Korean Peace Parley About To Commence Preliminary Talks 100 Percent Success

No Real Guarantee of Success, General Ridgway Warns

SEOUL (CP)—General Matthew B. Ridgway warned tonight that there is no real guarantee that peace in Korea will come from the armistice negotiations opening tomorrow, probably at 10 a.m. (5 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time today), in Kaesong.

With the cease-fire talks only four hours away, Ridgway said: "Whether there is to be good faith or not is only to be judged by performance. And we haven't come to the performance stage of agreement which must precede cessation of hostilities."

Earlier Monday Ridgway flew to Seoul from Tokyo with three of his envoys. Shortly thereafter they travelled by light planes to an advance "peace camp" near Munsan where the other two members of a delegation were waiting.

Ridgway gave his envoys their final instructions and then returned to Seoul.

The peace camp is only a few miles by air from Kaesong, ancient capital, where an end may be found to the Korean war, now in its 55th week.

PRELIMINARY MEETING
Groundwork for the armistice talks were laid Sunday, also at Kaesong.

Delegation groups representing both sides held a stiffly formal meeting in a once palatial home in the Red-held city.

Col. Andrew J. Kinney, United States Air Force, who headed the United Nations delegation meeting, said the preliminary meeting was a "100 per cent success."

Another envoy indicated, however, that there were a number of disagreements that had to be ironed out. He said there were several times when he thought the talks would fall through.

The United Nations delegation to the full scale talks will probably fly by helicopter from Munsan about 9 a.m. (4 p.m. Monday, Pacific Daylight Time).

As ranking officers of the opposing sides prepared for the peace talks, there was no large scale groundfighting on the Korean front. United Nations troops launched two "limited objective" attacks Sunday against hard resistance that varied from light to heavy.

Bride Wins $500 Prize

Lucky winner of the grand final door prize of the Prince Rupert Exhibition Saturday night is $500 richer. She is Miss Mary E. Sanford, R.N., 512 West 25th Avenue, nurse at Prince Rupert General Hospital, who, since buying the lucky ticket, has been married to Murray Johnson of the Forest Branch staff and is now honeymooning at Smithers.

She held the ticket which gave her the prize on the final night of the seven-day exhibition. And there were two other winners.

Miss Cecile Smith, 933 Hays Avenue, won a large "talking" doll, and "Betty and Steve," Box 1568, were winners of the $100 door prize.

Result of the financial success of the exhibition will not be known for several weeks, until all invoices have come in, said T. Norton Youngs, chairman, today, but he thought the returns would be "average."

One thing though, the people really seemed to enjoy this kind of show," he added, "and if we only broke even it will have been worth while. It will give us a good start for next year." At the next meeting of the Civic Centre Association plans will begin for the 1952 exhibition.

Wind and Waves Seen As Kitimat Problems

Freighter Island King Is First Ship To Call at New Aluminum City

The wind and the waves which sweep up deep Douglas Channel and Kitimat Arm will have to be conquered as part of the great development program of Aluminium Co. of Canada in getting established at Kitimat, 80 miles down the coast from Prince Rupert, says Capt. Ed Swank, skipper of the Frank Waterhouse freighter Island King which was in port Sunday.

The Island King is the first coastal freighter ever to discharge at Alcan's dock at Kitimat which is in an early stage of construction. It is only a temporary landing jutting 200 feet out over mud flats. The larger and permanent dock will be built on a different site further up Muskeg Bay.

Capt. Swank foresees a problem in landing big ships at Kitimat.

"I don't know how they're going to beat the wind and the waves at Kitimat but I suppose they'll find some way," said Swank.

The westerly wind when he was in there Saturday was building the rollers up six or seven feet high, making it difficult for him to keep his vessel secure. However, conditions should be better next trip two weeks hence by which time the decking should be on and fender piles installed.

A system of breakwaters would appear to be a solution but the water at Kitimat is very deep, characteristic of the Douglas Channel and Gardner Canal area with their lofty mountain banks.

So far materials for Kitimat have been towed up in scows from Butedale but coast freighters will now be going in regularly.

The Island King also called at nearby Kemona Bay where an access road is now being built into the Alcan power development. Seventy men are employed at Kitimat now and some 700 at Kemona.

The Island King was at Kitimat from 11:30 a.m. Friday to 7:30 a.m. Saturday discharging lumber and general cargo.

When the CPR steamer Princess Louise left Prince Rupert harbor northbound this afternoon on her regular Alaska cruise, there was not another stateroom available. Of more than 200 passengers aboard, 90 were round-trippers.

The Colpitts Tour Party, from Boston, Massachusetts, comprised of some 50 tourists, had mostly "first-timers" and they expressed surprise at the temperatures "so far north."

Disembarking at Prince Rupert were J. A. Michels, R. Tisley and R. C. Sim.

Taking passage northward were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Pym and two children, Miss Shirley Reid, and J. H. Bennett, all of Juneau; Dr. Catherine McCallum, Miss Joan Adams to Whitehorse, and F. W. Leask, to Ketchikan.

Manufacturer of Famous Bathing Suits Is Rupert Yacht Visitor

Two of the three men who first manufactured Jantzen bathing suits are in Prince Rupert today, cruising the northwest coast on their 42-foot Steelcraft yacht, J. Beth.

John A. and Roy Zehnbauer, brothers, president and vice-president, who with the late John Jantzen formed Jantzen Knitting Mills Inc. in 1910, started their business in Portland, Oregon, with less than $10,000.

Today the huge wool manufacturing company has plants and distribution centres in 13 foreign countries and this year's business is expected to run to $32,000,000. John Zehnbauer, president, told a Daily News reporter in an interview today.

The swim-suit kings are accompanied by their wives, and sister Miss Minerva, who last fall retired as the oldest saleswoman on the staff of the company. She had worked for her brothers since inception of the mill. The president's granddaughter, 12-year-old Kendra Lundgren, and Miss Rose Voss are the other passengers.

"We really didn't have much to start with," said the president, who was doing most of the talking, "but we began making Chinese sweaters and wool socks. The Chinese used to wear as many as four sweaters at a time, depending on the weather, and there were about 10,000 of them in Portland at the time."

FIRST BATHING SUITS
The swim-suit era began in the early 'twenties and got under way after the mill made a few of the water suits for members of the owners and their families.

"Of course, they were the long-sleeved and long-legged type, but soon a lot of people wanted them. So we began to make swim-suits."

BIG ADVERTISING
The "red diving girl," famous the world over as the trademark of Jantzen swim-suits, began her career in 1921. The diving figure was drawn by a New York artist for $1,500.

"We spent almost all profits in advertising," Mr. Zehnbauer recalled, and admitted it had "paid off." The big feature, of course, was the diving girl. Each year, however, she would be dressed in slightly different styles.

