

TO FACT BOARD—Evan W. T. Gill, councillor in the office of the Canadian high commissioner in London, has been named to the new Atlantic Pacific Defence Board. Mr. Gill joined the external affairs department in March, 1950. Previously he served in Ottawa as secretary to the cabinet defence committee and the chiefs of staff committee.

Logging Camps Closing Down

VANCOUVER — The closing down of logging camps on the coast, due chiefly to heavy snowfalls, is increasing the number of unemployed in Vancouver.

It is said that, within the past few days, no fewer than seven hundred young men have arrived in Vancouver and more are expected to come. Some have already started hunting longshore jobs. Some of the logging camps may not re-open until April.

Resourceful After Snake Bite

ST. PIERCE, Fla. — When a snake, a night watchman, was bitten by a rattlesnake he was resourceful. He disconnected a tube leading to the vacuum-type windshield wiper and used it to suck the venom from the wound.

He was soon back at work. No harm was done except a swollen hand and arm.

Watching For Counterfeits

VANCOUVER — As a consequence of a counterfeit bill scare in Vancouver, cities elsewhere on the coast are turning more cautious, as to acceptance of some of the money that starts local circulation. In Vancouver, bogus cash complaints came from two pharmacies. There have been nine false money notes. These were American, in tens and twenties. The RCMP are of the opinion that one man is responsible, not a gang.

Georgic Returning To Atlantic Run

LONDON — The 27,469-ton liner Georgic is to be returned temporarily to transatlantic service. The Cunard Steamship Company has announced. The Georgic is now carrying British emigrants to Australia.

Give Chinese Atom Bomb, Says General

Speaking For Himself, White House Suggests

MARCH AIR BASE, California (CP)—Use of "the most effective weapon"—the atom bomb—against Red China was recommended here by Major General Emmett O'Donnell who has just returned from the Far East bombing command.

"I think we'd be very effective with the ultimate weapon against China," said the general.

Asked by a reporter to define the "ultimate weapon," the general replied: "The atomic bomb."

"They'll understand the lash when it's put to them," General

O'Donnell said.

In Washington, Joseph Short, secretary to President Truman, told reporters, after the President was advised of O'Donnell's statements: "General O'Donnell is speaking for himself and not the United States government."

Frank Almond Suffers Defeat

VANCOUVER. — Nick Smith of Los Angeles last night handed Frankie Almond his first defeat, winning by a ninth-round technical knockout over the Canadian featherweight champion.

The Vancouver fighter went down twice for the count of nine in a bout scheduled for ten rounds.

Almond's title was not at stake.

May Call More Yanks To Arms

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Admiral Forrest P. Sherman testified today that, unless international conditions improve, "it will probably be necessary to increase the United States fighting forces above the present goals of close to 3,500,000 persons."

Sherman, member of the joint chiefs of staff, gave this "personal opinion" to the Senate preparedness sub-committee.

Cold Hits Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS. — A severe cold wave—the mercury hitting 52 below zero here during the night—has gripped Alaska for the last week.

Merchants and hotel and apartment dwellers report increasing hardships as the Fairbanks steam-generating plant was taxed to capacity to provide heat.

Dense icy fogs have hampered plane services and most stores have exhausted their supplies of perishables, fresh meat, milk and eggs. There are, however, plenty of staples but no fresh foods.

The temperature dropped to 52 below last night.

Union steamer Chilcotin, Capt. H. E. McLean, arrived in port at 12:50 p.m. Friday enroute from Vancouver to Masset. Disembarking here were Mrs. R. W. Martin and children, Susan and Douglas, W. E. McLean, D. E. Arney, R. Cathro, D. Eby, E. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson and L. Morrison.

The local commission's request will be presented to the National Boxing Association executive meeting in Indianapolis on January 27.

Atrocities—Americans Murdered

EAST-CENTRAL FRONT, Korea. — The bodies of ten American soldiers, nine of them apparently murdered by their North Korean captors, were found today by a United Nations patrol.

One soldier had, apparently, died of his battle wounds.

All murdered men were shot through the head.

The death weapons used were identified as Russian-made "burp" guns and machine-guns.

Dead Soldier Pentiction Man

TACOMA. — A Canadian soldier was killed and seven other men including another Canadian were injured yesterday in an automobile accident.

The Canadians were members of Canada's Korean brigade stationed at Fort Lewis.

