Canadian Congress of Labor Backs Executive

Bludgeoning to Enforce Views of CCF
Seen by One Delegate

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor, which has been wiping up its Red element for several years, yesterday voted to continue the power of its executive committee to expel Communist-dominated unions. A sharp scrap over the issue at yesterday's annual convention session saw the wing-ers take a beating of about 20 to 1.

The fight developed over a proposal of Toronto Local 539 of the United Automobile Workers to give executive authority only to suspend rather than to expel Red-run unions.

The expulsion order has been on the books for a year.
Several left-wingers called for a watering down of the executive's powers while executive members demanded they be retained as a weapon against Communism within the CCL.

Communist-dominated unions have no place in the free trades union movement, said Sam Baron of Hamilton, executive member.

The CCL also turned down a resolution which would have removed from the constitution entirely a clause dealing with executive expulsion. That proposal came from Division 67 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees in Winnipeg.
J. H. Gibson of Division 67 said the resolution was put up because that branch "opposes reasons." He suggested that putting people out for political unions are being wrecked by "bludgeoning people to accept the views of the CCF party."

Bevan is

LONDON (CP)—Aneurin Bevan,

today was the centre of the first national executive, including trade union leaders, and claimed world events have proven the Bevanites' contention that the government was wrong in defence budgeting. Bevan says the rearmament program will wreck

In Korea— TOKYO TAXIS

By JOCK CARROLL

The first time I got into a taxi in Tokyo I narrowly escaped acquiring a pretty Japanese wife.

Tokyo has two kinds of taxis. The domestic cabs, for anybody's use, and the Foreigner's Cabs, which bear a white license plate and are especially for foreigners. The drivers of these have to know a certain amount of English. What this amounts to is that they know enough to tell you what they want to do, but not enough to understand what you want to do.

I stepped into one of these outside the Toko Correspondents' Club. The driver was a smiling, polite Japanese named Nikimo-to. I told Mr. Nikimoto where I wanted to go. From my directions he must have realized that I had just arrived in the Orient, because, at the first stop light,
he turned and smiled and said:
"Japanese wife, you have no?"

Startled, I said, "Why, no. I mean, yes, have no."
Mr. Nikimoto said, "Ah, so."
He shook his head sadly. "Must have Japanese wife. I get you fine Japanese wife maybe. Nice house, you live inside. All rice can eat, all laundry. Maybe twenty-five thousand yen, one month."

"I'm sure that's very reasonable," I said, beginning to get a bit nervous, but, really—
"Okay," said Mr. Nikimoto.
"You save much money. I go now, make phone call. Girl come, you look. She very good Japanese, girl, noble family. Not marry before. Her family have money before but in war come B-29—boom! boom! family now poor."

Before I could stop him Mr.
Nikimoto popped out of the taxi and disappeared into a store to phone. Returning, he drove me still protesting, to the Shinbashi Station, where we were joined by Miss Takahashi. I half expected Miss Takahashi would be wearing a kimono and the wooden clogs known as geta. But from her sweater to her buckskin shoes she was dressed exactly like a bobby-soxer. She was even chewing gum.

"You like?" said Mr. Nikimoto, grinning expectantly.
I looked into Miss Takahashi's soft, brown eyes. She giggled.
Hurriedly I dived back into my copy of "Japanese In Thirty Hours," which I had been thumbing through for the past five minutes in the hope of some

Most of the domestic taxis are charcoal burners. A contraption something like a whisky-still was built where the trunk usually is.
As far as I was able to understand the charcoal fumes from this contraption worked their way around the passengers, past the driver, until they finally found their way into the engine and caused it to operate. This made it a pretty warm ride, especially when you were plunging through Tokyo's narrow streets without any apparent regard for life and limb.

Tokyo is the second largest city in the world, with some eight million people crammed into it.

Smithers Gets Federal Block

E. T. Applewhaite, M.P., returned to the city yesterday accompanied by Mrs. Applewhaite following a visit to his constituents at Telkwa, Smithers, Mor-icetown and other communities.
He reports continuing expansion in every area along the railway line.