"She is quite a bit more modern nowadays," laughed the manufacturer.

President Truman's Proposal "Too Late"

TEHRAN (CP)—President Truman has proposed to Iran that he send Averill Harriman, ambassador at large, to Iran to act as mediator in the oil dispute, it was learned today. Truman's proposal was contained in a note delivered to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today by U.S. Ambassador Henry Grady.

but high Iranian sources said Mossadegh had indicated that the President's offer will not be accepted because it came too late.

The Iranian cabinet last night was reported to have decided to reject the order of the Court of International Justice calling for a curb on the nationalization of oil pending further negotiations.

In London Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said Britain was "considering" asking the United Nations Security Council for an order to Iran to keep her hands off the British-run oil industry.

President Truman said it would be a "disaster" if the movement of Iranian oil should collapse.

White Sox Lead Red

NEW YORK (CP)—The Chicago White Sox held their slim one-game margin at the top of the American League Sunday by edging out St. Louis Browns but this time their lead was over the Boston Red Sox instead of the New York Yankees.

Boston pulled into the runner-up spot by whipping the Yanks 6 to 3 at Fenway Park for their sixth straight triumph while the White Sox had to go all out to put down a ninth-inning Brownie rally to win 5 to 4.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

In the National League, the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers stretched their margin to 8½ games over the New York Giants by whipping the Philadelphia Phillies 6 to 4 on Jack Robinson's tenth-inning home run with Duke Snider on base.

The Giants fell victims to Sid Gordon and the Boston Braves. With the score tied at 5-all in the tenth, Gordon stepped up and hit a home run to give the Beantowners a 6 to 5 triumph.

Big Job to Canadian

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian was named today to one of the top posts in the Atlantic Pact Air Force in Europe.

Air Vice-Marshal J. L. Plant, aged 41, native of Wales, who was educated in British Columbia, goes to the biggest job yet given a Canadian in the drive to build up Western Europe's defences.

The Defence Department announced he will go to Paris to become assistant chief of staff for personnel and logistics at headquarters of American General Norstad, commander of Allied Forces in Central Europe.

Miss Betty Lee Van Stolk and Miss Ivy Gillespie of Terrace have left for a visit in Vancouver with Miss Van Stolk's grandparents.

Engine Taken From Display

On hand to dismantle the booth this morning, Rupert Radio & Electric found a 1951 model Elco 12-horsepower outboard motor missing from the display booth at the industrial exhibition which was held last week. It is valued at more than $300.

J. H. Jefferies, co-proprietor of the firm, said the rope which guarded the outside of the booth had been cut and the motor was gone from its stand. From information he had received, Mr. Jefferies said, the rope, apparently, had not been cut by Saturday night. Police have been notified.

Meanwhile, Don Forward, Civic Centre director, said he found no signs of any breaking-in at the Navy Drill Hall, location of the industrial booths.

Prince Rupert's Cellulose Mill Has Far-Reaching Significance

BY JOHN M. MORAHAN IN NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE

The opening by Celanese Corporation of America of a $27,000,000 dissolving pulp mill marks the first step in a program that promises to have far-reaching significance not alone to the Canadian economy, but of equal importance to the man-made textile fibre industries of both the United States and Canada.

The plant, owned by Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., a Celanese subsidiary, is the first pulp mill to be built by a producer of chemical fibers, and means the opening of a vast new supply of basic raw material to the man-made fiber industry. In turn, this will mean eventually vastly increased supplies of yarn and fiber not only for the women's apparel industry, but also for the newly opened mass markets in the men's clothing field, the floor covering industry and the home furnishing markets.

The opening of the mill comes at a time when the synthetic fiber industry, along with other pulp users, has been faced with a mounting shortage of raw materials, principally wood pulp and sulphur, the basic components of both acetate and viscose rayon.

The shortage of raw materials, such as pulp and sulphur, plus the lack of new production facilities has so far prevented the synthetic fiber producers from fully developing the new mass markets which have been opened to them, chiefly as a result of the world wool shortage and the soaring price of raw wool.

Men's summer suits made of the synthetic fibers have been gaining in popular favor over the last three years, and the full potential of this market has not yet been realized.

Weavers of acetate and other man-made fibers and men's clothing manufacturers have

War End Tomorrow

But It Is Conflict Between Canada and Germany

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will formally end the state of war between herself and Germany tomorrow or shortly thereafter, authorities said today.

The cabinet is expected to pass an order-in-council authorizing publication in the official Canada Gazette of a proclamation formally ending the war which began September 1939.

The war took 42,000 Canadian lives and cost Canada billions of dollars.

Canada's action will coincide roughly with similar steps by her wartime allies—the United States, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and others.

This will be the second successive year that Roberts has been starting pitcher for the National League. His record for the season to date is ten victories against seven defeats.

It will be Garver's first appearance in the game. His record is 11 to 4.

Cost Of Government

TAXATION is one of the penalties we have to pay for the privilege of living in a civilized society. When prehistoric man lived in caves and roamed through the wilds as a nomad he did not stay long enough in one place to acquire property and form a government. He moved about seeking happier hunting grounds, but one of the main reasons for moving had to do with sanitation, or the lack of it. It was only when he got tired of wandering and settled down that he began to think politically and set up a government and he has been paying taxes ever since.

Government is defined as "a system of social control fixed by laws promulgated by those who can enforce them by definite penalties," and taxation as "the usual means of providing the revenue of a government." If governments confined themselves to social control and the enforcement of law and order, taxation would be very light. But in these days governments have gone far beyond that and taxes are now imposed to finance numerous public services, subsidies, bounties, bonuses, etc. All of these are being multiplied annually and calling for bigger budgets and soaring taxation.

The notions that government is a fabulously rich uncle or a Midas that can turn anything into gold by the touch are fatal delusions. Fact is the government takes the money out of people's earnings by direct and visible means in the case of income tax and by sleight-of-hand in sales taxes, which are the unfairness of all taxes because they are not based upon ability to pay. If a government cannot get enough by these means it borrows money and charges the debt to the next generation. That is why the people of Britain are hard-up today. They had to live on their capital during the war and the Labor government has been "doing the same" in the past five years of peace.

It has been said that "the power to tax is power to destroy." But that is only true when taxation runs to seed or weeds that crop the sources of wealth and destroy individual responsibility.

Hemlock New King

THE giant Douglas Fir is still the king of the British Columbia forests, but its days are numbered. Its leading position, predicts Roy Brown in the Vancouver Sun, will eventually be taken over by the once despised Hemlock. The latter and similar species will feed the mammoth new chemical industry.