The dead soldier is Staff Sergeant William A. Rathbun, aged 36, son of Major W. A. Rathbun of Pentiction.

Trooper Ivan Conroy, 26, of Verdun, Quebec, was injured.

Move Criticized In United States House

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—Resolution calling on the United Nations to brand Communist China an aggressor in Korea was blocked temporarily in the House of Representatives today after a Republican member attacked it as being equivalent to a declaration of war.

Uganda To Come Back

HALIFAX. — Hon. Brooke Claxton, minister of national defence, indicated last night that the 8800-ton cruiser Uganda is going to be brought out of mothballs.

Mr. Claxton said: "The Navy will accelerate its program of refitting, rearming and commissioning all existing ships" in addition to preparing to handle new warships now being built.

The minister named no ships but "all existing ships" would include the Uganda, which has long been in mothballs at Esquimaut.

Claxton's Warning—

"Business As Usual" Is Over

HALIFAX. — Canada's business-as-usual era is over, Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said last night for all to hear. It may be gone for a generation.

For the second time since the Korean fighting started, Claxton told the Halifax Board of Trade that the government is going to give the defence effort major acceleration. It will have "a big effect on the civilian economy."

Defence costs are going to soar "very much higher" than this year's record of $860,000,000.

Canadians will have to "do without a lot of things all of us would like to have," the minister said.

Manpower will be needed in increasing numbers. The country will move more and more toward war footing.

Because Russia aims at "unlimited expansion" and has shown increasing willingness to risk general war, "we are going to have far more business than usual and it is going to put pressure on resources of manpower and raw materials and productive capacity of this country."

Case For Higher Freight Rates Starts

OTTAWA. — Opening the bid of the Canadian railways for another freight rate increase, the Canadian Pacific Railway today told the Board of Transport Commissioners that it had a "revenue deficiency" in 1950 on rail operations.

Launching a case for a five-per-cent general increase, the company submitted figures indicating its 1950 revenue fell short by $2,990,000 of meeting the company's financial standard prescribed by the board a year ago.

Had the current wage levels and prices of materials been in effect for all 1950, the company contended, the deficiency would have been $12,507,000.

The Canadian Pacific is Canada's "yardstick" line. The board sets freight rates on the basis of its financial requirements. "Deficiency" is based on the company being allowed net income of about $46,000,000 a year to cover fixed charges, dividends and surplus.

Miners Get Wage Boost

WASHINGTON D. C. — John L. Lewis and representatives of virtually the entire United States soft coal industry agreed today on a voluntary pay increase of $1.60 daily—without a strike being called.

The boost would raise 400,000 soft coal miners' basic daily wage from $14.75 to $16.35.

The operators said it will have to be accompanied by an increase of five or six percent—maybe more—in the price of coal.

Mrs. Violet Frandle, 1158 Pa. Ave., returned from Vancouver Tuesday where he had been visiting her cousin, Mrs. Pearl Donaldson.

Gyro Installation—

Friendship Is World's Need

Gay Gathering
Aboard Steamer Prince
George Last Night

The greatest thing in the world is friendship, the cardinal principle of the Gyro organization, and never was it more to be desired than today, said Wilson Hunt, past district governor of Gyro and acting mayor of Pen-ticton, in an address last night at the annual installation dinner of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club.
"We in Gyro are doing our small share to foster and maintain international friendship," Mr. Hunt felt. A glorious example of international understanding and freedom was that between Canada and the United States. "Let us continue to do our share in ce-menting the bonds between these two great empires by the sea," he exhorted.

Mr. Hunt, speaking in usual humorous vein, expressed appreciation at again being in Prince Rupert where he had had many happy times in the past and where he hoped to visit often again in the future.

The officers installed were:
President, E. D. Forward
Past President, A. J. Dominato
Secretary, Martin Van Cooten
Treasurer, Grant Stewart
Directors, Emil Blain, M. G.
Gormley, Alan Hurst and Ben Parker.

GAY PARTY

The installation proceedings took place at a specially arranged dinner and dancing party aboard the steamer Prince George where Capt. Ernest Caldwell and his officers and crew were genial hosts.

A reception in the game room preceded the dinner in the palatial dining saloon and the installation and dance followed in the ship's ballroom.

Mayor G. W. Rudderham brought the greetings of the city, acknowledging appreciatively the splendid work on behalf of the younger folk of the community by the service clubs.

