Newcastle Wins Cup

Beats Blackpool 2 to 0—Tottenham Cinches League

LONDON @—Two second half goals by Centre Forward Jackie Milburn gave Newcastle United a 2 to 0 decision today over Blackpool in the English Soccer Cup final before 100,000 fans in Wembley Stadium.

The King and Queen watched the contest which climaxed Britain's soccer season. Milburn, the hero, was nearly through the scoreless first half when he was offside at crucial moments, once putting the ball into the Blackpool net only to have the goal called back because of offside.

Newcastle dominated the play throughout the second half and, although Blackpool stars, Stan Matthews and Stan Mortensen, both skimmed the bar and goalposts late in the game, the winners were the full two goals better for the day.

CNR Pension Boost Asked

OTTAWA @—The federal government was urged yesterday to increase basically the pensions of retired employees of the Canadian National Railways.

Led by John Diefenbaker (Progressive-Conservative, Lake Centre), Opposition members in the House of Commons pressed for a government increase in pensions to all Canadian National employees receiving $40 a month or less.

Transport Minister Chevrier said revision of the Canadian National Railways pension system was now being studied by a committee of employees and officials of the railway. He indicated that the government would not change the pensions until the committee has reported.

In the debate Mr. Diefenbaker said that more than 7,000 former employees of the Canadian National Railways were receiving less than $40 a month including 1700 who receive only the basic pension of $25. Many are in a condition bordering on destitution.

Mr. Diefenbaker realized that the government was now considering a contributory plan under which pensions of $40 a month will be paid to everyone 70 and over regardless of means. However, it likely would be next February before such legislation would be brought before Parliament. Something should be done immediately to relieve the plight of railway workers receiving less than $40 a month.

Fish Derby Is Closing

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—The Coalition government of Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies was returned to power in today's Australian parliamentary elections despite gains by the Labor opposition.

For Aid of War Widows

Pension Payments on Behalf Of Children To Be Doubled
OTTAWA (CP)—The government is going to give war widows a helping hand by doubling pension allowances paid on behalf of their children.

Veterans Minister Lapointe gave the House of Commons notice yesterday that he intends to bring in a bill to make this and other changes in the Pensions Act involving federal expenditure of about $100,000,000 a year for disabled veterans, war widows and dependents.

War widows will now be paid $75 a month pension for themselves plus $19 for the first child, $15 for the second child and $12 for the third and other children.

The minister believed the government intended to double pensions for children to $38, $30 and $24, respectively. Thus, under the amended law, a widow with three children would get $167 a month.

There is no intention to raise basic pension rates. Maximums are $125 a month for a married man without children and $94 for a single man.

The government has said, however, that it intends to provide supplementary payment for pensioners who are unemployed.

Press and BCHIS

PROVINCIAL cabinet ministers and even Prince Rupert's own MLA have been saying that the press has been unfair in its editorial criticism of hospital insurance affairs, particularly in regard to the recent hike in premiums and the co-insurance scheme.

They claim that the press has been largely responsible for the great hue and cry that has gone up on all sides over this hospital insurance business. The press may derive some satisfaction to itself at this admission of its power and influence. At the same time, it will resent any suggestions that it has been unfair.

Further, in the handling of the hospital insurance discussion, even if the press may have been critical, it is difficult to see that principles of freedom of the press were violated. The very fact that the press is free to criticize is the nub of true freedom of the press.

Now that the cabinet ministers and the legislative supporters of the hospital insurance policy have become convinced that the press has been doing their scheme a lot of harm, they might look to their own public relations which, with the possible exception of Mr. Anscomb's publicity organization, have been so deplorably deficient.

If the government gets out to really and effectively present its own side of the case, it will find the press fully co-operative. If the hospital insurance case is so worthwhile, it should be worth, for instance, supporting with some explanatory publicity so that the situation may be fairly elucidated. In fact, it is the duty of the government to see this is effectively done.

And anent this subject, the Vancouver Province has some timely editorial comment:

It is to be hoped that this wise reconsideration of requiring old age pensioners to give up part of their checks on entering hospital, will mark the beginning of better public relations for the hospital insurance administration. This newspaper has said repeatedly that it is not so much WHAT has been done but HOW it was done that has aroused the public.

