Serious Indifference

EVEN though the city may not be interested enough to take the leadership in action to establish a proper census count, the matter should not be allowed to rest there. Too much is involved to pass the matter up like that.

If, as Ald. Douglas Frizzell told the Daily News, some $20,000 to $30,000 annually is lost to the city by the short census count, and even the mayor and census commissioner admits a short count, it is a pretty serious business not to take any action.

A complete new census would appear to be good from the standpoint of dollars and cents in revenue over a period not only of one year but of ten. It is also highly desirable that, from the publicity and general business standpoint, we should show our population at 10,000 or 11,000 instead of 8,465, which we are now given, during the next decade.

It is not good enough for the city to dismiss the matter without even consideration. In fact, it is difficult to understand any suggestion at such dismissal. (At least, we could have a plebiscite on whether we should have a census recount, some cynical observer has suggested).

While it would appear to be primarily a matter of civic concern, doubtless, if assistance was desired, there would be local organizations which would be glad to give a hand in getting a new count—official or otherwise.

Meantime, steps, we contend, should be taken without delay, to determine the procedure to be taken in case of dissatisfaction with the census. No more than a letter of inquiry to the census division of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics would be required to start the ball rolling. The Member of Parliament should also be consulted. If the city is not interested enough to do that, even the Daily News would be glad to do so.

With dissatisfaction at the census count general over the province, it might be that the province itself, since its revenues are also involved, would be disposed to take the matter up. If pressure was being brought to bear by affected municipalities such as Prince Rupert, it would be part of a general campaign to protest and bring about rectification of the short count.

Of course, if Prince Rupert is willing to accept the 8,465 count as correct, the matter closes there. But when possibly $200,000 or more over a period of years is at stake, it would appear advisable, no matter what the civic attitude may be, to explore the matter further without dismissing it summarily.

Meantime, let's not be just too "accepting." Other communities in the province are refusing to take it lying down, why should we?

TALE OF A STONE

WHILE IN Glasgow recently we went to a fine concert by the Scottish National Orchestra.

My friend and host, George Singleton, took me out in the interval to meet a friend—Bertie, he called him.

Bertie turned out to be a genial, red-faced, smiling-but-grim-eyed Civic Councillor, Robert Gray.

"This is the man who can tell you about the Stone of Scone about which you have been asking."

Mr. Gray obliged not only by telling me about the Stone, but whipped a small piece of rock out of his trouser pocket.

"This is a bit of the Stone," he said, and I believe him.

THE STORY of the Stone as I got it there and elsewhere was this:

Nearly 30 years ago a few fervent Scots nationalists got the idea of "redeeming" the Stone of Destiny on the ground that such an act would crystallize Scottish sentiment as nothing else could do.

They did not then, and do not now, consider the act as "stealing," and "Bertie" frowned darkly when I carelessly asked "well who did swipe the Stone anyway from the Abbey?"

Anyway, 30 years ago Robert Gray, who is a "monumental sculptor" or, as he told me, "a tombstone maker," was commissioned to make an exact replica of the Stone of Destiny. This was done, but the plan fell through and his imitation stone lay there all these years.

WHEN THE Cornation Stone was removed from Westminster Abbey last Christmas Eve and brought by car to Scotland Councillor Gray had some fun with the imitation. Just to see how alert the police were in their hunt for the real Stone of Scone, Mr. Gray had the fake stone loaded on a lorry and driven all over Glasgow in plain view of all who cared to look.

Nobody paid the slightest attention.

THE REAL Stone of Scone landed up at Councillor Gray's establishment, maybe for many reasons, only one of which I shall mention here.

It was cracked in its rough ride from London to Scotland during which the Stone had to be put in hiding.

But Councillor Gray repaired it so that it is now in fact stronger than it has ever been since the Suffragettes tried to dynamite it away back before the First World War.

They used two strong bronze pins around which is cement made from the ground-up rock from the holes for the pins.

ROBERT GRAY does not think much of the theory that the Stone of Scone is the original stone on which Jacob slept the night he saw the angels coming down from the sky up to heaven.

"It's plain Perthshire stone," he told me emphatically.

I HEARD part of the story of how the Stone came to be handed back, not all of which I can publish as I heard it in confidence.

But one bit I am at liberty to print. When the Stone had been handed over to the Church of Scotland the police upset any plans for a ceremonial, dignified return.

"They pinched it and threw it into a cell," then whisked it off to London.

SCOTTISH NATIONALISTS are not circulating a petition for restoration of the Stone of Scone. And there are some wise people who think this will sooner or later be done.

Necktie for Scots Britain's Latest

LONDON—A British-made tie, specially designed to touch the hearts of all true Scots, will be sold shortly in Canada.

Woven on a blue background are two red unicorns, a silver cross of St. Andrew and green thistles.