A. B. Brown, president of Rotary, congratulated the Gyro Club on its enterprise and accomplishments through the years and spoke of the fine relations that had always existed between Rotary and Gyro.

Ed. Garner, president of the Kinsmen's Club, promised continued co-operation of his organization.

The retiring president, A. J.
Dominato, and the new president,
E. D. Forward, spoke briefly.

Presentation of a past president's pin to Mr. Dominato was made by Maurice Brydges.

MEMENTOES
Mementoes of the visit of Mr.
and Mrs. Hunt were presented in an exchange when Orme Stuart, on behalf of the local club, made the gift of a handsome table lighter to the honored visitors while Mr. Hunt presented to President Don Forward a beautiful mounted miniature gyroscope, the instrument which symbolizes the power, purpose and poise of Gyro. A humorous presentation was that of a solidly frozen halibut by W. F. Stone to Mr. Hunt.

During the evening E. Boultier, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was welcomed as the latest new member of the local club.

Music for dancing was by Andy McNaughton. W. F. Stone was chairman of the committee in charge.

Colorful Song and Dance Film

"Let's Dance," which comes to the Capitol Theatre Friday and Saturday with Betty Hutton and Fred Astaire in the leading roles, is another spectacular musical.
The picture has color, a laugh-packed story, six hit Parade-ground tunes and enough breathtaking dance routines to satisfy even the most ardent Astaire fans.

The teaming of the nimble-footed star with Betty Hutton brings freshness and vigor. Both are seen singing, dancing and clowning.

The stars play a song and dance combination who are parried when Betty marries into a socialite Boston family and Fred launches an abortive career as a Wall Street tycoon.
After Betty's husband is killed in the war, she runs away with her son from her straitlaced in-laws to again crash showbusiness. After a series of alternately hilarious and heartbreaking experiences, she is reunited with Astaire, this time for life.

In featured roles, Roland
Young, Ruth Warrick, Lucile Watson and six-year-old Gregory Moffet lend to the film's air of festivity.

Arnold James Henriksen's trial on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was in magistrate's court this morning adjourned for eight days.
The charge arose from the presentation of a worthless check to Enterprise Grocery, December 30.

Diamonds or Bricks?

TODAY'S tendency is towards bigger and bigger units. Industries amalgamate into combines, stores acquire branches and blossom into the big departmental store, editorializes the West Vancouver News, published by Harry H. Gregson, formerly of Prince George. Villages become municipalities, municipalities cities and cities sprawling metropolises, to flee from which is the week-end ambition of their inhabitants.

Labor amalgamates, also, the labor opposing the industrial giant.

The small man, neither a part of big industry or the big departmental store, nor a factor in labor organization, is caught between the millstones.

This trend to bigness has to be fought because not only the existence of the small man, but the existence of democracy is at stake.

We see little difference between gigantic corporations in America, state-controlled industries in Britain and Sovietized industry in Russia. In all the worker loses his independence, the qualities which make for sturdy individualism are undermined.

With rare exceptions, the big outside concern is not interested in building a community. The small man does the building. Owners of very large concerns are remote from the public and the public's influence of them is small. How different it is with the small merchant, who meets his customers face to face every week and who must consult their views and interests.

We in this paper champion the small man as opposed to the big and the small unit as opposed to the big one. We believe that communities of men, in business, working or in professions in a modest way and imbued with the go-ahead spirit, are the most valuable asset of democracy.

Whatever apparent economies in production the big organizations may achieve, there are certain things they cannot achieve. They cannot give the individual attention which the small storekeeper gives. They cannot promote that sturdy spirit of independence in their employees, the desire to serve which the small storekeeper and employer can promote.

It is the small merchant, the man in business in a small way, who is the nation's main bulwark against Communism. History, as in the case of the Swiss against the French, the Finns against the Russians, has again and again demonstrated the sterling qualities induced by independent small units. Did not Napoleon call Britain a nation of shopkeepers and may not the present American reverses in Korea be partly attributable to the fact that the sturdy individuals who built the United States have tended to be replaced by insignificant human cogs in gigantic corporation machines?

But the small man, the small municipality, unless it organizes is doomed. Big trade unions which fix the scales of pay for employees in big combines also decree that the small business man shall pay the same scales, although because of the very individual service he gives, his overheads must be proportionately larger than that of big business. Big buyers buy in bulk and threaten to undercut the already narrow profit of the smaller merchant.

