Monday when the pair failed to return from a week-end wishing trip and a flier spotted the burned wreckage of their plane in a mountainside.

Japan Develops Democracy And May Become Good Ally

By WILLIAM JORDEN

TOKYO (AP) — Where will Japan stand once she regains her independence? Many United States observers have made the easy assumption that the Japanese, having benefited by the "soft" occupation and millions of American aid dollars, are permanently on the side of the West. Others are convinced Japan has no future unless she plays on the western powers' team.

Statements by occupation leaders, from Gen. Douglas MacArthur down, have given the impression that Japan is a democratic nation and a permanent and trustworthy ally of the West.

But not all Japanese agree that this nation must fall into line as an enemy of the Communist world. Their reasons are varied, but they add up to a potent body of opinion against taking part in any struggle between East and West.

In the early days of the occupation, when it was United States policy to demilitarize Japan and eliminate any chance of her fighting again, the Japanese were told their only hope for security was to remain neutral.

Then American policy changed. It became important that Japan would not be neutral. It was argued that, in an all-out battle with world Communism, the democracies would need Japan's industrial strength and fighting manpower.

Many Japanese, sold by the earlier arguments for neutrality, have not adopted the new policy as readily as some Americans had hoped. The Japanese people, with the memory of bitter defeat and war's devastation still fresh in their minds, have developed a strong attachment for neutrality.

Among those most concerned with the problem of Japan's future are the men who once led her mighty armies. Purged from official life, these military leaders nevertheless have maintained close ties with their old friends and subordinates. In recent months, with the relaxation of occupation policy, they have begun to speak more freely.

Some of the ex-militarists accept the view that Japan must tie herself closely to the West to prevent Japan's falling to the Communists. They are convinced the U.S. and her allies will win any foreseeable war with the Soviet Union. They want to be on the winning side.

Others, however, are sure Japan will lose any war in the near future, no matter which side wins. And they are not convinced the democracies can beat the Russians.

OFFICER'S ARGUMENT

One of the leading spokesmen for the latter school of thought is former Col. Masanobu Tsuji, one of Japan's most brilliant staff officers during the Pacific war. In speeches and pamphlets, Tsuji outlines his argument this way:

1. War is inevitable between the U.S. and USSR, probably before 1955.
2. The Far East will be of secondary importance.

City Streets

IT IS rather disturbing to have the city council abandon the much needed program of street paving this year because crushed gravel is in short supply and it does not choose to quarrel with the provincial government over the limited amount available.

We look at these sunny days we have been having for so long now and think of how auspicious the weather has been for just such work as this on our badly-beaten-up streets.

It may be a valid enough excuse the city may have for the failure to carry on more street improvement work this summer. Nevertheless, it is not going to rest very lightly with the long-suffering street travellers whose patience is being sorely tried at continued failure, from one reason or another, to get things done.

Frustrated as the citizens may feel, there is little use in recriminating about the fact that the provincial government has decided to do this year the hard surfacing to Port Edward that it promised and should have done two years ago or about the city also not carrying out more work during the past couple of years.

It is maddening that both the government and the city should be needing the gravel at the same time now and that there is not enough to go around for both—that it is now a case of choosing between the paving of the highway to industrial Port Edward and doing badly needed work of such nature in the city.

About the only thing we can suggest now is that something be done without delay to ensure that such a situation does not arise again in another year. We are going to need lots of material for street and road work. Why not get organized and equipped to produce it?

When Do Wars End?

CANADA has officially ended her war with Germany which commenced in September 1939. Many might have had the notion that the war finished back in 1945. But it didn't wind up until last Monday.

Canada has a fight on in Korea. Some refuse to call it a war but they do this because they have not yet taken part in it. Let us all pray it won't be 11 years before Canada and the Communists agree the war is really over.

The Lowly Spud

TO BE diverted for a moment from less serious affairs, the Cincinnati Inquirer calls attention to a problem of mounting importance. It understands that the mashed potato is fast losing popularity. Not only that, but potatoes in general seem to be losing ground. They're frowned upon by men and women of pudgy proportions and by others who, striving against time and appetite, are trying to retain their svelte contours.

