After The Election

TO THE WINNERS after yesterday's election we extend congratulations. They join those who had been already elected by acclamation to carry on the serious affairs of the city. The honor of being accorded the confidence of the people of the city has been conferred. Now it is to assume the responsibilities, fulfil the duty of justifying the confidence and carry out the promises and assurances given.

These, as we pointed out so often, are important days in the task of developing the city to keep pace with the great industrial and commercial expansion of the area radiating for hundreds of miles around. There are many large problems which will require sagacity, initiative and courage to handle. There are indications too that the public is commencing to watch its civic administration more critically and with greater interest than might have been the case in some recent years.

We congratulate the mayor-elect. His will be the responsibility of leading and spurring his council. Appreciation is due also the losers who offered their services even if some of them might have been better advised had they sought aldermanic honors instead of the mayoralty so the city might not have lost their services.

The electors have dealt with the referenda and the bylaws and it is for the new council to govern itself accordingly. There should be little difficulty in expediting the fulfilment of the telephone, water and cemetery projects. The council will be expected to see that, now they have the authority, there is no stalling about getting the jobs done as soon as such further formalities as may be necessary are accomplished.

The referendum on the power question was anything but decisive and does not give much of a guide to council. With the present agreement with the Northern B. C. Power Co. expiring a little over two years hence, there is no time to lose in making the arrangements for what is to follow. There will be need for competent and careful negotiation for this is big and important business. We must take no chances in connection with this vital utility on which our whole economy, convenience and comfort depend.

LOVED CANADIAN SCENES — Princess Elizabeth was so delighted with Canadian scenery during the royal tour that she may have Christmas cards made showing Canadian landscapes, a London newspaper reports.

APPRECIATION

To the people of Prince Rupert who supported me at the polls yesterday may I express my sincere thanks.

Their confidence is appreciated and it will be my constant endeavour to justify same.

Happy Valley

PENTICTON: It is 26 years since I first stepped off for a look at Kamloops; and 14 years since I began the many visits to the Okanagan, which God must surely have intended as the choicest "happy valley."

The material progress which has been made here in that time is truly remarkable. Not only are there vast numbers of new homes—all made possible by the increased production. But the towns and cities give really striking evidence of progress in the best sense of the word.

HERE in the interior of B.C. are new hotels which are as fine as any you will find in the world. They are well designed, well run—and, I am proud to say, typically Canadian. By that I mean that they have developed a type of hotel which is based on the actual needs of the region it serves. The equipment is as modern as the best they made in U.S.A. but the management is as "homey" and friendly as you would find anywhere in this country back in earlier days.

WHEN I first started to give lectures across Canada 20-odd years ago there was hardly a city in Canada that had a decent hall to speak in. A few had vast auditoriums, but hardly any had the kind of halls that you need for an ordinary lecture, play or concert.

Now all across Canada there are good halls. B.C. is no exception. We are getting really good ones nearly everywhere—and the ones in the smaller towns are better and more plentiful than the ones in Vancouver, for instance.

THE RINK is the centre of youthful life in most Canadian cities nowadays in winter time. Nearly all the interior B.C. cities now have fine rinks. Some of them like Penticton's and Kamloops's are really architectural gems. Gone are the days when you could not see the most exciting bit of play in the hockey match because you were behind a big fat pillar which blocked the view. Nowadays the best rinks have arched roof supports and no posts or pillars.

Kamloops has another good idea in its rink. You go in on the ground level and the seats are all below that level. You walk down to your seats, and you look down on the ice from those seats.

In other words the whole working part of the rink is below ground level.

THERE is one feature about life in the Okanagan Valley which would amaze Europeans. Most of the homes hereabouts are substantial affairs and some are really showplaces. But then again quite a few are flimsy shabby structures. I was checking with an electrical appliance dealer here in the valley about those homes. He told me that many of them have appliances inside them which probably exceed the original construction cost of the "shacks" they are in. His nickname for the Okanagan was "Refrigerator Valley."

