British Columbia's Biggest Budget Is Down; Hospital Insurance Is $12,750,000 In Hole

Health and Welfare is Most Costly Item—Municipalities Gain

VICTORIA (CP) — Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb today brought down the biggest budget in British Columbia's history.

Estimating expenditures for the year ending March 31, 1952, at $118,269,000, the minister of finance told the Legislature that revenue in the next fiscal year was estimated at $118,503,000 which would leave a surplus of $234,000.

No new taxes were announced. Expenditures for the year ending March 31, 1951, will be about $117,000,000. Four years ago expenditures were about half that amount.

The biggest single item in the budget is $27,424,674, outlay for the health and welfare department, an increase of $4,400,000 over the previous year.

Mr. Anscomb said that by March 31, 1951, the compulsory insurance scheme will be about $12,750,000 in the red.

Other main items in the budget are $17,805,388 for education, an increase of $1,374,233 over the previous year; $12,697,445 for public works, $3,000,000 less than last year, and $7,663,625 for lands and forests, an increase of nearly $1,000,000.

More money will go to school boards, rural schools, the University of British Columbia, municipalities and social allowances. Aid for municipalities will amount to $18,612,520, an increase of $2,506,315 over the previous year.

The minister asked for legislation to provide for additional borrowing powers for $28,000,000 for the development of power, highways, railway construction, flood control and other public services.

Apart from the provision for additional borrowing powers amounting to $28,000,000 for the development of the province including power, highways, railway construction, flood control and other vital public services, perhaps the most striking features in the budget address were the analysis of the fiscal relations between the province and the federal government, which included studies of the relative tax contributions by provinces to the federal treasury and the analysis of the provincial-municipal relations.

With respect to the latter, it was shown that during the coming fiscal year municipal financial assistance will amount to the staggering sum of $27,385,000 as compared with $2,960,000 during the first year of the Coalition government's administration. No other province in Canada has accorded such generous financial assistance to its municipalities as that given by the government of British Columbia, Mr. Anscomb said.

City Council Anxious—To Plan at Once for New Water System

A new water system for Prince Rupert is to be the immediate study of City Engineer D. C. Stewart. A thorough survey of the present system with a view to replacing it was recommended last night by City Council at its regular meeting.

Ald. George Casey, board of works committee, first recommended the city engineer be instructed to make a complete survey for a new pipeline from Northern B.C. Power Company power house to Shawatians Lake pump house.

Said Ald. D. F. Fitch: "We know our water system is in terrible condition. Our plan really is for a total rehabilitation."

"And I suggest there be no longer delay. Get at it as fast as possible," said Ald. Doug. Prizell.

Mayor G. W. Rudderham said that the city "can't get out of" spending another winter with the present water system, but it could "make a thorough study of the whole job" necessary to install a new system.

A plan for a practical system, was following the coldest night of the winter, March 5, that the for approval by the council, then pressure began to fall.

A renewal of the laterals would be included in the survey, council decided.

No particular reason for loss of pressure during the cold weather had been determined, said Ald. Casey. The reservoir was "still comparatively empty." It was following the coldest night of the winter, March 5, that the for approval by the council, then pressure began to fall.

Protests at Power Raise

Strong objection to proposed Northern B.C. Power Company rate hikes was raised last night by Ald. H. S. Whalen, speaking to City Council on behalf of the hospital board.

Ald. Whalen said that the present annual electric bill for Prince Rupert General Hospital amounted to $8,133.22. At the new rates, this would be increased by 100 per cent.

"This is far out of line for hospitals," he said, giving comparative figures of lighting costs to hospitals in other areas.

North Vancouver's hospital paid $3,844; St. Mary's Hospital, New Westminster, $2,269; Duncan Hospital, $1,552; Vernon, $1,494; and Penticton, $3,228.

"Our hospital should get a better deal as far as electricity is concerned," Ald. Whalen said.

Council referred the matter to the utilities committee for report.

Ald. T. B. Black said later he thought the increase in the annual cost would amount only to eight per cent, adding that the offer was still open for the hospital to instal their own substation.

THE WEATHER City Council is Not Protesting

Today promises to be fine in most parts of the province. Temperatures will be mild. There will be a few showers along the north coast and over the mountains in the interior while elsewhere skies will be generally sunny by afternoon.

Last night temperatures ranged around 35 on the coast while in the interior they were around 20 in the northern sections and 25 to 30 in the southern valleys. Maximums today will range from 35 and 45.

A new storm is developing rapidly about 900 miles off the coast and rain is expected on the north coast tonight spreading to the south coast by morning.

House Passes Hospital Hike

VICTORIA—The bill amending the Hospital Insurance Act to provide for increased premiums and payments for the first ten days in hospital was given second reading in the Legislature yesterday by a vote of 32 to 12.