"Plans for the new Federal building at Smithers are now ready and specifications are in course of preparation. Tenders for this building will be called for about the third week in November. The new building will accommodate the post office, Dominion telegraph and telephone, Dominion Fisheries and Agriculture branches."

CBC repeater stations are now installed and in operation at Smithers, Terrace, Hazelton and Burns Lake.

British Election

THE "Festival of Britain" year suddenly has become a General Election year. Prime Minister Attlee is appealing to the country on Oct. 25.

With all the besetting difficulties Britain has faced during the past few years, and with a scant majority of from three to nine votes in the House of Commons, few Prime Ministers of any country would have had the temerity to carry on the government.

Whatever may be one's political opinion, none can fail to pay tribute to the steadfastness, courage and integrity of Mr. Attlee as Prime Minister of Great Britain during a most hectic period in her long history.

The Conservative party, led by that great wartime leader, Right Hon. Winston Churchill, will be the main opposition to the Labour Government. Notwithstanding defeat at the last election which followed the victory in which he played so large a part, the magic of his name still has tremendous appeal to the voters.

But problems in peace time, and in days of a cold war threatening to become another world war, are different to those when Churchill was heading a nation at war. There has been much publicity about the strength of the Tory party. It is our opinion such strength lies in the protest vote rather than in the party. Continuing food shortages, keener austerity than in war, reduction rather than increase of the family rations and inflation have undoubtedly made people become antagonistic to the government of the day.

On the other hand, welfare measures instituted by the Labour government, have eased many burdens upon the masses. Whether the remembrance of those benefits will counteract the protest against the existing burdens will be only known after the election.

Human nature is such that benefits conferred are quickly forgotten. We live in the present. Only our current problems are considered. People usually vote against a government which has not solved our current difficulties which we feel at the moment. And they vote for those who hold out the promise of benefits to come.

Hence the edge would appear to be with the Tories, who have not had to meet the staggering difficulties met by Labour.

Within the Labour party there is the shadow of Aneurin Bevan hovering over its destiny. Bevan wants a more vigorous Socialism and less re-armament which he thinks has been imposed upon the British by the United States, a country whose policies he dislikes.

The Liberal party, whose leaders are Mr. Davies and Lord Beveridge, famous for his monumental report on social security, has ceased to be a major factor in elections since it committed suicide by continuing the Liberal-Conservative coalition after the first war.

Nevertheless, it polled 25 per cent as many votes as did the Labour party, yet by the out-dated voting system got only nine members in the House. Should the alternative vote become law in Britain, the Liberal party could become a contender for office. It is unlikely however, either the Tories or Labourites will bring in such an act.

No matter which party wins, the government of Great Britain continues to face serious and perplexing problems.

Inflation; rising costs of living, of materials and consequently of export prices that will meet the competition of Japan and Germany in the near future; rations and austerity; wage increases; loss of oil and its huge investment in Iran; loss of gold and dollars and the financial difficulties of buying raw materials and food from the dollar area; the vultures all around the world who are picking at Britain in her extremities; all these and more will confront any government with problems that will test the wisdom and sagacity of her statesmen.

But after the election is over, we know the British people will continue in steadfastness, in quiet determination and in a grumbling sort of cheerfulness, no matter what further sacrifices they are called upon to make, to meet their difficulties and overcome them.

Britain, perhaps in false pride, declined further Marshall aid last year. The spirit of the younger Pitt still lives who said when Prime Minister in similar dark and sombre days of trial,

"Britain will save herself by her own exertions, and Europe by her example."

MacArthur Menace

WHILE THE attention of the world was focussed on the San Francisco peace-signing ceremony, General MacArthur made an ominous speech in Cleveland which foreshadows a fight which is bound to affect us here in Canada.

In effect, MacArthur allied himself with Senator Taft in the "Stop Eisenhower" move now afoot in the U.S.A. The general was purposely vague as to whether he was backing Taft for the Republican nomination, or asking Taft to back him. But he left no room for doubt on the more important point — he is gunning for Ike.

A New York Times report of September 9 says:

"At Cleveland he specifically assigned responsibility for the rise of world Bolshevism since the end of the second World War to 'our political and military leaders' among whom General Eisenhower for several years was one of a handful of top leaders."

