COUVER — Fisheries lists this as "the most important event of the year" in B.C. salmon fisheries—the arrival of pink in "measurable quantities" in the spawning bed of the Upper Fraser for the first time since the disaster of the 1913. The arrival of the pinks in the Upper Fraser means that the time has come when the pink salmon, at around cases in cycle seasons, will well up over the mark in future years.

Council Moots Parking Meters

Installation of parking meters on city streets was called for by Ald. H. M. Daggett at special city council meeting last night. This was one of several points brought to attention of the police and licensing committee. Ald. Don Fitch, chairman, said his committee would look carefully into the matter of parking meters. Ald. T. B. Black voiced strong objection to "indiscriminate parking all over the city" and emphasized especially the many wrecked cars parked in front of near various city garages. "It's worse than ever now. Some of these wrecks have been parked near private property and along city streets for months. The attention of our police should be drawn to this situation."

Another matter of importance to workers discussed was a letter from Attorney General Wilson stating that unions will be notified of coroners' inquests into industrial accidents, if a union member is involved. Union representatives will be given the opportunity to give evidence and examine, cross-examine or re-examine witnesses.

Square Dance Craze Hits London; Leader's Dilemma

LONDON — The royal square dance at Ottawa's Government House seems to have started something. ## Would Talk With Russia

Truman Calls Upon Soviet For Real Peace Talk to Head Off Atomic "Scourge" WINSTON-SALEM, North Carolina — President Truman pointedly called upon Russia yesterday to agree upon disarmament terms which would "free the world from the scourge of atomic warfare." The President again offered to "sit down with the Soviet Union" and other countries to work out agreements to relieve mankind of the "horror of world war" and "provide a basis for durable peace." He urged Russia to abandon its propaganda and "phony" peace talk.

UN Wants It Along Present Battleline—Ready To Keep on Fighting TOKYO (CP)—General Matthew B. Ridgway yesterday said that the United Nations will stand firm on its demand for a cease-fire along the Korean battleline. Despite efforts to resume truce talks, the supreme allied commander promised that United Nations forces would continue their offensive in Korea, their goal being to take as much ground as possible. "Within our capability we want ground that we can defend," Ridgway said at one of his rare press conferences. He added: "In principle we want a cease-fire line more or less along the present battleline. The purpose of the Eighth Army is still to repel aggression."

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's labor force and the number of persons with jobs both reached peak levels in mid-August while over-all unemployment was the second lowest on record, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. The non-agricultural sector of the labor force continues the expansion indicated earlier while the agricultural segment is reduced. The labor force stood at 5,421,000 during the week ended August 18 this year, 97,000 greater than the estimate of 5,324,000 for August 1950. Persons without employment and seeking work dropped from 103,000 for August 1950 to 78,000 for August 1951.

Anglo-Egyptian Crisis

THERE are two outstanding issues involved in the abrogation of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty. First, the right which Britain enjoys under it to maintain up to 10,000 troops and 400 airmen with ancillary personnel in the Suez Canal zone. Secondly, the future of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan which is the simpler. Since 1899, the Sudan has been administered under an Anglo-Egyptian condominium. It is now the Egyptian demand that the Sudan shall be united with Egypt under the Egyptian crown. The United Kingdom government continues to insist, as it has insisted for a long time, that the future of the Sudan must be decided by the Sudanese themselves after their attainment of the full self-government to which they are rapidly being brought. The U.K. government has promised this to the people of the Sudan and is not ready to compromise its word.

The right which Britain enjoys of stationing a small force for the defence of the canal zone was granted at a time when Egypt had reason to fear aggression from the Rome-Berlin axis. Egypt then recognized that her own forces were not alone sufficient for the defence of her territory or of the canal which was of such vital importance to the U.K. and the British Commonwealth. She recognizes this today. Her foreign minister admitted it recently. But today, although most people would feel that the danger of aggression was as great as in 1936, Egyptian nationalism apparently demands the withdrawal of British troops on the grounds that they detract from her sovereignty.

The position for the moment is that the British government considers the proposed Egyptian legislation for abrogation of the 1936 treaty and the 1899 agreements on the Sudan as being illegal and therefore null and void. In this, the government is supported fully by the United States. In neither of these treaties or agreements is there any provision for unilateral abrogation. Provision was made that the 1936 treaty, in which the Sudan agreements were reaffirmed, could be revised after ten years if both parties agreed to negotiations. After 20 years—that is, in 1956—negotiations for revision would be held at the request of either party.

Far But Near

PRINCE RUPERT is not included in the path of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip in their tour of Canada but there are few people here who are not following their progress with interest—an interest which becomes the more intense as they near the Pacific coast.

The royal tour, indeed, appears to be eclipsing the interest in materially and politically more important things. It tempers the seriousness with which, otherwise, we would be viewing such disconcerting events as those which are occurring in the Middle East today. Even the Korean situation, where there are better signs now than ever of real peace, is relegated.

And maybe it is a good thing for us that we should be pleasantly stirred with sentiment and affection for the lovely heiress-apparent and her handsome consort. It brings a note of cheerfulness, goodwill and symbolism which is so generally lacking in these anxious and tense times.

