Northwest Development

MCST geographers and economists are pretty enthusiastic about the resource potential of the northwest corner of the continent, says Michael Young writing in Toronto Saturday Night. The military have had their eyes on it too during the last 20 years.

The Americans want rail connection through British Columbia with Alaska. United States Army engineers have surveyed a route for the railway through the Rocky Mountain Trench. A Canadian report on the economic possibilities of the area offers support for the United States view that now is the time to go to work on the Northwest. The need is stressed for better land transport, especially a railway connecting Alaska and Yukon with the south.

As for the country as a whole, prospects are bright enough to provoke some pretty optimistic prediction. It seems likely that some of the most enthusiastic forecasts northern-minded Canadians have made will be realized. It's largely a matter of timing.

North Pacific surveyors estimated that ultimately somewhere between half a million and three million people will be supported in the North Pacific area on a standard of living approaching that of the U.S. in the discernible future—say by 1975—the half million figure is given as the most likely.

On that basis, is it worth building the railway now? The raw material and labor would have to come from somewhere, and that would mean more scarcities—particularly if we're serious about starting the St. Lawrence Seaway on our own. At present, the main justification for heavy development expenditures in the Northwest is defence. As long as we resist any drop in our standard of living to finance defence preparations, we have to apply priorities to defence undertakings; planes, guns and men for direct defence purposes have a higher priority than a railroad for indirect, and perhaps unnecessary, defence purposes.

The dilemma, of course, is that the very circumstances that make it important to rush this Northwest development also make it extremely difficult to do so.

Reflects and Reminisces

Dawson may as well accept the situation. Once the world's gold hub, she is today, with the latest census report of 773, so barren and forlorn. Whitehorse has 2,548. That's better. But there has been only one Dawson. There cannot be another.

A compromise tax measure has been signed in the United States, said to contain certain improvements for those at the bottom of low-income groups. A single worker with a net income of $800 will save twenty cents next year. On a thousand dollar taxable income the saving will be forty cents. Wonder how the tourist trade will be next summer!

British Columbia's beer strike arouses no anxiety. Not in Prince Rupert, at any rate. The situation is calm. The flowing bowl keeps on flowing. How soon there may be signs or symptoms of scarcity no one seems to be in a position to say or even hint. As the shades of twilight deepen, the thirsty hours feel a happy relief.

STILL IT WAS CHILLY!
Winnipeg's population is 223,617. Calgary has 126,631, and Edmonton 158,709. In other words a total of 418,957, or not so far from half a million. Perhaps they are unable to feel zero because of the air being so dry?

Finding a dwelling in Prince Rupert has never been easy or inexpensive. First there were shacks. Quite a few were owned. One of first frame houses was built by the late Tom Dunn. It's still standing at Third Avenue and 7th Street. It was erected away back prior to 1909. Few places of any description were vacant but, nevertheless, housing meant real money.

ON THOMPSON STREET
Another of the early bird frame houses to be completely finished and quickly tenanted was erected by Mason Ramsay who has not been seen here since early times. For a while, Mason was employed in the Royal Hotel. He built on Thompson Street, then a rather out of the way location, yet not many of the pioneers that long ago could rejoice in a storey and a half. The first tenant, forgetting the plaster had not dried, came close to pneumonia.

STUDY COAL SEAMS

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Continuing study is being conducted into the composition of coal seams in the historic Cape Breton mining area, said Dr. P. A. Macquebard of Sydney, speaker at a local meeting. The federal and provincial governments jointly conduct the geological surveys.

*MR. SAMUEL C. LEWIS...

Do you own your farm, Mr. Lewis?

Yes. I took over it from my mother about 25 years ago.

Do you like farming?

Yes. I sure wouldn't be at it if I didn't.

Do you believe in saving?

Oh, yes.

How do you save?

Mainly by Canada Savings Bonds. I buy several every time they are on sale.

Why do you buy these Bonds?

I can lay my hand on them whenever I need money.