Four Coalitionists—M. P. Finerty, Similkameen; W. A. C. Bennett, South Okanagan; Andrew Whisker, Cowichan-Newcastle, and Dr. J. J. Gillis, Yale—bolted to join the CCF and Tom Uphill, Labor, in voting against the government on the issue.

Premier Byron Johnson, speaking briefly, said he had no apology to make for hospital insurance.

Troop Train Case Starts

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The court case born of the Rocky Mountain troop train disaster last fall started today in this northern British Columbia city.

Preliminary hearing of a manslaughter charge opened in police court against tall, bespectacled Alfred John Atherton, 22, former Canadian National Railway telegrapher at Red Pass.

Atherton is alleged to have relayed a train order incorrectly, resulting in the head-on collision, November 21, at Canoe River, in which 21 persons lost their lives.

Typhus Is Bad Enemy

TOKYO (CP)—General MacArthur's headquarters has received a report that typhus in Korea has wiped out an equivalent of two Chinese Red divisions—20,000 men.

This report directly contradicts a statement from Eighth Army headquarters in Korea only two days ago that there was no confirmed evidence of any typhus epidemics among Chinese and North Korean troops.

Defence Costs Boost Spending To Huge Figure

OTTAWA (CP)—A government spending program of $3,586,915,000, boosted by record peacetime expenditures, was submitted to the House of Commons yesterday by Finance Minister Douglas Abbott for the coming fiscal year.

It was $858,300,000 more than has been approved to date for the current year that ends March 31.

However, the distance will be narrowed later this month when the government seeks supplementary votes for some large items of 1950-51 expense.

Defence expenditures of around $1,700,000,000 with $1,600,000,000 for the defence department itself boosted Mr. Abbott's 1951-52 estimates to the whopping total in spite of an over-all reduction of $35,268,000 in all departments except defence and the new defence production department.

Defence department estimates are up $837,382,000 over the amount authorized to date in the current year.

Mr. Abbott estimated that defence department production, with allied crown companies, is going to cost $64,212,000 of which $50,000,000 will be capital spending to create production facilities. The department, set up a few days ago, will have spent about $7,000,000 by the end of this month.

Dealing only with expenditures, a 540-page blue book did not give any indication of deficit or surplus for the current or coming fiscal years.

It contained no forecast of revenue for 1951-52. That is to come after the Easter recess in the budget of the minister of finance which is expected to call for a substantial increase in taxes in spite of a reduction of spending in non-defence fields.

Let's Get Outside—

WITH FRESH heat in the air, right now is a good time to go outdoors without bothering to read this any further. You would be much better off out of doors. Any time is good for going there but this moment is the only time you can do it, sandwiching the doing between regrets for not getting out more in the past and determination to make more of a point of it in the future.

Most of people like it better inside although few will admit this. Surely, however, it is so for, as humans gain some control over their environment and develop civilization, they tend to move indoors where they can sit around and talk about not getting out enough.

The trouble about outdoors is that it is too much of a strain. Indoors is easier on the body and makes less of a challenge to character. When you are outside there is the vast sky to see, or the trees, or the ocean or the mountains. All these challenge the ego.

Indoors is the place for the poor in spirit. There they can dwell upon their little pictures, their little possessions, their little troubles, shutting away the far sweep of the universe.

But here we are indoors writing this. We must really get out more ourselves.

Individual Responsibility

PEOPLE EAGER to dump responsibility for their lives in somebody else's lap today justify their cowardice or indolence to themselves by declaring democracy a fraud. The result has been regression toward a "morally illiterate culture of unhappy and un-tragic pleasure seekers. . . ." Increasingly complex machine techniques call for leaders with specialized skill rather than general education.

One thing is sure. Having caught a vision of greater abundance, especially during World War II, when the alliance of science and nature brought about an incredible increase of production, the less prosperous two-thirds of mankind are not voluntarily going to relinquish that vision.

Either it will be partly realized, or it will have to be beaten out of people's minds by superior power or by adverse fortune. Whoever promises its fulfillment is the people's friend. Whoever opposes or decries it is their enemy.

Throughout the world, people who believe in freedom, tolerance, and self-government, who understand that the real enemy is mass man and the reign of total power for power's sake, find themselves burdened with a common task. To survive, they must offer to all men the promise of becoming individuals, bourgeois in the highest sense, beings who enjoy not only greater abundance but responsible participation in a more meaningful life.

Interesting Statistics— Committee Studying Immigration— Prince Rupert Man's Brother Heard

The figures released from time to time by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics may not be very much read by the general public but they do contain some statements of real interest. For instance, figures just out for November show that the total labor income reached an all-time monthly peak that month at $733,000,000, rising 1.4 percent over the previous high in October and 10.9 percent over November 1949. Time lost in labor disputes rose in January to 16,800 man-working days from 8,400 in December but fell below last year's January total of 39,500 days. Canadians spent $861,000,000 in retail stores in December, the highest monthly total on record. Wholesale sales in December were 5 percent above a year earlier.

