YEARS OF PROGRESS-British Columbia is entering a new era in industrial greatness, and glance back to the decade 1940-50 gives an idea of the momentum behind her present growth. his graph illustrates expansion in her industries in that time: forestry products, more than oubled; fishing more than trebled; agriculture, up two and one-half times; mining almost publed; retail sales, quadrupled; construction, up nearly five times; manufacturing, more than rebled. Electrical output also is away up, and population is on the march. (CP PHOTO)

B.C. GROWS UP-A trappers' and prospectors' paradise at the turn of the century, British mbia has become a vast industrial empire which seems only now to be striking its real growth, with Prince Rupert as a central point. This map shows the rich fishing grounds of the Pacific Coast, the rich agricultural lands up through the interior, the industrial empire around Trail, in the southeast, and the expanding forest industries, particularly pulp and paper. The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is being extended north to Prince George and south to Vancouver to provide an artery for the interior. A $27,000,000 cellulose plant was opened recently at Prince Rupert and a $500,000,000 aluminum project is being put under way in the Kitimat (CP PHOTO) area, south of Prince Rupert.

VOTE FOR DOUKHOBORS

OTTAWA-The House of Commons election committee yesterday asked the federal government to consider extending the franchise to some Doukhobors in British Columbia. The election committee asked the government to consider the advisability of conferring with the British Columbia government. The recommendation was proposed by H. W. Herridge, CCF, Kootenay West, and supported by E. T. Applewhaite, Liberal, Skeena.

STRIKE IS ENDED

NEW YORK-A group of CIO marine engineers came to terms with shippers last night, ending the 11-day strike that at one time tied up most of shipping on the East and Gulf coasts. With seamen and radiomen back on their jobs, some ships were able to sail yesterday for the first time in days.

Political Storm Signals

DROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES can be excused if they are exuberant over the results of four by-elections this week in various parts of Can- | senger agent in Toronto | and still we are better off than | ed less premise than ever that ada—one in Prince Edward Island, one in Ontario to get us any kind of sleeping the people of almost any other the new transcontinental was fence construction program and two in Manitoba. The Liberal government has equally good reason to be thoughtful. There is no use trying to deny that these elections indicate a trend in public opinion today.

The government, one may reasonably conjecture, is beginning to react to the effects of its overwhelming parliamentary strength. Secure in its position, it should not let itself get out of touch with public opinion or, if it is not out of touch or unmindful, is getting inclined to flout that public opinion.

The Progressive Conservatives are getting unmindful, become inclined to flout that public imaginative and aggressive leadership and it appears to be proving popular with the people.

The results of the by-elections should impress upon the Liberals the necessity of getting down to the grass roots and keeping their political fences mended. What happened in those by-elections, three of which turned over from the Liberal to the Progressive Conservative column, could happen on a national scale if the trend gets well started. The government would be well advised to heed the signals and govern themselves accordingly.

Better Streets

A LDERMEN who pointed out that the summer / \ is passing and urged in the city council Monday night that it is high time to get going on street improvements reflected a feeling that is very general among the public.

No doubt, the city is plagued by the difficulty of obtaining men to work in the present bull market as far as labor is concerned. It was also pointed out that there had been difficulty in getting materials.

Fact of the matter is that the public is not so interested about why things are not being done. What is wanted is action-not excuses. The difficulties about which the board talked in explanation do not make the public any less impatient. If there are difficulties, the thing is to surmount them. There can be no such thing as surrender in these expanding times.

Indeed, some means of getting things done must be found unless the city, from a municipal public works standpoint, is not to fall to pieces. In many ways today Prince Rupert is getting unhabitable for some people. We talk about the growth of the city's population. There is no doubt that the potential population is only too anxious to come here. It is the time for expanding services in real earnest so that Prince Rupert may be able to take full advantage and derive the most benefits to the fullest measure from the new era of industrial development. The city has a big problem which will require all its talents and resources and all the constructive help it can get.

JUST SUPPOSING!

Suppose the Grand Trunk Pacific had been abandoned at Red Pass Junction? It's hard to imagine and, coming right down to it, more than probable that such would never have transpir ed. Nevertheless, the story of its construction, from the very start bristles with criticism. Perusal of Hansard, when the Bill was before the House, makes informative reading today. But then, the CPR had also a stormy birth.

LOOK WHAT'S HERE!

Well, the permanent payrolls, surpassing fondest hopes, are here. While it's true enough that most of us came forty years too early, it's also a fact hundreds were young enough to stop to bet on a dog-fight, and given a fair break still had a long way to go.

New Strike on Marmot River

STEWART-A new strike has ocen made at Green Point on the Marmot River section by Art Cameron, Bill Zurowski and Owen McFadden. This strike indicates an ore body of considerable extent and of promising values. Development of the property is proceeding apace and reports from the property are very encouraging. But for the children it means another important step in their lives has been overcome. Of course, there are some who will have to retrace their steps next term but, for the most, according to the principals of the four schools, Borden, Conrad, King Edward and Booth Memorial High, promotions averaged high.

Not much formality, with the exception of the high school's graduation exercises earlier this month, attended the exodus of pupils. Yesterday, Booth Memorial students received their reports. Today, the primary school pupils obtained their standing for their year's work.

MORE NEXT YEAR

Although figures are not yet available, it is expected some 150 new students will enrol to begin the next term.

And during the summer holidays, a familiar and almost historical landmark, the King Edward school, will be demolished. Through it pupils in Prince Rupert have passed for 40 years. The new school to which King Edward students will be going is part of the $750,000 school building program launched last

The other new school and addition to Booth Memorial High School, also is slated for its official opening next fall term.

And because of the heavy enrolment expected next term, the old Seal Cove school will be reopened, and is to be renovated during the summer.

Moose Enjoy Fishing Bee

A fishing-bee along the banks of the Kasiks River, 50 miles east of Prince Rupert, was enjoyed last Sunday by 29 members of the Legion of the Moose. Seven trout were caught, six of them by B. J. (Jim) Bacon who was in charge of the party. "It was a wonderful day," said

Mr. Bacon. There were no flies and the weather was sunny-"just right." The men were transported by an Arrow bus, driven by Clarence Dixon, who joined the party. Picnic lunches were enjoyed in the scenic setting where the Kasiks river meets the Skeena.

Sometimes the stretching to reach game every time the bidding is opened results in mighty sketchy contracts-which require startling plays to fulfill. Mrs. Keen is expert at this sort

Mr. Champion opened the six of hearts against Mrs. Keen's and studied the situation for a D-43 few minutes. She felt she could probably set up dummy's diamonds by leading the king, the ace, and then conceding a third round of the suit to the enemy. But sadly enough the remainder of the suit could not be reached because dummy had no entry. Champion is pretty 28