The design, originally conceived by an 18-year-old Scots girl, has been hereditarily approved by the Lord Lyon King of Arms of Scotland. A correspondent for a textile trade journal says efforts are being made to ensure that the tie is sold only to persons of Scots extraction.

As cut for the Canadian market, the tie will be slightly larger than those worn in Britain.

ray.. Reflects and Reminisces

It's often enough one finds nobody home, when you seek them, in this man's town, although this does not fully explain the census. But it's a fact that there are persons who, though presumably living in Prince Rupert, spend a large part of the year in Victoria and Vancouver. To look over passenger lists would go a long way toward explaining this.

Buying liquor overseas and in British Columbia offer contrasts, says a newspaper writer. In vendor's stores, it's business and no nonsense—which is as it ought to be. But in Europe and the UK? Ah, what a blending! Not a blending of liquors, purely, but a mingling of life itself. Such sympathy, subtle charm and the spell that will not let one go.

FROM WITHIN?

It looks like a possible change of government somewhere next year. The Juneau Empire, after lauding the founders of Washington, says: Compare the actions of these great Americans with the assine and fumbling socialistic scheming of the present day crop of "leaders." Our government is in grave danger of destruction from within.

The American census is 155,000,000. One need never worry over there. What's a few tens of millions now and then?

B.C. soldiers, newly back home after a year in Korea, are seen with arms around wives and wives embracing soldiers. And there's something else. After table and comforts, delicate perfumery, easy chairs, cushions and cuddling and being able to tel a bugler to go to blazes, should you hear one, it's something that might just as well be called "restlessness." It comes back gradually. But, it does. And you wouldn't stop it for worlds.

It is quite often the case that, after, some public benefaction becomes known it will be charged that somewhere, there's a string. But it seems there's nothing of the sort where this $40, pension is concerned. Repeating, the other day in Ottawa to a downright question, the Minister of Health, Mr. Martin, declared: no pension can be attached, assigned or seized for any reason. Definitely enough, surely!

Soviet Russia Claims Great Production of Steel, Cotton

NEW YORK (AP)—How much steel is Russia producing? And how much cotton? The western world has long wondered about Communist output of these and other war-vital materials, but it's highly improbable that anyone outside of Russia knows the right answers. The Russians rarely give out with so much as a hint.

However, one of the top members of the Politburo, Lavrenti P. Beria, who undoubtedly knows the correct figures, has given some broad approximations for steel and cotton. Beria, the chief speaker at the traditional ceremony which marked the 34th anniversary of the Russian revolution, said the Soviet Union has made enormous industrial gains this year, with production running 15 per cent ahead of 1950.

Speaking of steel, Beria said Russia is producing 4,000,000 tons more this year than last. The total, he added, would be about equal to the combined output of England, France, Belgium and Sweden.

American sources were immediately dubious. That would mean the Russians were currently making nearly 37,000,000 net tons of steel annually, according to latest available figures on production in those four western nations.

If Beria's statement were true, industry sources estimated it would mean that Russia has expanded her steel industry nearly one-half again as much as the United States this year. The American industry has been growing at a rapid rate.

FIND DISCREPANCY

Industry sources placed Russia's 1950 steel production at about 25,500,000 tons. An increase of 4,000,000, to 29,000,000 tons, would represent a little over 15 per cent. But the 1950 total for the United Kingdom, France, Belgium and Sweden was placed at 33,537,827. And the 1951 total for these countries was expected to reach nearly 37,000,000 tons, based on preliminary figures. This would make a discrepancy in Beria's figure on expanded production of about 7,500,000 tons, or show Russia increasing output in one year by approximately 11,500,000 tons.

Rabbits on some western farms are leading frustrated lives these days. The succulent bark of their favorite fruit trees has been wrapped in aluminum foil, so now they can't get at it. This was a new one on us. We had heard of dozens of uses for the foil we roll at Kingston, Ont., but never for frustrating rabbits. However, it just goes to illustrate why more people are using more aluminum and why we, as the most efficient producer of this modern metal, must go on expanding. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. Back From Tour Of Auld Scotia

After a seven months' tour of Mr. Wilson-Murray's native Scotland, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson-Murray are back home in Prince Rupert.

They visited many places of historic interest in addition to Mr. Wilson-Murray's birth city of Edinburgh.

To Mrs. Wilson-Murray particularly it was a revelation and a delightful experience and she is still enthusiastic about the trip. It was her first visit to the Old Country.

She was struck by the slow gait of the people of the Old Country. "We think it's bad here," she said, "but you ought to see it there."

Former Prince Rupert people whom Mr. and Mrs. Wilson-Murray met in Edinburgh included Norman (Wee Mac) Macintosh, pioneer local newspaperman, who is still going strong, and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Wilson, Mr. Wilson was formerly on the local Royal Bank staff. Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. D. Smith.