The ministers must bear the brunt of public displeasure and it is from the ministers that sensible direction must come. They can not allow adding machine policy to be flung in the face of the public. If they do they will kill the hospital insurance scheme and kill themselves politically.

They must learn that people can be led but they don't like being pushed around.

Faith of Pioneers

MINISTER of Lands E. T. Kenney has called attention to pioneers of the north who did not live to witness the coming of Alcan and the immense economic growth it will mean. The minister's reference was a timely and fitting courtesy, as well as a happy reminder to survivors of far-off days. Of the thousands who have passed on, some settled in Skeena because they were not easily discouraged or vanquished by disappointment after having experienced both. They possessed the confidence that knows no weakness, felt a belief that could not falter and, in that faith, carried on to the end.

Prophetic Words

MORE than 50 years ago, Theodore Roosevelt, former United States President, wrote prophetic words about Russia. Some called them startling words.

He said: "... a problem very appalling ... if she ever does take possession of northern China and drill the northern Chinese to serve as her army she will indeed be a formidable power. But when Russia grows so as to crush Germany, the crushing will be once and for all."

Numerous prophecies—strangely borne out—about Russia, about American power, about American politics and labor movements were discovered in the Roosevelt letters at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He wrote of Russia: "Russia chooses to develop purely on her own line and resists the growth of liberalism. She may put off but cannot avert the day of reckoning. She will some day experience a red terror which will make the French Revolution pale."

Of American power, he wrote: "To be rich, aggressive, and yet helpless in war is to invite destruction."

Scripture Passage for Today

"Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit."—Matthew 28:19.

ONE WORLD AT ROME

ROME, ITALY.—After our longest separation in 29 years of marriage, my wife and I are reunited here in the Eternal City.

However, the gracious lady arrived by bus, from Naples with not quite all love in her eye.

In my enthusiasm for sea trips, I had sold her on the idea of crossing the ocean by ship, not plane. They had a really terrible Atlantic crossing on the U.S. Export Line ship Excambion (ocean's fault, not ship's).

"From now on, it's planes for me—you can have all the old ships you want," says the better half.

NATURALLY, IN THIS ancient, lovely and mighty city, we are seeing all the sights, the holy places of the Catholics, and the visible reminders of the time when Imperial Rome ruled most of the known world.

We are here now to help promote the cause of a different kind of international or, more precisely, supranational government. For we are in Rome this April, 1951, to attend the fourth meeting of the World Movement for World Federal Government. This is a loose federation of all organizations, anywhere in the world, who believe in the principle of "the parliament of man, the federation of the world."

THE CHAIRMAN of the meeting is the tough and wise old Scotsman, Lord Boyd Orr.

The famous food expert and Peace Prize winner told the first meeting that the choice for mankind was really very simple: More world wars or real world law.

Noted speakers from Japan, India, France and several other countries, including America and Africa, all stressed the same idea, but emphasized the urgency of the decision that mankind must make. Time was very short, many said at the first session. The real question was whether we would get real world law in time to halt the two-bloc struggle that is dragging mankind towards the greatest disaster in human history.

THE CONVENTION was opened by that great and wise statesman, the present Italian Foreign Minister, Count Sforza. He spoke first in Italian, and then repeated his speech in English, in which he is equally fluent. (The count spent many years in America as a democratic exile from Mussolini's Fascism.)

RIGHT AT THE OUTSET I came to the conclusion that the Count is a pretty smart operator. He was doing the glad-handing job on behalf of the government of Italy. Yet he very judiciously put his finger on the very crux of controversy at this convention:

Is it better to try for complete world government now, or would believers in the principles of world federation be better advised to move toward it step-by-step?

He made it plain that he favored the step-by-step process—he thought Europeans should concentrate first on federation of Europe, which was possible and practicable, rather than on the world goal at this stage.

However, he said, quoting some Italian poet or scripture, that there are many paths to God, so there might be different paths towards world government.

He cited Dante as being several hundred years ago an eloquent advocate for and prophet of the world government we are here to discuss and help plan.

