Association Formed to Take Terrace Hospital

TRRACE—Eight signatures of a petition to Terrace and District Hospital Association and the Hospital Societies' Act will form the Board and will administer the affairs of the local hospital at its first annual meeting, early in 1952, from the Red Cross Society withdraws from it at the end of November.

Wrightman, chairman of the local interim committee, which was set up at a meeting last June, to take over the Outpost Hospital when the Red Cross Society withdraws from it at the end of November, stated what had been done by the committee at a meeting held last Tuesday night. Now awaited the certificate of registration from the provincial government. In the meantime, the most pressing matter is the raising of funds needed for the hospital. On October 30, the date of local meeting, the situation was freely discussed.

Business men of the town extended an invitation to this meeting which was held at the Credit Union hall. There were in attendance and the situation was freely discussed. Generally felt that a hospital could be operated cheaply as the present hospital. As a larger hospital was needed for the town or two of the speaker's getting to work on the plans for a new hospital and turning the present hospital into a source of income, an apartment block.

There are no grants for a hospital there in grants for capital expenses. However, it was recalled that the most urgent thing is to keep the hospital operating after the end of the year.

Some of pessimism prevailing among some of those present would be the general opinion to drive for funds. Number thought that, as usual for funds for an auxiliary truck had met with

Priority To China Denied

PARIS (CP)—The Fifth United Nations General Assembly today rejected a Russian demand that the question of giving China's seat to the Communists be given priority in the Sixth Assembly opening tomorrow. The vote was 11 for, 20 against and eleven abstentions.

T. A. Some, Canada's minister to Sweden, is being mentioned for the chairmanship of the General Assembly.

Search Plane Basing Here

Flying Officer Dan Campbell, skipper of a Royal Canadian Air Force Canso, which has been searching out of Prince Rupert during the past few days for a 30-foot troller, Pluto, which has been missing for two weeks between Uluet and Victoria on the west coast of Vancouver Island, does not think there is much chance of trace being found in this area.

Flying Officer Campbell and his crew have been scouring straits and islands north of Queen Charlotte Sound on the chance that the vessel might have drifted north and been cast ashore.

Another Canso has been searching southward along the west coast of Vancouver Island while F/O Campbell's machine has been operating northward with bases from Prince Rupert and Port Hardy.

The Canso arrived here last night but weather was too rough today to permit of the search being carried out. He has one more day of searching to do on the east coast of the Queen Charlottes and then he expects to return to Sea Island, Vancouver.

With FO. Campbell on the Canso are FO. R. Culbert, FO. R. Mihell, FO. D. Corker, PO. D. Gilchrist, Sgt. J. Lindal and Leading Aircraftmen F. Urquhart and J. Broadwood.

Rescued From Early Winter

WINNIPEG (CP)—Three men were rescued Sunday from a fishing boat marooned by ice for two days on the freezing waters of Lake Winnipeg.