Not many Prince Rupert people will be able to get off to the lower coast when Their Royal Highnesses are there but the wonders of the radio and the service the press by word and picture bring them very close to us and in large measure satisfy us.

By the time another Royal Visit occurs we will probably have the wonder of television to even further satisfy us.

Scripture Passage for Today

"For it is God which worketh in you."—Phil. 2:13

Persian Oil Bomb

LONDON — THE Attlee Government's handling of the Persian oil crisis is rapidly emerging as the main issue in this strange election campaign.

The main fact is simple. The Labor government made a mess of this business, above all by insisting that the Persian government had no right to nationalize the oil industry in Persia, as the Labor government itself had nationalized similar industries in Britain, including coal and steel.

There's every reason to believe that, had the Labor government frankly conceded Persia's right to do in Persia what the Labor government was elected to do in Britain, the crisis would never have come to a head.

Mr. Herbert Morrison could have concentrated on such questions as:

1. Compensation.
2. Future management of the company.
3. Uninterrupted supply of oil to Britain, at a price in keeping with the whole background of the controversy.

AS I MYSELF reported from the Middle East last winter, the whole area is in a white heat of nationalist fever. Wherever there is a symbol of foreign privilege, it is waved like a red rag in front of a bull—with the same infuriating effect.

Had the Attlee government been willing to do, last spring, what they were finally willing to do this autumn, there is at least an outside chance that the whole matter would have been settled by agreement.

THE ELECTION controversy centres around what should have been done when it became clear that the Persian government was determined to expel the remaining 350 British oil technicians—by force, if necessary.

The Tories have sharply criticized Labor for "scuttling out." They have implied—but not plainly stated—that the Attlee government should have used force in order to keep the technicians in Abadan.

The whole Labor Party has seized on this challenge, with an eagerness which suggests to me that they regard it as a lucky unexpected "break" worth vast numbers of votes.

Everybody from the Prime Minister down to the most hoarse-voiced orator on the street corner is demanding of the Tories: "Would you have gone to war to hang on in Persia?"

TO UNDERSTAND the importance of this, we must remember that Labor figures there is only one way to beat the Tories in this election—that is to convince the voters that the times are too ticklish to trust in office a belligerent personality like Mr. Churchill.

Evans, who is the wittiest and best campaigner on the Labor team, says of Mr. Churchill: "He is still fighting the battle of Blenheim... his mentality is, whenever there is a crisis anywhere, send a gunboat!"

It is precisely because these times ARE so dangerous, and because the British people are so war-weary, that the Persian oil bomb could explode all the pre-election calculations.

I REMEMBER away back in the early 20's in Canada when the British government came very close to war with Turkey over the question of Chanak.

British troops were stationed on one bank of the Dardanelles and the Turks said: "Get out or fight."

Mr. Churchill had Lloyd George cable Canada, asking whether Canada would support Britain if there was a war. The new Prime Minister (Mackenzie King only then in office a few months) gave a non-committal answer. But the Tories, under Arthur Meighen, made the famous answer: "Ready, aye ready."

That phrase was used to damn the Tories in Quebec in every election for the next 10 years—as I well remember, for I lived there then and heard it used dozens of times.

Now think that over and you see why the Persian oil bomb is one which could blow somebody's hopes sky high in the election.

BURGHFIELD, England (C)—Clearing an old chimney on a farm in this Berkshire village, workmen found a 1946 clothing coupon book, bus tickets and sticks. The chimney was the home of two jackdaws, which were found dead.

VICTORIA REPORT

...by J. K. Nesbitt

UBCM Binge at Harrison Points Up Liquor Iniquities

VICTORIA.—Recent convention of Union of B.C. Municipalities at Harrison Hot Springs must have been some shin-dig. This annual convention is always noted for a great deal of whoop-la, with sedate city fathers forgetting their inhibitions in one grand and glorious binge.

But this is the first time the goings-on have hit the newspapers.

The Victoria Colonist, which had a special reporter at the convention, published a story telling the public of what must have been a wild and woolly all-night party.

The non-party goers were so annoyed that they passed a resolution saying the various cities and municipalities should exercise more care in choosing delegates. The non-party types were kept awake most of the night by the roar of the party types—and in the morning those who tried to sleep were so tired they couldn't think properly and the party types didn't show up at the meeting, because they couldn't get out of their beds.

Here's what The Colonist said: "Some of the delegates admitted they were carried away by the holiday atmosphere of this tourist resort, with its fabulous cocktail lounge—the Copper Room—and the many 'snakerooms' set up by lobbyists."

This little sentence is the subject for endless interesting speculation. Here in British Columbia we're not supposed to have cocktail lounges. The government says the public doesn't want them. And yet this hotel has a cocktail lounge. It's probably operated under a club license but it's a cocktail lounge, no less. Victoria and Vancouver have cocktail lounges aplenty. They're called private clubs, which they really aren't, because it's not difficult to get in. They're plush spots, too, with shaded lights, thick carpets, and fancy furniture. But there's an air of the clandestine about them, which makes them intriguing to young people, who somehow feel sinful and daring when they're in them. How much better are cocktail lounges in hotels, as in Washington State. They're not clandestine—everything's open and above board. You don't feel nearly as wicked in them as in our cocktail lounges, behind locked doors, even though it's easy enough to get the doors unlocked.

