Great Britain Bearing Down on Diplomats and Atom Scientists

LONDON — Great Britain announced today she has cancelled the passports of a British atomic expert, who had planned a trip to Moscow, and of a Foreign Office official. Officials indicated that the action came as a result of the strict re-screening by British security officers after the disappearance of two British diplomats last May. Neither man was identified. Meantime, the government has drawn up a list of twelve important men who must not leave Britain without special permission, the Daily Express reported today. Diplomats, as well as atom scientists, are on the list, the paper says. It quotes no source. The Express adds that the list has been sent to all seaports and airports with the instruction: "If this person attempts to leave Britain, hold him up and report to the Home Office." The check is also a sequel to the disappearance of the diplomats, Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean, the newspaper says.

Plane Standing By at Prince Rupert To Join Search if Needed

Although not as yet officially instructed, Queen Charlotte Airlines at Prince Rupert had a Norseman seaplane standing by today in readiness to proceed, if called upon, to the rescue of a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane which has been missing since last night on a flight from Vancouver to Anchorage.

The plane is carrying 31 passengers and has not been reported for over 12 hours. It was to have reported at 1 a.m. but has not yet been heard from.

Official indications are that the plane may be down in the Alaska Panhandle area or over the Gulf of Alaska.

The plane was on a military charter on the Korean air lift.

In addition to the 31 passengers, of whom 28 are United States military men and three United Nations officials, there are seven crew members aboard. The crew are all from Vancouver.

Names of the military personnel, including the three United Nations officials, are being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The crew:

- Pilot—Captain Victor Fox.
- First Officer—Bruce S. Thomson.
- Second Officer—E. L. Krausher.
- Radio Operator—Fred Tupper.
- Flight Engineer—Arthur Boon.
- Stewardess—Kathleen Moran.
- Second Stewardess—Eva Lee.

London-New York 8 Hours

Britain Building Powerful New Jet Liner

LONDON — Great Britain is building a more powerful Comet jetliner which will be able to fly from London to New York with a stop at Newfoundland in about seven hours flying time.

Allowing for a 90-minute stop at Gander, Newfoundland, it should link London and New York in about 8½ hours.

Big propeller-driven aircraft at present in general use take about 16 to 17 hours for the trip.

The New York to London trip in reverse direction is quicker because of prevailing favorable winds.

The more powerful Comet is expected to be in the air before the end of this year.

WEATHER

Synopsis

The storm in the Gulf of Alaska which yesterday threatened the British Columbia coast is now slowing up and showing signs of moving off to the northeast. For this reason it appears unlikely that the southern B.C. coast will get relief from the prolonged drought at this time. Increasing moisture from the storm will give some slight increase in cloud cover southern B.C. Sunday and more widespread cloud with some showers throughout northern B.C. today and Sunday.

Forecast

North coast region—Variable cloudiness in southern sections, becoming cloudy thereafter. Cloudy with showers northern section. Sunday — cloudy with showers. Little change in temperature. Winds, light, at first becoming southerly (20) this afternoon and tomorrow. Lows tonight and highs tomorrow—at Port Hardy, Sandspit and Prince Rupert, 50 and 60.

Situation Amazing

NEW YORK (CP)—The amazing American League pennant race reached an almost unbelievable stage Friday as Cleveland and New York registered 1 to 0 shutouts, making the distance from first to fourth place only five percentage points.

Boston's Red Sox, whipped by Detroit 6 to 1, maintained a three-point edge on Chicago as the White Sox fell before Washington 2 to 1 in 10 innings.

The Yankees nipped Ned Garver and St. Louis Browns on Tom Morgan's three-hitter while Cleveland squeaked past Philadelphia in 10 innings on Mike Garcia's four-hitter.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

In the National League, New York Giants moved into second place, eight games off Brooklyn's pace, by whipping Cincinnati 11 to 5. The Dodgers, behind Preacher Rowe, trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 2.

Philadelphia nipped Chicago Cubs 4 to 3 on Rich Ashburn's single with the bases loaded in the 11th inning. Boston Braves, scoring six runs in the first inning on only one hit, trounced Pittsburgh 11 to 6.

Louis And Walcott?

CAMDEN, New Jersey (CP)—Jersey Joe Walcott's manager said yesterday that Joe Louis has asked him for a title fight with Walcott.

Felix Boccicchio, manager of the new heavyweight boxing champion, said: "I told Joe it was OK with me if it was OK with the International Boxing Club."

Louis, asked for comment on a report that he might fight Walcott, told a reporter in Detroit that he had not talked with anybody about the proposed fight "but I sure hope it's so."

That statement, however, was made before Boccicchio told reporters he had already talked with Louis.

Up to now it had been generally assumed that the next fight for the 37-year-old Walcott would be a return match with Ezzard Charles in September.

Ouster Not Anticipated

LONDON (CP)—Move of six Conservative Members of Parliament to seek an ouster of the "Red" Dean of Canterbury from his office, has aroused much interest but it is not seriously expected the government or Parliament will comply.

The members say that the Dean, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, aged 77, who is known for his pro-Communist views, is guilty of preaching "subversive and heretical doctrines and have resolved to urge the House of Commons to ask the King for his removal.

Korean Cease Fire Talks Are Put Off To Later in Month

MUNSAN, Korea (CP)—Korean cease-fire talks at Kaesong were recessed today until July 25 at the request of the Communist negotiators. The Reds said they wanted the recess to enable both sides to study proposals thus far presented.

United Nations headquarters said in a statement that the United Nations had agreed to a temporary halt but "sees no reason for such recess in view of agreement reached thus far" on points it considers necessary for an agenda.

Unofficially it is reported that the Communists need time to receive further instructions to deal with the United Nations' adamant stand against withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

Equilibrium Of Far East

LONDON — The assassination of King Abdullah of Jordan may undermine the precarious stability of the whole of the Middle East.

Firmness of King Abdullah's administration, backed by the most efficient army in the Middle East, the British-officered Arab Legion, was generally recognized as a big factor in maintaining the uncertain armistice which followed the end of the Palestine fighting of 1948 and 1949.

The death of this strong ruler may unleash ambitions throughout the Middle East for effective control of the "fertile crescent" states—Syria, Iraq and Jordan.

The assassination has disturbed the uneasy balance of power which has held Israel in delicate relationship with the Arab states and sparring forces in Syria, Iraq and Jordan which seek to dominate the crescent.

Rev. and Mrs. L. G. Sieber and family are leaving by car tomorrow for a month's vacation at Lakelse Lake and elsewhere in the interior.

Mounties Going to Detroit Birthday

DETROIT—At a 250th birthday parade in Detroit, a detachment of Canada's RCMP will take part. It will be the second time in history the Mounties have paid a formal visit. The group will be hand picked, from Ottawa. Another unit in the parade will be the Royal 22nd Regiment band from Quebec.

Eds Seize Oil Works

HONG KONG — Peiping announced Saturday the seizure of all property of 18 American oil companies in China.

The companies are Standard Oil, Caltex Ltd, and Chung Shing Oil Co.

The Reds last December seized the seizure of all American property in China. The oil companies had been under strict control since then although, they had not been physically until July 18.

If You Talk To Princess

OTTAWA—Howard Measures, former chief of protocol, gives some advice on behaviour to those who will meet Princess Elizabeth on the forthcoming visit to Canada. "Never gush," he advises, "but just be yourself." When first greeting the Princess, one should say "Your Royal Highness." Addressing her later, one may say merely: "Mam."