What can we do about it?

We must prefer our local stores and the individual service they give to outside ones. We must develop the many cultural amenities we still lack and take a lively interest in every phase of local affairs.

We refuse to be deluded by "business" talk of what is or not a paying proposition, when it comes to our hospital or any other form of municipal service. We are indeed very suspicious of the so-called economy of which big units boast. They put a dime in our pockets and take away two-bits worth of our independence.

Man does not live by bread alone. Our yardstick to the worthiness of this or the other course shall be: "Does it make for individual, independent survival?"

Better our own hospital, not a paying proposition, better our own services which do not "pay" and better an independent municipality, than become cogs in a big wheel. We don't want the big business standards. We don't think they're right. What we want is a voice in our own affairs and the satisfaction of knowing we have that voice.

An overfed brigadier once remarked to an undersized Cockney recruit: "We'll soon make you into a big soldier. The recruit answered: "You can't make diamonds as big as bricks, sir." Let us be diamonds.

As I See It

By ELMORE PHILPOTT
THANKS, MR. HENTY

DID YOU EVER think how strange a thing is fate or destiny?

Almost all my life I have wanted to go to India.

As a boy I read every line I could get about it—mostly in the adventure books by G. A. Henty. Also, of course, in classics like Kipling's Kim, which is one of the finest books ever written in any language.

I must also confess that I LIKED army life. Of course, I hated the mud and blood and guts in the 1914-to-1918 war. My brain hated the senseless slaughter of fellow human beings. But for all that the army game suited me fine—the family life, or comradeship of a group living together: the thrill of achievement, say, in taking a unit and making it into something.

If I had not got shot up by the Germans at the very end of the First World War I would most certainly have joined the Indian army. By this time, if still alive, I would probably have been the prize Blimp of all Col. Blimps.

OLD G. A. HENTY certainly has the joke on me. I did not know till just now how much I owed to the old boy. For all I know I have been shooting Henty's ideas in this column for fifteen years past, and really thinking they were my own.

Here is one that I THOUGHT was my own brain child. I have been waiting for some suitable occasion to write a really witty piece about the English. I figured I would show the great contradictions in the Englishman's character: That he is obviously the best sportsman in all the world. If he wins, that's that; but if he loses he takes it with good grace. All the world knows that the above is true.

But here is the other side. A couple of hundred Englishmen and women will mount horses. They will let loose a great horde of lifelong-trained hounds and chase one poor tiny little fox over hill and dale, stream and forest—until the poor lone critter is cornered and killed.

Yet a well-bred Englishman would almost rather die than shoot a "sitting duck" which he needed for dinner. On the wing—yes, of course the Englishman will shoot anything that flies. But "sitting"—no air—the poor bird does not have a sporting chance.

As I say, I thought the above ideas were my own brain children. But just for fun I was looking over a boys' book on India. Through Three Cam-

New Treatment In Polio Case

OTTAWA (C)—Doctors at the communicable diseases unit of the Ottawa Civic Hospital are eagerly watching the recovery of 14-year-old Brian McSorley of Ottawa.

The youngster is beginning to swallow again and for Superintendent Dr. Alan Doane it is the most encouraging thing he has seen for some time. It means that he is succeeding in his attempt—the first ever made in Canada—to cure a bulbar polio victim by a method known as electrophrenic stimulation.

Brian was admitted to hospital Nov. 15 in a critical condition. He had paralysis of the muscles which control swallowing, was in a coma, and had a temperature of 106 degrees. A tube was inserted into his windpipe to drain the mucus and help him to breathe, but the lad stopped breathing.

He would normally have been put in an iron lung, but he happened to be in the care of one of two Canadian doctors able to treat him with electrophrenic stimulation.

The treatment requires a machine whose prototype was constructed at Harvard University by Professor Stanley Sarnoff and his wife. Dr. Doane first read about it last August in a magazine which published details of the cure of Bruce Plater of Ottawa, the first bulbar polio victim to be given the treatment.

HARVARD COURSE
Dr. Doane was given leave of absence to attend a course at Harvard. Sixty United States doctors and another Canadian doctor from Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., attended.

A machine was brought to Canada and Brian was the first patient in Canada to use it. Dr.

paigns, by G. A. Henty. On page 373 I find that the hero, Lyle Bullen, astounds his hosts in England thus:

"Do you mean to say that you are not going to ride, Captain Bullen?" one of the ladies on horseback said.