What manner of nonsense does our government talk when, with folded hands and upraised eyes, it says cocktail lounges would corrupt our youth? The government would be more honest if it said it prefers a privileged few to have club licenses and operate these clandestine kind of cocktail lounges.

Now about that other little point in The Colonist report of the Municipalities' convention—"the many 'snakerooms' set up by lobbyists."

One of the curses of our public life are the lobbyists. They swarm about our public officials with swish hotel suites filled with good booze. Of course, our officials don't have to attend; nobody drags them to the parties, but being human they go, intending to have a quick one and get out. But the hospitality is so warm, the conversation so convincing that they stay on and on, and we see the result as noted in the Colonist report of the meeting of mayors and Reeves.

This lobbying business should be exposed, and stopped. It's not good. During a session of the Legislature in Victoria, the Parliament Buildings swarmed with lobbyists. We go through a lot of nonsense here too; the legislative corridors are duly locked and guards posted on them. The innocent general public can't get beyond the doors.

And all the time we pretend lobbyists don't exist in this country—that they're purely a good old U.S. institution. And, so pretending, we feel superior to the U.S. when, as far as lobbyists are concerned, we're just as bad.

LETTERBOX

BABINE TRAIL MEMORIES

Editor, Daily News:

We were very interested in the account in your Friday's paper of an "Unusual Holiday" taken by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Priest of this city.

Maybe our pioneering spirit is not completely subdued.

As the writer travelled along this same "Babine Trail" out of Hazelton thirty-two years ago, it is only natural to wonder if there have been any changes since then.

It is true that we did not hike, but had pack horses for ourselves and our worldly possessions. We can remember the good people of Hazelton, thinking what crazy people, as we outfitted ourselves at Sargent's store, and the cavalcade wended its way through the main street to the beginning of the Babine trail.

Our party included two little girls aged four and two, and a baby boy of three months of age. He was strapped on the back of one of the old timers of Hazelton who took over completely, except for a halt when he wanted to be fed. (This same baby was on a destroyer during the last war and finished "the end of the trail" eleven years ago the 22nd of this month). Then the two little girls had a coal-oil box on either side of their cavese and rode all same donkey style as we used to do on the sands as kids.

Reflects and Reminisces

Possibly Quebec did not expect it but when Princess Elizabeth spoke in fluent French she scored a real hit. Her first remarks were in that language, after alighting in the venerable capital city.

CHEERIO!

Perhaps, among the hundreds of thousands assembled between Ottawa and Toronto to observe the royal party, Stalin had an agent. Because a large and good natured dog mixed with the multitude, a bright new Union Jack firmly attached to his bushy tail.

Anyway, that Petersburg skipper who was fined a cool $800 for illegal fishing will doubtless be more cautious next year. Unable to pay, he will serve sentence at the rate of $2 per day. If he has his $800 that wouldn't be a half bad wage scale.

IT COULD BE USED!

Bicycles of various designs are being shipped from Great Britain to different parts of the world. There is a growing demand for bikes that will stand alone, instead of lying on a sidewalk. A few for Prince Rupert might not come amiss.

Every autumn, so far as the north is concerned, the cancellation of daylight saving comes as a relief. How far this is true of other parts of British Columbia is more a matter of uncertainty, although the system does not appear to reflect the same order of earlier years. With the situation remaining as it is, it would not be at all surprising if the early summer of 1952 would see daylight saving's abolition. And now is the time to start working in that direction.

A grain elevator, the size dies.

Coming from a city we found the country we traversed wild and woolly, with roaring streams to cross, but, unlike Mr. and Mrs. Priest, we left the beaten track for a wider country until we arrived at a little cabin (earth floor) on the banks of a river, as our partners told us was "Bear River." Here we made our home from May to October and arrived back in civilization just before the snow which came early that year.

So we can very well appreciate Mr. and Mrs. Priest's courage and tenacity on their trip.

MRS. ALIX WALLIN.

Act NOW! — And You'll Never Regret It
"another RUPERT asset"

Prince Rupert has, means a lot more general business, no matter if times are already busy or next door to stagnation. Once the long spouts start spilling wheat into deep sea ships, there's movement and life. Often, a grain boat means a big lumber order. Shops report more people and like as not, more court cases and more fines. Wheat spells vitality with a capital V.

WOULD SHE?

At least three large ships will be here this winter to carry it away. And yet, had there not been an overwhelming crisis in shipping and transportation—had there not been an emergency getting worse every day—would Prince Rupert have seen a single one? It's to be greatly doubted. The three are coming because they have to. Had there been no congestion in the handling of the crop—had transportation been along normal lines—how much longer would this neglected port, with her magnificent harbor and unrivalled railway grade remained disregarded?