IT IS worth noting that Senator McCarthy's most frenzied smear-mongering of the past year was directed against one of the most respected figures in the entire world—General George C. Marshall.

That smear campaign fell flat, partly because the big newspaper chains of the U.S.A., which have not hesitated to publicize in full most of the fevered fomentations of the McCarthy mind, simply played down, or ignored altogether, the anti-Marshall blasts.

But let nobody run away with the idea that Eisenhower will be handled indefinitely with such kid gloves.

Already the whole United States and Canada is being flooded with anti-Eisenhower scandal sheets, some of which brazenly peddle the anti-labor, anti-Jewish line, that characterized the Hitlerite propaganda in pre-war Germany.

Eisenhower is dangerous because he is "the man most wanted by the Zionists" says one California smear sheet. "General Eisenhower's first political speech after the war must have surprised many Americans for he chose a CIO convention at Atlantic City for his audience."

THERE SEEMS to be two broad trends in American life today. These are not absolutely distinct, for they slop over and intermingle at the edges. But they are moving towards different destinations.

Both currents are determined to "block Russian expansionism." But it seems to me that the one current, typified by Marshall, Eisenhower, Acheson, is sincere when it declares that the above is its whole aim—and that it is willing to negotiate a sincere world settlement with the Communists—but one which would derive from western strength, not weakness.

THE MacARTHUR school frankly believes in a go-it-alone policy, based on a forced, even aggressive military showdown with Russia and China, and, consequently an utter indifference to the wishes and interests of the present allies of the U.S.A.

Mark Gayn, in his masterly book "Japan Diary," came to the conclusion that for MacArthur, liquidation of Britain's interest in the Far East was an ever more primary objective than was his zeal for checkmating Russia.

If the Eisenhower school of thought wins out we can work out a real Atlantic Union, and the nucleus of democratic world government—world peace under world law.

If MacArthur wins out—look around for a nice dry cave, you Canadians—for you are going to need them in the war his policy would surely force.

LETTERBOX

WATER AND POWER
Editor,
Daily News:

We note statements appearing in your issue of September 17 re the above. These are at variance with the reports prepared by Mr. Bonnycastle and Mr. Stewart, consulting engineers engaged by the city.

After consideration of records, flow sheets and inspection, Mr. Bonnycastle's opinion was that the limit of gravitational flow to the city distribution system would not exceed 225 million gallons per day. If as stated the diameter of the 18" city water main has been reduced by blisters and accumulations to 16" the estimate arrived at by Mr. Stewart of two million gallons per day appears quite liberal.

From Mr. Bonnycastle's report it is asserted that the Shawatlans plant could carry 700 K.W. continuously and still leave for delivery through the 18" line 1.75 million gallons per day. Mr. Bonnycastle further stated that if waste and leakage were eliminated in the city system the power plant should be able to operate at 750 K.W. and that booster pump operation would not be necessary.

The records of this company show that, except in emergency, the plant does not operate continuously or carry maximum load. Our average is below the 700 K.W. mentioned by Mr. Bonnycastle during the operative period per day and at each normal daily inoperative period maximum flow to the city system is available. The available flow should therefore normally be well in excess of that mentioned by Mr. Bonnycastle providing frictional losses and demand in the city water main will allow such flow.

Both consulting engineers have stated that it is difficult to determine the actual city usage per day and could not give definite figures.

The proposal advanced of laying a new main 30" in diameter from the recently installed 24" section to the 45" penstock is estimated by Mr. Stewart to cost approximately $307,500 or $492,500 to the dam. The proposal to acquire dam, penstock, plant, etc., could definitely not be considered as more economical than the difference in cost of the extension to the dam.

If this proposed 30" main is installed there still remains the problem of increasing the under-water crossing at Shawatlans passage otherwise the flow according to Mr. Stewart is limited to 3.8 million gallons per day. The next difficulty is the city system. Mr. Stewart states as follows:

"I feel it might be advisable to emphasize the fact that the pipe through the city and between the supply line and the

I don't like to talk with people who always agree with me. It is amusing to coquette with an echo for a little while but one soon tires of it.—Carlyle.