"In the first place, Miss Morton, I am an infantry officer, and except for a few weeks when I am on the staff of Colonel Lockhart I have never done any riding. In the second place, I am forbidden to take horse exercise at present. Moreover, though no doubt you will despise me for the confession, I dislike altogether the idea of a hundred men on horseback and forty or fifty dogs all chasing one unfortunate animal."

"But the unfortunate animal is a poacher."

"Very well, then, I should shoot him as a poacher."

HENTY EVIDENTLY thought it was unparliamentary to hunt foxes in the approved English manner. But actually he did more than any writer of his time to condition the minds of a whole generation to kill their fellow humans—and take it all as part of patriotic duty.

Well, the whole history of the human race is one of gradually increasing consciousness. Moral ideas change with the centuries. Wars and armies and power politics are not necessarily bad at one age of history. They become wrong when the majority begins to teach the majority that they are wrong.

Canadian Pianist Stresses Practice

WINNIPEG (C)—As you practice, so you will play," says Canadian pianist Gertrude Huntley Green.

She told interviewers here that is why she believes in "careful and calm practice."

Miss Green—Mrs. Jay Durand of Seattle in private life—was back in Winnipeg for her first concert here in seven years.

She said she has been giving concerts since she was "little more than a baby" and has played and studied in London, Paris and Dresden as well as North American cities.

Miss Green thinks pianists should study a second instrument. She studied violin with Viardot in Paris.

"It gives one a sense of line and phrasing that percussionists often lack," she said.

Doane and two internes worked on the lad day and night for a week, and at the end of that time Brian was able to breathe again without help. Since then it has been indicated that his capacity to swallow is returning.

"He is fully conscious and feeling fine," said Dr. Doane. "He is being fed by tube through his nose and into his stomach, but there is every hope now that he will be a perfectly normal boy again."

Dr. Doane's delight in the progress, however, is tempered by regret that he did not have the means to give electrophrenic stimulation earlier. Fourteen cases of bulbar polio died in Ottawa last summer.

There is, however, a slight snag to this treatment. It is useless if both phrenic (or breathing) nerves are damaged. One has to be in good working order to save the patient.

WANT TOWN HALL

THE PAS, Man.—The need of a town hall was stressed by Mayor H. F. Bickle at the year's first meeting of town council. The 39-year-old town is still without a building to house municipal offices but it is hoped to erect one in 1951.

Daily Health Hint

Heart diseases can not be brought on by strenuous exercise if the heart is young and healthy. However, it does put an extra strain on damaged or age-weakened hearts.

RAY... Reflects and Reminisces

Britain's Labor government spent more than 10 million dollars growing peanuts on millions of acres in East Africa. It had been hoped that from this could come an abundance of needed fats and oils. But the whole scheme is now being scrapped. It wasn't what it had been cracked up to be.

Most of us welcome an occasional change of scene or society and confess to a yearning to "get away from it all." Jack Scott, on the Vancouver Sun, is home from a continental tour, after having motored all over America. He is being asked how it feels. It must be grand, say the questioners, to behold what you've always had an itching to see—to discover what is on the other side of the mountain.

Yet, suggests Scott, this urge to "get away from it all" can be disappointing. People are much the same. Some places, certain towns, different neighborhoods show a similarity. In fact, it's about as hard to get away from it all as it is to get away from one's self.

For military reasons, during the last war the names of certain seaports in Canada failed to appear. But there is no world struggle on now and hence no necessity to exclude names. Vancouver should be reminded of this. Wednesday, a story about aluminum development appeared. In reference to Kitimaat it said the latter spot is about "20 miles south of the northern terminus of the CN." Sometimes it seems almost essential to have a surgical operation before it's possible to write Prince Rupert the way it should be written.

It's always been like that. Efforts have not been wanting, to play up Vancouver, at the expense of the north. If there has been any way to make it appear that Vancouver is the terminal, and this is the end of a branch line it's been tried repeatedly.

The touring Maple Leaf team from Lethbridge succeeded in trimming the champion German team, and in their own town of Fuesen, at that. It was a second straight victory. This sort of thing is becoming a habit.