Boy's Award Pictured

The current Canadian National magazine prints a photo taken in the office of Superintendent C. A. Berner, Prince Rupert. This picture expresses the gratitude of the CNR to Billy Adams, aged 14, of Usk, for his prompt action in reporting a bridge on fire last May. The lad's services not only prevented a possible accident but also saved the railway considerable money. Mr. Berner is shown handing the boy a check.

Presbyterian Men's Club

Presbyterian Men's Club, at a meeting last night, assumed as an active task the building of a new main entrance walk to the Manse, a job that has been needing doing for some time.

The club will also take over the town and country booth at the annual bazaar to be held this fall by the Ladies' Aid.

Election of officers was deferred.

The meeting was entertained with showing of National Film Board pictures, one graphically illustrating plastic surgery work for Royal Canadian Air Force fliers whose faces were marred in combat and another a sporting subject—sukky racing.

President Bob Eby was in the chair with Duncan McEae acting as secretary.

Couple Celebrate Silver Anniversary

M. Grumble was groomsman at the wedding here in Prince Rupert 25 years ago. The bridesmaid then, Miss Elita Johnson, also attended the anniversary.

Others in attendance were Mrs. Frank Seidmore, daughter of the Hills, and Mr. Seidmore; sons Stuart and John; Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Tattersal; Ald. and Mrs. George Casey, parents of Mrs. Hills; Mr. and Mrs. J. EDMONTON (CP) — "The Archbishop's Palace," a silver-haired woman smiled at the thought of a new name for her home in Edmonton.

"I think we'll be calling it a name all right," said Mrs. W. F. Barfoot, whose husband, W. F. Barfoot, last year was elected to the Church of England and elevated to archbishop of Canada.

Barfoot attended the church and took the opportunity of looking up some of the clergyman who had said Mrs. Barfoot, sure in a midnight dress with the gold Anglican Woman's membership pin.

Barfoot, established her name as a dietitian. In 1942 they returned to the church where they met to be married.

"In London and Edinburgh I saw the catering for the first receptions for the King and Queen following their coronation," she recalls.