While there may be another somewhere, we do know of a seven inch carot with circumference of about ten inches grown in Prince Rupert. It is from the Ninth Avenue garden of a pioneer citizen whose unalterable modesty cannot permit publication of identity. The ground is just muskeg, after having had a few years of simple attention, and results are commencing to surpass fondest expectations.

RELIEVING A FRACTURE

William Andrews returned home yesterday from the hospital where his left leg had been placed in a cast following a fracture of the right ankle. —Malone (N.Y.) Telegram.

FEELING LAGUARD?

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, one learns, plan on visiting Alberta sometime along in mid-winter. It's only when there and at that season, they are really in the north. Other times, it's France or the Mediterranean, anywhere so long as it's south. In time, however, will come a craving. There will be thoughts of a ranch, a good bracing blast from the Great Bear Lake and hotcakes for breakfast.

It may not be realized that in the second great war, more civilians were killed and injured than were soldiers. Meanwhile, the fact remains that today more civilians appear to know more about the expected approach of another struggle than do the soldiers themselves. Anyway they talk and write more.

Cows can't use crutches

We've heard from Denmark that a cow over there had to have its leg amputated, but gets along quite nicely now on a new one made of aluminum.

Whether or not this artificial leg was made of Canadian aluminum, we wouldn't know. Perhaps it was, because we do produce one quarter of the world's supply. That's quite a big thing for Canada. It means jobs for Canadians, and money from abroad to pay for Canadian imports. Right now we are hard at work on extension projects in Quebec and British Columbia for we intend to go on playing our part in helping Canada grow. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Morale of Citizenship

Rotarians Hear Impressive Plea for Democracy

In an impressive address to the Rotary Club yesterday, Dr. W. G. Black, of the Dominion Government department of Citizenship and Immigration, chose as his theme the "Morale of Citizenship."

Dr. Black mentioned that he was not a stranger to Prince Rupert, as in his vacation days from the University of British Columbia, he worked in a cannery on the Naas River, and underwent an operation by Dr. W. T. Kergin in the General Hospital here. He paid high tribute to kindness of Dr. Kergin and of the hospital staff.

"The creed of democracy," said the speaker, "lies in our way of life and it is in great danger today from the ominous threats of a different creed. It will not save itself by merely making democracy adopt a defensive attitude. It must be aggressive. It is not enough for the democratic nations to contain Communism. They must emphasize that the democratic way of life has something better, imperfect though it may be, than Communism."

The speaker defined democracy as being based upon several chief factors—Constitutional Government through the elected representatives of the people, the rule of law. Liberty to all, blended with controls to ensure liberty did not become license to destroy the liberty of another. Our Freedoms—manifested in freedom of speech, assembly, press, religion and the franchise. And in the value we place on human life, human personality and of the individual person.

"It is, this Democracy of ours, infinitely better for human beings to live in than is any sort of totalitarian state, which inevitably becomes a police state where the individual personality is crushed."

Dr. Black continued "that Democracy in action meant service, duty, the acceptance of responsibility for the public welfare, and that fraternities and service institutions are facets of democracy's way of life."

Dr. Black concluded his address with high tribute to Canada's place in the United Nations and to the Hon. L. B. Pearson, whose foreign policy is endorsed by the three major parties in parliament.

"Canadians must develop more political consciousness," he said. "The mass of people's outlook is heavy as lead. If we can only get 25 percent of the people to be aroused into a political consciousness we can develop the morale of our entire nation. We Canadians must grow in knowledge in enthusiasm and in action if we are to develop a still greater morale and a better citizenship." He pleaded for a Citizenship Day on May 23 each year when old and new Canadians could meet to arouse in every community a higher realization of what it meant to be a citizen of Canada, a member of the influential Commonwealth and of the still greater United Nations.

School Band Talking Tour

The Booth Memorial High School band had its first practice Thursday noon. Fred Huber, the bandmaster, considers that the musicians are doing quite well after not having practiced all summer.

If the band makes satisfactory progress, the possibility of a tour is being considered for next year. "But," says Mr. Huber, "the students will have to work much harder than they are doing now."

Band practices are now taking place at noon-hour on Thursdays and Fridays, and at 8:30 to 9:45 on Monday evenings.