Peace and Democracy For Europe Foreseen by Local Man After 3-Year Visit

Victor Basso-Bert, former city alderman, home spending three years travelling, observing and living in his native Italy, is highly optimistic as to the future of Europe. He is confident that there will be no further Russian aggression for it would mean Russia has not the means, resources or the organized capacity to wage a scale war. Within six months she would be lacking anything in a war of attrition. His opinion is that Europe is due a long period of peace," he said.

Communism is no serious danger outside of the Iron Curtain, says Mr. Basso-Bert. "It may be noisy but it is powerful, particularly since political groups are uniting against it."

Extremes such as Communism, Nazism and radical socialism are a thing of the past—the peace of Europe are just as open to them, after bitter experience, as they are to war. But the majority of the people of Europe now realize the dangers of Communism and would resist it.

A United States of Europe, which will take in all countries outside the sphere of a now contained Iron Curtain, is on the way, asserts the local man. It is a matter of "have to" for survival economically if not defensively.

"And Europe is still going to be the centre of the world," Mr. Basso-Bert confidently asserts. Two hundred and seventy-eight million people outside the Iron Curtain are on the way to uniting and, with the support of the Anglo-Saxon race—the British Commonwealth and United States—democracy will surely prevail."

Italy and France, for example, are already practically pledged to unite economically although no formal pact has yet been made. A joint economic commission has been nominated and trade exchange between the two countries has multiplied five times. They are co-operating to mutual benefit even in the agricultural industries. France is pledged to use Italian labor which Italy has undertaken to supply. Poles and Czechs, now behind the Iron Curtain, are no longer available as laborers to France.

Canada can play a useful part in connection with the rehabilitation of Europe by simply opening her vast areas to immigration of excess peoples from Eu-

Canada's Water Power

CANADA, industrially, is a child of the electrical age, fed by waterpower.

"It would be difficult to name a country to which the rise of hydro-electric power has been of greater economic significance than it has to Canada."

"In the production of electricity from water power, Canada is surpassed only by the United States; and, if steam-generated power is included, possibly also by Russia and Germany."

"Installed capacity at the end of 1950 was 22 per cent greater than at the end of the Second World War and 55 per cent greater than in 1937, and a further addition of some eight per cent is being made this year."

"Only a fraction—perhaps 25 per cent—of Canada's vast hydro-electric potential has so far been developed: it is officially estimated that water-power resources known and evaluated at present would support an installed capacity of 55,000,000 horsepower."

"Many of the large undeveloped sites are, of course, in remote areas from which power cannot be economically transmitted to the places where it is most needed."

"The large reserves in northern areas seem likely, however, as in the past, to facilitate the development of mineral discoveries. Moreover, high-voltage transmission may in time make many of these northern power resources more accessible."

"The magnitude of the steam plants under construction makes clear why Ontario is urging an immediate start on the St. Lawrence seaway, with or without United States participation in the navigational part of the project."

"All over the country, new hydro-electric facilities are being built in the effort to meet a steadily rising demand—a demand fed by the needs of new pulp and paper, mining and metallurgical developments; by the great activity in the heavy industries; by the rapidly increasing use of electricity in manufacturing generally; and by a mounting commercial and domestic use of power associated with higher living standards of an expanding population."

Migration is Answer

AN ARTICLE in the New York Times points out that Western Germany with a critical over-population of 4,000,000, Italy with 3,000,000, Austria with 500,000 and Holland with 100,000 are the crux of the problem of staying the advance of Communism.

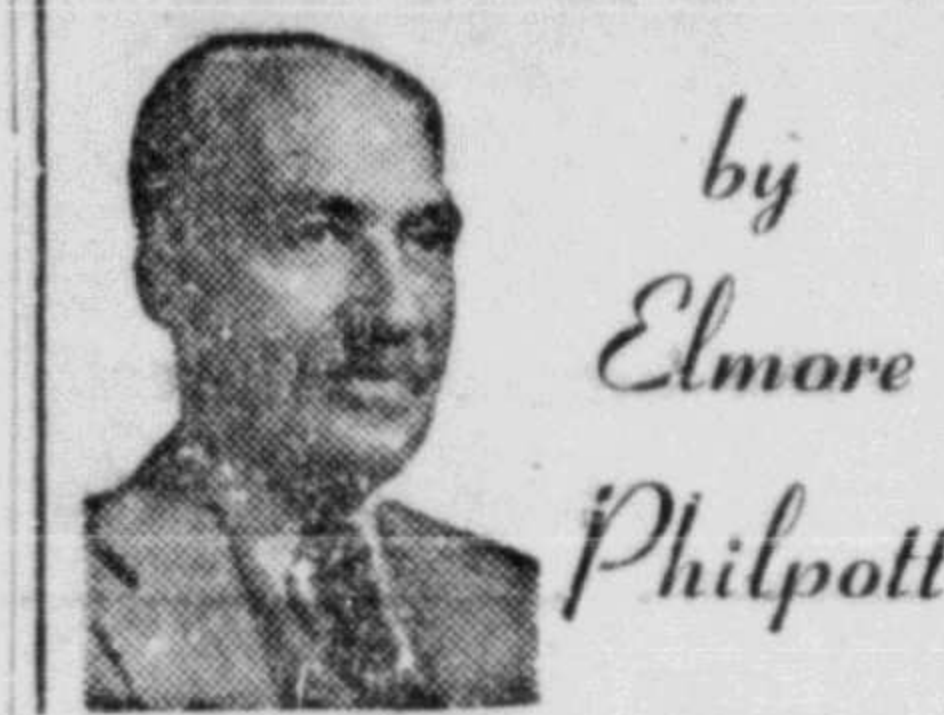

Against this picture of too many people trying to live on too few economic resources there is another. In North and South America, in Australia and, to a lesser extent, in France, there are resources that are crying out for the workers necessary for their development.

There is little doubt that such action would materially improve the western position in Europe, but it would materially improve our own. Canada has boundless resources. It is now as close as may be to full employment, leaving no overplus of workers for new enterprises that require manpower.

Scripture Passage for Today

"Thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise."—Isa. 60:18.

As I See It

Chiang and Spain

I WAS SITTING in the lounge of a cosy little London hotel, reading the paper, when an American opened up on me.

"When I get back home," he said, "I'm going to tell everybody that we haven't got a single ally in all the world."

Much to my wife's disgust, I never argue with strangers. I just listened. It seemed he was boiling mad because, over a drink, he had heard a British steel man accept an order from a Canadian for a thousand and twenty tons of steel per month.

Even I broke my fixed rule, in the end, and got into a mild argument with the stranger. It was too much to hear him say that they didn't have a "real ally."

"Well, if you are going to tell them that you haven't got what you call a real ally, maybe you had better tell them why this is so."

I proceeded to tell him how many Canadians and Britons felt about the U.S. attitude towards Chiang Kai-shek.

"How did they know MacArthur wasn't driving up to the Manchurian border of China, where he would step aside and let Chiang's troops keep on going?"

I told him how both the British government and the Canadian government clearly foresaw and, alas, too politely warned of the mix-up that might result from the half-right, half-wrong U.S. policies re Korea and Formosa.

He retorted: "Well, then, if that is how the Canadian government felt about it, why did they go into Korea at all?"

My answer was that Canada went in because we have always stood for collective defense against aggression. We had to choose between evils.

WE DO NOT know whether the Red government of China would have interfered in the Korean war in any event.

LET US NOT make the greatest mistake of this age. Whatever we do, let us keep the close association that has developed amongst the Western democracies. If we take the right road, WHY NOT A STROLL?