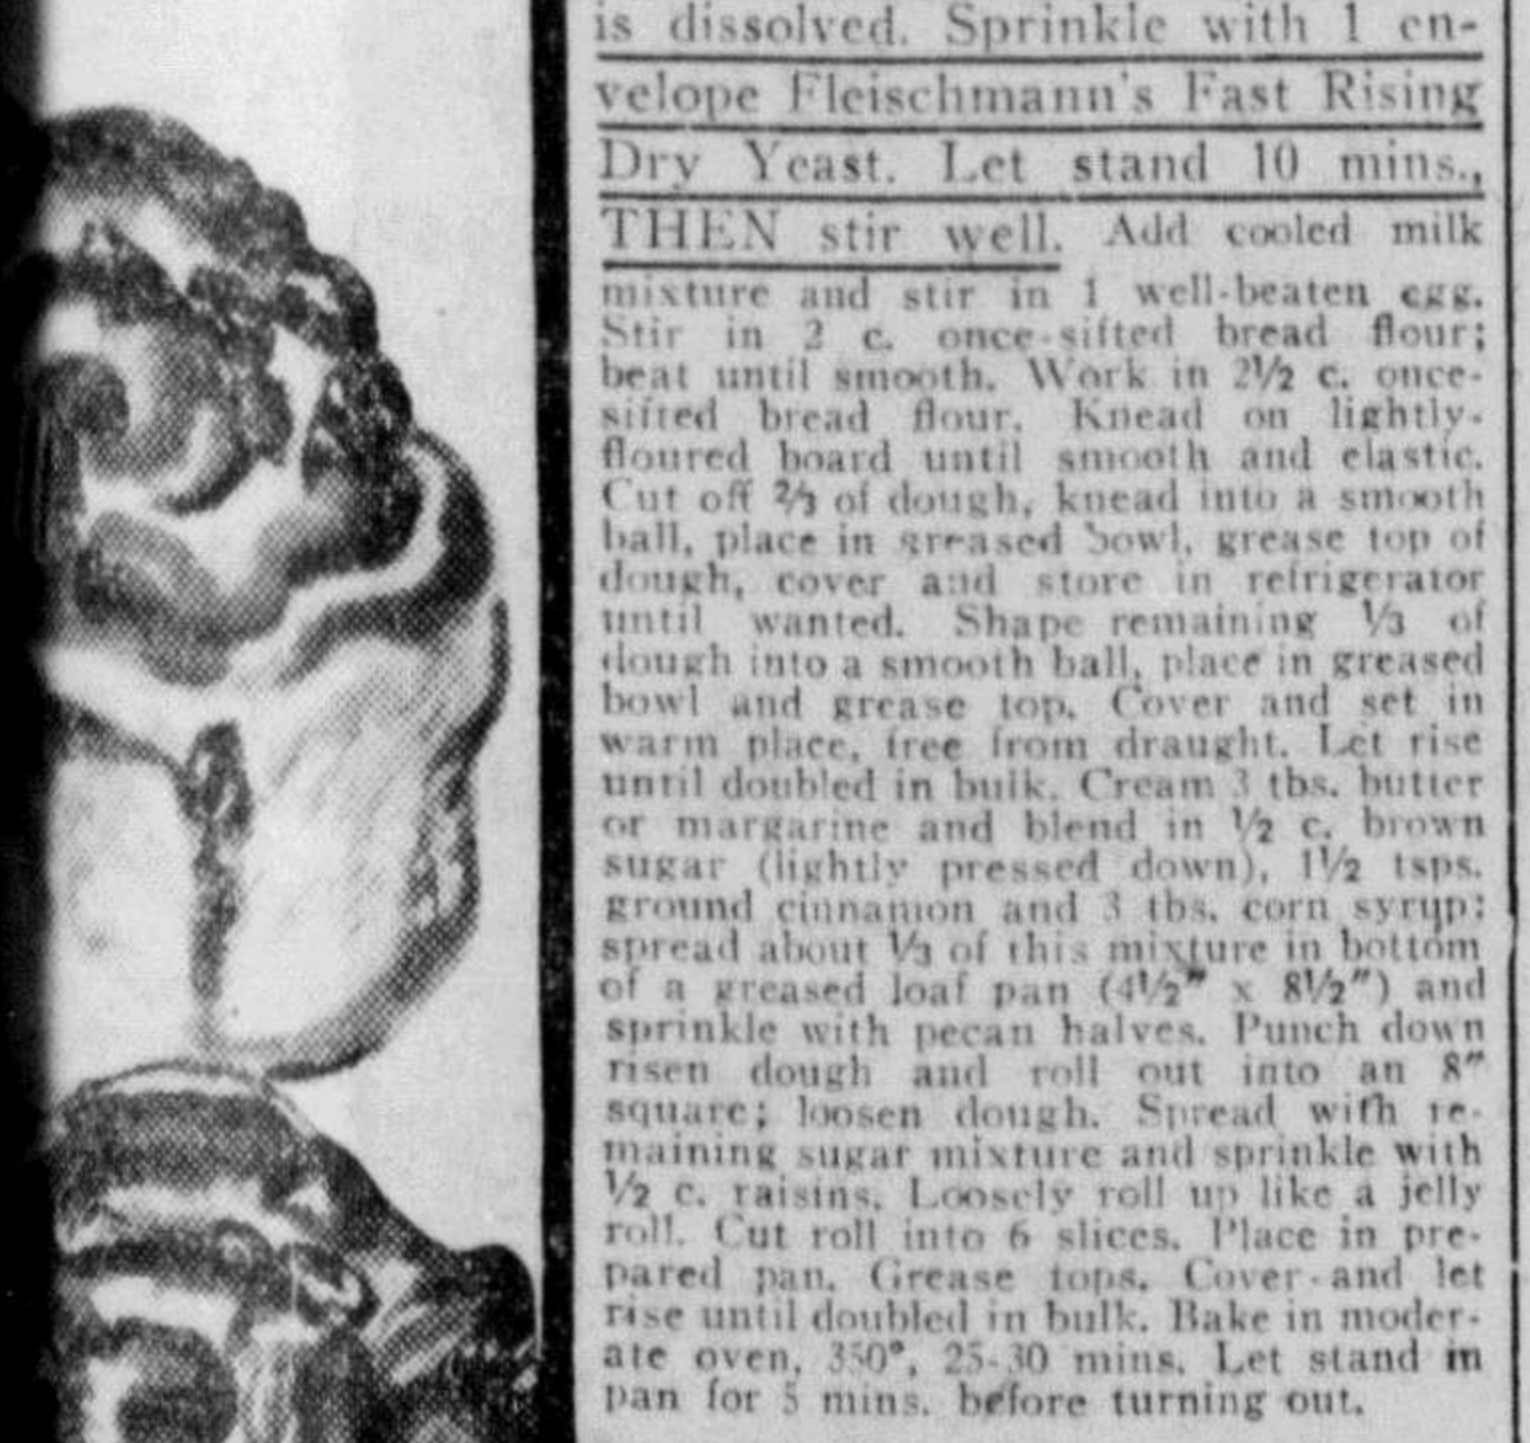

When her husband returns from a planned trip to Korea this month, Mrs. Barfoot will travel to Toronto with him for OTTAWA—Four thousand five hundred newspaper and magazine writers and motion and still camera men have been accredited to cover the tour and general activities of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip. This is far more than the total in 1939 when Elizabeth's parents, the King and Queen, visited Canada. A contingent of correspondents is being carried aboard a special press train travelling a little ahead of the royal train. About 110 will be continuously on the train while others joining it for regional stages will bring that total to 150. The Canadian Press alone has 71 staff members accredited for the air coverage. The telegraph companies have men aboard to route copy. Extra telephones are being installed in railway stations. "Dark room facilities have been installed for the travelling photographers. It is said 100,000 words a day is a low estimate of the total

AGED FURNACES HEAT ROBBERS

The owner of an average heating system five or more years old is warned by National Warm Air Heating Association that the odds are 7 to 10 his winter heating bill is at least 10 percent more than necessary.