"What will the nation do," asks the Inquirer with alarm, "when, suddenly some fine morning, we awaken to find roast beef and mashed potatoes stricken from every menu?" The paper is out to organize a society to be known as Re-establishment and Preservation of the Mashed Potato with Steak and Gravy Benevolent Association. The goal will be mashed potatoes every day, fried potatoes for breakfast and bigger spuds on dining cars.

Let the chips—potato chips—fall where they may. Who cares?

As I See It

Home-made Coffee?

MY WIFE IS NOT SO sure that she likes me bounding out of bed these mornings to get the breakfast for the early-rising half of our family. For I've been putting in the old-time four heaping measures of coffee—and with coffee well over a dollar a pound, that's no joke!

So maybe I'll borrow one little leaf out of Gandhi's big book. I read that Gandhi did many of the chores around his farm colony in South Africa. Amongst other things, he quit using coffee and made a substitute by roasting or baking the grains of wheat.

I have a vague recollection that my dad sometimes did too, away back around 1900.

Can any ex-prairie person tell us about the trick? Exactly how do you go about it? What kind of wheat do you use? How do you bake or roast it in the oven? What does the resultant brew taste like?

HERE'S A FREE TIP FOR the Department of Finance or the Bank of Canada: If you have to sell any more War Bonds, how about making them redeemable in dozens of eggs, or bags of sugar, or flour, and not in phony money?

Here along the same line is a question for our MP's and cabinet ministers: You are going to have a special session of Parliament in October to put through a better Old Age Pension Plan. This is to be on an All Put In And All Take Out basis. That principle is sound.

But have you considered the question of stable money? Suppose a person pays in to the fund for a whole working lifetime—say from 16 years till 70 years. Suppose during most of that time coffee is worth about 50 cents a pound, and wheat around a dollar and a half per bushel. Then suppose when the time comes to draw out the pension, government policies cause the real value of the dollar to slump to one-half or one-third its former value.

Is that not cheating of the most mean sort?

DON'T THINK THIS CAN'T happen in the future. It is happening right at this moment. There are tens of thousands of Canadians—railroaders, civil servants, and people who purchased annuities—who are receiving dollars worth less than half the actual dollars they paid into their contributory superannuation funds.

If this were simply due to some natural catastrophe it would be bad enough. But it is not. It is due to results of deliberate government policy.

PERHAPS I SHOULD SAY IT is due to deliberate Bank of Canada policy—for more often than not it is the Bank of Canada which makes government policy rather than the government which makes policy for the bank.

The whole process is the negation of democracy. The theory of Responsible Government, which Canadians fought for and won from 1837 till 1867, was that the decisions which vitally affect the people are made by representatives elected by, and responsible to, the people.

The average MP, even most cabinet ministers, do not even know what the Bank of Canada is doing. Here is the best proof: If any political party were to come out for a direct capital levy, or confiscation of money of the millionaires, it would be branded as Communist or worse.

But the Bank of Canada policies are, in fact, cheating the housewife by paying off the husband in debased money. We already have a capital levy—but it falls not on the rich but on the Old Age pensioners, retired school teachers, clergymen and civil servants who gave their whole lives, at poor pay, to the service of this land.

Cancolim To Arctic

A strange ship with as strange a crew is on its way northward from Vancouver and may call at Prince Rupert. It is headed for the Arctic to Tuktoyaktuk, a small Eskimo village port near the mouth of the McKenzie River.

First mate on the northern rigged Vancouver motor vessel Cancolim II is Fred Barber, son of Mrs. F. Barber, of Prince Rupert. The expedition is a project of the Defence Research Board of Canada and the crew is a combination of scientists. The Cancolim, belonging to the Canadian Can Co. and well known in coast waters, is a company service vessel, and has been refitted to weather Arctic ice and storms in the Beaufort Sea.

Skipper is Tom Manning, a zoologist and the chief engineer. Is a geographer Curt Merrell. The other seafaring scientists who are taking on the work of deckhands include a biologist, two oceanographers and a glaciologist.

Barber, who attended Borden Street and Booth Memorial High School here, joined the Royal Canadian Naval Fishermen's Reserve in 1938 and during the war for a time commanded Navy supervised fishing vessels on the coast.