There are parts of the city where tourists, as well as children and citizens, cannot help but see examples of conduct for which vandalism is too weak a term.

Joe Walcott says he always reads the Bible before a fight and prays between rounds. This has never been considered a feature of contemporary pugilism but, speaking offhand, it's a useful thing to keep in mind in a world that keeps getting less easy to live in.

No popular song has yet appeared in Korea and, according to the progress of cease-fire negotiations at Kaesong, just how soon is open to question.

A Vancouver resident struck a man in the face and is now up on a charge of manslaughter. Over in the States, another man, wearing gloves, hit a fellow named E. Charles for several minutes. He cleaned up a fortune, as well as a lot of praise.

Services in the Church

Saturday Sermon Living in the Word of God

REV. H. O. OLSON (St. Paul's Lutheran Church) "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life that I know live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Luther says of Paul he had the same voice, the same tongue, before and after his conversion. Before his conversion his tongue uttered blasphemies. But, after his conversion, his tongue spake a spiritual and heavenly language.

Paul was an ambassador of God's plan of salvation. When he was persecuted he confessed that he was only a messenger. He was sent by God, and was confident in that truth.

Remember what Jesus said unto His disciples in John 4:35: "I say unto you, lift up your eyes and look unto the fields for they are all white unto harvest."

Paul lived and preached the truth before all people. He was not ashamed. He loved them with a spiritual love, realizing that, unless they repented and amended their ways, they would be forever lost.

We, too, must remember that we have many people in our country who willingly turn their backs upon God and the church. They are not under the influence of God's Word.

We need to be confident in the truth we possess even as Paul. We need to remember that men in times past have given their lives to protect the Word of God that we have today.

Paul stood firm, defending the truth like a rock that could not be moved. He was willing to give his life for God's Word. He was concerned about one thing namely to do God's will, that his renown could come to knowledge of the truth and find peace with God.

Hilda Chichester Skinner Sees Princess Elizabeth

Mrs. Hilda Chichester Skinner of Copper City, in Britain for the Festival, has been seeing a lot of Princess Elizabeth. "She was marvelous on her horse (side saddle) at the Trooping of the Colors on the King's Birthday," writes Mrs. Skinner. (The state of the King's health prevented His Majesty from attending but the Princess went in his stead.)

Then Mrs. Skinner also saw Her Royal Highness in her car and twice within two feet in a shop. "The Princess is not like her pictures," the Terrace woman writes. "She is as small as I am—very dainty and pretty." "Three policemen tried to hold me down at the Trooping of the Color but could not. Next day I met two of the policemen again at Trafalgar Square. They said: "Hello. It's nice to see you again. Are you still taking pictures?" Mrs. Skinner, who has been receiving treatment for her badly crippled left hand, is still in London and has barely seen the Festival as yet, being so en-

HIGH EXPLOSIVE MISSILES

Types of Bombs—

1. Those causing maximum blast effect with negligible fragments.
2. Those producing both dangerous blast and fragments.
3. Armour piercing type for special targets, causing damage by blast fragmentation and earth shock.

Effects—

1. Impact. 2. Blast. 3. Fragmentation. 4. Earth Shock.

1. Any bomb will cause damage by force of impact even if unexploded.
2. Blast will break windows—and may remove roofs and, in a limited area, collapse ordinary houses.
3. Fragmentation, besides inflicting casualties can cause structural damage. This is also true of debris which may be flung violently from craters or damaged buildings.
4. Earth shock, in addition to being produced by impact is produced by bombs exploding underground.

Anti-Personnel Bombs—These damage chiefly by fragmentation. May have delayed fuses or only explode if subjected to movement. Should you find one intact, do not touch it. Report its discovery to your warden or police. Parachute mines and flying bombs cause damage, chiefly by blast effect. Rockets damage by blast and earth shock.

Atomic Bombs—Although the atomic bomb damages by heat flash and gamma rays, it is essentially a blast weapon of huge destructive capabilities. Its chief effects are:

Heat Flash—Effects up to approximately two miles. Flying glass and debris at greater distances.

Radio Activity—At zero fatal—three-quarters of a mile 50%—beyond this relatively few deaths.