This is because 7 out of 10 older type systems of heating are in need of repairing and cleaning. Air leaks in and around furnace combustion chamber, soot in the chimney or furnace, warped burned bars, corroding smoke pipe all create loss of heat right in the furnace itself. Therefore using more fuel to keep the proper temperature.

Heating experts report that home owners are "robbing Peter to pay Paul" through use of improper firing methods and negligence in furnace maintenance.

The majority of costly repairs could have been avoided if owners had followed a regular program of having heating systems inspected each year, says the heating association. Minor repairs can add longer service to heating systems and insure health and safety of families.

Curling Rink Fund Shy Two Thousand

Ten more members and $2000 in cash is what the Prince Rupert Curling Club must have—and soon—if this city is to have a curling rink this year.

President Neely Moore told an executive meeting of the club last night that 16,000 feet of pipe "is sitting in Vancouver for us to pick up, but it won't sit there forever. It will go to the first party who lays down $6,000 cash."

This pipe is vital in construction of the curling rink freezing unit, and at present is hard to obtain anywhere, he said.

In two weeks that club members have canvassed for subscription to the rink "trust fund," 61 new members have contributed in cash $4,000. Thirty more people have pledged they will join the club. Immediate objective is 100 members, or $10,000 in pledges, $6,000 of which must be cash.

Membership subscriptions are $100, payable over a time period. The club has been given the assurance by Doug Frizzell, local auto dealer, that a building he owns at Seal Cove is at the club's disposal.

IDEAL SET-UP
"This is the ideal set-up. The building is just what we need for a rink and we can have it for $3000, with nothing down and pay for it out of profits."

"What more can we ask for? Now it's up to use," declared Mr. Moore.

LONDON (C)—Mrs. Jessica Fuller obtained a job wrapping candy at her home. But she gave most of it to her three children and was afraid to take the rest back. She was fined £5 for stealing 211 pounds of candy.

WELFARE WORKER

"Little things count"

"Although social work keeps me busy, I find time to advise my daughters, even on little things like getting their clothes really white. 'Just swish Reckitt's Blue through the rinse,' I tell them, 'and out of the blue comes the whitest wash. Yes, Reckitt's prevents yellow tinge. Marvelous for rinsing white hair, too!'"

Morrison to Fight Ratzo

The preliminaries are on and building up for the main event. Prince George's Mike Ratzo will get his chance to make good his challenge against Prince Rupert's Billy "Mouse" Morrison, Golden Gloves middleweight champion.

Trainer and manager Joe Ward isn't saying much about Mouse, except that he's "very keen" to meet Ratzo, and likely that will be towards the end of this month.

Ward is awaiting word from Nick Scheling, Ratzo's manager.

Apparently, Prince George is placing all bets on their favorite and according to the latest edition of the Prince George Citizen, there is no doubt but that Ratzo will emerge victorious from the five-round battle.

Says Ward: "If they think so much about Ratzo, let them put up a trophy."

Other fighters from the Prince George club will be asked as well to meet Prince Rupert Elks Boxing Club boys in the proposed fight card.

Kitwana, says Ward, has not answered his invitation so that source of competition seems hopeless at this time.

Two other well-known local athletes have entered boxing training here with Ward. They are Bill "Monk" Sunberg, and Don Scherk, both enthusiastic and popular basketball and baseball stars.

And both, says Ward, have the makings of "real fighters."

allowed to continue at its present rate, Cyprus in 50 years time will face possible famine or economic disaster.

At the outset, the war on erosion faces three main difficulties. The island's experts are ill-armed with cash, equipment, and vital statistics. The director of agriculture has stated that Cyprus at present has only 24 tractors used in anti-erosion measures.

A full-scale campaign may easily cost $2,500,000 or more, but farmers in Cyprus have never been rich and in the present economic crisis, it is doubtful whether their contribution towards costs could be anything but nominal.

As an alternative, agriculture experts in Cyprus think an appeal might be made to, for example, the food and agricultural organization of the United Nations for technical assistance in the anti-erosion campaign.

How Jamaica Was Hard Hit

A copy of "The Daily Gleaner" of Kingston, Jamaica, dated a few days after the disastrous hurricane which caused so much loss of life and damage to that West Indian island, has recently been received in this city.

The paper (which incidentally was established in 1834) contained pictures of some of the havoc wrought by the high winds which were accompanied by torrential rains. Scenes show ships blown ashore in the harbor, churches, schools, hotels and other buildings wrecked, including a "Poor House" and penitentiary.

Over 150 lives were lost on the island, a great number injured and an estimated 25,000 persons made homeless by the hurricane. Serious damage was done to the airport and all lines of communication with the island were put out of commission early in the storm.

Credit for contact with the outside world is given to a group of five radio amateurs who pooled their equipment and established a radio station in a local garage, and a day after the tragedy were able to contact Cuba and Puerto Rico as well as Quito (Ecuador) giving details of the disaster and asking for help to be sent.

The Cuban Red Cross immediately dispatched a plane with 10,000 pounds of food while Puerto Rico sent a plane with medical supplies and other articles to the Jamaican branch of the Red Cross.