I DROVE from Kelowna to Penticton with a radio man who told me the "plot" of a fine novel he has planned, but which he just never got time to write down. He had it all figured out, with complete descriptions of the various characters. They were excellent.

Why had he not written it out—as it was all so clear in his mind? Too busy. My suggestion was: get a recording machine and "take down" parts of the story on the long drives between cities which are part of his daily routine.

AN OLD friend, Colonel Crossley of Kelowna, was telling me of his adventure with two hitchhikers. He picked them up in the early morning, because they looked so cold and tired. He gave them each a quarter with which to buy breakfast.

Later they stuck a gun in his ribs, tied him up in a sack and "borrowed" his car. But as he had been such a "good guy" they gave him preferred treatment by gagging him with his clean, spare handkerchief and putting a rug over him to keep him warm.

Washington Clean-up

Corruption Charges To Overshadow Other Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many politicians are giving the Truman administration six months to clean house or face a presidential campaign in which government corruption charges will overshadow all other issues.

With 11 months left before next November's election, Republican political strategists here believe that tax scandals may have more to do with deciding the issue than any other factor.

On the other hand, Democrats feel that a high level of prosperity, plus claimed popular support for the over-all objectives of their foreign program, will go a long way toward keeping them in power.

But they admit privately that unless some dramatic step is taken soon to counteract corruption charges leveled against administration officials, they will be forced on the political defensive.

Democrats say they can make the corruption charges politically ineffective by acting soon to clean their own house. But most of them believe such action must be taken well before the party nominating conventions next July.

On the Democratic side there have been increasing small signs that President Truman doesn't intend to run again.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson, a crony of the President's, is looked upon in Washington as Truman's likely choice for the nomination if he doesn't run himself.

But there are some Democrats outside the Truman camp who would like to be President. Friends are building up Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, former head of the Senate crime investigating committee, as a potential nominee if the government corruption charges aren't silenced.

If the Democrats are confused

SOMETHING OMITTED

How did it feel, unfolding your paper last evening, not to see several columns of type of varying length? Each, addressed to the editor, dealt with the same subject. Last night, there wasn't a single epistle—not a letter. The hour is dull, when one misses the customary dash of spice.

Some folks, in their wisdom, say smaller cities like Juneau, Fairbanks or Prince Rupert need not fear attack because none are of sufficient importance. Russia thinks only of Washington, London or New York. It's impossible to make any Pacific Coast town feel of small consequence. They would dislike the Soviet more than ever.

WHY LAST MINUTE?

What is called a "last minute snag" which does not tell you anything, is delaying signing of the proposed tri-partite fisheries pact between Canada, United States and Japan. The ten thousand mile journey, and the giving of valuable time to other matters should mean a snag has no business happening.

Setting Up of Dental Clinic

While all returns of questionnaires were not available and in many cases reactions of parents to the proposed Prince Rupert Children's Dental Clinic were disappointing yet the committee, at a meeting on Wednesday evening, decided that there was every good reason to proceed with the setting up of such a scheme. Delegates elected a slate of officers to carry on with the inauguration of the plan with the hope that it would be in operation in the New Year.

Officers elected, with power to add, were:
President—J. S. Wilson.
Vice-President—Mrs. L. M. Greene.
Secretary-treasurer—Frank Derry.

Executive—Dr. Duncan Black and Dr. Munthe.
There are many details to be worked out but, with definite financial backing from some of the organizations already promised and with 113 favorable replies from parents on file, it is hoped that a satisfactory plan can be worked out.

For the start only pupils in Grades One, and pre-school children of three years and over can be taken care of. These will get the necessary dental treatments for a year for the sum of $4.

The treatments will continue from year to year once the scheme is in operation and, with successive years, all the children will ultimately be cared for.

The expected interest of parents in the welfare of their children was shown in several cases where the fee of $4 was sent with the questionnaire. This is not necessary as parents will be advised when to pay as soon as the details have been worked out by the committee.