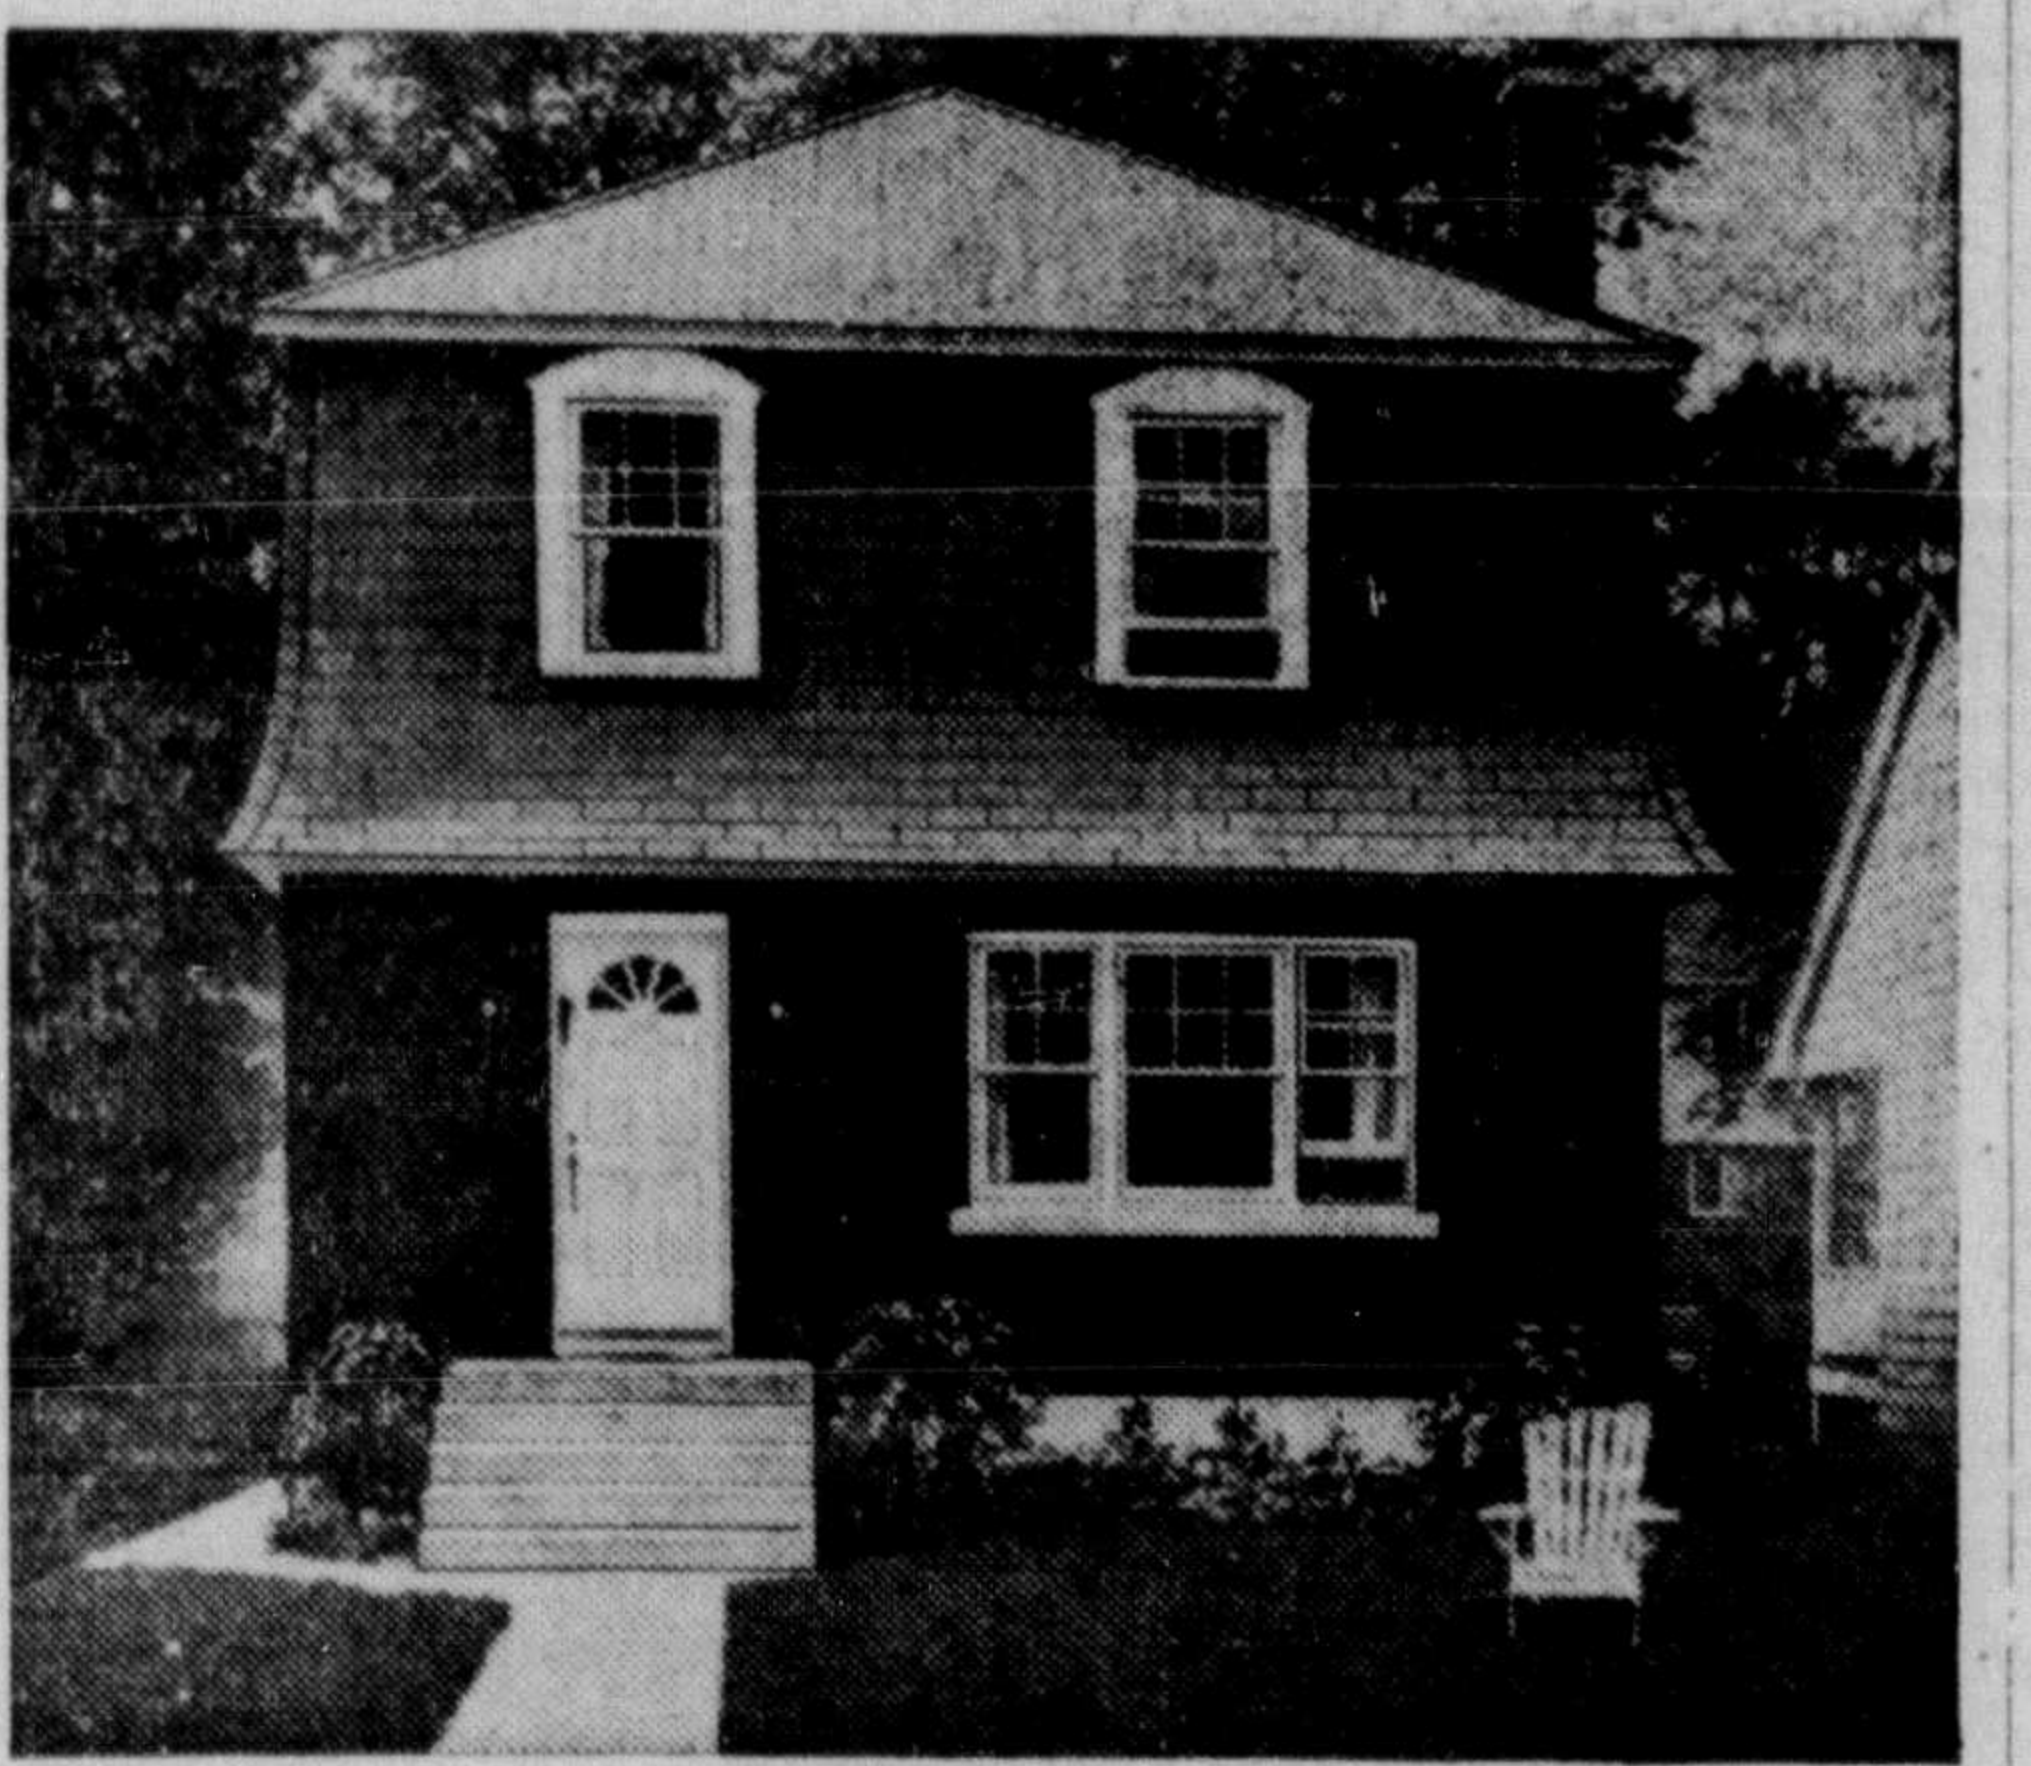

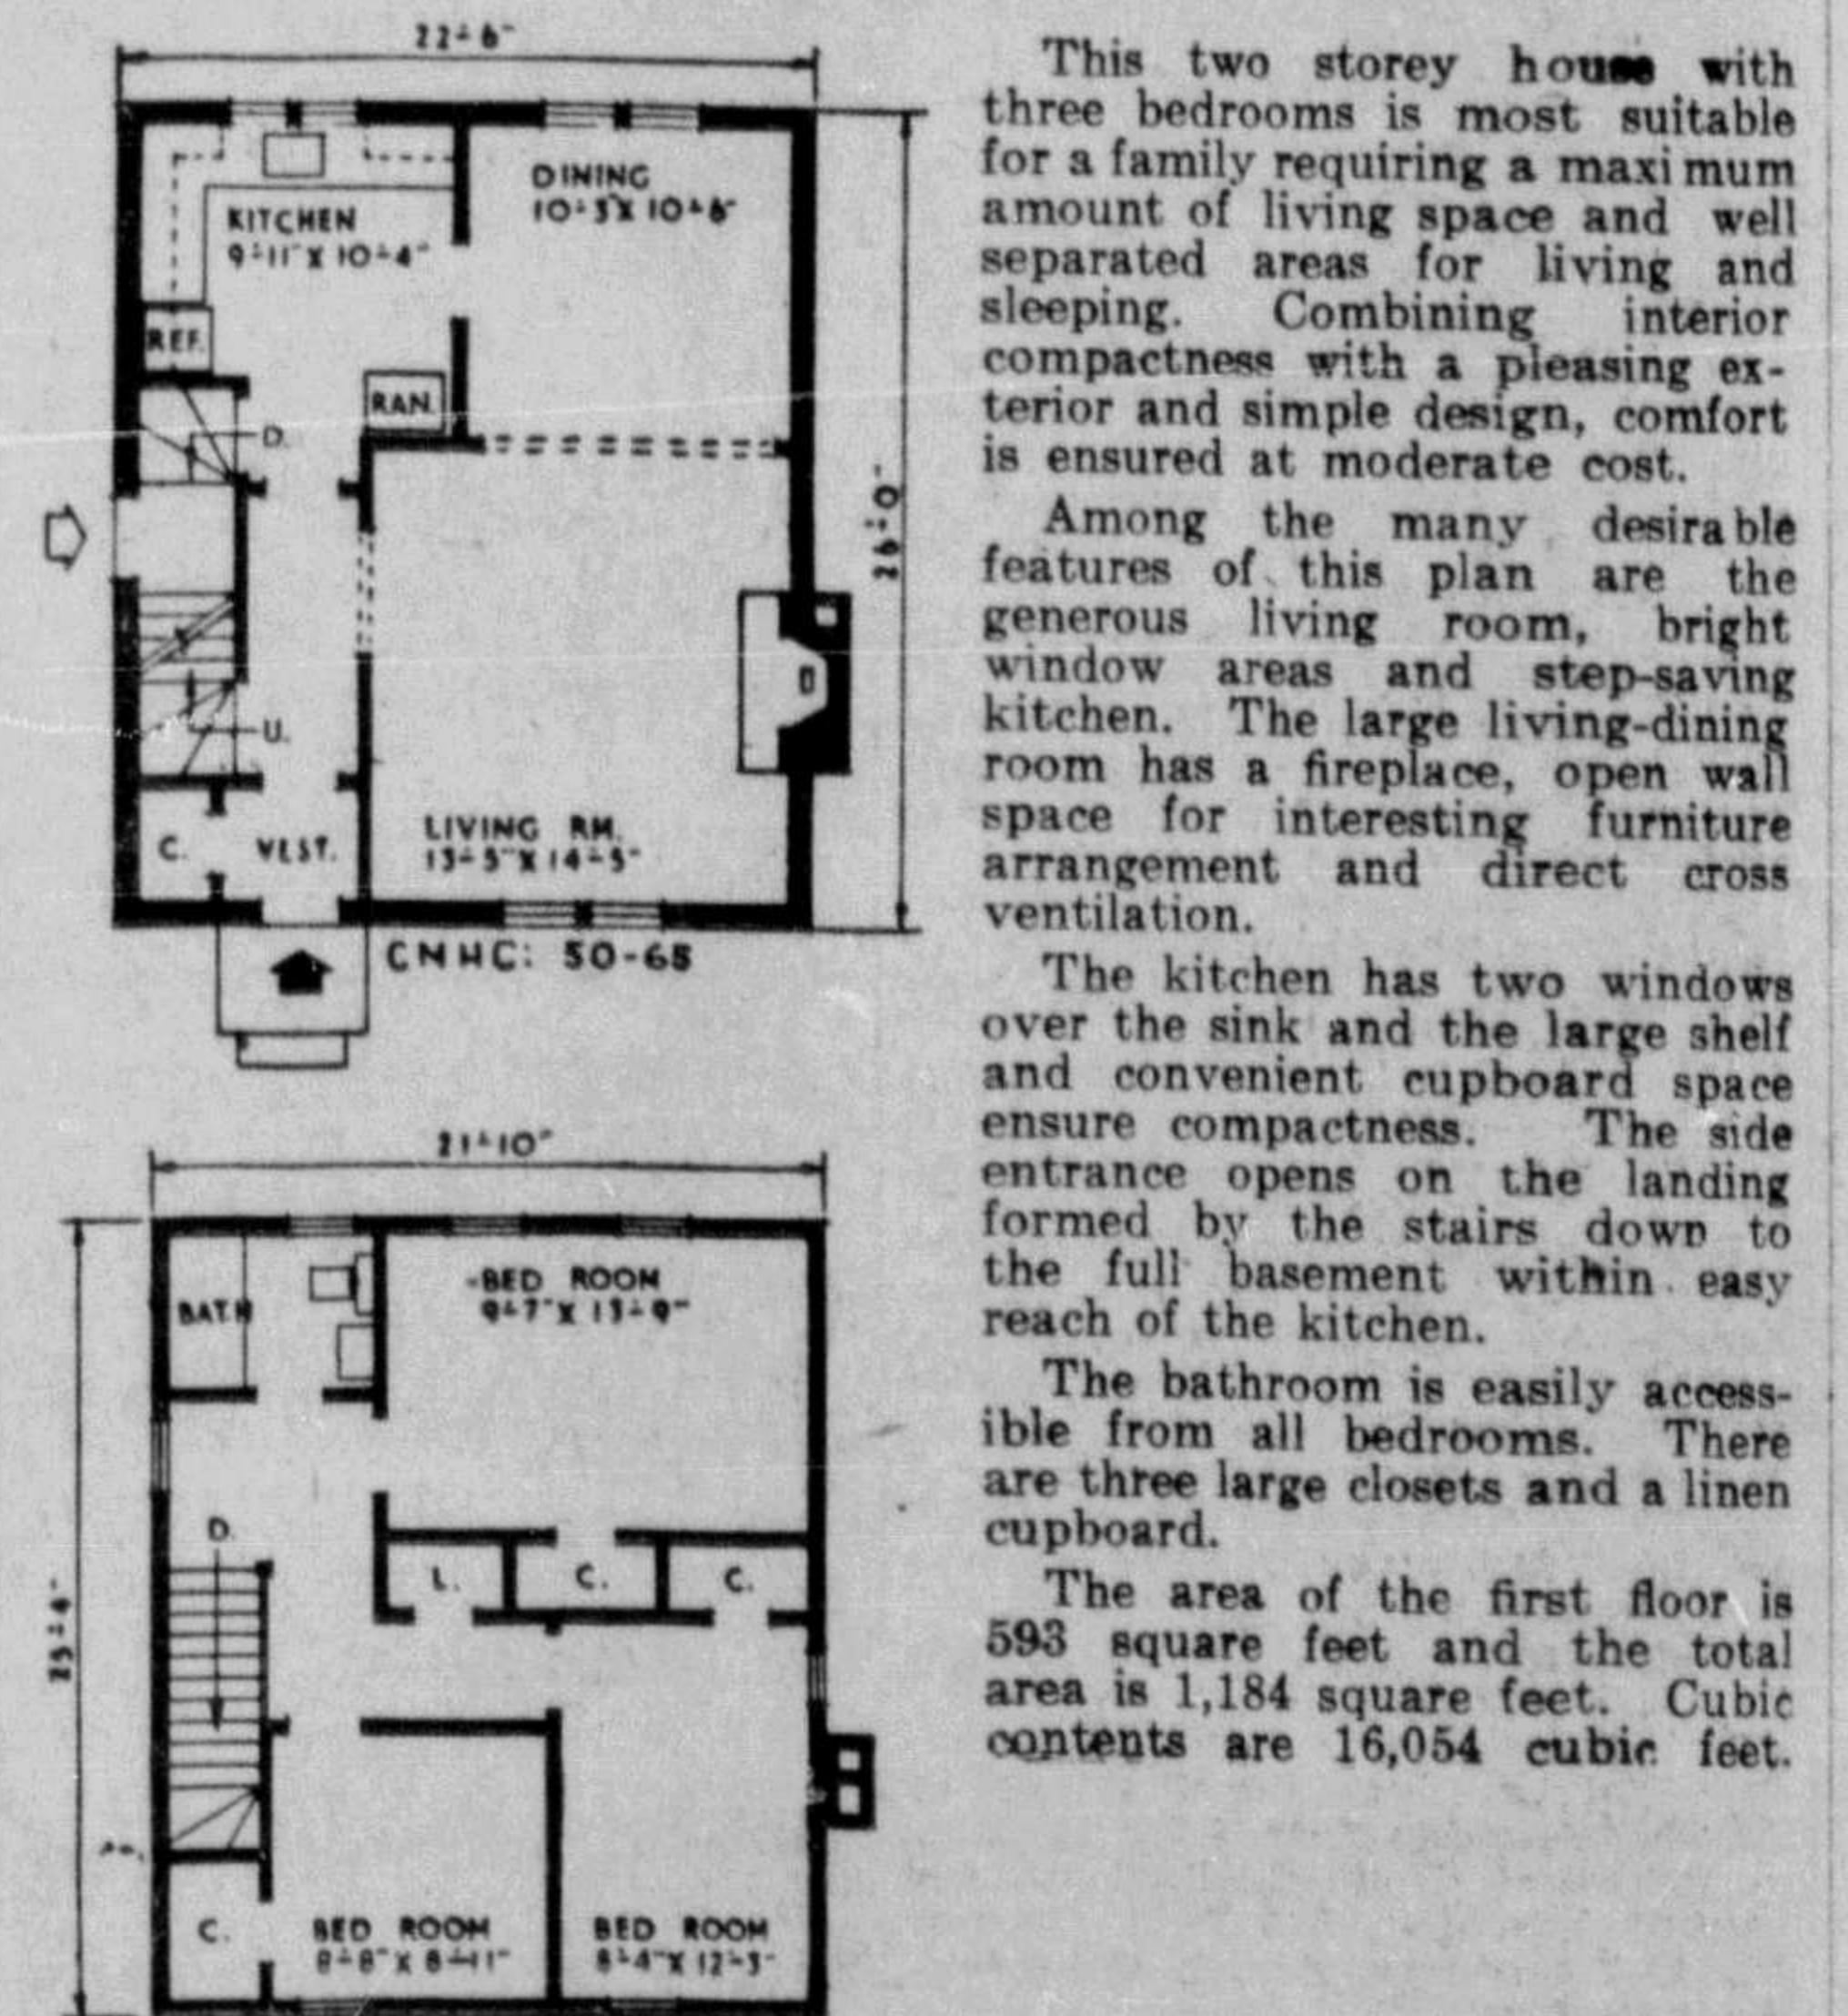

Buildings—Within radius of one mile from central burst estimated 30,000 houses demolished. From one to one and a half miles further 35,000 require major repairs, thence for two and a half miles 50 to 100,000 require minor repairs.

Protection—Investigations made indicate that the protection designed to resist the effect of normal high explosive missiles (other than direct hits) will give some protection against the atomic bomb. The fundamental principles of protection remain.

They are as follows:

1. In The Open—If a bomb is going to strike very near it can usually be heard for about two seconds. Act at once to protect yourself. Do not run for cover.
 - (a) Throw yourself flat.
 - (b) Lie face downwards and clasp hands behind your head. Raise the chest off the ground resting on the elbows so as to prevent internal injuries.
- NOTE: If you can, roll into a gutter or next to the curb to avoid debris; in open country, a fold in the ground or ditch.