Two ships of the Royal Navy were employed distributing food, building stores and water, etc., to stricken areas which could not be reached by roads that were blocked by fallen trees and debris. Army trucks were also pressed into service for similar duties. Orders for 5000 tents and large quantities of food and building supplies were the first to be given consideration.

A food shortage was threatened in the area where bauxite mining operations are in progress. Bauxite from this area will, it is expected, be used by the Alcan project at Kitimat when in operation.

Damage to the banana areas on the south and northeast of the island is estimated at 100% and overall damage to the whole island (which includes coconut, citrus fruits and other crops) is believed to be in the vicinity of ninety per cent. Serious damage was also suffered by the water

Soil Loss Is Costly

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—The island of Cyprus, third largest in the Mediterranean, is preparing to wage war on its worst enemy, soil erosion.

Natives of the big British crown colony have been paying a heavy price for the 400,000 tons of soil which nature steals from their island every year. The price is less food for an increasing populace.

A bill introduced recently seeks authority to launch an anti-erosion campaign on a larger scale than ever attempted.

To the island's perspiring inhabitants the Gazette notice of the bill came as a shock. It told them that Cyprus, whose main problem is shortage of water, was suffering equally from too much water.

Unless one actually watches the erosion taking place when rain pelts down on agricultural land, it is difficult to believe that with an average annual rainfall of only 12 to 30 inches so much erosion can be possible.

Extensive surveys by water department engineers have revealed the alarming rate of erosion in the main forest and agricultural lands and vineyard areas of Cyprus.

FUTURE FAMINE THREAT

The grim fact which experts now face is that, while the population of Cyprus has increased by about 170,000 persons in the last quarter of a century, the island is today producing hardly any more food crops than 25 years ago. This is true despite recent advances in mechanized cultivation and harvesting, installation of more irrigation works, and a substantial increase in the amounts of fertilizer used for cereals.

By the turn of the present century, the population of Cyprus, now 490,000, will reach an estimated 1,000,000. If soil erosion is supply system of the island. Many merchants have given up their advertising space in the paper to extend their sympathy to sufferers and to make announcements regarding damage affecting the usual operation of their businesses.—P.M.R.

Central Interior TRAVELS

... Evangeline Vann's Diary

Was commissioned by elderly lover of newspapers to protest vehemently to certain newspapers of the invariable practice of putting address labels upside down and stuck on title of paper, and secondly, of the insult to readers' intelligence of having to turn to another page to finish an article.

Found it wasn't true that anything that could happen to my feet would be an improvement. Got up to ankles in thick mud, when visiting at night. Air holes in shoes distributed mud evenly over feet. Returned to hotel and washed feet and nylons all in one.

While drying had interesting talk with sick American who had to stay home from hunting trip. Was told that Ketchikan, Alaska, had 14 liquor stores, 14 bars and 14 restaurants, and a population of five thousand. "What are the liquor laws?" I asked. "I guess there are none, just drink when you are ready." There's a new pulp plant going up, which will mean an all the year round payroll, instead of just seasonal occupations.

Spent fascinating hour studying school map of B.C., re-living trips, and tracing new Alcan road from Francois Lake to Houston, and planned Forestry road into tract of timber south of Houston. Conversation turned to the use, in certain quarters, of washing machines in the making of homebrew and the excellent examples of deep carving of the totem poles at Kitwanga, 15 miles north of Kitwanga.

Repaired to cafe to hear favorite westerns. Ruminated on unfathomable behavior of 15-year-olds and the habit of providing toothpicks, not so widely met since visits to continent many moons ago.

Had interesting talk with old-timer drinking milk. From "cat-in-the-pantry" look, gathered he was on the waterwagon, temporarily, at least.

Had lesson from super-salesman. Filled with admiration. Felt he could sell fur coat to a marble statue. In a Dutch home met a Hollander who had only left homeland a week ago and was shown a beautiful hand-woven tablecloth, which had cost 40 guilders. Find it surprising how many of the adult immigrants, even after many years in the country, find it difficult to speak and understand English, and find it necessary to get children to speak for them.

Vowing never to visit again at night, visited again at night, and going up two steps, put each foot through space beyond step, one above another. Thus thrown, door opened to reveal raft of open-mouthed children and anxious adults. When extricated, inspected damaged shin and ruined nylon. Good one will team up with one salvaged at Telkwa. Gave up visiting for night. Planer mill on holiday too for week-end. Retired to hot bath and bed suffering from shock and tummy trouble which has afflicted visitors. Felt that accusation of paternal parent, when I was a child, that I would get feet twisted up in a bit of paper to be justified.

To add finishing touches to already shocked system, had tumbler blown out of hand by pressure in pipe, when getting a drink in the middle of night.

Flewin Family in Colonist Article

The Victoria Colonist prints an entire page devoted to the Flewin family of Victoria. This will not be without interest to many old timers of Prince Rupert who will remember John Flewin, for all of twenty years was government agent at Port Simpson. He was a frequent visitor in Prince Rupert during the early days. His father, Thomas Flewin, was one of Victoria's early pioneers, having come out from England. The article is written by Jimmy Nesbitt, special writer of Victoria. It contains many interesting pictures, as well as data concerning Victoria long ago. Sons and grandsons of John Flewin live in Prince Rupert.