Later on Mr. Huber expects to form an orchestra.

RAVES ABOUT FISHING—

It Must be Good When Joe Scott Says it Is

Joe Scott has seen a lot of sport fishing but he had to go to "virgin" territory to see something like he never saw before. That was the coho fishing at Bag Bay in Burnsby Narrows near the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

"Yes," says Joe. "I never saw anything like it. To reel in fighting coho salmon running about eight pounds at the rate of five an hour is really good fishing," the ardent local nimrod enthusiastically avers. He used light trout trolling gear and a simple spoon.

Scott's companions on this latest exploit were Ted Boulter and Stewart Donaldson.

W. W. Wright, Progressive-Conservative organizer, returned Wednesday from a flight to Stewart.

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Here is an appropriate hand to end this series on "when not to finesse." It's not a flashy hand. There's no grand slam, no nine-card suit, no 1400-point set. Yet there's a point of play which is important—and which is very often missed.

In response to his partner's overcall Mr. Abel got off to the queen of diamonds opening. Mr. Muzzy won on the board with the king. He led a club and put up his queen which lost to Mr. Abel's ace. The return of the seven of diamonds was won in the closed hand with the ace.

Mr. Muzzy now cashed his king of clubs and ruffed his last club on the board. So far, so good. It was on the next play that Mr. Muzzy went wrong.

He led a small spade from the board and finessed his jack when Miss Brash played low. Mr. Abel won with the queen of spades. He led a spade to his partner's ace and ruffed the diamond return. Mr. Muzzy still had to lose two heart tricks for down one.

Let's go back to the sixth trick where Mr. Muzzy led a small spade from the dummy. After Miss Brash played low, the king was the play from the closed hand. Surely Miss Brash could be figured for the ace at this point. She had overcalled and her partner had already shown up with the ace of clubs and the queen of diamonds. Going up with the king of spades on the first lead of the suit meant the opportunity of pulling four enemy trumps before losing the lead. As you see Mr. Muzzy had one club loser and two heart losers. Therefore he could afford to lose two spades—but not three.

Of course Miss Brash could have defeated the contract by going up with ace of spades and leading a third round of diamonds for Mr. Abel to ruff. He could have put her in again with a high heart for another diamond lead which would have made his queen of spades a sure winner.

But the opponent's didn't defend like that. What's the good of having the enemy make an error if you don't take advantage of it?

reservoir must be increased and that sizeable expenditure will be required on these arteries and on distribution improvements if adequate service is to be provided. In the interest of security greater storage is also required. It is considered of greatest importance that these points be kept in mind otherwise we can get into a position where we have an abundance of water in the city main and no money left to take it from there to the consumer or the reservoir.

Regarding the 45" penstock we quote from Mr. Bonnycastle's report:

"The 45" penstock from the dam to power plant appears to be in fair condition with regard to strength and capacity. Before the wet weather comes a careful inspection should be made and precautions taken to prevent any possible slides."

With the co-operation of the city, the company has, as men are available, from time to time performed a fair quantity of work of a preventative nature. Regular patrol and inspection is made and where any dangerous condition is anticipated in consultation with the city superintendent of works, steps are taken to remedy the situation. The nature of the ground on which the penstock is located over a considerable distance between plant and dam is hazardous and during exceptional wet periods or by river bank erosion slides occur in seemingly safe locations.

This company, without prejudice, has endeavored to give the city every consideration in securing water supply but it does not assume responsibility for the very evident deteriorated condition of the city's water system which is incapable of meeting the growing requirements of this community. It is likewise apparent as it was when the booster pump was installed that the growing demand on the entire city water system exceeds the highest gravitational flow on numerous occasions, prevents flow to the reservoir and necessitates the use of the pump to maintain water there in order to supply customers at the higher levels in the city.

ACQUITTED OF THEFT

added: "You know how they do in a beer parlor, go away for a few minutes, then come back again."

"Then when did you leave, witness?"

"I had an appointment at 2:30, I left about 4:30 p.m."

"Did you see Vanderyagt again?" asked Mr. King.

"Yes, I saw him about 5:30 Sunday morning—he was loaded."

"This caper you were going to pull on Mr. Helgeson, did you think he was going to take it as a joke?"