- (c) When very near building or other cover—Walls, archways, and doorways give protection. Shock is transmitted through walls and therefore do not lean against any part of the building and do not forget your head is your most vulnerable part.
- (d) When inside a building—Keep out of the direct line of a window or door. Get near an inside, not outside wall. Flying glass is highly dangerous.

N.H.A. DESIGN-OF-THE-MONTH

This two storey house with three bedrooms is most suitable for a family requiring a maximum amount of living space and well separated areas for living and sleeping. Combining interior compactness with a pleasing exterior and simple design, comfort is ensured at moderate cost.

Among the many desirable features of this plan are the generous living room, bright window areas and step-saving kitchen. The large living-dining room has a fireplace, open wall space for interesting furniture arrangement and direct cross ventilation.

The kitchen has two windows over the sink and the large shelf and convenient cupboard space ensure compactness. The side entrance opens on the landing formed by the stairs down to the full basement within easy reach of the kitchen.

The bathroom is easily accessible from all bedrooms. There are three large closets and a linen cupboard.

The area of the first floor is 593 square feet and the total area is 1,184 square feet. Cubic contents are 16,054 cubic feet.

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE (AP)—Captain J. R. B. Longden of the royal navy, naval attaché of the British embassy in Washington, D.C., and B. C. Ogden, British consul of the Pacific Northwest area of the United States, have left Elmendorf air force base to tour the Alaskan theatre after having spent four days here as guests of the Alaska command.

Itineraries of the two British representatives differ, but they will jointly inspect several naval bases. Mr. Ogden's trip is one of his periodic visits to the Territory.

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Mr. Dale's brilliant ducking play on this hand meant a difference of three tricks in his favor. It irritated Mr. Champion to be shut out of the bidding on his good hand. He thought of doubling four spades but his better judgment prevailed. And it was well that it did.