Mrs. Barber expects her son may call in at Prince Rupert in a few days on the Arctic-bound Cancolim.

Clergy Should Remain Single

WOLVERHAMPTON, England.—Clergymen should marry for money unless they have a private income, says Rev. Wilfred Ellis, 60-year-old bachelor vicar of St. George's Anglican Church here.

After visiting his old theological training college and finding the library lined with baby carriages belonging to student priests, Ellis wrote in his parish magazine:

"I think the clergy marry unwisely and too soon. The funds of the church are for pastoral work and will never suffice to maintain a social position or an expensive education for children."

Mr. Ellis says that most priests would be better persons if they remained single. Married, their loyalties are divided between family and church, unless they have private means.

Ellis, who has a private income, is not interested in matrimony for himself.

"I'm happy as I am, sharing a home with a bachelor curate," he said. "Yet, there are women in my parish who still consider me marriageable."

LETTERBOX

INTERIOR FISHING LAKES
Editor, Daily News:

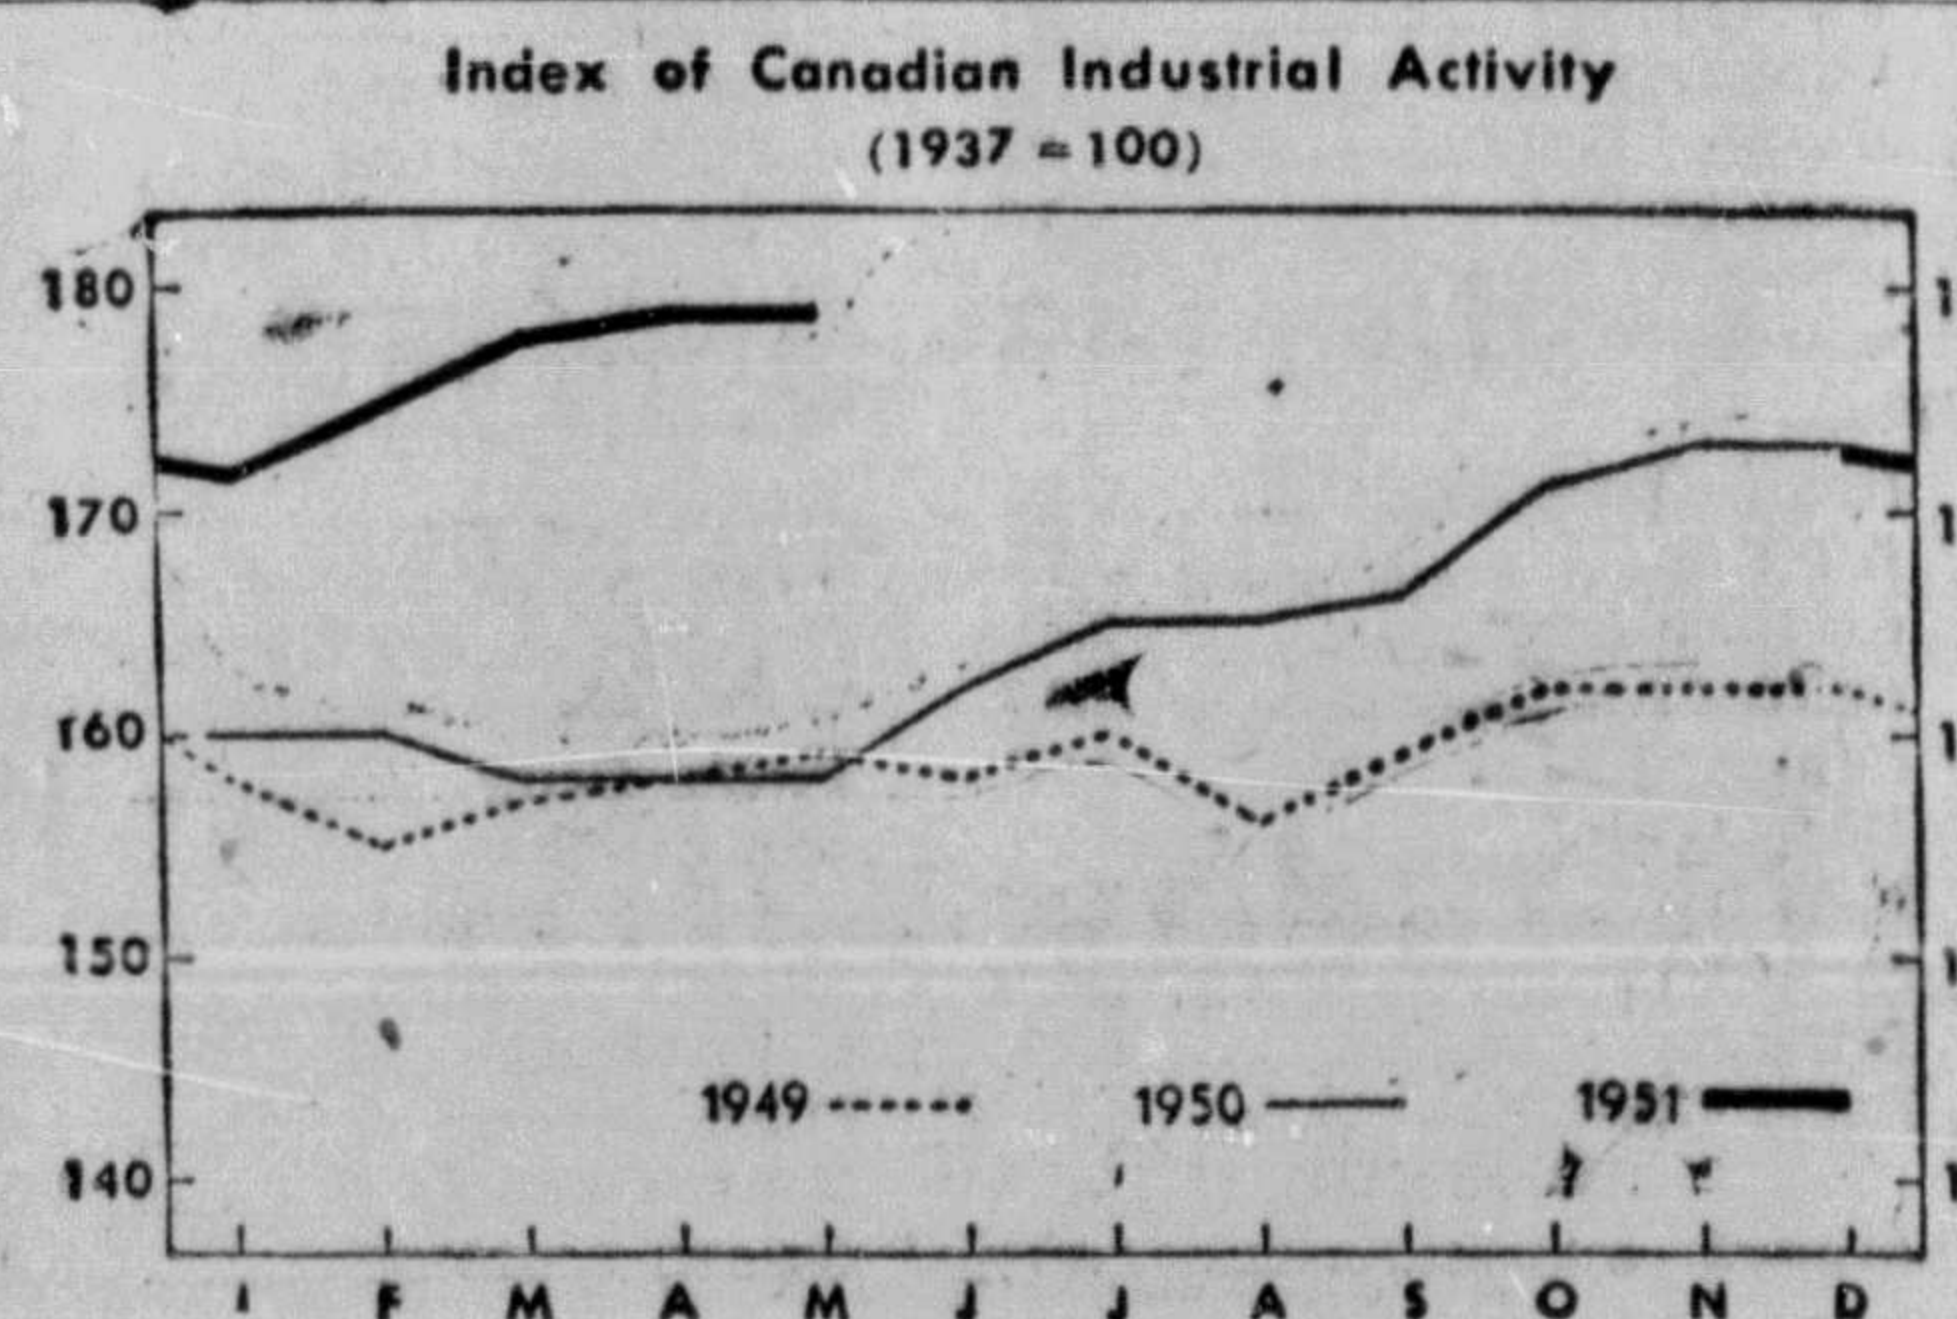

A point I would like to draw to your attention is that Burns Lake like Prince Rupert, although on a smaller scale, is forging ahead. The following mid-page 15, June 11 issue of the Daily News, was drawn to my attention. Caption: "Hunting and Fishing."