"No—we intended to annoy him. He'd laugh at it afterwards," said McPhail.

Garnet Brush, a Queen Charlotte Island logger, said he also had been drinking at the table. He knew McPhail, he said, and both the accused. He also said there had been talk about a joke to be "pulled on Helgeson."

That evening, Brush said, he had gone to Swanson's place at the Inlander Rooms. There he had found "everybody."

"The room looked odd to me," he said, "there were things scattered all over and everybody was having a big laugh. I stayed about five minutes."

A painter, George Hamilton, said he had been at the Swanson one-room apartment that evening and had seen Swanson and "another stranger" come into the room carrying "many suitcases."

Vanderyagt was in the room at the time, he said.

"The stuff was all over the place, it's not a very big room. I wondered what they were doing with so much luggage. They laughed and said it was a joke."

VARIETY OF ITEMS

Produced in court as exhibits by the crown, were the items alleged to have been stolen—eight black travellers' cases filled with dry goods articles, including men's furnishings, boxed towel sets, belts, ladies' hose, men's socks, ankle socks, suspenders, plastic smaltwares, numerous other articles and a radio.

A salesman for the owners, James Morgan, first crown witness, identified all the articles and said in total they were valued at $500.

Morgan said he had left eight of the 14 cases he had with him in Commercial Hotel sample room for storage. When he returned, Sunday, July 1, he found the cases missing and had been alarmed. Harold Helgeson, hotel manager, then phoned police.

Const. Robert Ross, RCMP, answered Helgeson's call shortly after he received it at 2 p.m. Sunday. At the hotel, witness said he inspected the sample room and found the window open.

Evidence from both Harold Helgeson, and his brother, Leslie, bar manager, was that guests or unauthorized persons were not allowed in either the sample room, or in the hallway behind it, but admitted that at times people could walk in by mistake.

The hotel manager said he knew both the accused for some time. He knew Vanderyagt for "about a year" and to Mr. Collins' question said he had been on "friendly" terms and knew him as one likely "to play practical pranks on people."

DRINKING PARTY

Mrs. Amy Kasper, proprietor of Inlander Rooms where the eight cases were later found, told a story of a "drunken party" and of a room "all topsy-turvy."

She said she entered the room of Mr. and Mrs. Swanson on Sunday afternoon and found nobody there.

"But the room was all topsy-turvy," she said. "It looked like a big drinking party had been going on. I saw the suitcases there and goods scattered all over the room. The radio was sitting on the dresser."

She had entered the room again, early next morning, in company with police, she said, who "took the stuff away."

On Sunday afternoon, after the theft had been reported, Sgt. L. A. Wales, RCMP, called Vanderyagt in for questioning, he said. Accused then had made an oral statement. He had said:

"What I say, I can't wish to have put in writing."

"It was all a big joke—it was supposed to have been a joke on Harold Helgeson," Vanderyagt had told Sgt. Wales. Accused further told the police sergeant he was a married man and was a painting contractor.

"He confessed that he had been involved in this case with two other men. There had been a lot of drinking, accused said then," recounted Sgt. Wales. "As a result of that conversation I placed him under arrest."

BIG JOKE

Defense Counsel Collins told the court he intended to prove that the "whole thing was a Dominion Day prank—just a big joke."

Mrs. Jane Ramsay, employee of Brown and Harvey, Prince Rupert solicitors, and court stenographer for the preliminary hearing of this case, said she recalled prosecuting counsel, T. W. Brown, KC, say after the preliminary, he "agreed it had all been a preposterous joke."

Crown Counsel King said he could not see how Mr. Brown's attitude could have undergone such a change—"and certainly the magistrate had no such feeling or this case wouldn't be here."

Tour of Britain Inspires Local Girl to Achievement Of More in Musical Career

Settling down to her job at the National Employment Service office here after the highlight of her musical career to date—the three months' tour of the British Isles with the Elgar Choir—Barbara Teng tells the Daily News that music will still be an important part of her life and she is certainly going to keep on singing.

As a result of the fine experience she obtained on the tour, her ambition is to ultimately lead a choir herself. She has been inspired by the "marvellous" direction which the Elgar Choir receives from its veteran leader, C. E. Findlater.