Writes Mr. Brown:

"The trend of our manufacturing is swinging away from the board and plank output of the world's greatest sawmills. It is now a trend to a sort of cooked-up porridge: preheated retorts nowadays digest logs which have already been reduced to chips the size of a Canadian quarter. The product also comes pouring out in strips or rolls or sheets to be marketed in patented containers, instead of rough scantlings or planed boards.

"The new porridge product, moist and fluffy, so closely resembles wool that you look around to see where the sheep are. It goes into the manufacture of women's dresses, milk bottles, newspapers, men's suits, rugs, carpets, plastic coverings for every item you can buy in a shop; it already has a thousand uses and the bright research boys are finding new jobs for it every day."

There is a vital difference between the dynasty of the Douglas Fir and that of the newcomer, the Hemlock. Because it took hundreds of years to mature, once it was cut the Fir was largely gone and until recently there was little hope of any substantial replacement. But that won't happen with the much quicker growing Hemlock and similar kinds. Stands of these are to be cropped regularly and permanently, like wheat.

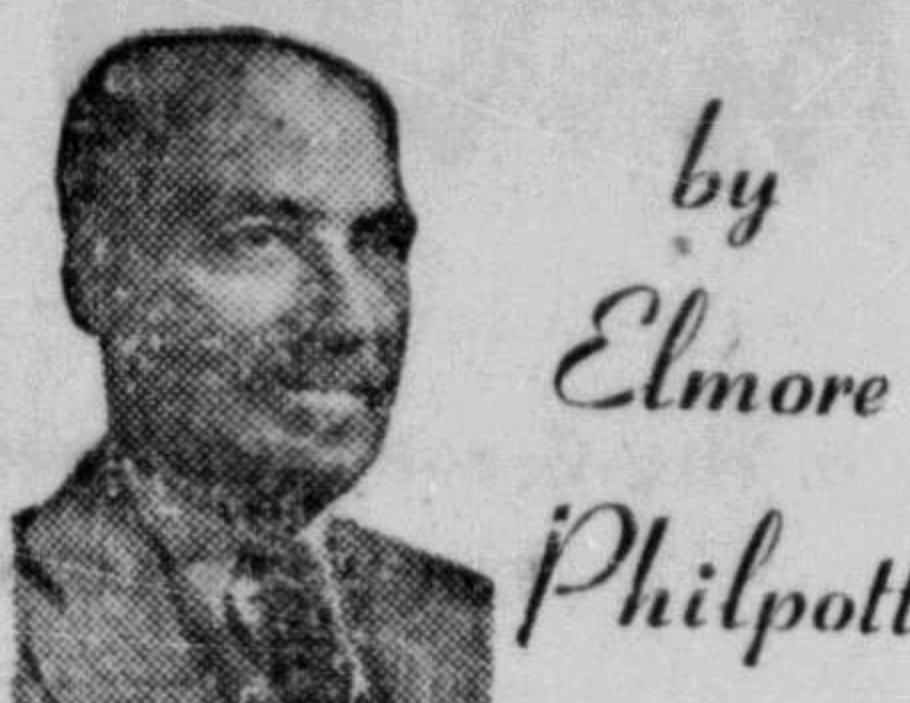

Under new policy, British Columbia's licensed and managed forest areas will never be depleted and the company can look forward, not to moving out and on when the available timber is consumed, but to a permanent supply of raw material and to becoming a permanent source of employment and prosperity in its present location. Reforestation, protection, fostering forest regrowth and scientific direction and control of cutting promise benefits for everybody.

As I See It

FOR INSTANCE, RIFLES

THOSE OF US WHO believe in world law, made by a world government, as the only possible basis of peace, say that no mere alliance ever lasts.

We are supposed to have an alliance with the United States. It is supposed to be ironclad. It includes a dozen nations in what is called the North Atlantic Pact. In fact, it is almost as close an alliance as Britain had with France before Hitler's war—but which was not worth the paper it was written on when the real test came.

People have also forgotten that Britain still has just as formal an alliance with Russia as she has with the United States.

UNCLE SAM HAS ALREADY taken over Japan as a virtual overseas colony.

Russia long since absorbed Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Bulgaria into her iron-fisted empire. The whole Yugoslav nation is on the alert for the attack which they fear from the east—the real cause of which is that even Yugoslav Communists believe Yugoslav policies should be made in their own country and not in Moscow—one thing that the new imperialism and such independence is the allies in the Kremlin will not tolerate.

My point is that the closest allies of today are the enemies of tomorrow—and the enemies of today are the allies of tomorrow, in the catch-as-catch-can game of what is known as power politics.

THE VITAL WEAKNESS OF alliances between sovereign powers is that the policies have to be made by more than one government.

We have a striking example right now in how difficult it is to get even the friendliest governments to agree even in peacetime—let alone under the hammer blows of reverses in war.

Canada has been trying for months to get her two big partners to agree on a standard rifle. Canada has even sent her Chief of Staff on a personal mission to the capitals. But he has failed.

Canada has scrapped the old rifle—the .303 Lee Enfield—and agreed to rearm with American Garands. But Britain is also scrapping her Lee Enfields—not for the U.S. weapon, but for a brand new gun of .28 calibre.

NOW SUPPOSE THAT INSTEAD of being in an alliance, Britain, the U.S.A. and Canada were all members of a federation. They might call it Atlantic, Pacifica, or anything else—maybe the Federation of the Free.

But its essential feature would be to make policies on a single, democratic basis. You could not have such a ridiculous near-fiasco as there is now over the three rifles. The common government would definitely decide which rifle was best for all.

IN A FEDERATION, THE DEFENSE of the whole would be the responsibility of the entire federation. There would be no question of the Americans staying out of the two wars, as they did from 1914 to 1917, and again from 1939 to 1951. There would be no question of the rest of us "dragging out feet," as the Americans say we did in the Korean war.

We would all have the same responsibilities—but we would all have the same say.

As things now stand, the biggest partner has the main say in an alliance. We are, in fact, "concealed colonials" these days, for the U.S.A. has power over our lives, even as to war and peace.

Eamonn de Valera Clings to Power But by Slight Margin

DUBLIN (CP)—Gaunt, greying Eamon de Valera again holds Ireland's political stage, but he has no guarantee he will stay there long.

Tired by a strenuous election campaign, De Valera heads a government balanced on a razor's edge. To stay in as prime minister he has to keep the support of five independent deputies in the Irish republic's Dail (Parliament).

Obviously this is a delicate margin. The independents who decided the issue jumped over to De Valera's banner after supporting John A. Costello's coalition during the three years it was in power.

De Valera did not make the smashing comeback he hoped for in the May 30 general election. He wanted his Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) party to win a clear-cut majority. It came close—taking 69 of the 147 seats.

Irish political writers are predicting De Valera's cabinet, because of its wobbly position, will avoid controversial issues until it has had time to catch its breath and size up the situation. No one is anxious for a new election soon.