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives fast relief. DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Australians Confident of Keeping Cup

AUSTRALIANS CONFIDENT
MELBOURNE—On the eve of tennis boom in Australia's history, there is a feeling of optimism regarding the action of the Davis Cup, so recently won from the United States by a young team who will undoubtedly be better for that reason.

CONFIDENCE
 The obvious Harry Hopman is "ton of confidence" in Sedgman's ability to win singles and Sedgman-McGregor as an unbeatable doubles combination.

McGregor says Sedgman's best during the past two years when he applied the pressure. The pressure now is greater than ever, because service has improved and frequently opened up more opportunities to attack. There is greater power in his already powerful volley, and his percentage winners from this stroke is Harry thinks Frank's forehand has advanced, especially consistency on return of service while his backhand is a bit, packing power and control. Frank is heading for his successful season in Australian tennis," in his opinion.

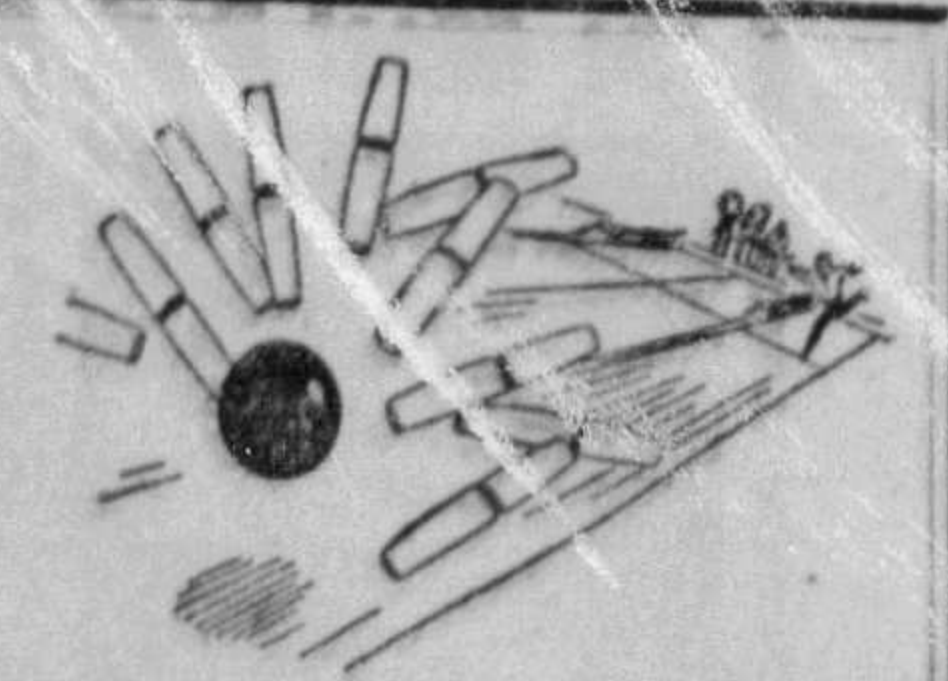

MCGREGOR READY
 McGregor is keen to take singles match in the Davis Cup and is practicing solidly. Only after a three-hour all-day practice, he had three hours of an hour on his service, which was working well. Mervyn Rose won the metropolitan singles title in Victoria. Now the star trio are waiting the first of the state matches at Brisbane, Queensland.

Previously, Geoff Brown and Sidwell had trowned the "Don Candy (U.S. title runner-up to Sedgman-McGregor) combination," which stresses that Australia stands present as doubles tennis champion. Veterans John Bromwich and Adrian Quist also are anxious.

Curling Rink Ready By Xmas

If Members Get Out and Work

Transformation is taking over the former RCAP mess hall at Seal Cove as week-end and nightly work parties are turning the building into the future curling rink. Remodeling of the club room has begun, windows have been set in and removal of flooring and joists is well under way.

Meanwhile, delivery of 6,000 feet of two-inch pipe for the refrigerator unit is expected any day. Shipment has left Winnipeg, Curling Club President Neely Moore has been advised.

Work on construction of the rink is all voluntary, says Mr. Moore who is sparking the development, but more members are needed for the working bees if the rink is to be completed by Christmas.

"That is our hope for we would like to give Prince Rupert children the chance to skate on the ice for a week or so."

Meantime, a general meeting has been called for next Thursday to accept the club constitution and for election of a new executive and committee chairman.

KOOYONG COURTS
 Sweden will meet U.S.A. at Kooyong, Melbourne, the fine courts where the U.S. took the Davis Cup from Australia—the happy hunting ground of Ted Schroeder and Jack Kramer—on Dec. 13-15. The Challenge Round will be played at White City, Sydney, Dec. 26-27-28.