It is expected that the offer

It will leave Vanderhoof 11 a.m., and arrive Vancouver 4 p.m. on Monday.

YEAR-END REVIEW—

Pensions Changes Topped Ottawa's 1951 Legislation

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament made major changes in Canada's old-age security program in 1951 and set its sights on a 1952 study of a national health-insurance plan.

At spring and fall sessions, old-age security measures highlighted the legislative program.

In the spring the government obtained authority to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of $40-a-month pensions to needy persons between 65 and 70. The payments will start in January in those provinces which have concluded agreements with the federal government. An estimated 145,000 Canadians will be eligible.

In the fall, parliament approved payment of $40-a-month pensions to Canadians 70 and over, regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. These pensions, with payments to start in January, will be administered solely by the federal government and will be financed through special, earmarked taxes. About 700,000 Canadians will be covered.

The new act replaced legislation under which pensions of $40 a month were paid to needy persons 70 and over who had lived in Canada for at least 20 years. The federal government paid 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

Expected to cost about $400,000,000 a year, the new pensions for all 70 and over will be financed under what has become known as the "2-2-2" formula. It will consist of a two-per-cent levy on personal incomes, a two-per-cent tax on corporation profits, and a two-per-cent sales tax.

Contributions through personal income tax will be limited to $30 a year. No increase was made in the existing sales tax of 6 per cent. The pension act simply earmarked one-fifth of the sales tax for pension fund purposes.

Improvements also were made in pension for the blind.

Christmas Hop To Naas River

Pre-Christmas flight with holiday goods for the Naas River village of Aiyansh was made Wednesday by Queen Charlotte Air Lines Norseman piloted by Norman Gernym. Landing was made on the river which is still open and very high, having risen seven feet in three days as result of heavy rains.

commission on arts and science, decided to provide an annual parliamentary grant of $5,250,000 to the CBC for five years. It also voted $7,000,000 in aid to Canadian universities.

The Criminal Code was amended to tighten laws covering drunken driving, sex perverts and bookmakers. The Canadian Citizenship Act was amended to prevent retention of Canadian citizenship by persons who have renounced allegiance or shown by their conduct that they are not loyal to Canada.

The Indian Act was overhauled to give the 135,000 descendants of Canada's original settlers greater say in the management of their affairs.

At the spring session, a new department was established to handle Canada's $5,000,000,000 defence production program for the next three years.

A sum of $25,000,000 was voted as an initial contribution to the Colombo plan for aid to South and Southeast Asia.

Red Wings Beat Leafs

Beaten All Other
Both at Home

TROTT — Detroit Red Wings connected for one goal in first period and two more in second Thursday night to take their first-place lead in the National Hockey League to six points by registering a 3 to 1 triumph over the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs.

Winning Detroit became the team to beat each National Hockey League opponent at home on the road this season.

In the other game of the night, the Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens played to a 1-1 tie.

Red Wings tucked their game away in second period on goals by Pavlich and Benny Woit. They broke up a 1 to 1 deadlock.

Red Wings took an early lead when Red Lindsay circled the Toronto goal before he back the shot into the center of the cage.

Canadian Brigade Under Siege By Germans

By DOUGLAS HOW

WITH THE CANADIANS IN GERMANY — Canada's 27th Brigade is under siege by the Germans—for hockey players.

Half the hockey teams in Germany seem to be beating a path to brigade headquarters' door, by car, mail or phone, to inquire about the possibility of hiring soldiers on a part-time basis as players or coaches.

It looks as though they are out of luck for this winter, however. With a heavy winter of training ahead for his troops, Brig. Goffrey Walsh has indicated that he can't see his way clear to give men time off for extra-curricular athletics.

Next winter, when the brigade will be a really operational and skilled formation, it might be another matter because this might be one way to further good relations with the German people. This winter soldiering comes first.