Why do you prefer them to other forms of investment?

I consider them safest. I could invest my money in other ways that would bring in more at greater risk, but I want to be sure of a safe investment and a steady revenue.

Have you cashed any of the Canada Savings Bonds you bought?

Yes. I did once because I needed some extra money to buy a new tractor.

How do you pay for the Bonds?

When they're on sale, I take what spare money I have from my bank account and buy the bonds outright.

Do you plan to buy some more this Fall?

Yes.

NOW BETTER THAN EVER

- Canada Savings Bonds—6th Series—mature in 10 years and 9 months from date of issue and bear ten 3 1/2% coupons.
- The first coupon covers 1 year and 9 months and is payable on August 1st, 1953; subsequent coupons come due August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If cashed before August 1st, 1953, simple interest is paid at 2% per year, calculated monthly. If held to maturity the overall yield is equivalent to 3.21% per year. The limit for holdings in any one name is $5,000 in the 6th Series. The bonds are cashable at full face value, plus interest at any time at any bank in Canada.
- They are registered in the owner's name. They are non-assignable and non-transferable.

*Samuel C. Lewis, 46, is a farmer living near Kars, Ontario. Born on a neighbouring farm, he was educated in a rural school and married Margaret Hyland, also of Kars. They have an 11-year-old daughter, Joan. Mr. Lewis has a 100-acre farm and 20 head of cattle. He ships milk to Ottawa. A brother lives in London, Ontario, and another brother and a sister in Ottawa.

Hallowe'en Costume Party at Miller Bay is Gala Affair

Hallowe'en was a gala event at Miller Bay as the staff joined in the hilarious spirit of the occasion. Even for those who designed and made costumes it was a welcome respite from the busy process of recovery.

New Canadians To Display Art

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Artists who have come to Canada from other countries since the Second World War will be given an opportunity this winter to prove that their contributions have an integral place in Canadian culture.

The London Public Library and Art Museum is sponsoring an exhibition of paintings by new Canadians to be held from Nov. 23 to Dec. 30. The exhibition will have a two-purpose theme:

To give new citizens a chance to exhibit their work and to show other Canadians the cultural influences that these recent arrivals have brought to Canada.

After the art show has been seen here it will move on tour to other Canadian cities. Artists will be permitted to submit up to four paintings and these will be judged locally for hanging in the London gallery at art centres in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Sackville, N.B., Winnipeg and Calgary.

Miller Bay Hallowe'en Dance Happy

The Miller Bay Hospital Recreational Association provided evening entertainment for staff and their guests by way of a Hallowe'en Dance in the new Recreational Hall.

There was a good attendance and all were attired in either masquerade or hard-time costume. Excellent music was provided by Mike Colussi's Orchestra.

Costumes were very good and confusion was evident even among friends as to identity of partners and funmakers.

After costume judging an appropriate hard-time supper was served on the balcony as dancing continued.

Costume awards were made to Miss Ruby Lewis and Jack Barber, both of Prince Rupert, who were attired in seventeenth century costumes complete with silks, satins and powdered wigs.

CLUB PROFESSIONAL

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP)—John Harding, professional figure skater from New Westminster, will be the instructor this winter at the Kirkland Lake Figure Skating Club. He has taught at New Westminster for the past two winters.

What's doing at— CIVIC CENTRE

The Leathercraft class on Monday night is filling up gradually with new members joining each session. The new class is making good progress on small articles. It includes Mrs. Hyndman, Mrs. Gooderich, Mrs. Blackstone, Mrs. Briden and Mrs. Knutson and the Misses Teller, Glenn and Hamilton. Two of last year's students are Miss Irving and Mrs. R. E. Edwards. Although this is primarily a beginner's class, there is still room for some workers who have the fundamentals of leatherwork and do not require too much attention. Those wishing to finish projects previously started or needing help with new articles are being welcomed. Thursday night is also adult crafts so the choice of both nights should accommodate nearly all interested persons.