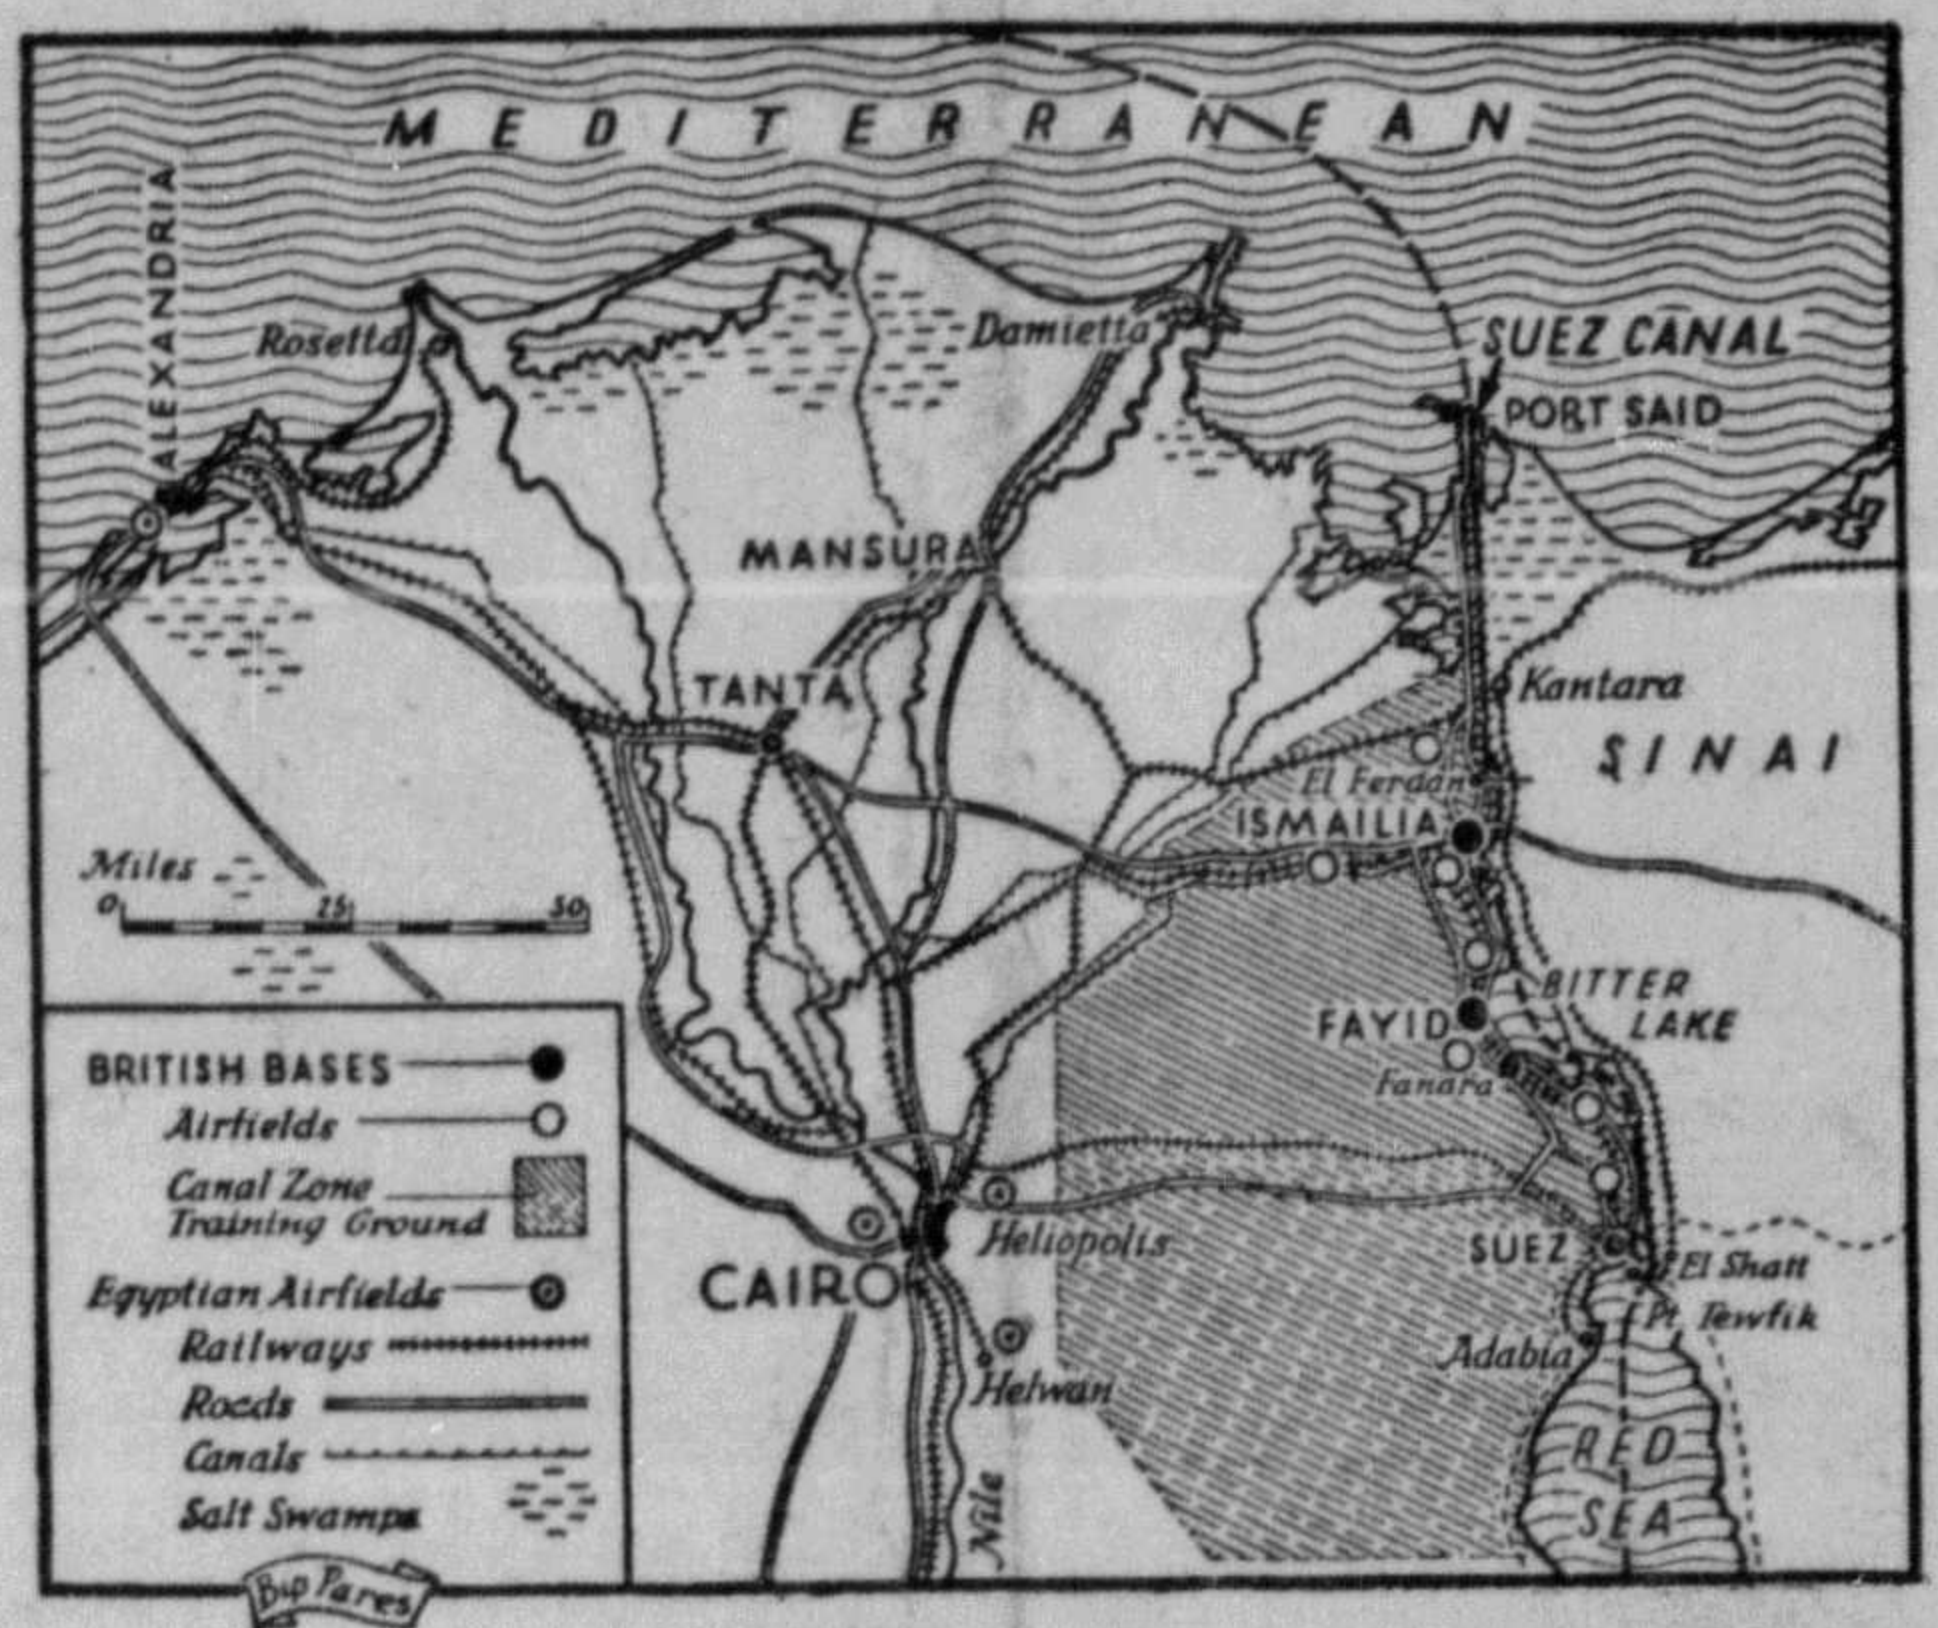

The fate of another vessel caught in the early onslaught of winter remains uncertain.

The lightkeeper on an island in the middle of the lake became stranded when the supply vessel became frozen in before making its last run.

The RCAF dropped emergency supplies to him yesterday.

Fishermen were brought ashore by a three-man rescue team that made a daring dash, dragging and coasting a canoe across three miles of treacherous slush and floes, ice, clinging to the lake's southeast shore, had prevented the men from getting home after lifting the nets Friday.

Another boat, running for port in a blinding snowstorm last Thursday, became separated from four others in the north end of Lake Winnipeg. Its whereabouts are still uncertain.

Meantime, situation continues unsettled and tense with Britain pouring in military and naval reinforcements to maintain order and control.

Missing Men Are Located