A very good Senate Committee has got down to work, it is the Committee on Immigration and Labor and is investigating the operation and administration of the Immigration Act—a very live issue. Senator Carline Wilson is the chairman. Hon. Walter Harris, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, and C. E. S. Smith, Director of Immigration, have both appeared before the Committee as witnesses. Senators

Tom Reid and J. G. Turgeon of British Columbia, are both members. The terms of reference give this committee authority to consider such matters as the desirability of admitting immigrants, the type of immigrant which should be preferred, Canada's facilities and capacity to absorb immigrants, the availability of preferred-type immigrants, etc. At the opening of their first session Mr. Harris made a prepared statement. He stated that the Department had largely been guided by the report of an earlier similar committee. Since World War II immigration has been actively encouraged with a view to fostering the growth of the population of Canada through the careful selection and permanent settlement of such numbers of immigrants. VICTORIA REPORT

by J. K. Nesbitt

Government Assailed From All Sides— Looks Like Crisis Ahead

VICTORIA—One wonders how long a government can stand up to such a barrage of criticism as is now being leveled against the Coalition.

The criticism is being hurled at the government in savage onslaughts from all sides—the press, the public, from its own supporters in the House, let alone the CCF Opposition. It's the fiercest concentrated attack any government has had to wrestle with in many years.

Two of the Okanagan Valley members, M. P. Finnelly, Liberal-Coalition, Similkameen, and W. A. C. Bennett, Conservative-Coalition, South Okanagan, are in open revolt about increases in hospital insurance premiums and actually went so far as to vote against the Government on the floor of the House. Mr. Finnelly, too, gave an indication that all is not happy between Liberals and Conservatives in the Coalition caucus. He said that hospital deficits can't be made up from consolidated revenue "because of the political viewpoint" of the Minister of Finance. Mr. Finnelly seemed to say that Mr. Anscomb is more interested in development of the resources of the province than he is in the needs of the people.

Jay Gould, Liberal-Coalition from Vancouver-Burrard, accused the government of political expediency in not raising the sales tax exemption on restaurant meals to $1. He said the government won't face up to its responsibility where liquor is concerned. Strong words these, from a government supporter.

Even mild-mannered, Coalitionist Batt MacIntyre of Mackenzie riding hammered the government and insisted it hadn't lived up to its election promises. He said the government had promised amendments to the Labor Act—and nothing has been done. Just another political dodge, Mr. MacIntyre seemed to indicate.

Practically every daily paper on the lower mainland and in Victoria is now bitterly critical of many government policies, particularly liquor and hospital insurance. The Victoria Colonist is pounding the government in a series of front-page editorials, so tough cabinet ministers are enraged. One editorial said, in part: "The British Columbia Coalition Government is much addicted to self-praise. The public is told over and over again that this is the fairest and most courteous government the province has ever had. Is it? A government which, once in office, refuses to pay any further attention to requests from responsible organizations can scarcely support that claim."

The Victoria Times, which, until a few months ago slavishly supported the Coalition, now under new editor Bruce Hutchison, is roasting the government on a number of matters although it is remaining loyal on hospital insurance increases. Its lead editorial the other day dealt with liquor and said: "In many hotels, cabarets and other resorts, liquor is being drunk publicly in open defiance of the law. The bottle on the table, or under the table, is becoming a monument to lawlessness which the police are unable or unwilling to suppress. The whole beer business is parceled out among the companies forming the monopoly, with no pretense of competition."

"The beer parlor license is a privileged franchise to be traded, usually with political influence, from one monopolist to another. Wines, like those from California, which might compete with local products are not sold by the government, lest they disturb powerful interests. A few men with sufficient influence in the right place, have been given so-called 'club' licenses in Vancouver which are, in fact, merely an exclusive right to sell liquor of all sorts to anybody who can pay the price. Finally, and perhaps most disturbing of all, two directors of the brewing business sit as Conservative ministers within the cabinet."

Messrs. Johnson and Anscomb have extremely difficult days ahead. They will need all their political strength and wisdom, boldness and vision, to swing the tide that now seems to be almost engulfing their government. At the same time Opposition Leader Harold Winch has a tremendous opportunity and a tremendous responsibility.

British Columbia seems to be at some critical turning point! One clamor against costs, and Mr. Claxton gives grave warning that, if there's going to be war, fresh expenses will not be devoted to what is unnecessary.

Harry Armstrong, who wrote the music for "Sweet Adeline," is dead in New York, aged 72 years. The lyrics were written by Richard Gerard, who passed away in '48. "Sweet Adeline" has something but it is essential to get in the mood first.

Never before in Canada's history, has the roll been called in her commercial fisheries. But it will be this year. Of course, the fishermen have always been included as individuals. This time the main purpose is to have data on economic and social circumstances. There's lots to be learned.