Twenty-eight boys and a dog attended the Tuesday afternoon woodworking class at the Civic Centre with four new members joining. Witches and pumpkins, owls and hatchets were painted and mounted on plywood plaques. Real honest-to-goodness paint was used freely and samples taken home on hands and faces. With the able assistance of Mrs. Yamata, who is a regular helper in this class, the large group was able to accomplish quite a few articles in the Hallowe'en motif and, if some of the work was not so good, it was on account of the haste to finish before the period ended. Anyway, the dog "brought things up to scratch." New members are Jimmy Logan, Kenneth Boychuk, Danny Phillips and Gary Tyse.

Square dancing will soon be planned for Civic Centre members.

LETTERBOX

PRIVATE SCHOOL PROBLEM

Editor, Daily News. In the October 23 issue of the Prince Rupert Daily News an editorial appeared under the caption "The Problem of Private Schools," written by a Protestant editor.

I urgently suggest that non-Catholics carefully read and seriously think about this editorial. It shows how any non-Catholic mind, unclouded by religious intolerance and prejudices, can come to a clear conception regarding the true meaning of our Canadian democracy. The time has come that all real Christians unite in the ever-growing struggle against a godless materialism, without the necessity of subscribing to Catholic doctrine based on revelation and theology.

Any government which employs tactics of a "brush-off" toward the reasonable requests of minorities is often a greater danger to our democratic institutions than the most rabid Communist. The latter openly boasts of the absolute power of the State, the former often disguises the same principle in a quasi-humble subservience to the people. T. V. de G.

MAYOR THANKS KINSMEN

Editor, Daily News: May I, on behalf of the citizens of the city, express our grateful appreciation to the Kinsmen Club for the able manner in which they handled the Hallowe'en festivities.

It has been expressed by many citizens and the police department that this Hallowe'en has been the quietest for many years, with little or no damage done. This, I have no hesitation in saying, is due to the members of the Kinsmen Club and the manner in which they organized the entertainment for the children of this city, and I feel that Hallowe'en night could not go by without a "Thank you Kinsmen, for the splendid work you have done." H. F. GLASSEY, Mayor.

12-Month Season At US Resorts

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—The terms "winter resort" and "summer resort" soon may have little meaning for many famous vacation spots that once were strictly seasonal in operation.

There's a steady upswing in off-season business from vacationers taking advantage of lower rates and other inducements. Some United States resorts are becoming year-round vacation spots, and others are remaining open much longer than their former two or three-month seasons.

The American Hotel Association, happy about the trend, reports that it's a good deal all around.

Many a vacationer now enjoys a resort or hotel he ordinarily might not be able to afford by taking advantage of off-season rates that are one-third or one-half regular rates. Resort hotels that formerly had to make their income for the entire year during a short season now stay open longer—some all-year—and pick up welcome additional business.

Air lines, railroads and buses, co-operating in promoting the trend, are enjoying good business during periods when they formerly had few passengers on routes serving the resorts, and frequently lost money.

The Hotel Association says most vacations used to be taken in July or August. In many resorts the summer season began July 4 and ended Labor Day. The winter season in the south and in Arizona and California, ran from Jan. 15 to March 15.

But now, even in October, many of the New England, Great Lakes and other northern resorts have been continuing to operate practically at a mid-summer clip. And many will re-open at least a month before July 4.

Aussies Rebuild Whale Industry

By LOUIS L LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent
SYDNEY, Australia (P)—In the last three years, Australia has re-established here long dead whaling industry and developed it into a highly profitable business.
Two whaling stations—both on the west Australian coast—are in full operation.
Between them, this year, they will produce oil worth £1,400,000 and by-products valued at £200,000.

Further stations are now being organized at Moretown Island, Queensland, Byron Bay, New South Wales, and Albany, western Australia.

When they are in operation whaling will be worth more than £3,000,000 a year to the Commonwealth.