Couple Safe After Their Boat Broke Down While Hunting up Tucks Inlet

Hans Webber, fireman for the Pegg Wrecking Co. on the former United States Army warehouse job, and Larry Corbett were safely back in port early this morning after having been missing overnight on a hunting trip in the Silver Creek area of Tucks Inlet.

The pair went out at 4 o'clock Sunday morning with the expectation of returning in the afternoon.

When they were still not back this morning, the police were informed and the P.M.L. 15 went out to search.

Their boat, it was found, had developed engine trouble and was adrift. The two men were none the worse.

The police boat brought them back.

Use Of Radar

BRITISH COLUMBIANS were astonished and perturbed at two statements made during Mr. Justice Sidney Smith's inquiry into the collision between SS. Prince Rupert and SS. Princess Kathleen in a fog last August 30, says Vancouver Province editorially.

One of the statements was made by ship's officers and was to the effect that while both vessels have radar, no formal instruction has been given to the officers, nor is organized schooling in the use of radar available.

The other was the statement of the counsel for the department of transport, who told the hearing: "The owners might have taken some initiative to see that their officers got radar schooling, so that they might be better equipped to use radar in the prevention of collisions as well as for routine navigation purposes.

"I have sympathy for the officers of both ships. They were using a new device about which they do not know very much, and there are no means of getting instruction.

"If radar is to be used, officers must have proper instruction in order to properly interpret the information obtained on the radar screen."

This is an important point, the point that must be observed if public safety is, as it must be, the first consideration. If radar is employed the officers in charge must be properly trained in its use.