WHERE TO BEGIN
It's the frills, says Tilly Rolston, and the place to start is Victoria. This stout-hearted lady asserts there would be nothing wrong with cutting the legislature in half and stopping needless outlays. There are, says Tilly, frills to the tune of millions. Why allow it, when every-

FOOD—PEACE KEY NEW DELHI, India.

The general idea behind this series of articles on India is to spend a couple of weeks here at the capital, then to visit key spots in this vast sub-continent, then to return to Delhi before starting home, via Israel and Europe.

But one does not need to spend months, weeks or even days here to find out what is India's number one problem. It is how something over 320 million people can get enough food to stay alive.

The question literally hits you in the eye when you see the really poor people in a big city. It hits you in the eye when you pick up any newspaper, and see that controversy over food shortages is a main feature. It hits you in both ears when you set foot inside parliament. For each day this parliament allows what must surely be the most generous period for questions in any chamber in the world—one full hour. And on every day, many of the questions centre around India's central problem: How do we eat?

BEFORE I LEFT CANADA, I carefully worked out the agricultural statistics: How many cultivated acres there were per person in Canada and India. After looking over the farming methods here, and seeing the mighty pressure of population, I realize that those statistics don't mean so much.

India has about three times the population of the United States in about one-third the area. Those figures are not precise, but they give the rough idea. But, as a high U.S. agricultural body has just pointed out, India's agricultural methods are primitive and even crude as compared with those in many other countries. Hence, even such a simple thing as substituting the most simple type of steel blade plow would greatly increase production. (This has been actually demonstrated to peasants at government-sponsored centres, such as that at Bawana, which I recently visited.)

BUT THE FOOD SHORTAGE question is interlinked with that of land ownership reform. Although the fact is not realized in the West, it is also, above all, inextricably interlinked with the questions of war and peace.

The Congress Party leaders are well aware that the cry, "the land for the peasants," is potentially the mightiest and most elemental pent-up force in all this part of the world. It is trying by legal and constitutional means to transfer land ownership from the zamindars, or rich landlords, to the actual cultivators of the soil. But at the moment its proposed reforms are snarled up in the courts, over the question of constitutional legality.

Will India get time to work out land reform by the democratic process and, if so, is such process competent to sweep away the vested interests of age-old growth? One would have to be bold to answer that one; and I lack sufficient information even to try.

worked havoc with the economy of India. Even this year's drastic shortage of food in India could be partly (some say one-third) wiped out if there were absolutely free trade in the whole area, as there was before partition.

Responsible Indian leaders ask: "If the partition of one sub-continent worked such havoc, what would be the effect, even on India, of the partition of the whole world, as a result of a third world war?" India eats, right now, on a "ship to mouth" basis.

HENCE, INDIA'S INTEREST IN preserving even the present precarious state of world peace is based on more than the Gandhi non-violence ideal (real and strong as this is in India). It is also based on the most solid and immediate self-interest for India. For in such a war, even if India were not a combatant, many millions of Indians would be doomed to starve as, in fact, millions starved in 1945.

SEED BOX EASILY EQUIPPED WITH AUTOMATIC WATERING

Seedling plants grown in an indoor seed box may be destroyed in a few hours if the soil is allowed to dry out completely. But by a simple device familiar to all in the lamp wick, water can be supplied automatically in just the right volume, leaving the gardener free to attend to other duties, and even go visiting for a few days.

This has been demonstrated by scientific research into watering practices, and the method is widely used by florists. For amateur gardeners, several methods of automatic watering have been tested. The best is wick-watering, by which moisture is supplied to the soil in the seed box from a pan below, lifted by a wick. A wick-watered box is easily prepared. First, a hole is bored in the bottom of the box. Through this hole a wick eight inches long is drawn. The top of the wick is frayed and imbedded in the soil which fills the box; the bottom drops into a pan below. As long as there is water in the pan, the soil will keep moist, and your seedling plants will not suffer from lack of it.

If a large pan is used, enough water for several days may be supplied at one time, allowing you to go away from home, even during the critical period of infestation when other methods of watering, daily inspection would be necessary.

The best material for a wick is fibre glass, which is sold for the purpose, and which will last for years. A piece of new clothes line will also serve for the few weeks necessary to bring up plants, but if used too long will disintegrate. The degree of moisture maintained in the soil of the box may be controlled to some extent by varying the height of the box above the pan, but be careful not to get the box so high that the wick ceases to operate.

Took Exams In First Aid

Examinations for industrial first aid were held in the city fire hall last week.

Dr. Duncan Black, director of Public Health, held an oral questioning exam in the council chambers last week. Following this a practical examination was held in the Fire Hall. It consisted of application of bandages and splints for wounds and fractures.

The course, which is sponsored by the Prince Rupert Centre of the St. John Ambulance Association, has been conducted for the past four months in the Fire Hall under Instructor R. E. Eyolfson.