"Rainbow trout are found more in the Interior, especially in the small lakes surrounding Babine Lake, east of Smithers." Babine Lake, 100 miles long, is connected to Burns Lake by an excellent highway 22 miles in length. A passable fair road goes in from Topley to Babine, 30 miles west of Burns Lake. These are the only two means of road access to Babine. Your "small lakes" are, I suppose: Fulton, 10 miles long; Augier, 11; Pinkut, 8; Taltapin, 12.

Burns Lake has always insisted that Prince Rupert is the natural outlet for Central British Columbia. It could have been in order to mention Burns Lake 14 miles long; Decker Lake, 9; Tchesinkut, 12; Francois, 80; Ootsa, 40; Eutsuk, 75; Uncha, 9; Whitesail, 30. These and many small lakes are excellent fishing lakes, all in our vicinity.

As Prince George began to expand, it became somewhat insular for a while but has changed. We expect better things of Prince Rupert.

STALLING AROUND

Correspondents were in the neighborhood of where peace prospects are under discussion in Korea but this did not mean any permission was given to attend. They were there through their own efforts and 'gumption' or they would not be correspondents. They stall around and later on are handed communications which aren't news. If they were any handier to Moscow, all would be charged with espionage and given ten years in clink. And yet, some cheerful souls fancy the newspaper business.

Staging a July snowstorm on the opening day, Monday the ninth, Calgary's stampede distinctly outclasses everything in the way of legitimate competition.

CAN THIS BE SO?