THIS CONVENTION abounds in personalities—many of them famous names—but to me the most striking is a French priest. He is the "Abbe Pierre," who

Gifts of God

(By Rev. L. G. Sieber, First United Church)

At this time of year the Church often remembers particularly the providence of God. That leads me to the creation narrative in Genesis. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." ... "And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creatures after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind; and it was so." ... "And God said: 'Let us make man in our image after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.' ... "And God said, behold I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat." From the beginning God provided for man's physical life. Realizing this, and more, I thrill to the words of experience in Scripture: "O taste and see that the Lord is Good."

When we read the Sermon on the Mount we have Jesus Christ's words concerning God's care and goodness. He points to the fowl of the air and the lilies of the field saying: "Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

God has given us, too, the gift of language. So often we forget about this gift. By it we may communicate to each other thoughts and convictions and experiences of God's goodness and care of us. This vehicle is runs some kind of a Catholic orphanage in Paris, but is also a French MP. He has a fine war record in the anti-Nazi underground resistance and is honorary chaplain of the French Navy. Small, bearded and with close-cropped hair, he speaks behind beautiful, clear French that even we unfortunate who learned only Ontario high school French can follow him without the translating earphones.

ON THE FIRST day the convention declined to admit "observers" from the Partisans of Peace—that is the Communist-engineered organization which prompted such dubious, or bogus, hoax campaigns as the "Ban the Bomb" petition, even while Russia was promoting the aggression in Korea.

Needless to say, I agree completely with the convention's decision. It seems to me infantile, even fatal, to admit even as "observers" people who, consciously or unconsciously, act for World Communism, which believes in world government—but of a kind totalitarianly different from the world free democracy we seek to promote here.

Our kind is what Tennyson predicted:

Where the commonsense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe

And the kindly earth shall slumber wroth'd in universal law.

We mean democratic law, made for and by the people and not by any dictatorship.

In Rome, dictatorship is a very old story and also not so old a story. They have had it with Caesar's kind and Mussolini's. Never again!

Northern B.C. Art Arrives

Pictures from Smithers, Prince George and Quesnel for the Civic Centre Art Exhibition have all arrived and promise to make a very attractive display when hung. Among these exhibits are a large number of watercolors which is fortunate as the local work, due largely to Miss Faure's tutoring, is done chiefly in her favorite mediums, oils, charcoal and pastels.

In the Prince George exhibit Mrs. Woodburn has two excellent watercolors, one of "Forbidden Plateau" with the mountain flowers, and another of a familiar Indian smokehouse at Moricetown. Norah Elphicke has watercolors of Maligne Lake and Okanagan Lake that are both pleasant, but in several others she is using a system of many black lines that seems less fortunate.

Among the Quesnel pictures the work of Treva Burton is again outstanding, her watercolor of "Caribou Spring" and the lively "Sundance Canyon" both catching the spirit of the place and showing excellent craftsmanship.

Miss Seaman of Smithers has sent one small watercolor looking down on Stuart Lake, and a large one of a spot near the Silver King mine in the Babines. Bill Collison has sent three oils of Smithers and vicinity while Mr. Muheim has several he did in Switzerland.

Management And Labor

MONTREAL—The best basis for maintaining good relations between management and labor lies in the frank and honest discussion of all issues, declared Donald Gordon, C.M.G., chairman and president, Canadian National Railways, in speaking to the union-management co-operative movement, maintenance of way section.

The twenty-first annual meeting of railway union and company representatives has been in session under the chairmanship of Barton Wheelwright, chief engineer.

Mr. Gordon said that the annual co-operative meetings had in their 21 years of development come to be of tremendous service in promoting a spirit of understanding between the worker and the management. In the past year, he said, modifications have been made in the system's personnel and labor relations branches to facilitate their efforts.

Maintenance of way workers, were, he said, the backbone of the railway. Without their productive efforts, the operation of the entire system could cease to function. While the president of the road may in a general sense symbolize the railway's operations, the individual worker is the personification of the railway to the people in his community.

"The efficient operation of this railway is as much your concern as it is the management's," he continued. "We of the management do not consider ourselves miracle men, and we will always welcome suggestions on ways and means to improve our service to the public."