Mr. Eyolfson is also chief instructor for the St. John Ambulance first aid course, which is held in the Fire Hall each Friday evening.

Those taking the industrial first aid exams were two groups, those who took refresher tests to renew their knowledge and certificates, and those who took standard tests to acquire their first certificates.

Results of the exams will come from the Workmen's Compensation Board of Examiners within a few weeks.

The following took the tests: R. E. Eyolfson, instructor; M. C. Hauser, J. S. Furness, Donald Main, Jr., Nick Mazzone, refresher; Mrs. Alice Denton, R. J. Speers, W. M. N. Ramsay, J. A. Green, Larry Henning, standard.

TRADITIONAL HAM IS FINEST CHOICE FOR EASTER DINNER

Weather and spirits may be a bit unpredictable this time of year but once a few robins start chirping around the window, the promise of Easter is near. There is no finer choice for a festive Easter dinner than the traditional ham. How the ham became the traditional dish for Easter is an interesting story.

Since early Christian days it has been the custom to celebrate the advent of Spring with feasting. In those days the supplies of fresh meat were at their lowest ebb as this feast period approached. However, these resourceful Christians made preparations for this feast far in advance. In early winter, when pigs were slaughtered, certain choice cuts, the hind legs or hams, were saved for the feast. So the custom of serving ham at Easter has continued.

There is a variety of delicious smoked pork cuts on the market with which many homemakers are relatively unfamiliar. As a matter of fact, the average homemaker is inclined to use the term "ham" loosely to cover several of the smoked pork cuts. She may actually be referring to a real ham or a portion of a ham, to a smoked picnic style pork shoulder or to a boneless smoked shoulder, commonly known as cottage roll. Ham is the smoked counterpart of a leg of fresh pork which comes from the hind quarter, after the lower part of the leg has been removed. The lower section of the pork shoulder or the foreleg provides the picnic style shoulder, and the shoulder which has been boned and rolled is called cottage roll.

Whether the meat is the tender ham from the porker's hind leg, or a cottage roll, or picnic shoulder from the front leg, the quality of the meat should be good and the flavor excellent. However, because the meat of the foreleg is slightly coarser it should be cooked with moist heat.

Today most smoked ham is sold as tenderized ham, that is to say, it has been made tender during the smoking process. There are two types of tenderized ham, one that is ready cooked and ready to eat, and one that must be cooked at home before eating. This tenderizing process means that no pre-boiling is necessary. To bake a tenderized ham, place the ham, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Place the ham, uncovered, in a moderately slow oven, 325 F., and roast until tender, allowing twenty minutes per pound. If you own a meat thermometer, insert it into the meat so that the centre of the bulb reaches the centre of the fleshiest part. Be sure that the bulb does not rest on bone. The ham will be done when the thermometer registers 160 F. About thirty minutes before the ham is done, remove from oven and take off the rind. If this has not already been done, score the fat in diagonal lines and stick whole cloves in the centres of the diamonds, thus formed. Pour off the drippings, spread the surface of the ham with a topping mixture of one-half cup brown sugar, two tablespoons flour, and one teaspoon dry mustard. Return to oven to finish roasting and to brown. Instead of a topping, the ham may be glazed with maple syrup, honey, corn syrup or apple juice, basting several times during the last thirty minutes.

Frequently picnic shoulders and cottage rolls are not tenderized. If they are tenderized they are marked as such on the label or outside covering. Even if they are not tenderized, they are very delicious and are just as easy to prepare as a smoked ham, and of course they are more economical. As was mentioned above, these cuts should be cooked with moist

Blitz Victim Gives Praise To Hospitals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. Pat Beckett, whose right leg was amputated below the knee as a result of injuries suffered in air raids in England, says "D.V.A. hospital services in Canada are excellent."

Mrs. Beckett, the mother of a two-year-old son, is being fitted at Deer Lodge Veterans' hospital here for a new "suction type" artificial leg.

Although she already owns two conventional types of artificial leg, gifts of the British government, she feels the new Canadian type will prove much more comfortable and make it easier for her to get around.

Mrs. Beckett is believed to be one of two civilian mothers in western Canada in receipt of a British disability pension for leg amputation.

War scare and fear of prospective American tourists getting under the gun by coming to Alaska is having an adverse effect upon tourist bookings this year, it is said.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which for three years now has chartered the steamer Prince George for an early season cruise, has cancelled its trip this year.

Because of heavy cancellations, it is reported that the Canadian Pacific may not operate the big steamer Kathleen this year.

Perfecting Red Cross Drive Here

Exactly one week from last night Prince Rupert's Red Cross "one night drive" will get under way. Stan Saville, local unit president, says organization for the single night's canvass is nearly completed.

A few city service clubs still remain to be contacted but he expects they will volunteer their members as canvassers along with those already pledged. About 400 canvassers will be needed, Mr. Saville said, and about half of that number have been organized.