It is hoped, however, that it will be possible to have some hockey within the brigade as part of the regular sports program. Equipment for a number of teams is said to be available and the big question mark is the weather.

NO ICE IN SIGHT

As Christmas approached, the temperature stayed well above zero, the ground was green, farmers worked in the fields, ice seemed a long way off but the Germans said their weather can get really tough in January and February.

But even when it gets cold it may be hard to find ice. There is no rink in Hanover. The Hanover team, in fact, plays near Goslar, some 50 miles south, and has been trying to convince the Canadians that if three or four good players could be made available it might be possible to swing a new rink for Hanover itself.

The Canadians think they might be able to build outdoor rinks but the Germans say they have tried them and they don't work very well in this climate. So the brigade's hockey prospects for this winter are up in the air.

There are a small number of Canadians at Hamburg, the big port city to the north where there

Bo-Me-Hi Loses Fourth Straight to Ketchikan In International Play

Last night a jammed house saw Ketchikan take the final game of the international High School basketball series. Score was 49 to 48. It made the fourth straight loss for the locals.

The game started at a tremendous pace with the Polar Bears again grabbing an early lead. Bue was all over the court and making his "jump" and "layup" shots count. Scoring all his 16 points in the first half, Hamlin, captain of the visiting team, played a good all round game, with Maddox assisting greatly.

KayHi played a fast breaking game and were able to enforce their zone defense. This zone defense was what hurt Bo-Me-Hi which was unable to penetrate it. They also made a very good percentage of their shots.

Bo-Me-Hi again were disorganized in the first half. At one time they were 18 points behind. Morrison and Ciccone were finally able to make their team click. Morrison popped in 10 points, Ciccone, four, with Nickerson getting a couple of long shots also.

Bo-Me-Hi proved in the two games here and in those played at Ketchikan that they are a last-half team. That is, they were unable to do a thing in the first half, although spurring in the second.

During half-time and throughout the game the students shook the roof with all their cheering. The drill team put on a sparkling performance forming a "B" and a "K." The majorettes, with their batons, looked like odd-timers at the game.

The school spirit was shown impressive. It was the first time in many years that the students have come out to support their team in this way.

The majorettes were Molly Simmons, Sue Martin, Rena Ingram, Alice Nickerson, Jacqueline Moore and Margaret Gies.

The band again played march music.

War Would Hit Berlin

German Capital Would Be First City Engulfed
By DOUGLAS HOW

BERLIN — If war came, Berlin and its grey fantasy of this would probably be the first city engulfed.

Surrounded from the start, its 2,500,000 West Berliners would be in immediate danger of falling under a rule they detest and resist.

If any city should live in fear of war, it is Berlin. Yet people who should know call it the sanest city in Europe.

Its lack of hysteria surprises soldiers posted here from the Allied zone to the west and who come in thinking that here is the real frontier in the cold war.

The reason, one veteran correspondent says, is that Berlin has seen so much, has been drained by so many crises, heard so many cries of wolf that its power of hysteria have been sapped. But perhaps part of it is in the ruins.

Even after six years of reconstruction which Allied officials call incredible, Berlin's ruins stagger and numb the mind. They are grey, ghastly.

When, for instance, you are driving down what used to be the magnificence of the Unter Den Linden and a bell rings out the noon hour from the scrawny, feeble tower that is the last shell of an entire church, something deeper than fear and darker than awe creeps and chills inside you.

Four million Germans and thousands of foreign soldiers live amid Berlin's mixture of ruin and reconstruction, its bright lights and hills of rubble, its strange island of internationalism in which four divided conquerors live not unlike the conquerors of old among a resurgent, defeated people who wish they would all go home.

In Berlin—first city to be declared out of bounds to Canada's 27th Brigade—American, British and French troops march and parade to show the people that the west is here and the west will fight. But there are only 20,000 troops in all. The British have eight tanks. There is a plan of action for this tiny garrison in event of war but it is secret.