Railway officers who were attending the two-day sessions included S. Dingle, vice-president, operation, Montreal; E. A. Bromley, vice-president, purchases and stores, Montreal; B. L. Daly, member board of directors, Montreal; W. M. Armstrong, assistant vice-president, personnel, Montreal; H. C. Johnston, assistant

Blackwood on Bridge

By Esley Blackwood

Mr. Muzzy is acting very strangely these days. He affects an air of mystery and seems to be practically bursting with some gigantic secret. Let's omit He affects an air of mystery and seems to be practically the conspiracy of which Mr. Muzzy is a part.

Recently Mr. New, the avid kiltzer, acquired a wonderful new book. It has to do with count bidding. You add points for high cards, points for distribution etc., and then bid according to the total number of points in your hand.

On the few occasions when Mr. New has entered the game, he has been treated pretty roughly by the experts. But he figures that by using the methods recommended in this book he can bid with absolute accuracy. And thus he can get his revenge—especially on Mr. Champion.

Mr. New has interested Mr. Abel and Mr. Muzzy in his count bidding "system." Both of the latter have scores of their own to settle with the better players. "See?" said Mr. New, "if says right here that count bidding will do some of your thinking for you."

The three conspirators have spent hours studying the book and practicing counting up their hands. Mr. Muzzy has had a little trouble. As the bidding progresses you are supposed to add a few more points for this, that, and the other, and Mr. Muzzy sometimes gets confused. He adds wrong. This is easy to do, as on some hands you have to add up to 25 or 30 points—occasionally even more.

To help Mr. Muzzy, his friends have bought him an abacus, one of those gadgets with red and blue beads strung on wires, which kids use to learn how to add and subtract. I am told it is quite a sight to see Mr. Muzzy earnestly pushing the beads back and forth on the frame as he learns how to bid his hands "perfectly."

Mr. New let Mr. Dale in on the secret and the old chap didn't seem to be impressed. "I don't think your fingers, or your abacus for that matter, will take the place of your brains," he said.

But that did not discourage the boys. They are still practicing the count method.

Mr. Abel's book has several perforated pages in the front and it is suggested they be torn out and slipped into one's pocket and used to settle any disputes about count bidding which may arise at the table.

Mr. New and Mr. Abel with their pockets stuffed with rules and regulations, and Mr. Muzzy with his trusty abacus are planning to board the lions in their dens. All they want is a little more time to work out some of the more subtle points of count bidding.

Let's see what happens.

Football Spreading

C. H. Ashdown Tells Local Footballers How Association Brand is Thriving

At a meeting of the Prince Rupert Football Association in the Canadian Legion rooms last evening the members heard an interesting and informative talk by Cyril H. Ashdown, secretary of the B.C. Junior and Juvenile Football Association, who is actively engaged in Dominion-wide football promotion.

Mr. Ashdown told of the complete organization of football among school lads and juniors in Vancouver. Plans for the future call for even wider promotion of the game. His travels take him to various states and the growth of association football clubs there, he said, is amazing. The visits of touring English and Scottish football teams have given a big fillip to the game. Outside Vancouver and Vancouver Island there is increased interest in British Columbia and teams of good calibre are to be found in Powell River and Westview. Some of the native residential schools have good coaches and the standard of play is high. An exchange of information as to what was being done here with what he knew was being done elsewhere proved of interest.

LOCAL SITUATION
 Regarding the local situation there will be three teams—the Canadian Legion, the Heavy Battery and General Motors. The Columbia Cellulose will not be able to field a team at present but it is hoped that by mid-season they will have the nucleus of a team. The very strong feeling of the members is that the preparation of Algoma Park is a real necessity and when it is fit to use there will be a very much increased interest and participation in football and other sports. It is expected that Saturday evening games with native teams will be a feature of this year's activities. They were a notable success last year.

The Hanson Cup is now in the city and will be available for competition between visiting naval crews and a city team. With the visit of HMCS Ontario scheduled for June 20 it is hoped to arrange a game with her personnel.

The election of officers and reception of reports were postponed until the next meeting scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

J. S. Wilson presided and also present were Alex. Haig, Jock Davidson, Ken Yelland, Darrow Gomez, Jack White, Wally Price, Dick Cameron, J. Bowman and Stan Veitch.