Where there is radar there must be men who know how to use it. It is even conceivable that radar, misused, could contribute to an accident.

There should be no insuperable obstacle to obtaining instruction in radar. Probably the Royal Canadian Navy could be induced to conduct a radar course for all those who need it.

Since the counsel for the department of transport urged the need of training perhaps the department should take the lead in that direction.

Help Spread Gospel

ANNUAL canvass on behalf of the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society is being held in Prince Rupert this week and we would put in a word of support here on its behalf.

In the multiplicity of campaigns which we have these days, most are of purely a materialistic nature which, of course, does not say that they are all worthy and for good causes designed in one way or another to aid humanity for assistance to the sick or distressed or straight welfare objects.

Most of us admit the vital necessity of the spreading of the Gospel. Here in this country it is organized through the medium of the various churches and its influence is established and sustained, even though many may not be churchgoers or supporters.

Few of us, probably, support our church adequately either actively or financially. A few dollars from each of us, therefore, to spread the regulating influence of Christianity, by means of the printing and distribution of the Bible, not only in our own land but throughout the world, would be money as well spent as for any gift we could make.

We, therefore, have no hesitation in recommending the British and Foreign Bible Society's campaign to the most generous possible support.

Home of Burns

GENERAL EISENHOWER and his party arrived in Ayrshire, Scotland, for a wee visit the same day I was there. But I had better luck than the genial General Ike. For in welcoming him to the castle in which they had given him a lifetime free lease on a flat, somebody hoister the Stars and Stripes over the castle—but upside down.

That distress signal did not upset the Eisenhower party. Members merely laughed—but had it corrected, pronto.

I WAS a bit disappointed in the Burns memorial layout in Ayr itself. The cottage in which the immortal bard was born stands bare and dour. Of course, it's neat and clean. But it is not specially interesting to tourists, bare of furniture as it is.

Adjoining the Burns birthplace cottage, however, is an interesting museum. It has a specially fine library with a great host of books on Burns.

The exhibit cases hold many Burns letters or manuscripts. They would make a wonderful study for the experts in handwriting analysis.

For instance, when Burns wrote his famous poetic version of Bruce's rousing address to his troops before the Battle of Bannockburn, his writing is as bold and purposeful as an army on the attack. He underlines the word "tyrants" with a great black dash. But at other periods of his life his handwriting seems to show the contradictions and cross-currents in his character.

I DID NOT have the time nor the necessary credentials to examine the many books on Burns. But I have been doing a bit of sleuthing about how the doctors treated rheumatism or arthritis in those days.

Burns, of course, like Britain's youngest Prime Minister, Pitt, suffered from arthritis. Pitt's self-prescribed cure was to drink three bottles of port wine every day. The treatment for Robert Burns was to go bathing in the ice-cold sea.

No wonder both Pitt and Burns died at such an early age.

WOULD IT NOT be a fine and fitting thing if the numerous Burns societies in Canada and elsewhere were to provide for a Burns centre which would employ all the fine arts to show the fine side of the life and work of Scotland's great poet?

I remember visiting St. Louis, Missouri, and seeing wonderful little life-like tableaux showing the historic scenes when the French handed over half a continent to the Americans. Artists had recreated each tiny soldier in the regiments on both sides of the ceremonial handover. When you looked at the scene you believed that you were actually there.

SOME SUCH treatment could show scenes from the life of Burns—sitting up with a sick cow, philosophizing over a mouse turned up by his plow, writing his famous predictions on the coming brotherhood of man. The best of Burns' love poems are as fine as those in any age in any language.

The poems themselves could be engraved and the scenes that inspired them depicted.

THIS IS an ambitious scheme, perhaps. But who will say too ambitious?

Meanwhile, at the birthplace of Alexander Muir, at Lisnaghog, Lanarkshire, something much more modest needs doing. There isn't even a bronze plaque to show that there was born the author of our own song, "The Maple Leaf."