The Germans, in both Allied and Russian sectors, work like beavers, dislike all four occupying powers, build, build, build and have decades of rebuilding ahead of them and leave you with no doubt at all that Germany will once again be one of the powers in the world.

The Russians keep to themselves and leave their sector of Berlin largely to the East German Communist police.

Allied officers live in the best and better homes, utilize cheap German service largely at German expense—one Major has three servants and a chauffeur at relatively little cost.

Radio stations, 18 newspapers and even night club entertainers fight the cold war's propaganda battles but a story they tell about a Russian officer seems to say more about the mood of Berlin than all this clamor of hate.

At a cocktail party, a British General told him he was going home to command an airborne division. The Russian asked the general if he would parachute himself and the general said only if there were war.

"War?" said the Russian with a little smile. "Who are you going to fight?"

Tiny Choir to Sing for King

By MARY BURNETT

SANDRINGHAM, England (Reuters)—The choir of tiny St. Mary Magdalene Church here is hard at work practising carols to sing before the squire at Christmas.

The squire—King George—will spend his traditional Christmas on the royal estate here.

Everyone on the estate is getting ready for the holiday visit, and the woodsmen are out looking for a suitable Christmas tree for the King and family.

The usual royal Christmas is an informal, family affair. Shortly before Christmas, the royal train brings the King and his family to the private station at Wolferton.

For two or three days the King, usually wearing a kilt and thick tweed jacket, walks round the estate inspecting stock and often stopping to chat with tenants in the country lanes.

On Christmas Eve, the King, the Queen, the princesses and members of the household put final touches to the Christmas tree in the ballroom and wrap up Christmas presents.

These are usually exchanged among the members of the royal family after breakfast on Christmas morning.

In the morning the royal family attend a service at the Sandringham church, taking their places quietly in the congregation.

After lunch, the King makes his annual speech to the Commonwealth and Empire, broadcast from his study.

After dinner, the family gathers round a bright log fire to sing Christmas carols or listen to Princess Margaret, the King's younger daughter, play the piano.

For many days before Christmas, mail pours in from all parts of the world. Christmas cards from personal friends decorate the mantelpieces.

The King and Queen have their own Christmas card, sending out several hundred each year to their friends.

This year their card, also used by Princess Margaret, is a water color mounted on pastel blue, by John Nash. It shows Buckingham Palace, the King's London residence, in 1864.

THE EXPERTS Say...

By KOY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WHEN "COMPANY" DROPS IN—As certain as Christmas trees and Santa Claus, all kinds of "company" will be dropping in the next couple of weeks.

Whether they come for dinner or an evening visit mother will want them to try her Christmas cake. And, of course, there's always home made candy.

Where possible candy-making should be left to the young ones. It gives them a feeling of importance to be able to help with the actual holiday preparations. Even the six- and seven-year-olds should be encouraged to try a hand at the baking.

Stuffed dates are an easy-to-make and delightful "sweet" which for some families are as symbolic of Christmas as turkey and cranberry sauce.

Buy the big dessert dates, remove stones and fill centre with an icing-sugar mixture. For an added Christmas touch, this may be colored with red or green food coloring. Then roll dates in powdered sugar and arrange on plates.

TREE SWEETS—Why not decorate the Christmas tree this year with old-fashioned popcorn balls?

Ingredients: One cup honey, one cup sugar, one-half cup water, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla extract.

Combine honey, sugar, water and salt in sauce pan. Place over low heat, stirring until mixture begins to boil. Cook to firm ball stage (250°F). Remove from heat. Add vanilla and stir only to blend well.

Pour slowly over three quarts popped corn in large bowl. Lightly grease the hands or rinse them in cold water and press corn into balls. Wrap in waxed paper. Yield: eight medium popcorn balls.

Honey-almond balls also are good for Christmas.