In view of this situation why has De Valera taken up again the burdens of prime minister? At his age (69), he obviously feels it would be unwise politically to remain in opposition any longer in the hope of a decisive election victory some years hence.

De Valera had been prime minister for 16 years before his party lost control of the Dail in the 1948 election. Actually, except for a few brief periods of eclipse, New York-born De Valera has been the dominant figure in Irish politics since 1916.

He is more than a powerful party leader. In a very real sense De Valera himself is a political issue. A large number of voters viewed the election simply as an opportunity to record themselves as being either for or against him.

HARD TO CLASSIFY In many ways that was the clearest issue in the election, since the various parties in the republic are difficult to classify by the ordinary method. There is no sharply defined right and left in Irish politics.

The parties grew out of the Irish struggle for freedom from British control. Now that the last ties with Britain have been cut, the various political groups are beginning to develop differences on such domestic issues as social services, land improvement and taxation policies.

To his followers De Valera, the son of a Spanish father and an Irish mother, is an almost legendary figure. He began his political career squinting down a rifle barrel in the Easter Week uprising of 1916. He is one of the few surviving leaders of the Irish forces of that period.

The Irish revolution had two distinct phases. There was the fight against the British and the civil strife of the 1920s when Irishmen clashed with Irishmen in disagreement over ultimate goals. Many of De Valera's stoutest political enemies trace their opposition to him back to the tragic period of civil warfare.

De Valera's personality is as complex as the times through which he has lived. Friends point out that he is at once a rebel and a scholar, a practical politician and an idealist. He fights hard for social reforms, yet most observers classify him as a conservative.

PARTITION QUESTION De Valera's realism is exhibited by his attitude on the long-standing Irish political question. The 26 counties making up the independent republic want all of the island unified under one government. The six counties of Northern Ireland, with their large Protestant population, have remained part of the United Kingdom. The republic is largely Catholic.

De Valera, along with all the other leaders of the republic, wants this situation changed. He knows, however, that there is no easy solution at hand. Six of De Valera's seven children are living. One of the great tragedies of his life was the death of his schoolboy son, Brian, in a horseback accident in Dublin's Phoenix Park.

During the period of Ireland's rebellion De Valera was arrested several times by the British. On one occasion he was condemned to death but a question as to whether he was an American citizen resulted in a commutation to life imprisonment. He subsequently was freed in a general amnesty.

De Valera was the last of the Irish commanders to surrender during the 1916 Easter Week uprising. After his small force had shot it out with the British for days, it became apparent it could not keep up the fight any longer. De Valera then stepped from behind the barricade and told the British:

"I am De Valera. Shoot me, but spare my men."

THE EXPERTS Say...

ICE CREAM UNBEATABLE Nothing can beat ice cream as an ideal summer-time dessert. It's easy to make and a freezer full will keep for days in the family refrigerator. Any number of variations may be tried with the standard recipe.

Home economists offer the following basic vanilla ice cream recipe:

Ingredients: Two tablespoons flour; one-half cup sugar; few grains salt; one cup milk; one egg; 1½ teaspoons vanilla; one-half pint (1¼ cups) whipping cream—chilled.

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Mix to a smooth paste with one-quarter cup of the milk. Add remaining milk. Cook in top of double-boiler, stirring constantly until thick (about 10 minutes). Add a little of the hot mixture to the beaten egg and stir into the mixture in double-boiler. Add vanilla. Cook two minutes stirring constantly.

Whip cream and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until firm (about two hours).

VARIATIONS Fruit Ice Cream: One cup of sweetened strawberry, raspberry or crushed peach pulp and juice.

Butterscotch Ice Cream: Melt two tablespoons butter; add three-quarter cup brown sugar. Cook one minute. Omit other sugar in basic recipe.

Chocolate Ice Cream: Melt 1½ ounces unsweetened chocolate over hot water. Add three tablespoons hot water and stir until smooth. Add to basic recipe.

HOT WEATHER MENU At least one hot dish is necessary to provide balance when hot weather makes a cold-cut dinner a matter of course.

Potatoes just naturally go with cold meat and the agriculture department's home economists suggest: crockle fried potatoes as the necessary "hot dish"

Ingredients: Five medium potatoes; two medium onions; two tablespoons bacon fat; three tablespoons tomato catsup; one-half teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Peel potatoes and slice thinly. Peel onion and slice thinly. Melt fat in heavy pan, add potatoes and onion. Cover and cook until tender (about 40 minutes). Stir often to prevent scorching. Remove cover. Add catsup, salt and pepper. Stir well and continue cooking, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Yield: six servings.

SALAD DAYS

The health department reminds that salads can be glamorous as well as healthful. On a hot day, cool green vegetables can be appetizing with salmon, eggs, cheese or cold meat. Fruit salads, too, with cottage cheese or peanut butter balls, will supply vitamins and minerals.

Incidentally ice cream with fruit salad and crisp hot buttered toast is an excellent dish for a light luncheon.

ray.. Reflects and Reminiscences

The army in Great Britain is having an epidemic of swooning. Dr. Schafer says this is explained by a rush of blood to the feet, due to being required to stand too long, at attention, on the parade ground. Some officers, are of opinion the real reason is a rush of beer to the stomach.

"No garret for me!"

"Time was when people used to joke about the typical artist who starved in a garret. But today those jokes have a hollow ring.

"Look around and you'll see lots of commercial artists like me making a very good living, thank you. I own my own home. Have a pretty good car. Everything's going my way. And yet . . .

"There'll come a day, years from now, when I'll want to start taking it easy. What will happen then? Will the garret get me?

"No sir! I've got things worked out so that I can go right on living comfortably.

It won't be long before old folks will be paid some kind of benefits. And I'll be glad to get that help when my turn comes—just like everybody else. But I'll have to add to that income with my own life insurance.

"That way, I'll be able to live a care-free independent life later on. And my family is being protected with that same life insurance from now till the day I retire.

"So I'm really sold on the idea of planning my future, the life insurance way—the way that meets all my security needs!"

Home Wedding Pretty Affair

A quiet wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Franklin, Lotbiniere Street, on July 4 united in marriage Miss Elizabeth (Betty) Adolph to Michael Pesut in a double-ring ceremony. Rev. L. G. Sieber officiated.

The bride was lovely in a navy blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Mrs. Franklin, matron of honor, wore a maroon suit with white accessories and a corsage of double white daisies.

Thomas Pesut, cousin of the groom, was groomsman.

Mr. Sieber proposed a toast to the bride. The bride's table was embellished with a lace cloth and a dainty wedding cake surrounded by wild roses and pink candles made a charming centre piece.

A happy hour followed with expression of best wishes from guests. A humorous reading was given by Mrs. Franklin. Many beautiful gifts were displayed.