The opening lead by Mr. Champion was the king of hearts. Before playing to this trick, Mr. Dale looked the situation over carefully. He wished he had been dealt a singleton club. Then he might have had a chance to make the hand by setting up dummy's club suit for diamond discards.

Of course, he could set up the clubs even though he held a doubleton in the suit. But that would involve the risk of letting Mr. Abel gain the lead and, if he did, it was practically certain the enemy would promptly cash three quick diamond tricks. Then a play occurred to Mr. Dale which would enable him to set dummy's clubs without losing a trick in the club suit itself. He ducked the opening lead, permitting Mr. Champion's king of hearts to win.

Mr. Champion glared suspiciously at Mr. Dale. For once the great man missed the right defence. Instead of shifting to a trump he continued with the queen of hearts. Dummy's ace won and the trick of clubs was discarded from the closed hand.

Now Mr. Dale cashed the ace of clubs and led a low club which he ruffed with the nine of spades. A small spade to the eight spot put him in dummy for another club lead which he ruffed with the 10 of spades. Crossing his fingers for luck, Mr. Dale next led to dummy's queen of spades.

When the spades broke 2-2 it was all over. Mr. Dale pitched all of his diamonds on dummy's three good clubs, making six-odd on the hand.

"Luck, luck, luck!" roared Mr. Champion.

"Luck and good play," corrected Mrs. Keen.

Carrier Pigeons Used 100 Years Apart

Even in these days of speed and more speed, an old-fashioned method occasionally meets and deals with a modern emergency.

Back in 1851 when Reuters News Agency was founded, carrier pigeons were among the means Julius Reuter used to bridge the English channel. On D-Day, June 6, 1944, pigeons once again flew home across those waters—with progress reports of the landings. The feathered couriers were called into use because of the necessity for radio silence during the operations.

This incident is one of many dealing with the history of newsgathering in "Reuters' Century," by the Cambridge historian Graham Storey. The book is published in London by Max Parrish; in Canada by Clarke Irwin.

The author, a Fellow of Trinity Hall, recounts a stirring success story which had its beginning in the summer of 1851, when the founder, Julius Reuter, assisted by a 12-year-old office boy, set up business in London in two small rooms.

In those days news transmission depended on limited telegraphic facilities, pigeon-post, trains, slow steam-packets and messengers on horseback. Dispatches sometimes took months to reach London.

Today, with a staff of more than 2000, Reuters has developed into a world-service. Its newsrooms on Fleet Street operate around the clock every day at the year.

The contrast in old and new methods of communication is graphically told by Mr. Storey in accounts of two events.

When President Lincoln was assassinated in April, 1865, Julius Reuter was able to score a two-day world "beat" through Wheat and oil are commodities for the supply of which the country depends much on importation. During the last year, however, oil has been brought into production in the Po Valley and drilling is still going on in hope that a supply will be brought in, measuring up somewhat to the country's needs.

Agricultural production of Italy is substantially up since 1938 but heavy industry is down. Should coal and iron from Germany and France become available under the Schuman Plan, that would relieve the heavy industry situation. Mr. Basso-Bert admits that the Marshall Plan has been keeping Italy going economically.

Rent control and currency devaluation have made rental housing a completely unprofitable business in Italy but under the Fontani plan, whereby government, employers and employees get together with complete employee ownership the eventual result, thousands of fine new apartments are being built.

Unemployment and low incomes, however, comprise the lot of many Italians. The dole is 40 cents a day. Large numbers of Italians would emigrate if they had the chance. They would go anywhere.

Nevertheless the North American way of living—good dressing, entertainment and games—is becoming general in Italy—particularly among the tradespeople who have fairly good incomes—but spend their money as they earn it.

Mr. Basso-Bert made it his business to see all of Italy as it is today. From north to south, he did not miss a big city and he also got into the country. For the first time he visited Sicily and he also went mountain climbing not only in the Italian Alps but also in the French and Swiss. He saw a good deal of France as well.

He returned home, travelling by motorship Vulcanica from Genoa to Halifax.

And, after it all, Mr. Basso-Bert is glad to be back in Prince Rupert and gratified to see the progress that has been made since he left.

"We pioneers the came here early in 1909" were right after all," he commented. "We had the vision of great things for Prince Rupert even if we may have come too soon."

Seventy-two years old now and the picture of browned health, this pioneer says he is well satisfied to be home and settle down. But it was a hesitant "no" he gave a questioning reporter when asked if he thought he would ever go back to Italy again.

MODERN SPEED
Last November when an attempt was made on the life of President Truman, the news was flashed from Washington over the agency's radio beam to London. Less than five minutes after the first shot was fired, every Reuters receiving point throughout the world had the start of the dispatch.

The book tells of many other history-making moves to get out the news.

There was that day in 1859 when the world anxiously awaited

ACCIDENT VICTIM—Andrew Greent, Montreal fur designer born in Czechoslovakia, told police he was struck by an automobile June 5 and taken to a mysterious house, put to bed and nursed by a woman. Later, he said, he was driven from the house, put in a taxi and taken home. His story came to light when anxious relatives took him to a hospital. (CP PHOTO)

ed word from Napoleon III on strained relations between Austria and France.

Reuters France the exclusive use of the Paris-London telegraph line and as Napoleon was delivering the oration which was to mean war, the report was being rushed by messengers to newspaper offices in London.

Another incident was the agency's exclusive report on the relief of Mafeking one of the thrilling stories of the Boer War. A Reuters correspondent, permitted freedom of movement with the Boer forces, succeeded in reaching the Portuguese East Africa frontier with the news. There he persuaded a locomotive driver to take his story to the nearest telegraph office. He paid the engineer 5 to hide the message in one of his luncheon sandwiches.

But Mr. Storey's record is not only a biography of the agency's many-sided activities and progressive growth. It also embraces the historical march of gathering and news throughout the world.

Reuters once faced the danger of nationalization. The agency, however, resisted that and developed as an independent organization, free of government or any other form of outside interference.

In 1941, a trust was drawn up guaranteeing "Integrity, independence, freedom from bias of the service" would be preserved. It would never pass into the hands of any single interest.

Indian Calendars
Record 100 Years

REGINA (CP)—Halfway around the world, people have a different idea of calendars than we have in Canada.

They are made of brass and record periods of 28, 40 and 100 years.

Some of the hand-made calendars imported from India are now in Regina.

The largest—the 100-year calendar—is a circular piece of hammered brass about eight inches in diameter. The middle of the plate revolves according to the year.

Due to the repetition of years, approximately once every 25 years, the whole century can be found on one dial.

It shows every one of the 365,
525 days from 1950 to 2050.

To show the right month, the dial is moved to the proper year and the days appear at the bottom.

And Leap Year hasn't been forgotten—the dial with the red enamel is used instead of the black one.

The 28- and 40-year calendars are smaller and have one and two rows of year figures while the century calendar has three and four rows.

Special tunnels will be sunk to bring tram lines into the show grounds. Streets in the area will be renovated to provide for a circular motion of road traffic.

A nearby racecourse will be converted into a parking space for 10,000 cars. Cycling events will take place at Olympic Park, within the Melbourne City area.

Little Vice
In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG—Mayer Coulter, in a special report said yesterday that there was less gambling and vice in Winnipeg today than in forty years.

There is no tie-up between the police and the underworld and no connection with outside gambling organizations.