THE EXPERTS Say...

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAULIFLOWER AND CABBAGE—Did you know they were related? The cauliflower in fact is described in the dictionary as "a cabbage with a large, fleshy, flower head."

No matter its ancestry, the point is that this vegetable may be served in a variety of ways; more ways than the average housewife possibly realizes. While it's near the end of the season for the home-grown variety, imported cauliflower can be bought practically the year round.

Cauliflower with cream sauce or just with a pat of butter on top—these are the two most widely ways of serving. But cauliflower French-fried or fried and sautéed with fine herbs, also makes a tasty dish.

The experts recommend cooking the cauliflower, leaves and all. In effect, this gives two vegetables, the white curd to go with the greens.

It is one vegetable that should be cooked in the shortest possible time, in an uncovered vessel, and in a large amount of water.

If the head is whole allow 25 minutes; if separated, 10 to 15 minutes.

NO TRIMMINGS

Did you know that the cauliflower may also be eaten raw?

Separate the head into "flowers" of reasonable size. Drain. Remove imperfections. Sprinkle with salt. Chill one-half hour in ice water. Drain. Impale on toothpicks and serve with mayonnaise.

The mayonnaise may be made with: one egg yolk; two tablespoons vinegar; one-quarter teaspoon mustard; three-quarters teaspoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper; one cup salad oil.

Beat egg yolk and add one tablespoon vinegar. Add mustard, salt and pepper. Mix well. Drop oil a teaspoonful at a time into the egg mixture. Beat constantly until four tablespoons of oil have been added. Then add oil in larger quantities, beating thoroughly after each addition. As the mixture thickens add the

Gillnetter Burns; One Man Injured

One man suffered severe burns and a fishing boat was described as a total loss after a fire at 7:30 last night gutted a gillnetter tied up at Cow Bay floats.

In Prince Rupert General Hospital is Roger Powell, in good condition.

Witnesses said last night that the 32-foot gillnetter "blew up" shortly after Powell entered the cabin and the man came staggering out, his clothes burning.

An unidentified witness spread the alarm which was phoned to the fire department by Tommy Anton, 123 Taxi driver. Anton then rushed Powell to hospital.

"His shirt was burned right off his back," the driver said.

Owner of the gillnetter is Archie Cameron, but he was not available last night, or this morning.

The vessel was burned to the hull and was taking water. When the blazing boat threatened some 20 others tied nearby and a storage of 10,000 gallons of gasoline, it was cut adrift. Firemen who arrived at the scene were helpless while the boat burned several hundred feet from the floats.

Pat Wilson, with his little yacht Marjorie, came to aid of the firemen and towed the burning vessel near the floats where flames were soon brought under control by the hose.

remaining vinegar a little at a time.

CHILLY MORNINGS

There's nothing like a breakfast of pancakes these crisp autumn days.

Ingredients: six cups sifted flour; one egg; one-half teaspoon salt; 2½ teaspoons baking soda; one quart buttermilk.

Sift the dry ingredients and add well-beaten egg and buttermilk. Drop into hot greased pan. When full of bubbles and brown on one side, turn over.

B.C. Electric Disclaimed

VANCOUVER—Vancouver city council will endeavor to disprove the claim of the British Columbia Electric Co. that it needs higher rates to provide funds for further expansion. An expert, so far unnamed, will be presented by the city to show that the company has already sufficient capital required.

Direction Of Labor Is Coming

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP) — Whoever wins the October 25 general election, one of the first acts of the new government may be a swipe at the liberty of the working man.

There is growing speculation that critical manpower shortages are forcing Britain to some form of modified state direction of labor.

Both Labor and the Conservatives have been opposed to the government arming itself with wartime power to draft labor where it is needed most.

But the lack of men on the job in such vital services as coal mines, railways and aircraft factories is threatening the whole of Britain's rearmament effort. That's why the new government, despite party viewpoints, is expected to try to force workers out of comfortable chairs into the mines and essential war plants.

The working population is bigger today than ever before—23,324,000 out of some 50,000,000 Britons.

There are plenty of anomalies in the way British workers are distributed. In the last three years employment in candy and confectionary factories rose from 58,500 to more than 80,000; workers in distributive trades increased by 120,000. At the same time employees have been drifting away from industries and public services vital to the existence of the country.

The whole life of Britain depends upon coal and railway transport. There now are fewer than 700,000 men working in the pits, and 1/10th of that total moves out yearly. Only half that wastage is due to old age or incapacity—the rest find more comfortable jobs.

To replace the loss of 70,000 men, the mines are getting only 10,000 to 15,000 newcomers annually.

The nationalized railways are equally hard-hit. They need 25,000 more men, mainly shunters and footplate stokers and engineers. Few youngsters are taking on these jobs.

Aircraft manufacturers are seeking 150,000 recruits in the next three years, but although pay and working conditions are generally good, the chances of finding the needed recruits without some government action are not bright.

"Headache?.. take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief. DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.