The choir's trip abroad was a virtual tour of musical conquest. "Everywhere we went we were welcomed and acclaimed. There was nothing too much the people could do for us. Knowing that we were coming and were to be billeted, they even saved up their meagre rations to share with us. They were really wonderful."

The tour took in England, Scotland and Wales and there were sixty concerts with Dummerline, Scotland, the most northerly point. Glasgow and Edinburgh were also visited. The visit to Edinburgh, where the choir sang in the famous Princess Street Bowl, coincided with the "Gathering of the Clans" celebration where a thousand colorful pipers were gathered from all parts of the country and "there were so many people you just couldn't get close enough to see."

Numerous engagements in the London area included recitals in the suburbs of the metropolis including Wimbledon where they joined with 150 choral students. Mr. Findlater sharing the duties of director with the leader of the students.

Opportunity came to mingle with youth groups from the continent at Reading. "We sang for them and then we had a tour of the district with them."

In Wales there was a memorable experience. We sang to them and then the audience sang back to us "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," a number which Welsh people seem to sing everywhere they gather—in church, at social gatherings and even in the pubs. "It was like one big echo as the audience (every Welsh person can sing) sang back."

Barbara had the opportunity to visit at Seaford, Essex with her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Peckham, and took time out to go to Belfast, Ireland, where the parents of David Murphy, a locally known Presbyterian theological student, reside.

All the travelling in the British Isles was done by bus.

Ireland, with its hills and greenery, seemed more like home.

"It's very picturesque. The people are just fine. But I don't think I'd like to live over there."

Sailing home across the Atlantic, the choir party had a fairly rough crossing. They ran into the tail-end of a hurricane which had wrought disaster on Jamaica.

In Canada the choir had a booking at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and also sang in First United and Dominion United Churches in the Ontario metropolis. In Winnipeg, Calgary, Jasper, Kamloops and Vancouver there were also recitals—not forgetting Tranquille Sanitarium where they sang for the patients including some Prince Rupert friends whom Barbara met.

Culminating event was a CBC radio broadcast on Sunday which Prince Rupert listeners heard. Barbara has promised to share further of her experiences with Daily News readers by writing from her diary after she gets settled down again.

Co-Operation But Caution

U.S. Prepared to go Along with Russia But Must Stay Strong

WASHINGTON D.C. (P)—President Truman said Thursday the United States will continue to seek agreements with Russia but will build up its armed strength to see that they are enforced.

Mr. Truman said that there is stronger possibility of preserving the peace as a result of the strengthened arms program and said the possibility will grow still stronger if the United States goes along with the defence program.

SHIPS AND WATERFRONT

With 18 passengers of the 102 who left Vancouver disembarking here, CPR steamer Princess Louise, Capt. Donald Hicks, arrived in port at 11 o'clock this morning from Vancouver and sailed a couple of hours later for Skagway and other Alaska points. Five persons took passage from here for the north. The passenger list contained a good proportion of round trip tourists.

Interior Radio Desert Ended

Last of Interior Repeater Stations Installed

The northern radio "desert" between Prince George and Prince Rupert has now been converted to fertile listening ground with the installation of the last of five CBC low-power transmitters. Residents of the area can hear the complete program service of the CBC's Trans-Canada network.

Four 20-watt transmitters were opened this week at Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Hazelton and Terrace. Smithers joined the network during April.

These most recent installations bring the number of small transmitters in the province to nineteen. Reception is usually good within a radius of ten miles.

The transmitters are turned on in the morning and off at night by the telegraph agents; otherwise they are unstaffed.

The work has been under the supervision of F. B. C. Hilton, regional engineer for the corporation.

Rains Hold Up Harvest

WINNIPEG—During the past five days harvesting operations have been resumed over much of the western provinces but in northern Saskatchewan further rains will delay operations another three to six days, according to the Weekly Crop Report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

Damage from sprouting is less than anticipated in many sections but grades have been reduced and considerable of the grain marketed is grading tough to damp.

Weather was warm and clear in the Okanagan where fruit is now moving in large volume. No further damage to the fruit crops is reported from any source.