Young players are wanted by the soccer team of the 120 H.A. Battery (Reserve Army), Darrow Gomez, president, said today.

Plans were made at a meeting held in the Armory this week for a practice to be held this Sunday at Acropolis Hill, weather permitting.

It is hoped to arrange a game between local players and the Port Edward team, who have been practicing steadily, Mr. Gomez said.

In his request for young footballers, the president stressed that they did not have to be members of the reserve army, although the team is sponsored by the local unit.

ray.. Reflects and Reminisces

As time wears along it is becoming less embarrassing to say "hundreds of millions of dollars." Yet there was a time, and not so long ago, when even to think in cold blood, of that much money (let alone say it) might have suggested medical attention.

Mr. Attlee understands how to conform with circumstances. The recent announcement to the effect that Britain's Labor government was on the verge of defeat also conveyed the news that the Prime Minister was in bed with a stomach ulcer.

A Social Credit member has told Hon. Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport, that travelling between Ottawa and Edmonton over the CNR there is a danger of spilling ginger ale on his vest. But why worry over a trifling incident such as waste of non-alcoholic refreshment?

Funds on a vast scale will be spent in manufacturing aluminum. All this will be done in the rugged territory somewhere less than a hundred miles south of Prince Rupert. Today, this region is being advertised as

Irene Dunne And Cowboy

"Never a Dull Moment" comes to the Totem Theatre here on Monday and Tuesday as a laugh-packed picturization of the tribulations endured by a sophisticated woman song writer who trades the luxuries of New York for a cowboy husband and his tumble-down home in the west. The picture takes advantage of the comedy talents of Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray in developing this situation based upon Kay Swift's novel, "Who Could Ask for Anything More?"

The motion picture also features songs written by Miss Swift. Miss Dunne, in her first co-starring role with MacMurray since "Invitation to Happiness," has scope for fun in her efforts to adjust herself to the problems of ranch life and to the rearing of two pucky step-children through a kaleidoscope series of misadventures.

The stars romp through the show with support by William Demarest, Andy Devine, Gig Perren, Natalie Wood and Philip Ober.

WATERFRONT -- WHIFFS

First Davis Raft Being Built at Prince Rupert—
Cottonwood Logs for Veneer Mill

Sitting in the living-room, one might never think that the plywood veneer used for finishing the home might have been brought at the risk and agility of a group of men now working 10 hours a day at the Prince Rupert dry dock.

These men, under K. G. Bosworth of the Western Plywood Co. Ltd., are doing their best to help Prince Rupert get homes.

For the past 10 days, working overtime, Walter Solnik, Art Logan, Armond Auriol and Bill Rothwell, Jr., have been putting together 800,000 board feet of Skeena River cottonwood logs.

"This will be the first Davis raft to be built in Prince Rupert," said Mr. Bosworth, who flew up here from the Vancouver mill to supervise the work.

If one should go down to the dry dock these men would be found "walking on water," or more precisely stepping like cats over a boom of logs.

They shuttle two big cottonwood logs from out of the boom, by jumping on an end, pike pole in hand, ride the logs into position. The big floating crane in charge of Art Logan lowers two long cables from its overhead derrick, run by the engine on the crane raft. These cables or wrappers—two of them—are grabbed by Rothwell and Solnik.

With a quick twist, each man puts a wrapper around either end of the logs, hooks it up to the crane. The signal is given. The crane begins to snort. The cables tighten, as the wrappers are being slowly pulled up.

All the while Solnik and Rothwell keep to the logs, straightening out the wrappers as the big crane is lifting. Just before the cottonwoods are lifted from the water, the men jump from the logs, ready to bring two more into line.

From there the two logs will be lifted high into the sky, and swung over to where two more men wait on a huge pile of logs being forced together into a strange looking raft.

The crane swings the logs dripping from the salt chuck over the heads of the two men waiting with pike poles to set the logs in position.

At a given signal the crane drops the logs, which thunder down into place on top of the others.