Outlying residential districts, like Westview Beach Place and Water Street, Seal Cove and Rushbrook Heights have been detailed. Those canvassing there next Monday night are:

Westview—Mrs. H. Ward, Mrs. C. H. Klotz, Mrs. G. Shanton, Mrs. J. Forman and Mrs. W. Strachan.

Beach Place and Water Street—Mrs. G. R. Eburne, Seal Cove and Rushbrook Heights—Mrs. T. Glenn, Mrs. H. Vanderheide, Mrs. H. Trudner, Mrs. C. J. Nicholson, Mrs. J. Mo-

ison, Mrs. S. Alexander, Mrs. H. D. Wilkinson.

Ambrose Avenue—Mrs. Frank Hicks.

Mr. Saville said those who wish to make contributions through banks will find at their bank receipts and "willing employees to serve them."

Mah Chung Kee, Sunrise Grocery, has volunteered to canvass the city's Chinese population. Arrangements have also been made to canvass outside districts of Queen Charlottes, Butedale, Alice Arm, Stewart, the canneries along the Skeena, Metlakatla, Digby Island, Oona River, Osland and Port Simpson.

Intensive canvass of the business area will begin this week, said Mr. Saville.

grants as can be absorbed in the national economy. An order in council dated September 16, 1943, provided for the admission of citizens of France on the same basis as British subjects and citizens of the United States. The order-in-council which is now in effect no longer restricts Canadian immigration to certain defined categories. A prospective immigrant must, however, satisfy the authorities that he is a suitable immigrant having regard to the climatic, social, educational, industrial, labour, or other conditions or requirements of Canada.

We had the pleasure a day or two ago of a speech from L. D. (Laurier), liberal member for Quebec who said that he was of more interest to my readers is a brother of Bert Tremblay of Columbia Cellulose, whom many Prince Rupert people will know. Mr. Tremblay was speaking to the resolution asking for allowance to persons suffering injury, accident or congenital infirmity. He opened his remarks by stating that he had only a few words to say on the resolution, which, obviously, had the whole-hearted support of all members; but his "few words" were one of the best little talks on the subject. This is an old subject here and Mr. Tremblay joined with previous speeches in warmly congratulating Lionel Bertrand, mover of the resolution, for the initiative he takes every year in putting this resolution on the order paper. He recalled that Bertrand (who is from Terrebonne, Northern Quebec), "with the perseverance and persistency typical of the people from up north" was moving this resolution for the sixth time in the house. Nearly every one in the Province of Quebec, at least, is aware now of this resolution. Mr. Tremblay gave it a real boost—I hope we hear from him again.

St. Laurent has successfully piloted the Emergency Powers Act through third reading (it still has to pass the Senate) although, to our surprise, Mr. Drew insisted on it passing "division" instead of by consent. The P.M. made a very fine summary of the situation, when he closed the debate, emphasizing the point that, while building up the required strength to deter war, we want to maintain our standard of living at a reasonable level.

Red Paper Under Fire

Scene Outside of Hockey Forum in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Police Saturday night arrested nine persons who, they said, were selling a "Communist" newspaper called "Champion."

Although the paper carried a front page story about Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the Montreal Canadiens' hockey star, the anti-subversive squad said Richard had nothing to do with the paper and the front page picture of the Montreal hockey idol was used only to bait the public into buying the paper.

Some 500 copies were seized while hundreds more were strewn along the streets outside the Forum where the Canadians were playing the Chicago Black Hawks.

Police said that six men and three women were arrested and will be charged with selling papers without a permit.

MHO Satisfied At Co-operation

Citizens of Prince Rupert are to be congratulated for their "wholehearted response" to the public health unit's request that proper garbage cans be used, said Dr. McC. Black in his monthly report.

City scavenging department reports their work has been made "considerably easier," he said, but added there were still some offenders and hoped they would follow suit in helping to make Prince Rupert a cleaner place.

Many cafes have completed spring clean-up, the report said, and Dr. Black commended the one restaurant which had installed a mechanical dishwashing machine.

"This makes the work of the operators easier and ensures a sanitized article. We are realizing the end result of an educational program carried on by three sanitary inspectors over the past six years."

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

In a bridge game, the cards are shuffled, the cards are dealt, the bidding progresses, the contract is determined, the opening lead is made and the dummy hand goes down on the table.

All of this is preliminary skirmishing before the start of the real battle of the cards. Each side has tested its strength and decided whether to attack or defend in this particular engagement.

From this point on it is squarely up to the declarer either to make or to lose his contract. The bidding may have been perfect, the contract reached may be superb, but if declarer can't play the cards it's all for naught.

What I'm leading up to is this: I want to give you a series of articles on the play of the hand by declarer. And I want to illustrate these columns with hands played by my bridge-playing friends, Mrs. Keen, Mr. Masters, Mr. Muzzy, et al. There will be bad plays and brilliant plays, common examples and their exotic variations.