The wedding cake was cut by the bride and groom with a ribbon-decorated silver knife and later was served by Mrs. John Christensen. Miss Lillian Franklin had charge of refreshments and was a charming hostess, assisted by Mrs. Christensen.

Bride is on the staff of Ormes Drugs, and the groom is part owner of the Ocean View Hotel. The couple left on the Prince Rupert for a honeymoon trip to Alaska. On their return they will reside in Prince Rupert.

Out of town guest was Demis Adolph, bride's brother, from William's Lake.

Newlyweds To Live Here

A newly-wed couple arrived Sunday on the Camosun from the south to reside in Prince Rupert. They are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Langford, who were married Friday in Vancouver.

At a quiet but pretty wedding, at the home of Mrs. S. Dandridge, her daughter, Vivienne, became the bride of Wallace Langford of Prince Rupert.

Miss Gwen Dandridge, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Keith Ward, cousin of the groom, of New Westminster, was best man.

The living room, where a dozen guests witnessed the exchange of vows, was beautifully decorated with roses, gladioli and daisies.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served and later in the evening the couple embarked on the Camosun for Prince Rupert.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Barrett of Winnipeg, the bride's grandmother; Mrs. Pinchbeck, Williams Lake; Mrs. H. D. Kyle, New Westminster, and Mrs. E. Bamford, North Burnaby, aunts of the groom.

Full Time For Music

For the first time, a Prince Rupert school will have a full-time music teacher.

A full complement of 24 teachers will be taken on in the new term and Fred Huber will be full-time music teacher in Booth Memorial High School, the School Board decided this week.

Music, including band and orchestra work, will be on the regular curriculum in the high school next term, giving each student taking the course five periods of instruction a week.

Surprise Party For Bride-Elect

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Wilfred McLean, 1953 Seventh Avenue East last Thursday in the form of a surprise party in honor of Miss Jean Smith, who is to be married this month.

The evening was enjoyably spent with community singing accompanied by Mrs. H. G. Bird at the piano, vocal solos by W. B. Skinner and W. D. Griffiths. Mr. Griffiths also delighted the party with some of his well-known recitations.

Mrs. McLean served dainty refreshments, assisted by Mrs. W. B. Skinner and Mrs. F. Baldwin, after which Mr. Griffiths, on behalf of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church, presented Miss Smith with a beautiful coffee table as a token of esteem and appreciation for her many years of faithful service to the church as treasurer and to the Sunday school. He wished her the very best for the future, at the same time expressing regret at losing such a willing worker.

Miss Smith, after her marriage July 14, will reside in Terrace.

Hospitality Of Rupert

Victoria Newspaper Columnist Enthusias Over City

It was a fine, clear day as we pulled into Prince Rupert, writes Brian Tobin, Victoria Times columnist. One enjoys the hospitality of the city, and judging by the reception, Prince Rupert has been welcoming visitors for a long, long time.

Twelve thousand people live in this northern port, itself an island. During the war it was an important assembly point for men and armaments moving to Alaska.

"The stuff would roll in on freight cars until the streets were jammed with it," Bob Parker, the local Ford dealer recalls. "Trucks, jeeps, supplies of all kinds were stacked all over town. Then they would start loading at the dock, and before you knew it it had all disappeared again."

Local residents believe that this strategic position, linking continental rail lines with salt water, will mean a lot in their peacetime future too, as the great north country develops its industrial life. Part of that life will be the big pulp plant which has just opened at their back door. But a good part will always be the old-established fishing industry.

COLD TREATMENT

A look at the huge cold storage plant here gives you a hint of the extent of this resource. While we watched, halibut fresh from the sea were dumped into boxes, covered with crushed ice, nailed up and started on their long rail journey to New York. Around us in vast storage rooms were nearly 12 million pounds of halibut, stiff as boards and stacked like cordwood. Workers, bundled in sweaters and heavy mitts, were handling the glazed white fish in coldrooms, as cut off from the mild weather outside as though they were at the north pole.

Prince Rupert has a surprising number of cars, and a good many of them are new models. There are 1,400 registrations in the city.

"We ride even if we're only going a block," Parker says. His friend, Ted Smith, local wholesale produce merchant, gives a clue to the answer. Local folk, he says, call them "mechanized umbrellas."

GOOD MUSIC

A pleasant feature for visitors here is the Indian bands, which have exchanged the tomahawk for the equally lethal saxophone. They play extremely well.

In former years there were a dozen of these organizations in the nearby Indian communities, fully equipped and uniformed through their own efforts, and proud of their prowess. Nowadays there are fewer bands, but they still raise high enthusiasm in competitive playing.

The Indian musicians have become so much a part of Prince Rupert life that nobody remembers exactly how they came into being. It appears, however, that well before the turn of the century a missionary provided some instruments and instruction for the musically-minded natives, and their smartly-dressed grandsons are carrying on the tradition. They play for civic functions, village gatherings and their own amusement. An Indian wedding party a few days ago marched the length of the main street with a band in attendance. It was a send-off which any couple might envy.

Mrs. L. Murdock and son and daughter were passengers leaving aboard the Camosun last evening for a visit in Stewart.

On his first visit here since early days, D. Neilsen, who formerly worked in the dry dock shipyard here, passed through the city yesterday aboard the Prince George, accompanied by his wife. They are now from California and are making the round trip to Alaska. Mr. Neilsen notes many remarkable changes here and was interested in hearing about aluminum and cellulose developments.

G. B. Tribble, superintendent of the Torbrit Silver mine, and Mrs. Tribble, were passengers aboard the Camosun last night returning to Alice Arm after a trip to Vancouver. They were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Claire Tribble, who has been attending Crofton House School at Vancouver and will spend the summer vacation at the mine.

Fastest Baseball Yet

Abel and Odowes Defeat Gordon And Anderson 3 to 2

In the fastest baseball game yet played here this season, Abel & Odowes defeated Gordon & Anderson yesterday afternoon by one run, scoring 3-2.

Nine innings were played in less than two hours. First score was brought in by the Clothiers in the last of the fourth when losing pitcher Larry Matthews walked first baseman Dahl, then gave up a hit to pitcher Jack Sharpe which brought in the run. Sharpe, cool and steady on the mound, was never in trouble and struck out 11 men at bat, giving only one base on balls.

The game remained close and tight until the sixth inning. In the first half, with Gordon & Anderson to bat, Don Scherk drove the second pitch deep into right field for a two-base hit. Cornwell took the first strike which put Scherk on second. A base hit by Cornwell brought in the first run. Left fielder Marshall followed with another single which knocked in Cornwell's run, giving G & A the only lead in the game.

In the last of the sixth, Abel & Odowes tied the score, when Pavlikis, on with a single, stole second and third and came home on a wild throw from catcher Young.