Thomas Ball, distinguished American sculptor who died in 1911, was a famous basso singer in his youth.

Reflects and Reminisces

Nothing whatever appeared in the Soviet press, concerning the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada. Probably there were a few dozen sticks of special advertising, and there simply wasn't space. You understand.

FROM START TO FINISH

When anyone remains long enough in a British Columbia town to be the only one left, he naturally becomes a subject of more than average interest. And when he dies, people will talk about what is a sort of unique record. Well, last week in Phoenix cemetery, William H. Bambury was laid to rest, high in the mountains "amid the whispering pines" as a Greenwood despatch says. Old Bill went to the once famous mining camp more than a half century ago. He saw it start and saw it end. He must have liked the life. Loneliness and peace certainly agreed with him. An he must have got along without worry—something most of us feel we should have today.

Men, known as magicians when they lived, solemnly promised to try and contact this earth when they reached the hereafter. One of these was Harry Houdini, who died 25 years ago. His pledge was that he would make the attempt every Halloween. Annually, ever since, fellow magicians set the stage in this world and patiently waited.

Fifty-one apartments in a single block, all lit up should give First Avenue at the foot of Seventh Street, a cheerful look. The time will soon be here when the building will be fully tenanted. An encouraging start has already been made with the western end of the premises.

It's getting along toward the season when the question of fuel becomes more pressing, although to live in Prince Rupert is to expect less frost. Which reminds one of the Vanderhoof man who remarked to his neighbor he would soon be getting in several cords of shecan wood.

"What kind of wood is that? Never heard of it." "What I mean is she can cut and she can carry."

Art Club Has Started Well

The Art Club is off to an enthusiastic start for the year after their recent successful course under Cliff Robinson. They will meet every Thursday night and this Thursday several will finish their painting of a bean pot and basket while others will begin a new project. Mrs. John Stirn will be instructress.

The projects during the winter will vary from still life studies to life drawing, from charcoal, pencil and ink drawing to work in watercolors and oils. Each person will choose their own medium. During the course Miss Frances Partridge and Mr. Cheeseman tried out watercolors. Miss Margee worked in pastels. Some of those who painted in oils and will likely continue, include: Mrs. Dougherty, Mrs. R. A. McLean, Mrs. Lindseth, Mr. and Mrs. Meuse and Mr. Freestad.

The winter program may be varied still further as Mrs. Aldridge learned from Mr. Robinson the details of batik work, while Mrs. Harvey inquired into block printing for curtains.

At the conclusion of the course on Friday night Mrs. T. Priest, the Art Club president, tendered a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Robinson and she said she expressed the wishes of all when she hoped he would find it possible to return next year to continue the work he had begun so pleasantly and effectively this year.

Hallowe'en at High School

The first Booth Memorial High School dance of the year was held last Wednesday at the school. The seniors (grades 9 to 13) occupied the gymnasium and the juniors the Activity room which is on the lower floor of the new building.

Each of the houses were in charge of a different phase of the preparations. Alpha house looked after the entertainment which consisted of several interesting items. The first item was a number of songs by a trio of senior girls. The next was a short drama by two of the boys, Carl Watson and Darrel Young. The two boys, both dressed as small children, the former a girl and the latter a boy, acted a scene to the tune "Too Young."

Beta House was in charge of the hat check department for which the main hall was used. Delta House did the decorating. The gymnasium was impressively arrayed in orange and black with occasional black cat or witch.

The refreshments were Gammas' responsibility. Doughnuts and cakes were served in the Activity room kitchen. The event closed at 12 o'clock. —Richard Kilborn. (1c)

Busy Winter for Port—School for Navigation Starting—Draggermen Out

It may be a case of farewell to the motor vessel Beachcomber, owned by Jerry McKinley of Juneau, although this is only supposition. Nevertheless the ship has not been seen or heard of since mid-October when she put out from Yakutat for Juneau. A search is being made by the coastguard.