BET CALLED OFF
DARWIN, Australia (CP)—They held a special race meeting in the northern territory recently and the jockeys of two horses —joint favorites in the main event—had a side wager of £2000 on the result. But the bet was called off when one of the horses escaped from the stables and galloped into the bush.

ONE FOR THE BOOK
LONDON (CP)—Writing in the British Medical journal, a doctor said he had been asked for many things under the National Health Scheme, but nothing like this one: A woman put down her medical card and demanded to have her ears pierced for earrings. The doctor declined.

Softball With

Prince George NOTES

Thousands of dollars damage was done by a rainfall of cloud-burst proportions which visited the city a few years ago. It was one of the worst deluges in the city's history. Hardly a home-owne: was spared the sight of a flooded basement or flattened garden. Telephones were silenced and homes darkened. Warnings of further severe storms have been issued.

After thirty-four years' residence in Prince George, Mrs. W. H. O'Dell has left for England where she will make her future home with a sister.

A dentist has been added to the Cariboo Public Health Unit. Dr. Douglas Yeo, honors graduate from the University of Toronto, has arrived. He will work through the area between Vanderhoof and Williams Lake.

Committed For Trial

Robert Woods To Go Before Assizes in September

Robert Chapman Woods, 29, will stand trial in September assizes here on a charge of attempting to break into the Capitol Theatre early morning of July 3. He was committed yesterday by Police Magistrate W. D. Vance in police court after a preliminary hearing and intimated he would take jury trial. Crown alleged Woods was discovered trying to break into the theatre through a basement window. After a chase around the block, he was apprehended by a police officer and searched. On the accused were found a steel chisel, and two steel punches, described by Const. Ross on the witness stand as "safecracking tools."

Const. Ross, called as witness by Crown Prosecutor Rod MacLeod, said he heard the sound of breaking glass at about 12:45 a.m. July 3. The sound came from the lane behind the Capitol Theatre. Witness said he had just come off duty and was in the barracks. He looked out of a window and saw a man beside the basement window of the theatre.

Const. Ross said he gave chase and finally apprehended the man after circling the block in pursuit. The man was Woods, he said.

To Defence Counsel T. W. Brown, K.C., witness said he had not been dressed in police uniform but in civilian clothes. He had not shouted "Halt" or said anything to the accused before he was apprehended.

RECEIPTS IN SAFE

J. H. Black, manager of the theatre, said in the safe of the office were receipts of Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Monday matinee and Monday night's shows.

Mr. Black said he knew the accused well and that Woods knew the interior of the theatre. The theatre manager said he had checked the windows and doors of the theatre after the last show Monday night. Everything was intact, he said.

There had been a pane missing in part of the window which was broken. This had been nailed up with a piece of plywood, said the witness. The lock on the window had been secured from the inside by "spiking it" with a nail.

Victor Welch, assistant manager of the theatre, also was called by crown counsel as witness. Mr. Welch said he knew the accused and had spoken to him briefly Monday afternoon.

Woods had wanted to know if there was a midnight show Monday night.

"There is no midnight show tonight," Welch had said. Witness said he also had checked all doors and windows immediately after the last show Monday, "about ten after eleven," and had found them intact.

Glass had later been found "all over the inside" of the wash-room to which the broken window led, said Const. Ross. Nothing had been missing from inside the theatre, both Mr. Black and Const. Ross said.

Accused had nothing to say. Mr. Brown said he did not propose to summarize the evidence.

Trollers Getting Good Fishing Now—A Third Steamer Cassiar for This Coast

Some of the best fishing yet this season has been experienced of late by salmon trollers, who are racking up high totals in nearly all areas—and are blessing the dry weather for their success.

During the sunny weather, fish food rises to the surface and with it rise the coho, principal fish caught by trollers during this season.

And one of the greatest runs of coho for several years combined with the weather to give fishermen this boost.

So the trollers are having a regular "hay-day" with averages running to 1,500 pounds a day in the Seven-Mile area of Graham Island. Top catch of the year goes to Johnny Carpenter, who, with his troller Evian, unloaded 3,500 pounds of salmon—dressed and cleaned—in one day.

"That may pay off, alright, says Johnny, but 'it's a h— of a lot work, too."

But on the other hand, the dry weather has put a crimp on gill-netting, due to closure of some of the better sockeye areas.

Because spawning streams have dried up, and sockeye are milling around the estuaries, the west coast of Banks Island, Arisatabal Island, and Prince Island areas, including Higgins Pass, have been closed for conservation purposes.

CNR steamer Prince Rupert, on her return southbound from Ketchikan Thursday, arrived here several hours late, due to an unusually large freight load for the Alaskan port.

Frank Waterhouse freighter, Yukon Princess, Capt. Angus Campbell, arrived in port Thursday following a call at Kitimat where she unloaded several tanks for British-American Oil Co. Ltd., who are establishing a storage depot there. At Watson Island, 8,500 sacks of cement were unloaded in two trips. The Yukon Princess proceeded to Skagway with a major portion of her cargo. Some 30,000 feet of timber will be unloaded at the Alaskan port, 194 tons of cement and a considerable amount of mangle equipment. Returning, the Yukon was loaded with 3,000 oil drums (empties) at Skagway and 600 tons of concentrates at Stewart. Also at Prince Rupert, a carload of powder for Silvan Mines at Smithers was unloaded. 213 tons of coal and four 90-foot piles.

A new steamer Cassiar is going into service on the British Columbia coast. It is the Vancouver-built former China Coast-trope freighter Blue Peter II which Frank Waterhouse Co. recently brought out from Newfoundland and which is now going into Burrard Dry Dock at North Vancouver for conversion work. The vessel, on her way to this coast, called at a Virginia port to pick up a load of nitrates which she discharged at James Island powder works. The new Cassiar is the third of her name on this coast. First was a small passenger ship which Union Steamships operated many years ago on the logging camp run out of Vancouver. Second Cassiar was the former Prince John which Grand Trunk Pacific Steamships (later CNSS) used for thirty years on the Queen Charlotte Island run until she was acquired by Union Steamships and re-named Cassiar. Incidentally, the second Cassiar is now at San Francisco to which port she was recently towed from Vancouver for scrapping.

With wharves at Kitimat and Kemano Bay, new Aluminum Co. of Canada ports south of Prince Rupert, now in readiness, Frank Waterhouse Co. is about to commence a regular freighting service to those ports. It will be a ten-day service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert carried out by the motor vessel Island King which a couple of weeks ago made her initial call at Kitimat.

A coast fishing boat owner, Jete. Penhkurinen, died recently from a heart attack, shortly after his boat, the Snark, grounded in a storm off the Columbia. Himself and son were taken from the Snark by a coast guard craft that, putting a line aboard, hauled the two through about a hundred feet of water to safety.

As long ago as twenty years, when the stage and screen star John Barrymore was on a bear hunt, the yacht, then called the "Infanta" was in northern B.C. and Alaskan waters. She was then his temporary home. Since then, the vessel has changed uled summer cruises, she changes her run this trip with only one day at Skagway, instead of two. From Skagway, Chilcotin steams up north to Glacier Bay, giving tourists a first-hand look at the most scenic glacier fields accessible by boat.

LOW TIDES

This being the lowest tide season of the year, most ships docking in the forenoon look quite insignificant besides 20 or more feet of dock and piling. Seafarers not experienced with these big tides have asked why the docks are built so high in Prince Rupert. And one story tells of an inexperienced yachtsman who doxed here in the late afternoon when the tide was well high, and went ashore. He had tied up tight to the bollards and when he came back in the morning to look at his little ship, she was high in' dry, straining against the cables which all but parted with the weight.