One inning later, Clothiers' shortstop Giardano landed on second with a single and a passed ball by Scherk. A wild pitch by Matthews brought the runner on third and came home on a triple by Lavigne, the longest hit of the day which dribbled near the edge of centre outfield.

The last inning for Gordon & Anderson was the most sensational for winning pitcher Sharpe as he struck out three men in a row, to end the game with the one-run lead.

SPORT SHOTS

More than four years ago Bruce Woodcock, then British and Empire heavyweight boxing champion, absorbed a lacing at the hands of the American slugger Joe Baski, at London's Harringay arena. His eyes puffed and bleeding from the merciless pummeling, and floundering about the ring, Bruce was led to the microphone after his defeat to assure listeners he was O.K. and would seek a return bout with Baski at the earliest opportunity. But we learn now that Woodcock was bluffing bravely and just whistling in the dark.

In his autobiography, "Two Fists and a Fortune," just published, (Hutchinson) the former champ tells a straight-from-the-shoulder story of why he decided to quit the ring for good. "When I told the world that my sight was as good as ever it was, I was bluffing," he writes. "The fact was that the harm Baski did was irreparable. The vision of that eye is permanently affected. Ever since the Baski fight I had been—yes, I admit it now—a one-eyed fighter... but today, specialists tell me I am in no danger of going blind."

As a matter of fact Bruce admits he remembers little about that fight. Tom Hurst, his manager, tried to persuade him to pack up after the first round. "In truth, I was powerless, purposeless," Woodcock confesses. "I was buffeted around the ring like a rudderless, unmanned hulk in a gale. After each round Hurst kept threatening to throw in the towel in acceptance of defeat. All the time I begged and pleaded to be allowed to go on. Just one more round... just one more round." Tom says I was uttering the words mechanically, as a child may do when it falls asleep.

But it wasn't until three years later, after taking another drubbing from ex-Guardsman Jack Gardner, that Woodcock decided

Softball First Half Winding up

Tonight a revised team of the Hawks Softball Club meets the Firemen in the second game of the last half of the schedule. The Hawks have added Lloyd Lahti, "Frenchy" Vigor and "Windy" Schwab to their lineup so will be greatly strengthened in the battery department. Firemen also will show some new faces, having taken on some players from the defunct North Stars. This team has showed a lot more offensive power than in their last game when, although Ruper Radio beat them by a score of 14-11, they kept coming up from behind to make it interesting all the way.

The Radios stand top in the league, followed by Columbia Cellulose.

to call it quits. And when he hung up his gloves for ever, he says he meant just that, for even in defeat he had achieved his life's ambition—lifting his family out of what he calls the "low drop" or the slums of his native Doncaster.

Woodcock says that his 38 professional fights brought him a fortune, more than any other British fighter had made before him. And most of it was salted away in the bank. After winning the British heavyweight title, Bruce says he often heard himself branded as a "highwad" or a "miser." But that didn't worry him.

To reach his goal of independence he had sometimes eaten a bread-and-cheese supper by the kitchen fire when he could have dined on champagne and caviar at exclusive nightclubs. Furthermore, he had worn clothes made by his wife, although it would have been an easy matter to order a dozen fittings from high-prices tailors in Savile Row. "I'm not telling anyone just how much I've got behind me," Woodcock writes. "That's my business. But you can take it from me it's a tidy pile. I was lucky enough to hit the jackpot and I've kept what I earned."

Gardening....

USE GARDEN HOSE TO SPRAY
PLANT FOOD AND PESTICIDE

There is a growing use of hose water in home gardens for the application of plant food during the growing season; and some gardeners use it to apply insecticide sprays. It performs these tasks for a minimum of work by the gardener, saving many hours of his time.

Whenever plant food is to be applied to a growing plant, it is a problem how to get fertilizer down to the roots. Digging may disturb the roots and perhaps do more harm than the plant food will do good. But when a soluble plant food is dissolved in water, it is carried down through the soil to take immediate effect.

It has recently been established by experiment that the leaves of plants will absorb plant food in solution more quickly than the roots and actually use a higher percentage of the nutrient, making it go farther. So it is actually more efficient to feed plants through the hose water, sprayed by a sprinkler, than to spread it on the ground dry.

Various devices are offered to mix plant food with the hose water. Most satisfactory are siphons which lift the nutrient solution from a pail or tub and mix it with the water that passes through the hose in a ratio of 16 to 1. It is important that the solution be too weak to burn green leaves, and directions for this are given by the manufacturers of the soluble materials.

Nitrogen is the food element most likely to be needed by growing plants and by lawns. It is carried away by drainage water and consumed by the plants; so it is likely to be exhausted quickly when rains are frequent and growth vigorous.

Complete soluble plant foods are now offered, which will supply all food elements. Standard dry plant food mixtures contain a high percentage of soluble materials which can be used to form a nutrient solution.

To apply insecticides in the hose water requires special applicators which mix the chemicals with the water in proper proportions for use on the plants. By using the water pressure, pumps are eliminated. Both insecticides and weed killers can be applied with a minimum of work.

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

This is the sixth hand in a rubber involving that weird partnership of Miss Brash and Mr. Meek. At this point both sides had got vulnerable. But the score was far from even. Brash and Meek had taken two sets totalling 1600 points.

Miss Brash was just as cheerful as ever but Mr. Meek was bidding in such low, strangled tones that Mr. Champion had to ask him to repeat each call.

Poor Mr. Meek made one little bid on this hand—a response of one spade to his partner's opening diamond bid—and a few seconds later found himself playing four spades redoubled.

Mr. Champion's double was a gamble. He couldn't be sure of setting four spades. But he had that 1600 "cushion" on his score and he was willing to take some risk to increase it.

Miss Brash's redouble was entirely out of order. Her hand wasn't good enough for a jump to four spades and after the double warned her that the trumps were bunched she should have been glad to pass.

Mr. Champion opened the king of hearts and Mr. Meek won with the ace. He led a small club and Mr. Champion went in with the ace and promptly shifted to the jack of spades. Mr. Meek won this trick with the ace of spades on the board.

He laid down the king of clubs and then led dummy's last heart, playing the 10 from his hand. Mr. Champion captured this with the queen of hearts and led another trump, the 10.

This defense made things pretty tough for Mr. Meek. He won in his hand with the king of spades. He was doing as well as he could, so far. But now he made an error which cost him a very important trick.

He led the seven of clubs and Mr. Champion played the five. Mr. Meek was rattled. He hadn't noticed the play of the 10 and eight of clubs by Mr. Abel. In other words the seven of clubs would have won—but Mr. Meek trumped it in dummy.

Next he led the ace of diamonds, then the king of diamonds. Mr. Champion ruffed and came out with the brutal lead of his last spade, taking the last trump off the board.