Is your dummy play already absolutely flawless? What about your handling of four-card trump suits? What about holding-up plays, ducking plays, unblocking plays, squeeze plays, even the rare and beautiful smother play? Perfect on all of these?

If so, the following columns will serve as sort of a review for you. But if your play isn't perfect (and Mr. Muzzy is the only player I ever saw who never admitted to an error) then these articles will help you improve your game.

We won't by any means concentrate on "once in a blue moon" situations. Rather the emphasis will be on the types of plays that come up in your bridge game all the time—simple, garden-variety good plays that you should make automatically, but sometimes don't.

And through it all will run the inexorable threads of humanism, the consideration of the ever present and the ever varying human element in bridge. Don't ever forget that for winning play you must—consider the people as well as the cards.

Tonight's train, due from the East at 10:15, was reported this afternoon to be on time.

THE EXPERTS Say...

PRICE CONTROLS—To have or not to have price controls is the question the Canadian Association of Consumers discusses in its latest C.A.C. bulletin to its 13,000 members.

On the "yes" side the organization finds:

1. Prices are at an all-time high and are still rising. "Intolerable and unfair conditions" are being created for stationary income groups.

2. As defence production grows consumer-goods shortages also will grow, creating increasing pressures on prices.

3. The world demand for raw materials is pushing up prices. "Though Canada can do nothing to control world prices, we might ease their pressure on our own people by controlling the prices of goods made here from imported goods."

On the "no" side:

1. Controls are expensive—"their cost may equal the savings we think they bring us."

2. Price controls entail wage and salary controls. To freeze prices one must exercise some control over the ingredients that go into prices. Wages and salaries are a big part of these ingredients.

3. Controls include costs such as lowered quality in products as manufacturers try to compensate for losses on controlled merchandise. "Not all the poor quality of war-time goods was due to lack of materials."

BIGGER TINS

The C.A.C. reports that consumers should find more 20-ounce cans of peas, beans and peaches on store shelves in the coming year. A total of 1,141,000 dozen 20-ounce tins of peaches was packed last year together with 937,000 dozen 15-ounce tins.

This is a direct reversal of 1949 when 2,271,000 dozen 15-ounce tins and 692,000 dozen 20-ounce tins were packed.

Reason for the change may be found in the fact that Canadian women prefer 20-ounce tins and through the C.A.C. made their preference known to the canners' associations.

More 20-ounce tins of peas and beans also were packed in 1950.

SALAD WEEK

Canadian Horticultural Council plans to sponsor a salad week in August. This was announced at the council's recent annual meeting in the capital. Naturally "the week" is planned to push home consumption of Canadian fruit and vegetables. It is also to interest housewife and restaurateur alike in turning out prettier salads.

TASTE IN FUTURE

A furniture man who has been in the business long enough to be able to generalize on what Canadians prefer to buy when they furnish a house, says the "young folks" are the ones who choose the light-colored furniture. The darker wood is bought by older persons.

Incidentally he has a tip for those setting out to furnish a house or room. Don't buy everything at once. Buy it piece by piece.

"Live with it a while," he says, "before introducing more items."

After all you want your home to reflect your own taste and personality—you can't accomplish this when you buy everything at once.

Fire Alarms At Week-End

Three fire calls were reported Saturday with one Sunday morning. At 9:10 a.m. Sunday the department was called to 392 Seventh Avenue East, where a small fire had occurred in the coal bin. The fire was out upon the arrival of the department. The Saturday fires answered by the brigade were: 2:35 p.m.—grass fire at Second Avenue and Sixth Street, caused by burning rubbish; 2:50 p.m. Second Avenue and Eighth Street—chimney fire; and 10:25 p.m. at Pesner Apartments—chimney fire.

HOUSEKEEPING

heat. There are three methods of cooking them, namely, simmering in water, cooking in the pressure saucepan, and simmering in water and browning in the oven. When simmering the meat in water, place it in water to cover, and simmer until tender, allowing about twenty-five to thirty minutes per pound. Be sure to keep the pot covered and the water just simmering. The second method, pressure cooking, requires approximately one-third of the time that it takes to simmer in water. This method is excellent for cooking these less tender cuts of meat. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, tell us that it is best to follow the manufacturer's directions for the particular type of cooker which the homemaker
owns. With the third method, simmer as directed above, then remove from the water, saving the cooking water for making soup. The picnic shoulder or cottage roll may then be glazed or covered with a topping similar to the topping used with smoked ham, then brown in a hot oven, 400° F. for fifteen minutes. When serving ham, apple rings are a delicious accompaniment.

With the left-over ham, treat
the family to a ham and vegetable casserole, or perhaps ham
fritters, served with maple syrup.
Another unusual way to use up the left-overs, is to make ham muffins and serve them with a crisp green salad for the luncheon course. Don't forget to use the water left over from cooking
the ham and make that favorite of Canadian dishes, pea soup.

ready. U.S. lobbying and pressure policies has delayed the final decision. But Alcan is still ready.