Prince Rupert visitors to Victoria say tourists and others complain about cafe cooking and serving in the provincial capital but are less certain where hotels are concerned. This is something new. Commencing with climate, Victoria is supposed to be above criticism—so long as it's praise.

SEE IT AT LAST

Until years had passed, alleged news concerning the new river road up north appeared badly mixed. It seemed next to impossible to get a story straight. Yarns kept circulating in the south that there was no Skeena Highway when, as a matter of fact there was. Even when true, beyond the faintest doubt or uncertainty it was admitted in a grudging way. It has been suggested overseas that if red coats were restored to all regiments of the British Army, it might have a stimulating effect, alike on soldiers and civilians. Were Buonaparte asked about it, he would be practically certain to share in the opinion.

First Aid For Civil Defence

First Aid classes for civil defence began last Friday night at the fire hall and will be continued to train as many people as possible in fundamental first aid in cases of emergency or disaster.

R. E. Eyoifson, chairman of the first aid committee, said registration of first aid certificate holders to establish trained personnel in each zone of the city was the first project.

But due to a heavy schedule of work, Mr. Eyoifson said he must resign as chairman. New chairman elect is Thomas Elliott. Secretary is Mrs. Frank Ellison, and J. Davidson is in charge of registration.

Next meeting at which first aiders are asked to register, will be held in the city hall council chambers, July 20.