Mr. Meek won with the queen of spades, but he had to lose a heart trick and a club trick for down two—1000 points.

"You know," said Miss Brash, "when I bid game freely and get doubled, I always redouble—especially if I'm vulnerable, because then extra tricks are worth 400 points each."

Mr. Meek was too dazed to comment.

Art Teacher Is Engaged

Miss Isobel Magee, formerly teaching school at Burns Lake, has been engaged by the School Board as teacher at Booth Memorial High School next term.

Miss Magee is an art specialist and will teach art in senior high school and general subjects in junior high.

Several openings for teachers still remain here and applications are slow in coming.

Aussies Wanting More Canucks to Visit There

Written for the Canadian Press
By MARGARET ECKER FRANCIS

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Several hundred Canadians annually visit Australia as tourists, but Australians are looking to the day when the number can be greatly increased.

"An influx would mean more than the bringing of tourist dollars to Australia," says Les M. Lewis, public relations director of the British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines. "It would increase understanding between the two dominions, and that understanding and the affection it would bring could be very important to all of us if trouble-some times should come to the Pacific."

Australians want very much to see a steady flow of Canadian visitors south-west across the Pacific by plane and ship. But they seem to feel the services they offer are not up to North American standards, and that the scenery here has not the magnificence of the Rockies, for example.

Here, Australians are the first to criticize regulations that reduce night life to a minimum even in cities such as Sydney, with a population of more than 1,500,000. They realize that to most Canadians a holiday in Australia appears a lengthy and expensive undertaking. And they hasten to explain that such is not the case.

By sleeper plane across the Pacific, with berths more comfortable than the average train berth, Sydney is only 30 hours' flying from Vancouver. There is only about $100 difference in fares between Vancouver-Sydney and Vancouver-London, England.

EXCITING CONTINENT
Canadians who turned south and west to Australia rather than eastward to the United Kingdom and Europe would find the experience a new and rewarding one. They would find a continent that differs as widely in scenery, atmosphere and climate as does North America.

Lower costs of living and a high rate of exchange for the Canadian dollar ($2.35 buys one Australian pound) allow luxury they couldn't afford elsewhere. A steak dinner in a good restaurant, with more food than the average Canadian can eat at a meal, can be found easily for under $1. Good native wine is as low as 50 cents a bottle, with excellent Australian champagne at $1.50.

A room with bath and breakfast in a medium-priced hotel would be about $3 a night. The breakfast could be fruit, steak with eggs and fried potatoes, toast and marmalade, tea or coffee.

The catch would be to find the room and the hotel. Hotel accommodation hasn't kept pace with Australia's growing population and reservations have to be made months in advance. Booking offices in Canada of course make this possible.

The private hotel is an institution in Australia and accommodation is easy to find in these. A clean, attractive one in Sydney, plus a hearty five-course breakfast, is usually about $2.50 a night. Accommodation is even less expensive and easier to find away from Sydney, Melbourne or Brisbane. Travel organizations are providing hotels in less crowded areas as modern as anything in Canada.

LEISURELY CITIES
Australians cities fascinate the Canadian visitor. All of them are attractive, modern and leisurely. The larger ones are all set in beautiful surroundings with golden beaches a few minutes from the city centres.

Sydney, sprawling amongst the endless bays and bluffs of Sydney harbor, with its wide, palm-lined streets, likes to interpret itself as the most North American city in Australia. A Canadian may find it more England than that. Even at its heart there are glimpses of the harbor and acres of parks bright with semi-tropical flowers.

Melbourne, a town-planned city, has even wider streets, more parks. Since in both cases public drinking ends at 6 p.m. neither offer a very vigorous night life.

Brisbane in the north is the tropical city starting point for the luscious tropical islands of Barrier Reef. Far south, Tasmania is a green miniature of

Pulp Mill Is Visited

Col. Harry Price and K. C. Loughlin, vice-presidents of the Celanese Corporation of America, from New York, were here at the end of the week in the course of a tour of Cellulose Company of America mill operations at Prince Rupert and woods operations at Terrace.

With them were a party of representatives of large textile firms with which Columbia Cellulose deals: Reed Anthony of New York, associated with Greenwood Mills; J. Canberra, the federal capital, rests amongst blue hills in the clear, dry inland air. It's a city in the making where town-planners have created a complete harmony of garden, woods and metropolitan area.

Fishing, surfing, horse-racing, boating, are all easily available to the seaport cities.

Australians, fanatically fond of their own country, provide inexpensive and excellent methods so they may see it. Internal airlines fly tourists at rates as low as under $20, for example, from Sydney to Brisbane.

SOUR MILK AND CREAM HAVE MANY INTERESTING USES

Most of us consider ourselves confirmed enemies of bacteria, but there are times when we should be infinitely grateful to them. Not to the ones that cause waste and disease, of course, but to the ones that cause milk and cream to sour.

Summer is the time when special care should be taken of milk and cream; that is, if these dairy foods are to be kept sweet. However, many people like to have a little sour milk or cream on hand occasionally for special purposes. Whether this cream is bought from the dairy or whether it just happens to sour naturally in the home, there are many uses for it, right from the very first course of the meal to the last. A tablespoon of whipped sour cream placed on each bowl of cream of pea, bean or beef soup is very good. It is important to remember that sour cream like sweet cream, must be rich and heavy in order to whip.

Sour cream poured over fried tomatoes before they are to be served, is another tempting dish. If a few chopped cucumbers or chopped pickles are added to sour cream, it makes a delightful sauce to serve with meat or fish. Cottage cheese is becoming a very popular Canadian food and many families use a great deal of it, especially during the summer time. Most dairies now sell it along with their regular line of dairy products, but it may be made at home very easily.

Home economists have sent us their recipe for cottage cheese. Heat some freshly soured milk over hot water until it separates into curds and whey. Notice particularly that the water must be "hot" not "boiling." Freshly soured milk must be used because old soured milk will give a bitter flavor to the cheese. As the milk is heating it should be stirred occasionally, and as soon as the curds and whey separate, it should be spread on cheese cloth over a strainer and the whey allowed to drain off.

Then the curds, or in other words the cottage cheese, should be rinsed with cold water, seasoned with salt and moistened with cream—about two tablespoons to a cup of cheese. At least one quart of milk should be used to make cottage cheese because it is hardly worth while making a smaller amount. Once this cheese is made there should be no difficulty in using it. Cottage cheese is so delicious served with the fresh fruits that are in season now and it makes good sandwich fillings too. Sour milk and cream should always be kept clean and cool to hinder the growth of undesirable bacteria which may cause it to have off flavors and disagreeable odors. Don't put milk or cream that has soured at the back of the refrigerator and forget about it. It is much better to use it up quickly.