Its agreement with the B. C.
Government has been submitted to the Legislature. It provides, briefly, for:

1. Annual fee of about $225,000
a year for hydro-electric power.
2. Construction must start before June 1, 1953.
3. Company will pay 10 cents an acre for lands flooded by power storage reservoirs.
4. Company will pay land and school taxes on its land.
5. Company will pay municipal taxes on company property, and franchise, income and corporation taxes.

The agreement is based on the "first stage" of the Alcan plan, which calls for annual production of 150,000 tons.
Ultimate capacity of the full project would be about 500,000 tons a year. That's equal to nearly one third of the world record output of 1,673,000 metric tons in 1944, when war needs pushed smelters to capacity, and the high cost of operating U.S. plants was not a factor.

That's where Alcan's B. C.
plans are out in front.

To make aluminum, you need plenty of two things—bauxite
ore and electric power.

The bauxite ore may come from the company's developments in Jamaica or British Guiana. But—and this is important—it may come in the refined form of alumina, rather than the raw ore. That would mean an important saving in freight by ocean through the Panama Canal direct to Kitimat,
400 miles north of Vancouver.

It's estimated it would take four pounds of bauxite ore to produce a pound of aluminum at the plant; it would take only two pounds of alumina.

The other primary requisite is power—cheap power. What does Alcan think of the site
it has chosen? Here's what R. E.
Powell, president, told the special sub-committee of Congress studying the aluminum situation
in Washington in January:

"(We) have considered the availability of hydro-electric power in all parts of the free world and have selected the Nechako-Kitimat site as the most economical large power
site to be found anywhere."

Their site is made possible by a combination of nature and engineering ingenuity.

Mr. Powell outlined it clearly in the following statement to the U. S. committee:

"The Pacific coastline of British Columbia north of Seattle is marked by a continuous series of deep, narrow fjords running back in some cases 50 to 80 miles from the ocean itself. Towering above these fjords to height
sometimes of 8,000 to 10,000 feet
in the coastal range of mountains. Beyond the coastal range again is a highland of valleys and tableland which catch the heavy precipitation of rains and snow when moist winds sweeping across the Pacific Ocean strike the coastal mountains. As a result, the coastal interior is a network of lakes and rivers
most of which drain into the interior river system.

In the Tweedsmuir National Park area there is a chain of lakes feeding the Nechako River which flows east. It is our plan to dam this Nechako River system and raise the elevation of the tributary lakes to the westward to an elevation of approximately 2,800 feet above sea-level.

Approximately 100 miles west of the dam, where the impounded water would be backed up to the mountains, we would then drill large tunnels 10 miles through the solid rock of the mountains and drop that water through penstocks inside the mountains 2,800 vertical feet.
At the discharge of the penstocks on the ocean side of the mountains there would be a power plant built inside the mountain, 10 miles from tidewater at the head of a deep fjord.

Our hydraulic experts state
that in a power plant thus located we could develop a firm output of 1.6 million hp."

The power would be delivered by a 48-mile transmission line

northwest through rugged country to Kitimat. The cost—1.5 mills per kwh for the first stage (500,000 hp) and 1 mill
per kwh for the final stage.

STRATEGIC ADVANTAGE

If war needs make the plant necessary, would it be vulnerable to air or sea attack? On the contrary, says Alcan, it has many advantages:

1. The Nechako dam on the west will be a rock-filled dam
with an earth sill on the upstream surface. There won't be any gates; the spillway structure will be some miles from the dam, and will be a low-concrete section without gates.

2. The intake to the tunnels on the east (carrying the water down through the mountains)
will have little structural work above the surface, offering a poor target.

3. The penstocks themselves will be deep beneath the mountains, fully protected against any type of enemy attack.

4. The powerhouse itself will be in a cave one quarter of a mile inside a granite mountain. It will be 10 miles from tide-water at the head of a fjord 50 miles from the ocean, approachable only through a narrow gorge between precipitous mountains.

5. The transmission line from powerhouse to plant will pass between and over mountain ranges practically inaccessible except by helicopter and almost continuously blanketed in clouds.

6. The plant at Kitimat will be at the head of another long fjord, in a valley five miles wide, bounded by high mountains.

Those are other reasons why Alcan is ready to go ahead with its development. Its impact is already being felt in construction and business circles on the West Coast. But once they get down to business in earnest, it will mushroom.

Before it's finished, it will take 200,000 tons of steel; 24,000 tons of aluminum, and 4,000,000 tons of copper. It will take heavy electrical equipment, such as generators and transformers, long trains. And when it comes to petroleum coke, essential in the smelting process, may come numbered into the mountains

from refineries in B. C. or Al-British Columbia.