INGREDIENTS—Four ounces (squares) unsweetened chocolate; one-half cup liquid honey, one-

Ald. Daggett Is Gracious

Ex-Mayor H. M. Daggett, defeated in the contest for the mayoralty at yesterday's civic election, was quick last night to wish, through the Daily News, success to the new mayor and council in their work. He made gracious congratulatory comments in regard to Mayor-Elect Harold Whalen.

Gratification was expressed by Mr. Daggett in regard to the referendum results although he said he would have liked to have seen a more decisive endorsement of the proposal, which he fathered, of requesting the British Columbia Power Commission to come in and supply power.

Quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one-half cup finely chopped, blanched almonds.

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add honey, cinnamon and salt. Beat well, add almonds. Chill until firm enough to handle. Form into small balls about one inch in diameter. Roll balls in icing sugar or finely desiccated coconut. Yield: 30 balls.

TWAS THE NIGHT — If you're planning a party for Christmas Eve remember that everyone eats a large variety of foods at Christmas time and simple but attractive party fare will be enjoyed.

Shortbread cookies are good and also easy to make.

INGREDIENTS: One - quarter cup shortening, three-quarters cup butter; three-quarters cup brown sugar; 2½ cups flour, pinch of salt. Roll in balls, put a dint in middle and put in a piece of Maraschino cherry before baking in oven.

Bizarre Haircuts On British Docks

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP)—If British males want up-to-date North American haircuts, the place to get them is Southampton docks.

Robert Massey, owner of a barber shop inside No. 2 dock gates, knows most of them. Every day style-conscious sailors in drape suits, velvet jackets and jazzy ties stroll ashore and demand such cuts as the "Rhumbba-Ba, the "Curly Top," or a Canadian number, "Silver Dollar."

"They're that particular you'd be amazed," says 39-year-old Massey, who clutched his first pair of clippers at 14 when the most complicated cut was "short back and sides."

Today Robert can name 50 different styles. Among the first post-war crazes was the "Boston"—extremely thick with shaved line straight across the nape of the neck. That was started by sailors on convoy duty who didn't want their hair spoiled by an amateur.

Massey laments the fact that most British men are conservative about haircuts. It takes about a year for new styles to be accepted in most towns. For instance, British men are just getting used to the "Dgma"—hair wrapped around, at back like a duck's tail.

SHIPS AND WATERFRONT

Motor vessel Nitinat, Capt. John Vosper, making her second trip on the new run of Morrison-Knudson, contractors, between Kemano, Kitimat and Prince Rupert which provides for a weekly service, arrived in port at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening and sailed at noon yesterday to the Alcan area. While here this trip Capt. Vosper found three former shipmates who served with him during the war with the old sailing ship City of Alberni which was finally delivered to Valparaiso, Chile. They were Art Williamson, who was wireless operator on the City of Alberni and who now lives in Prince Rupert; John Trail, now mate of the oil tanker Standard Service, and G. Culbard, another member of the Standard Service's crew.

LARGEST FREIGHTER—The Sir James Dunn, largest Canadian-built freighter, slipped into the ice-clogged Lake Superior waters Wednesday at Port Arthur, Ont. From the yard of Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company and built for Canada Steamships Lines, the ship was named for Sir James Dunn, president of Algoma Steel Company and a director of the CSL. The ship is 664 feet long and when fully completed in spring will carry almost 65,000 bushels of wheat or 21,000 tons of ore. The ship was officially christened by Lady Dunn, wife of Sir James. HOUSEKEEPING

GIVE A PARTY THAT GIVES ITSELF

Let your party plan itself. Drop that smile. We're not fooling. Christmas parties can plan themselves if you go about the right way and advice from home economists is that you serve simple refreshments, ones that are easy and quick to prepare ahead of time so that on the party day you may be the gracious hostess.