A United States senator says he cannot understand why so much American money is being spent to provide a huge aluminum plant in British Columbia. Well, Senator, there is also almost endless water power in Alaska. Fact is both regions are very much alike.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEALTH

WHEN BABY ARRIVES

Nature is not always kind. Childbirth often leaves the mother in a serious condition. Every chiropractor is familiar with the story of the woman who dates her illness back to the time of delivery of her baby.

There is a reason for this. Towards the end of her pregnancy period, the joint cartilages of the pelvis soften to allow for greater expansion of this structure at time of delivery. This softening process often permits the spine to "settle" between the pelvic bones, laying the foundation for future spinal imbalance and distortion with its accompanying pains and nerve interference.

This condition is most easily corrected shortly after childbirth, but becomes set and more difficult to correct as time goes on. For this reason, the spine should be examined and if necessary put right as soon as possible after delivery.

Quite often Chiropractors are asked if there is any risk in treating the spine of prospective mothers, or soon after birth. The answer is, there is no risk in treatment, but there is much risk without it.

Mothers who have been attended by their Chiropractor through the entire period of pregnancy, and again soon after baby arrives, report they never were so well at birth time before. They usually go along fine the whole time, birth itself is easier, and the "pick up" afterwards is most heartening.

Chiropractors do not handle confinement or delivery, but stay strictly in their field, which is the vital field having to do with health and keeping the body functioning normally. Yes, if anyone needs to be fit and sound, it is mother when baby arrives.

Old Woman Born In Barn

SHELLBROOK, SASK.—Mrs. Annie (Granny) MacTaggart—"I was born in a barn in Toronto"—celebrated her 97th birthday here.

Relatives, friends and members of the Ladies' Aid trudged through heavy snow to congratulate the grand old lady of this town in Prince Albert district.

With a twinkle in her eye, Granny MacTaggart explains how she came to be born in a barn.

"When we arrived from England, there weren't houses enough, so a farmer turned his big barn into living places for the immigrants."

"When I was a little girl, Toronto wasn't any bigger than Prince Albert (pop. 15,000) is now, with gas-lit streets," Mrs. MacTaggart said.

She came West with her husband and six small children in 1888. The family left a farm in Scarborough, Ont., to make a new home in the west. Mr. MacTaggart became the first postmaster of Shellbrook.

Granny MacTaggart still is spry. She insists on spading her garden patch, splitting the kindling and getting in coal from the shed.

Crown Jewels Tough Target

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—An ordinary crowbar could probably pry up the metal bars which guard the fabulous crown jewels in the Tower of London. But the custodians are not noticeably worried.

Ever since the audacious theft of the historic Stone of Scone from Westminster Abbey, nervous Britons wondered if the crown itself was safe.

The Tower of London however is a lot harder to crack than Westminster Abbey. The precautions against burglary are elaborate, some visible and some highly secret.

Actually there are several crowns of priceless value behind the bars in the ancient tower, and bushels of gems which would be counted a magnificent haul by any master burglar. One conservative estimate places the total value around $50,000,000.

The royal crown itself was stolen once, but that was in 1671, when precautions weren't so scientific as they are now. The thief, the daring Col. Thomas Blood, was caught with St. Edward's crown, the one used in the coronation ceremony, tucked into a bag just as he was about to mount his horse. He had sawed the royal sceptre in two for more convenient carriage, and had scooped up a rich assortment of jewels.

RECEIVED PARDON

Blood was remarkably lucky. Stealing crowns was certainly a hanging offence in those days, but King Charles II was so impressed with Blood's audacity that he gave him a pardon, appointed him to the royal bodyguard and later gave him a pension.

But Blood couldn't do it today, say the red-coated Beefeaters who guard the tower. The man responsible for general security is the governor of the tower, Col. E. H. Karkett James, who does not talk of all the measures taken to see that the crown and jewels stay where they are.

The tower swarms with Beefeaters, the Yeomen of the Guard. Then there are soldiers stationed inside. The tower walls are up to 20 feet thick. There is an elaborate system of burglar alarms and doors swing shut and gates close on the sounding of an alert.

Nor would it be easy for intruders to steal the royal jewels. Each night at the tower there is a new password, known only to authorized persons going in. Those leaving duty never hear it. Once past the outer guard, the night staff encounters sentries every few yards. Each must have the password to get along and they cannot leave at night.

The password is communicated to only two persons outside the tower each day. One is the King, the other is the Lord Mayor of London.