Many delightful desserts may be made with sour milk or cream. Heavy sour cream will not only replace the milk in a recipe, but may be used to replace part or all of the fat called for in recipes for pancakes, waffles, muffins, biscuits, cakes and cookies. One cup of heavy sour whipping cream contains about six tablespoons of fat, so, when using sour cream in place of milk the amount of fat called for in a recipe should be reduced on this basis.

Sour milk may also be used for quickbreads, muffins, pancakes, doughnuts, gingerbread, cakes and cookies. When substituting milk in a recipe which calls for sweet milk the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture suggest that the same amount of milk be used, and for each cup of sour milk used add one-half teaspoon baking soda and deduct two teaspoons of baking powder.

The plentiful fruits and vegetables for July are raspberries, strawberries, cherries, apricots, blueberries, melons, lettuce, green peas, beets, green beans and cabbage. Plan to use these in July menus.

Volunteers For Civil Defence

Fire Chief Becker On Look-out for Workers

The city fire department is on the lookout for volunteers for civil defence.

Fire Chief Earl Becker, chairman of the fire fighting committee has subdivided the city into zones, according to population, which he has identified by letters of the alphabet from A to I.

A volunteer captain for each zone is required, and it will be his responsibility to obtain volunteer firemen in his zone.

As soon as a ruling on compensation benefits is received from Ottawa, training of the volunteers is to begin at the fire hall, Chief Becker plans. At present, no compensation benefits are allowed for crews training for civil defence.

Besides the nine zones, a civil defence fire fighting headquarters is planned for the fish docks at Cow Bay, the oil docks and the Seal Cove airport.

Companies who have their own fire-fighting equipment are B.C. Packers, Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, Canadian Fishing Co., Drydock and Canadian National Railways. Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association and Canadian Fishing Co.

A full report on the fire-fighting organization will be given by Chief Becker at next meeting of the civil defence advisory committee.

John S. Jackson arrived in the city on yesterday afternoon's plane from New Westminster to join the staff of the Daily News, specializing in advertising. For the past four years he has been engaged in advertising work at New Westminster and before that was in Winnipeg. He expects to be joined later by his wife and three children.

Dramatic, Suspenseful

Bringing an unusual drama of suspense, "The Secret Fury" at Capitol Theatre tonight and Tuesday, co-stars Claudette Colbert and Robert Ryan.

Miss Colbert portrays a wealthy concert pianist and Ryan a young architect. As they are about to be married, a stranger interrupts the ceremony, stating that the about-to-be-bride has already married a man named Randall and despite the heroine's frantic denials, investigations seem to prove it. Marriage license records, the testimony of the justice of the peace who performed the ceremony and of various witnesses, all substantiate the accusation.

The two stars finally track down the supposed bridegroom, and while he is talking to the heroine he is killed, whereupon she finds herself facing trial for murder. This dramatic ordeal leads up to a thrilling climax.

Spinsters Are Town Problem

NELSON, Lancashire, England—When does a woman become a spinster—and when can a spinster be safely considered "on the shelf?"

That's the problem facing Alderman H. Dewhurst, chairman of a local committee responsible for letting a new block of apartments built especially for "spinsters, on the shelf."

The committee has received many applications from single women in the early 20's and 30's.

"It would be most awkward if someone got a spinster apartment and then got married," said Dewhurst. "We will probably decide that a woman who has passed her normal marrying age—say 50—is a suitable applicant." Women of 65, or more, are out of the running. They qualify for "old people's" houses.

been experimenting not only with men's year-round suits made entirely of the synthetic fibers, but with topcoats and winter overcoats as well. Two things have slowed the large-scale introduction of the winter weight clothing made entirely of the synthetic fibers.

One has been the desire of the manufacturers to complete the extensive wear-test programs under all types of climatic conditions now being carried out before they go all out on the production and promotion of these new types of men's clothing.

The second factor, and the most important under current conditions, has been the inability of the man-made fiber producers to promise to supply the full quantity of yarn necessary to fill the demand that large-scale production of year-round suitings and overcoatings would require.

Admittedly, many of the yarn producers, up until the early part of this year, had been reluctant to commit themselves on a major scale to a newly opened field at the expense of their major markets in the women's apparel and accessory fields. But the main reason was the inability to fill all the potential demand for yarn and an unwillingness to expand plant facilities until such time as the mass-markets had proven themselves to be permanent ones.

The same situation is true in regard to supplying the floor covering industry, a market that opened on a small scale only last July at the mid-summer home furnishings markets. At that time when the price of raw wool had risen to fantastic heights, a few carpet producers turned out a small selection of wool-synthetic blends and a few all-synthetic numbers. In all but a very few instances, however, these lines were regarded by many as only temporary numbers until the supply of wool became more plentiful and the price had dropped to a normal level.

FAVORABLY RECEIVED

The unexpectedly favorable reception given the new wool-synthetic blends and a few all-synthetic carpets up until last July brought on a widespread movement of other carpet producers to join in the trend. As a result, at the home furnishings markets last January blended and all-synthetic carpets and floor coverings were offered by all manufacturers showing at the markets. The reception given these new lines, not only by the public but by the retailers, has convinced both carpet producers and yarn makers that the man-made fibers have opened a major, and permanent mass market in the floor-covering field.

Even though yarn producers like Celanese and American Viscose had developed specially engineered yarns for the floor-covering field and had been working closely with the carpet makers, neither had expected to win a major foothold in the field for some years to come. The only present bottleneck to realizing the full potential of the vast new market which has opened in this field is again the inability of yarn producers to supply all the fiber needed. Even though the yarn producers have extended themselves to provide carpet makers with as much yarn as possible, it is estimated at present that they are able to supply only about 25 per cent of the yarn the carpet trade is asking for.

The new Celanese pulp subsidiary's mill will help meet part of that demand through increasing supplies to its own customers. At the same time, it will ease the pressure on demand on already short pulp supplies enabling other producers to benefit indirectly from the Celanese expansion.

The new mill has an initial annual production capacity of 70,000 tons of high alpha cellulose—sufficient raw material to produce in excess of 200,000,000 pounds of acetate yarn and staple fiber, or roughly one-sixth of the total production of all man-made fibers last year. The mill's pulp output is equivalent to around 18 per cent of the entire pulp used last year by all synthetic producers, and is equal to 75 per cent of the pulp used in 1950 by all acetate makers.

Even though the new mill has just begun operations, Celanese has already authorized a substantial expansion in the plant capacity and has begun to plan for even further expansion. The new mill will not only help supply the yarn needs of Celanese, but its plastic requirements as well. When expansion has been completed, the company will also be producing knit paper and board.

For Canada's economy the new plant means not only new industrial expansion, more jobs, increased income and added exports, but it will also bring an expansion in the Canadian production of man-made fibers for the benefit of the country's apparel and home furnishings industries.