The two men unloading jump out, undo the wrappers which are soon swinging through the air as the crane yanks them from under the logs, ready for another load. As these logs are being forced into place on the raft, Bosworth is checking each one for board feet—placing the scaling figures in his notebook.

Mr. Bosworth believes that this will be the first Davis raft loaded in the port of Prince Rupert to his knowledge.

Valued at $50,000, the raft will be towed to Vancouver Monday by a Vancouver Island tug. The "boss" explains that the Davis raft, which has the logs piled over six feet into the air, with about 15 feet beneath water, is the only safe method of taking them through the rough northern waters. Hundreds of feet of cable are intertwined between the five sections called tiers that make up the raft.

Each section is the length of an average log.

Spruce and cedar logs are used to give the raft buoyancy, especially in the bottom layer which floats the raft. Here the foundation of huge poles are used, that run the length of the sections.

Charlie Currie uses his boat C.R.C. to shift the raft into good building position.

The cottonwoods have all been cut in the Terrace district, shipped by rail here.

Such jobs as these are what's speeding up the chances for Prince Rupert house-building.

KEEP MILLS GOING

And it is such men as Armond Auriol, who was laid off yesterday after twisting his knee during loading operations, who keep the mills going. Auriol hopes to be back with the gang again today. He was as much as born in a logging camp and like his comrades knows his business.

It was Auriol who took a 14-foot pike pole, plunged it down never before. The only difference is, everyone talks of the industry now starting. It used to be exclusively concern rain, and nothing else. That, as a subject, has officially ended.

Boston is host to two Canadian warships—one, the stately Magnificent. Entertainment is reported to be on a lavish scale. It is rumored there will be baked pork and beans even more than twice a week.

A brisk market for horsemeat is being developed in Edmonton. It is understood that ponies and well-fed colts are in particular demand. Nothing seems to be known concerning transactions in baby-carriages.

into the hold of a barge and rescued Herb. Chandler who had fallen unconscious from poison gas in a recent accident.

Auriol caught Chandler in the back of the shirt with the pike pole, twisted the point around the cloth and, with the help of Art Logan, pulled up Chandler to safety. There wasn't a scratch on Chandler.

Wally Solnik, who had already collapsed from the gas in an effort to save Chandler, was pulled to safety. Mr. Bosworth, who had gone into the hold with a rope, tying an end to Solnik, in turn collapsed from the gas before he could get out. However, all three men were rescued, given artificial respiration by Bill Rothwell and members of the city ambulance brigade.

Chandler is now logging near Terrace while the rest of the gang are still at the waterfront getting the logs out, in an effort to make us more comfortable at home.

OH, BOY... SUNDAY MORNING... I CAN TURN OFF THE ALARM AND SLEEP AS LONG AS I LIKE

BEFORE YOU GO BACK TO SLEEP, DEAR, WILL YOU FEED THE PUPS AND LET THEM OUT?

ON YOUR WAY UP POP, WILL YOU PLEASE BRING US SOME CINNAMON TOAST AND MILK?

NOW, I CAN GET BACK IN BED AND GO TO SLEEP... WHAT A DELICIOUS THOUGHT

THANKS FOR THE MILK AND TOAST, POP

OH, HOW LOVELY... SERVING BREAKFAST IN BED! I'LL HAVE ORANGE JUICE, EGG, TOAST AND COFFEE

I MIGHT AS WELL MAKE MY OWN BREAKFAST, TOO, WHILE I'M UP

NOW I CAN GO BACK TO SLEEP

YOU'RE A DARLING!

POP, MR. WOODLEY'S DOWNSTAIRS—HE WANTS TO BORROW SOMETHING

TELL HIM TO TAKE WHAT-EVER HE WANTS AND LET ME GO TO SLEEP

GEE, IT WAS SWEET OF DAGWOOD TO LET ME TAKE HIS LAWNMOWER... HE'S A SWEET GUY

CLATTER CLATTER

LISTEN TO THAT NOISE! IT WAS MY LAWNMOWER HE BORROWED!

NOW I CAN'T SLEEP THINKING ABOUT HOW MUCH IT WILL COST TO REPAIR THE LAWNMOWER

DAGWOOD, YOU'VE KEPT ME AWAKE ALL MORNING