In addition to the alarm system, the jewels are watched by six armed guards, whose short beats are flopped and so arranged that one pacing sentry is always in sight of at least one other. The chances that the crown will be where it should be in the morning are considered pretty good.

Tower authorities are not giving any details about the electronic system which it was announced recently is being or has been installed. It was hoped that

Eskimo Boy Killers Terrify Island of Bali

Interesting Visitor in Prince Rupert Last Night

Passengers on the Prince George on her southbound trip last night were Mrs. Marvin D. Williams, her son, Marvin, and adopted son, Vernon.

Vernon, an Eskimo whose parents came from Point Barrow, Aleutian Islands, was born in an open boat at sea. He was later adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Williams. Four years old, this is his first trip away from Alaska.

Mrs. Williams is public health nurse at Metlakatla, where her husband is superintendent of road construction. She served in the United States Army Medical Corps during the war as a Major. The party will spend a six weeks' vacation at Salt Spring Island.

During the stopover of the Prince George here last night they visited Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. James Wood at HMCS Chatham.

DIJAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Terror stalks today in exotic Bali, island of glamorous dancing girls, fabulous legends and centuries-old culture.

The simple Balinese lives under a shadow of fear. Their gay music and dance-filled nights are quietened. Many of them have not slept in their villages for months, preferring to seek refuge in the dense jungle when darkness falls.

Outwardly, the island—just east of Java—looks quiet. But the atmosphere of peace and tranquillity, which helps to make it the world traveller's delight, is gone.

Terror came to Bali last August, when a wave of murder began to sweep the green-clad island, where in peaceful centuries past the most heavily punished crime was to steal a neighbor's water.

Since then, there have been over 90 murders and 33 attempted murders, as well as many cases of arson and robbery, according to recent official figures.

Most of the victims were suspected of being spies or of collaborating with the Dutch. But in a number of cases, there was no known motive. All Bali was shocked recently, for example, by the mass murder of a Dutch ice-factory owner named Landre, his Balinese wife and their four sons, two of whom were members of the Indonesian military police.

NIGHT MURDER

Death came to them out of the night when a group of armed men shot the whole family, as well as two factory guards who rushed to their aid.

In other murders, a band of men, reported to have worn black masks and black shirts, came to the home of an elderly villager. They told his wife to run away with her small child, then they dragged the old man and his grown-up son out of the house and hacked them to death with swords or knives.

A Chinese who was shot through the lung was taken to hospital alive. Later, a man believed to have been one of his assailants walked boldly into the hospital and shot him again—this time fatally—then walked out unmolested.

Hope came to the terror-infested island recently when Indonesian Major Islam Salim was appointed commander-in-chief of the Lesser Sunda Islands, with the special task of cleaning up Bali.

In a press interview Major Salim declared his intention "to restore peace and order on the island within the shortest time possible."

"No matter what the motive for the murders may have been, the culprits will be tried and punished," he said.

Aiberla Women Aid Greek Boy

OTTAWA (C)—Thanks to the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion branch at Leduc, Alta., an 11-year-old Greek boy has been fitted with two artificial limbs to replace the legs he lost in a land-mine explosion.

The story was told here by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. The boy, Vassilios Anagnostopoulos of Macedonia, stepped on a mine a year ago and it exploded, tearing off both his legs.

The victim wrote a letter to Queen Frederica of Greece asking for help and she recommended his case to the Hellenic Society for Crippled Children, which receives aid from the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

As a far-reaching result, young Vassilios now can get around on artificial limbs given by the Leduc organization through the U.S.C.

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova, U.S.C. executive director, has received a letter of thanks from the queen's lady-in-waiting.

It reads: "Her Majesty the Queen of the Hellenes was informed by the Society for the Protection of Crippled Children of Athens that you helped a Greek crippled boy named Anagnostopoulos to be fitted with artificial limbs.

"Her Majesty the Queen has instructed me to transmit to you her sincere thanks for your kindness to the little boy under her protection."

Blackwood on Bridge
By Easley Blackwood

The abuse of a certain part of the Blackwood Convention loses untold thousands of points. I refer to the minor suit rule of one and two.

If you are considering a slam that will play only in clubs, you should not bid four no trump unless you hold at least two aces. If you are considering a slam on a hand that will play only at diamonds, you should not bid four no trump unless you hold at least one ace.

Think this over and the reason will be clear. Suppose your agreed suit is clubs. If you have only one ace, bid four no trump, and find partner with only one ace, he must bid five diamonds. And now you are overboard. There is no way to get back to five clubs where you belong.