Home economists suggest that party spreads be the feature of festive entertaining this year. These spreads can be made up well ahead of time and in quantities large enough to last for not one but several parties. Be they afternoon or evening, spreads are welcome at them all. So often, at Christmas, a hostess serves fancy sandwiches or cakes but, during this season people eat such a variety of fancy foods that something simple is a most welcome change. The important thing to remember about these spreads is that they must be colorful to be attractive. Don't hesitate to add a little parsley, diced celery or diced green pepper or even a dab of catsup to the top of the mixture and remember too that they must be easy to spread.

These spreads are usually made by combining various types of cheese, meat, fish or poultry with pickles, olives and spices. As a matter of fact, they may be made of almost anything. At parties these tasty fillers are placed in bowls and everyone serves themselves. The wonderful informality that spreads bring to a party never fails to insure that it will be a success. Bowls are not absolutely necessary for serving them. A grapefruit or orange shell makes an ideal container. A green pepper case is excellent too. A novel way to serve spreads suggested by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, is to take a small cabbage, hollow out the centre and use the cavity to hold the filling. The outer leaves may be slightly pulled out and toothpicks holding pickles and olives attached to the leaves. Some of the spreads they suggest are:

1. Cream cheese, finely minced garlic, salt and pepper and Worcestershire sauce.
2. Cream cheese, mayonnaise and chipped dry beef.
3. Cream cheese, ground, scamed prunes, figs or apricot and chopped nuts.
4. Cottage cheese, chili sauce, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper.
5. Finely sliced ham or chicken, chopped olives or gherkins and nuts.
6. Liverwurst, chopped pickles and mayonnaise.
7. Fried bacon, chopped mushrooms, catsup and a dab of Tabasco.

A variety of plain breads cut into dainty shapes, toasted or untoasted are ideal to use with party spreads. Crackers, tiny baking powder biscuits or small muffins are good too. Melba toast may be made from left over bread and used with the spreads. Plain or puffed pastry rolled very thin, cut in a variety of shapes and sprinkled with a little cheese or celery seed before baking is another ideal accompaniment. There are a host of other things that are excellent with party spreads, such as potato chips or bouchees. The important thing to remember is not to serve sweet crackers unless a sweet spread is being served with them. From all these suggestions, any hostess should be able to arrange a most attractive tray of party spreads with toast, bread shapes, tiny crackers or perhaps small muffins and some crunchy relishes to boot.

OTTAWA—A thousand words daily, compiled by the Canadian Press in Toronto, is being sent overseas to the Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany and Canadian airmen in the United Kingdom.

Francois Lake

The mild weather has been welcome but not the rain like Sunday night which made the snow quite soft.

A model "A" pick-up turned completely over when it skidded over the bank at the Landing on Monday morning, stopping not far from the lake. There were three passengers but all crept out and nobody was hurt.

The dance put on by the Farmers' Institute on Friday night in the hall was well attended and all had a good time. There are several cases of scarlet fever and measles. Most cases are amongst the children.

Torbricit Miners Back to Work

ALICE ARM—With the signing of an agreement which gives the Torbricit miners a 27 cents per hour increase, the six weeks' strike concluded Wednesday, according to a Union announcement. A number of other features in the line of annual holidays, statutory holidays and an increase in shift differentials are also embodied in the agreement which also provides retroactive pay which dates back to May 17. For economic reasons a number of men were obliged to leave the strike area. These men have been given thirty days in which to return to the operation to retain their full seniority rights if this is complied with.

Export Deal With Indies

OTTAWA—Minister of Trade C. D. Howe announced in the House of Commons Thursday night that negotiations have been completed to expand exports to the British West Indies starting January 1 next.

The new trade expansion scheme has been the subject of months of negotiations. It has been approved by the United Kingdom.

Under it Canada will be able to:

1. Broaden categories of goods which exporters have been able to ship under fifty percent quota granted by British West Indies on basis of 1946-48 average imports. The list now will include additional food products, leather, metals, electrical and textile manufactures.
2. Allow Canadian exporters to obtain open licence—that is, without quota restrictions—on some strategic metals, newsprint, steel, some vegetables, fish and animal feed as well as jute goods, kraft papers and other goods.