Pretty Summer Wedding

Jean Husoy and Alfred Burnip Are United

In a beautiful summer evening candlelight service in St. Paul's Lutheran Church Monday at 8 p.m., Miss Jean Husoy and Alfred Burnip were united in marriage. The altar was draped in white and banked with rose buds, gladioli and roses. Rev. Haakon C. Olsen performed the nuptials.

During the ceremony, the Varden Singers, accompanied by Peter Lien at the organ, sang the "Lord's Prayer" in Norwegian. John Botsford sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arne Husoy, 302 East Fourth avenue. The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Burnip, 1426 Second avenue.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride approached the altar dressed in white satin, with a long train of lace and a fingertip veil with crown tiara. Her bouquet was a white satin and net muff with streamers. A large orchid adorned the muff and smaller orchids trailed from it on the streamers.

Bride's attendants were Mrs. Mary Youngman, matron of honor, and Miss Laila Husoy, twin sister of the bride, bridesmaid.

The bride's mother wore a pale green iridescent taffeta gown and matching hat. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations, matching the pink iridescence of her gown.

The bridesmaid was gowned in lilac taffeta with matching hat, carrying a bouquet of yellow carnations.

Denis Burnip, brother of the groom, Edward Dawes and Sydney Alexander were groomsmen. Roses which adorned the altar were a personal gift to the bride.

At the reception in the Odd-fellows' Hall, Jarvis McLeod proposed the toast to the bride, responded to by the bridegroom. The cake, made by Mrs. Burnip, and decorated by Mrs. Husoy, was built in three layers on pillars, beside which stood a small doll replica of the bride. The guests' tables were decorated with small flowered nosegays.

Telegrams were read by Rudolph Olsen, toastmaster, and included messages from Norway, England and the United States. Mrs. Anton Dybhaven cut the cake, served by the bride's attendants.

The bride's mother wore a pale green gown of faconne crepe with matching green accessories. The groom's mother was gowned in grey crepe with matching grey and rose accessories.

The couple are touring the Okanagan Valley enroute to Vancouver where they will reside and where the groom will resume his studies at University of British Columbia.

The bride has been employed at Fashion Footwear for the past three years.

Wage War On Flies

Now is the time to fight the fly—a dangerous carrier of disease. That is the advice of Health Director Dr. Duncan Black.

During June, many complaints and reports were received of children and adults suffering from bouts of intestinal infections. Investigations showed that in a number of cases flies were found prevalent.

"Flies are not responsible for all the spreading of intestinal disease, but, where they are numerous, they do help," said Dr. Black in his monthly report today. "Flies also may spread diseases such as typhoid, cholera, dysentery, and even tuberculosis."

Dr. Black believes that decreasing the fly population will mean a decrease of intestinal diseases, and with the advent of DDT, a "flyless age" is now in sight.

Communities, where citizens have organized to wage a battle against flies, found that widespread use of DDT and good sanitation practically eliminated the fly population.

"Using DDT alone, however, is like running on one foot—you don't get very far."

Dr. Black emphasizes that "good sanitary practice must be combined" with use of DDT.

Decaying food, uncovered garbage and other fly breeding spots must be cleaned up if flies are to be prevented from breeding. Since DDT kills only adult insects and not the larvae or eggs, elimination of breeding places "is of prime importance."

Although DDT is safe, if used correctly, precautions should be observed, the health officer warns. Caution against fire is important, because of the kerosene solvent commonly found in the mixture. When spraying rooms containing food it and all working surfaces where food is prepared should be well covered.

Oil solutions of DDT are dangerous and should be washed off immediately if spilled on the skin. Pets should never be sprayed since they lick their fur frequently.

"Now is the time to fight the fly—first by cleaning up the breeding places, then using DDT spray."

Blackwood on Bridge
By Easley Blackwood

This is the last hand of a rubber in which Miss Brash, paired with Mr. Meek, had taken a lot of punishment—and a lot of kidding from Mr. Champion.

She was just as cheerful as ever but I noticed a steely glint in her eye. I suppose she didn't bid four no trump to check up on aces because she thought Mr. Meek was so far gone that he would pass that bid.

To give Miss Brash whatever credit she deserves on her bidding, I must tell you that she had the trey of diamonds mixed in with her hearts. In other words she thought she was blank in diamonds.