Playing the Blackwood properly you would have two aces when you bid four no trump and now there is no danger of getting into trouble. If partner has no aces, he will bid five clubs and since that is your agreed suit you will simply pass. If partner shows one ace you should be all right in six clubs.

Similarly if your agreed suit is diamonds and you bid four no trump with no aces in your hand, you are cooked if partner responds five hearts showing two aces. The only way to get back into diamonds is to go to six.

Many Missionaries Are Still in China

OTTAWA—According to the Department of External Affairs there are still between 200 and 250 Canadian missionaries in China. They are located in different parts of that country. A report from Hong Kong is to the effect that nearly all of the 2,000 Protestant missionaries in Communist China have decided to leave soon.

NEW WEAPON—A group of the P.P.C.L.I. in Korea have already undergone instruction in the use of flame-throwers. The instruction took place at a U.S. base at Highlea, near Pusan, under supervision of American army officers. Capt. Andy Foulds of Vancouver is shown in this Army photo, demonstrating proper stance for use of the weapon. (CP PHOTO)

The funeral will be held from the Pentecostal church this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Young Tame Elk Is Family's Pet

FRANKLIN, Man. (C)—The Walter MacDonald family here has been adopted by a young elk.

It happened when Dick MacDonald, 14, stepped outside the farmhouse last October. The scraggy animal came up and started nuzzling him.

It turned out that neighborhood people had smuggled the elk when a baby from Riding Mountain National Park, 40 miles north of Franklin.

They bottle-raised it and when they left the district the young animal was turned out to fend for itself.

Now one of the elk's best friends on the MacDonald place is Wendy, a big, playful Labrador pup.

The elk and pup made up a new and exciting game. Each would tear around the house full tilt, meeting again mid-way. There would be excited barking from the pup and near-hysterical trumpeting from the playful young elk.

The game guardian at Neepawa decided that to return the tame animal to the National Park would mean its certain death at the hands of some hunter. He asked the MacDonalds to hold on to it until after the hunting season.

The young elk spends the night curled in the straw that covers the MacDonald's plumb. During the daytime it follows whoever has chores to do around the place.

Eritrea Moslems Suspect Copt

ASMARA, Eritrea (AP)—The 500,000 Moslems of Eritrea look with some suspicion to future rule by Haile Selassie, the Coptic Christian Emperor of Ethiopia.

The United Nations' General Assembly voted last month to federate this former Italian colony along the Red Sea coast of East Africa with Selassie's kingdom of Ethiopia.

The federation plan is a compromise between demands for independence and demands for outright union with Ethiopia.

The assembly thus disposed of the last of Mussolini's pre-war African colonies, Libya on the Mediterranean is to become fully independent by 1952. Italian Somaliland, down the east coast of Africa from Eritrea, is under a 10-year Italian trusteeship pending its independence.

A UN commissioner will help the 1,000,000 Eritrean blacks get ready to run their own administration under a federation with Ethiopia.

The British have been governing Eritrea since its capture in 1941. The British administration will continue until the turnover date in 1953.

MOSLEMS NOT SATISFIED

Moslems, forming half the Eritrea population, have accepted the UN decision although they are not satisfied with it. The people split down the line, and the commission split, too. That accounts for the compromise.

The Moslems were the backbone of the independence group. Some wanted to unite part of Eritrea with the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, also a Moslem country. The unionist group was composed chiefly of Coptic Christians. They were sympathetic to Ethiopian claims for unity.

The Moslems argued that Eritrea is far more civilized than Ethiopia because of 70 years of Italian rule. Moslems fear that they will not enjoy the same rights as the Copts in an Eritrean dominated by Ethiopia. The Coptic religion is one of the oldest Christian sects.

Eritrea is a poor country, with some agriculture and limited mining activities, badly disturbed by bandit terrorism. The people vary widely. There are 12 racial groups, each with its own language and customs.

But federation of Eritrea with Ethiopia will satisfy one of Ethiopia's most pressing demands—a free outlet to the sea through the Red Sea ports of Massawa and Assab. Ethiopian official opinion appears satisfied with the compromise solution at least partial justice.

Under the federation plan the central Ethiopian government is expected to control foreign affairs and trade, finance and defence. In all other matters Eritrea is expected to have full home rule.