Later, after triangular matches (Australia, Sweden and U.S.A.) in Perth, West Australia; Hobart, Tasmania; and Adelaide, South Australia, the Australian titles will be decided in Adelaide commencing Jan. 18. The season finally winds up with another triangular series in Sydney, Feb. 1-2.

It is a spectacular tennis set-up, and a wonderful contribution to Australia's national jubilee celebrations.

Not Trading Ted Williams

BOSTON — Despite stories to the contrary, Lou Boudreau insists he has not discussed a trade involving Ted Williams since succeeding Steve O'Neil as manager of the Red Sox. Boudreau has hired Bill McKechnie to help him at Sarasota in the spring. Lou may talk Bill into taking a permanent coaching berth with the Boston club.

Bribery in Big League Soccer?

AIRDRE, Scotland (CP)—Attempt to bribe a player to help throw a game in the Scottish Football League has been reported to the league.

Tom Brown, regular fullback for the Airdrieonians, said he had refused an offer of £100 ($280) to help lose a game against Glasgow Celtic.

Celtic won three to one.

CANADIAN APPLES CAPABLE OF MUCH VARIETY IN SERVING

Home economists report that many homemakers confide in them that they sometimes get into a rut in preparing the every day meals. For anyone who is upset because the family meals seem to be rather humdrum the home economists have a word of encouragement. They pass out the reminder that the apple is something that can do much to give meals a lift because there are more ways of serving apples, both raw and cooked, than any other fruit. The apple can be used not only by itself but it teams up well with many other foods. Take, for instance, apples and vegetables. Casseroles of cabbage and apple or turnip and apple are both worth trying. Winter squash stuffed with a combination of sausage meat and chopped apple is something else that is very good. Chopped raw apple gives that needed tart flavor to the stuffing for spareribs or pork tenderloin, or to a pork loaf.

Appetizers are a perfect start to a meal but so often there does not seem to be time to prepare them. Here is a suggestion which is easy and inexpensive. Try serving apple slices spread with nippy cheese or peanut butter as an appetizer with tomato juice or other juices. As a matter of fact apples make an excellent accompaniment to many foods. Apple fritters are very tasty with spareribs, ham or back bacon. Coddled apples are a favorite Maritime accompaniment to the Saturday night baked beans. Chopped apple added to pancake batter gives something new and interesting. The flavor as well as food value of any breakfast cereal, whether it be served hot or cold, may be improved by the addition of grated raw apple. Children love this combination and mothers will do well to serve it often. Another way to use apple with cereal is in muffins. The grated raw apple is simply added to the batter.

Apple sauce is perhaps one of Canada's favorite desserts which lends itself to many ways of serving. A little green food coloring may be added to tint the sauce green, making it especially attractive to use as a base to be topped with red or yellow fruit. The sauce may also be tinted a delicate pink. It is good to know, too, that apple sauce can be spread on pancakes, which are being served for dessert, or used as the filling for jelly roll. A new and different sauce for gingerbread is made by combining apple sauce with cream cheese.

Baked apples are a very simple yet popular dessert and they, too, may be varied in several ways. Brown sugar or honey, with either raisins or nuts is most often stuffed into the centre of the apples after the cores have been removed. Mincemeat is another good filling, and marmalade, or a mixture of marmalade or jam and nuts, is still another. Marshmallows, marshmallows and gum drops or cinnamon candies make ideal fillings if the baked apples are being served at a children's party. Apples retain much of their beautiful color when baked in aluminum foil. Here is a special suggestion for anyone who has a freezer or locker. After the apples are baked freeze them right in the foil, then each day, as Johnny trots to school, he can carry along one of these lovely silver balls for dessert.

For a change stewed apples may be served with custard sauce or added to a countless number of puddings such as blanc mangle and tapioca cream. Other desserts, apple dumplings and Dutch apple cake for example, are general favorites and they, too, are made from apples—Canadian apples.

Metlakatla Getting New Power Plant

Last official act the Federal Indian Department will perform for Metlakatla Indians before the village is enfranchised next month is installation of a new power plant. Work on this project is to begin immediately, says Indian Agent P. E. Anfield.

Here to supervise the work is L. M. Williams, Indian Department electrical engineer from Vancouver.

When installation of the diesel plant is completed, it will be turned over to the village when it becomes enfranchised and will be operated by village personnel. Growth of the native settlement has reduced the former lighting plant to inadequacy, says Mr. Anfield.

Meanwhile, a three-months land survey of the reservation for municipally purposes has been completed. This work was the last holdup for official enfranchisement "which is expected next month."

"We have been waiting for this moment for more than two-years. It is one of the greatest stories in modern native lore," says Mr. Anfield.

CLASSIC ENTERTAINMENT
The modern art-form of opera arose in Italy about 1600 but its origins go back further through medieval mystery plays.