A century ago Australia was one of the world's whaling centres.
The thriving industry collapsed almost overnight when kerosene was discovered in 1859 and the whale oil lamp went out of fashion. For many decades nothing happened to cause a rebirth of local interest.

In 1936 two whalers flying the United States flag appeared off the west Australian coast and took 3,072 whales in the season. No one envied them much for whale oil was then bringing barely £10 a ton. (Not £160.)

The ships reappeared in 1937 to catch 3,242 whales. One came alone in 1938 and obtained 917 whales.

Then the Second World War almost halted whaling everywhere.

USED IN MARGARINE
In 1948 whale oil was bringing £110 a ton for use in the manufacture of margarine.
A company called the Nor-West Whaling Co. was formed in Perth to cash in on the high prices. It opened up a station which Norwegians had established at Point Cloates in western Australia but later abandoned.

In April, 1949, the Australian government decided to open a whaling station of its own.
This year, by the end of October the government station tally was 600 whales. Nor-West Company also caught and processed 600.

German buyers are particularly eager to get Australian whale oil, and are offering more than £160 a ton.

By next year privately owned stations at Moreon Island and Albany will be in operation. The Byron Bay station should quickly follow.

There seems no reason why Australians, once they get the know-how, shouldn't do well in their own backyard—the Antarctic.

There Norwegian, British and Japanese whalers are earning $30,000,000 a year between them.

BOYS BAG SHARK
CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Harold Heath and Albert Layden went hunting for rabbits but came back with a six-foot ground shark. The boys were pushing their boat off to return when they spotted the shark's fin, and Heath killed it with his rifle.

LURE FOR DUCKS
FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—The migrating ducks which usually by-pass this immediate district may soon be steered this way each fall. The lure is wild rice, planted in nearby fields.

Britain Wasting Energy in Smoke

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Dr. J. Bronowski, fuel research expert, says that Britain's greatest store of energy is the energy she wastes.

In a speech before a society devoted to reducing smoke, Dr. Bronowski said he doubts whether Britain can hold her place as a world leader if she continues to blow 17 hundredweight of chimney in every ton up the chimney.

One of the national characteristics, Dr. Bronowski said, was an inclination to treat any elderly piece of equipment with reverence usually reserved for a pensioned gun-dog whom it would be disgraceful to grudge feed and house room.

"I hope we shall be able to afford the dog, but I will not need a word in favor of antiquarian machines, and least of all do they seem to be lovable because they smoke as fiercely as their owners."

MP's Step Ahead

OTTAWA.—After listening to British political leaders for a month or so, I get a little smile sitting in the parliamentary galleries and witnessing our MP's in action.

When I get when I come to Canada is always one of the best things I have seen in my life. The rest of the world is a bit drab, but on the whole it is more dependable and efficient.

This business of the welfare state.

It is claimed in Britain both that it is the credit for the welfare state and that it is the credit for the welfare state. They are all for children's allowances, old age pensions and whole cradle-to-grave social security schemes.

It is no longer as simple as it once was. The principle of the welfare state is to put us in power and not only keep your welfare but administer it more efficiently than the Socialists can do.

Compare all this with what has quietly happened in Canada. We never did have the welfare state in Canada. The reason, perhaps, that no political movement has been established in Canada on a basis sufficiently broad to make it a vital, real thing to the old parties.

Nevertheless we too have moved far toward the welfare state. In fact, when you get down to it the only place in the world where the welfare state is still very far from being in her national scheme.

It seems to me to deserve the major credit for the welfare state in Canada. It is moving steadily in the direction of the welfare state. It is no fair-minded person who denies the fact that enlightenment is high up in the Liberal party have actually found the job of putting into effect the measures for the welfare state so faithfully planned.

It was not till I got to Ottawa that I learned any of the details of the government's old age pension scheme. I knew that everybody was to get the $40 at age 70. I knew that the means test, what we know was how the means test was to be raised to provide the funds for all this.