Mr. Champion had no way of knowing that his partner had the ace of diamonds and so he got off to the opening of the queen of clubs.

When the dummy went down Mr. Meek paled and dropped several cards on the floor. After retrieving them he played low from dummy and won in his hand with the king of clubs. He was certain he was down on the hand and that it was a question of how many. He led a low heart and, not caring what happened any more, put in the six spot from dummy after Mr. Champion followed with the four.

When the six spot held the trick Mr. Meek dropped his entire hand on the floor. This time Mr. New, the eager kibitzer, picked them up for him.

When order was restored Mr. Meek mustered the strength to reach over and pull the ace of spades from the board. Then he led a small spade and ruffed it in his hand. On this trick Mr. Champion's king of spades dropped, setting the balance of the suit on the board.

Now another heart finesse was taken, Mr. Champion's last heart was picked up and all four of Mr. Meek's diamonds were discarded on dummy's good spades. A vulnerable grand slam bid (and phew!) made.

"Sorry if I frightened you for a moment, partner," said Miss Brash. "I thought I had five hearts and no diamonds."

"If that's all he was nervous about on that hand," groused Mr. Champion, "he'd better have his head examined."

Mr. Meek said nothing. He was limp and dazed—but happy.

Mr. Abel totalled up the score. Miss Brash and Mr. Meek won it with a score of 2840 to their opponents' 2760.

JAPAN DEVELOPS

3. There is no fundamental conflict between Japan and China, but only between the U.S. and Russia. Therefore Japan should not involve herself.

4. There is little chance that the U.S. can win a third world war.

5. The Japanese should take a "generous" attitude toward the Communists, adopting the good parts of their program without actually becoming a Communist nation.

Tsuiji says his estimate of the East-West conflict is based on extensive material on Russia's economic and military strength gathered by Japan's army before the end of the Second World War.

One of his conclusions is that, because of the Soviet's planned decentralization of industry, "perhaps 50 atom bombs in Russian hands would be more destructive than 500 in American possession."

Tsuiji also believes any heavy industrial system built in Japan now would only be destroyed by American forces on their withdrawal to prevent those industries from falling into enemy hands.

"We should never be involved in (war between the U.S. and Russia) at any cost. Fortunately, MacArthur told us to become the Switzerland of the Far East. We should stick to this advice. However hard it may be, it will be much better than being involved in the catastrophe."

CABBAGE IS KING OF JULY DINNER TABLE

Remember the quotation from Alice in Wonderland when the Walrus said: "The time has come to talk of many things?" Among those things were cabbages and kings. While cabbages and kings may seem far apart, green summer cabbages may appropriately be called the king of the July dinner table. The fine, firm heads of cabbage in the shops today are some of nature's prize packages. Wise homemakers will include cabbage often in their meals while it is plentiful, for, though low in calories, it stands high in vitamins and minerals. This full-flavored, green-colored vegetable may be served in many ways. Cooked or raw, it may be used equally well at luncheon or at dinner.

Cabbage is easy to grow, keeps well and travels well. Air, water and heat are the thieves that rob water of some of its goodness so it should be stored as short a time as possible in a cool place

Terrace Fire Still Burning

TERRACE—More than 100 men have been fighting a forest fire which broke out on Monday afternoon near the Fraborne Saw Mills, seven miles out on the Lakelse road at the foot of Thornhill Mountain. Cause of the fire is unknown.

There was not a breath of wind, the mill was running and the burner going with hoses placed in readiness to extinguish the burner immediately should the wind arise. No sparks were flying. The fire was first noticed by one of the yard men and the mill crew had it almost under control when it jumped the creek and got beyond the range of the mill hoses. The mill itself, having a good sprinkling system, was not in danger but, by early evening, the fire had advanced up the mountainside where it raged all night.

Mr. Smith and Harvey Campbell of the forestry department here were on the scene immediately with their fire fighting equipment and crew and with their speedy and efficient organization they were able to get the blaze under control by Tuesday afternoon.

Early on Tuesday morning 50 men from the Columbia Cellulose were out fighting fire augmented later in the day by crews from the Public Works and all the mills in the district.

Approximately 200 acres have been burned over, so far, but none of the saleable timber has been touched.