Although no vessel to load grain at Prince Rupert has appeared here yet, a good sized staff continues on duty at the elevator receiving the grain that started to arrive more than a week ago. There is everything to indicate that this winter may be one of the busiest the port has ever seen. Prince Rupert will take care of at least seven or eight freighters and there is a fair possibility of as many as twenty, all told, taking full cargo. In Vancouver, loading has been maintained practically all summer. The largest single shipment in June was on the SS Evrotas, bound for the United Kingdom with 373,333 bushels. So far this year, shipments to the Orient through Vancouver continue heavy.

Round the world tours are coming back but it's an absolute necessity to have a few dollars to the good. In January, the Cunard Caronia liner will sail on a hundred days' cruise, calling at four continents and visiting in 25 ports. The lowest fare will be $2,975. The Caronia is a ship of 34,000 tonnage.

MANY MISSING BOATS

Missing and overdue boats have been causing plenty of anxiety and search, particularly in the southeast part of Alaska this fall. One of the latest reported was the fishing craft Jewell, with Leonard Horn and Bill O'Neil on board, according to what has been heard in Juneau. Some time after she sailed from Warm Springs Bay, there was an SOS call, and news she was shipping water. What may have occurred after this appears a matter of uncertainty.

No further developments have taken place respecting white albacore (tuna) in Northern B.C. waters. Large schools were in district waters, and suddenly the fish vanished, after good catches were made. Millions of pounds just disappeared. For nearly 500 miles out to sea, fishing vessels tried to discover at least some sign or trace, but the best efforts were without result.

Bright and clean after her annual overhaul, Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Boden, is back on the Union Steamship Co.'s Vancouver-Prince Rupert-Alice Arm-Stewart route. The vessel arrived in port at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the south and sailed at 11 p.m. for Stewart and Alice Arm. She will return here tomorrow morning southbound.

Capt. W. H. Kougham, harbor master, will open his annual school for navigation here November 27 and is now receiving enrolments from those who would take courses leading to examinations for papers as home trade masters of vessels under 150 tons. Last winter, Capt. Kougham's classes proved popular and were attended by no less than 37 persons. Of these ten took examinations and all were successful.

Some four local fishing vessels are still in operation although most of the fishing is closed. These vessels are occupied in dragging for bottom fish such as flounder and soles, in Hecate Strait waters, delivering their catches to the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., Atlin Fisheries and Royal Fish Co., for filleting. The boats are Carolina Maria, Capt. Frank Gale; Colnet, Capt. R. Gale; B. C. Producer, Capt. Fred Kohse, and Combat.

Terrace Hospital Helped by WA

TERRACE — At the monthly meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary, presided over by Mrs. Ivan Frank, it was decided that the net proceeds of the recent Hospital ball would be turned over to the newly formed Hospital Association. Also $15 will be paid towards the incorporation of the Association.

Those volunteering to visit the hospital patients during the month of November were Mrs. D. G. Little, Mrs. George McAdams, Mrs. L. Newhouser and Mrs. C. W. Michiel.

Refreshments were served at the end of the meeting which was fairly well attended.

Prince George School Burned

PRINCE GEORGE — Fire destroyed an elementary school here Saturday. Damage is estimated at $80,000. Following the fire, pupils will have their classes in the Civic Centre and Canadian Legion premises.

"David and Bathsheba"

Powerful and spectacular, one of the outstanding moving picture productions of the year, "David and Bathsheba," immortal Biblical love story, comes to the Capitol Theatre here from Monday to Wednesday of this week. Photographed in technicolor, it boasts a cast of thousands headed by co-stars Gregory Peck and Susan Hayward in the title roles.

Filmed on locations in Arizona built as a replica of ancient Israel, "David and Bathsheba" relates on the screen the legendary drama of the romance of the King of the Israelites and the sirenous wife of his able warrior, Uriah, the Hittite. Beginning with the historic meeting when David sees Bathsheba bathing herself on a roof top adjoining his palace and has her brought to him, the picture follows the Biblical account of how David dispatches her husband to death in battle so that he can marry her. For this sin, they suffer the wrath of God predicted by the bearded prophet, Nathan.