The government seems to me to have worked out not too bad a plan for paying the shot. I know the CCF are right to press for payments into the fund under the 2 per cent income tax levy. I can't see any reason why a person making $30,000 per year should pay more than one making only $10,000.

This is a relatively minor point which will provide a good starting point in future elections. While most people will agree that Hon. Paul Martin's plan is a marked step ahead for the welfare state.

It is true, as I have been saying to show for years, that the government is not "giving" anything under this

White Race Split Seen For Africa

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—Leaders of South African thought are becoming more and more engrossed by an apparent tendency of the comparatively small white population to split into two opposing camps.

Prime Minister Daniel Malan, speaking recently of relations between the Afrikaners and the English-speaking population of the union, said "nobody will deny that race relations have deteriorated to an alarming extent."

The governor-general, Dr. Ernest Jansen, has also spoken of the trend towards division of the white population, whose total of less than three millions is faced not only by the increasing native population but by a vast native population outside the Union's borders.

"If one were to believe the newspapers and some politicians," said the governor-general, "co-operation is farther off than ever and racialism is rampant. Personally I believe there is far less real race hatred in this country than is often alleged."

Very Rev. Frederick Moore, vicar-general of the Pretoria Anglican diocese, wrote in an Anglican magazine that "iron curtains are beginning to descend between English and Afrikaner-speaking people, between those who support the government and those who do not; and, much more dangerously, between black and white."

Claiming that the government is seeking to entrench itself by means of an anti-democratic republic, which will accord rights only to Nationalist supporters, the rapidly-swelling army of critics sets up a clamor at every move which appears to be directed towards that end. The government and its supporters are not slow to reply.

So far Dr. Malan's policy of Apartheid has not come up to his expectations as an instrument for white racial unity. Aimed at separating South Africa's black races from the white and encouraging their separate development, this policy is viewed by Dr. Malan as "a powerful influence in establishing national unity on the firm basis of common conviction and including both white races."

One step in this policy, the alteration of the voting rights of South Africa's 50,000 colored voters, has had an opposite effect.

Legislated earlier this year, the change was made possible by a house ruling that the constitutional entrenchment of colored voting rights was no longer valid.

Opposition MP's sounded the alarm. They pointed out that the constitutional amendment which safeguards the status of English as an official language in South Africa has also fallen away. They stated the ruling means that the South African parliament is free to withdraw official recognition of the English language by a majority of one vote, if it chooses to do so.

Dr. Malan and his ministers have given repeated assurances that they have no intention of interfering with the English language and other rights of the white population.

On the contrary, the government is merely enabling the whole population of Canada to provide for its own keep in old age. It is in fact nothing but a systematic and compulsory savings plan—modified a bit by the principle that the better off should help the worse off. But it's a fine forward step; and the basis of a scheme which will no doubt be improved as time goes on.

English-speaking section and Dr. Malan has repeatedly challenged his opponents to show where such rights have been taken away.

Dr. Malan has said "today, after more than a generation, you cannot enforce bilingualism in any state department without violent reactions on the opposite side, in spite of the clear obligation resting on all South African governments to treat both official languages on a footing of equality."

A speech by the grand president of the Sons of England, H. G. Bailey, illustrates how deeply suspicion has taken root in some quarters.

He said that the Sons of England and all English-speaking South Africans would never allow an isolationist republic, modernized with Hitler techniques, to cause an exodus of English from South Africa. "We will fight for a free and righteous South Africa as long as God gives us strength." He made it clear that he meant a constitutional fight which would be "hard and unrelenting."

Discussing his party's republican aims, Dr. Malan has said that a republic will not be forced on South Africa. It will come only as a result of the clear and unequivocal expression of the people's will and will be based on the principle of equal rights for the two white sections of the population. "It is also not anti-British nor a retreat into isolation," he said.

12 MONTH SEASON

once was confined almost entirely to the winter, vacation business has been booming. The associations say that Miami Beach, for instance, had more visitors on July 4 this year than on Washington's birthday, the traditional peak of the winter season.