Highlights in David's life, including the classic killing of the Philistine giant, Goliath, by a pebble from the boy's slingshot, are recreated during the King's pilgrimage to the tabernacle where the holy Ark of the Covenant is housed to beg forgiveness from God. Culmination of the film's interpretation of David's life comes with the use of the Twenty-Third Psalm attributed to David at another point in the Bible, making his redemption in the eyes of God.

Raymond Massey appears as the prophet Nathan, Kieron Moore of the British screen as Uriah, Francis X. Bushman as King Saul and the professional wrestler, Walter Talun, as Goliath.

News of the District

Terrace Civic Centre Crisis

TERRACE—Ownership of the Terrace and District Civic Centre has become a matter of grave consideration between the village commissioners and the executive of the Civic Centre Association.

Some years ago the community subscribed $6,000 in donations for the purchase of the building—the former army drill hall—from War Assets who would only sell to a legal body such as the village commissioners.

The equipping and operating of the building has now been undertaken by an association which is just recently being incorporated under the Societies' Act.

Individuals have shouldered the obligations. No other help than a refund on the water tax has come from the village commissioners who have refused any responsibility towards it.

Now major changes are necessary in the centre. The building has to be re-wired and from the fire marshal's office have come orders for re-conversion. Money will have to be raised for this work, otherwise the building will be condemned.

Without ownership of the building the association has no collateral for borrowing and it would probably mean going to the individuals again.

The commissioners, when the matter was first broached by President Darrall Collins, asked that a public meeting of the association be called to decide the issue. The meeting decided on Monday night to ask the commissioners to turn over the building to the association and the matter rests there.

In the meantime, plans for the incorporation under the Societies' Act are going ahead with the passing of the new by-laws.

TELKWA TALKS...

F. M. Dockrill went for Victoria and Portland last week-end via Prince Rupert where he will spend a month's holiday combining pleasure with business.

Flood waters of Goat Creek came within a narrow margin of overflowing its banks and might have proven to be a serious interference with the Bulkley Valley Collieries coal production for the Columbia Cellulose Company.

Pupils of the junior high school held a very successful Halloween party in Mr. Ingot's room. Dancing and games were the attraction of the evening, the teachers getting into the spirit of the occasion by dressing up in costume. Lunch was served.

Jovial citizen, Mr. Pritchard, who never fails to take advantage of opportunities put at his disposal, was the first patron to enter the Royal Bank on their opening day here in Telkwa.

Tommy Woods, CNR wire chief of Smithers, dropped off here for a brief visit on his way to Edmonton, where he boarded the Royal train as escort on its way east. Tommy was also on board the Royal train when their Majesties visited Canada 12 years ago. Friends will be remembered with a special stamped envelope mailed while on board the train, for their stamp collection.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brooks and L. Haller of Kamloops, who are in partnerships and are the new owners of the Emil Widen farm, are loading a carload of hay here. When asked why they chose this part of the country to make their future home, both men answered in unison: "It sounded good," meaning the name Telkwa.

T. F. & M. Mills, lumber merchants here, held a meeting for their employees and lumber operators of the district Tuesday in the Telkwa school. About 20 attended this meeting. Present was Mr. Harris of Vancouver, lumber grader of the H. R. MacMillan Export Co., who spoke on the grading of lumber, which proved of great interest to the men.

Flood waters were at their peak here last Saturday night with both the Telkwa and Bulkley rivers on the rampage from steady rains and melting snows. There was a rise of over six feet and the Telkwa has never been known to flow with such force as to touch the opposite bank of the Bulkley. Twenty feet of the bank on the Telkwa river near the Pete Anderson property was washed away. A small cabin went floating down the river.