An unofficial survey of summer business this year gives a good indication of the trend. For the country as a whole, summer resorts had 10 per cent more business than in 1950. But in Florida, formerly regarded only as a winter resort, summer business was up 12 1/2 to 15 per cent.

But what about the weather—wouldn't you roast by going to a winter resort in summer or freeze at a summer resort before or after the regular season?

The association recently compiled the following list of average temperatures of resort areas for the month to six weeks immediately preceding and immediately following the regular season: New England, 65 degrees; the Great Lakes, 66; Pennsylvania, 59; the Gulf Coast, 72; Southern Arizona, 73; and Southern California, 80.

Cape Cod, for example, in early autumn has most of the vacation attractions it had in the summer. The climate at the Great Lakes resorts in late September and October often is at its very best, with the air clear, invigorating and pollen-free. Weather bureau records show Miami Beach's temperature averages only 16 degrees higher in summer than in winter.

And the off-season vacationer isn't merely an asset to the holiday resort. His business benefits the whole community.

America Market For NZ Goods

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—While most of the world's major food-producing countries are tending to reduce exports going to large internal consumption, New Zealand's policy still looks to a steadily increasing export surplus. With this prospect ahead the Dominion is showing growing interest in future markets overseas.

A. P. O'Shea, general secretary of the Federated Farmers of New Zealand, believes the greatest potential market for the country's surplus food products is North America.

"I am certain that New Zealand would always endeavor to see primarily that the people of Britain obtained sufficient food from New Zealand for their requirements," he said in an address. "On the other hand I believe New Zealand can expand her primary production enormously. With these two considerations in mind it is unwise to depend on the United Kingdom to purchase all the supplies of foodstuffs we produce.

"We have had spectacular increases in production. Twenty-five years ago we exported about 5,000,000 carcasses of lamb annually. Now we are exporting about 12,000,000. Twenty-five years ago we exported 60,000 tons of butter. Total the figure is about 140,000 tons."

O'Shea said New Zealand had the ability to produce a further 8,000,000 lamb carcasses and 60,000 tons of butter annually. He did not believe that Britain could absorb that much extra. On the other hand North America had enormous resources and great unexploited wealth.

In the exploitation of this natural wealth the people must have an enormous advantage in ability to attain a high standard of living and hence the requirement can be regarded as a future market for additional food.

Still Talk Fight Card

Joe Ward Hopes Nick Schmeling Can Bring More Than Two Fighters

Negotiations are being continued between Joe Ward of Prince Rupert and Nick Schmeling of Prince George for a fight card in Prince Rupert the latter part of November when Mike Ratz, Prince George, would meet Mous Morrison of this city in a headline middleweight event. November 17 or 24 are being mentioned as possible dates for the card.

As a semi-wind-up event, Chuck Place, another Golden Clover from Prince Rupert, may be matched against Larry Brewer, 135-pounder of Prince George. However, Ward said yesterday that there might be some difficulty in rounding out a card here if Prince George can only send two fighters and he is awaiting further word from Schmeling on this point.

DATE WITH ROYALTY—HMCS Ontario loads supplies at her berth in the naval yard at Halifax as she prepares to leave to carry out duties in connection with the Royal visit. The 11,000-ton cruiser will transport Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh from Charlotte-town to Sydney, N.S. and to St. John's, Nfld., during Nov. 9 and 10. The Ontario has often visited Prince Rupert. (CP from National Defence)

Central Interior TRAVELS
... Evangeline Vann's Diary

Signs of the times at Burns Lake. Cabins being transported hither and thither for winter logging operations. Shortage of cars for lumber driving in yards of planer mills, should be alleviated by transit of wheat to newly opened Prince Rupert elevator.

Popped in to see Barney Mulvane. Do this every so often if I feel "down." Barney's whimsy heals and restores. Recalled on this occasion, trip taken many moons ago, from Telegraph Creek to Quesnel, through Fort Fraser with his dogs, and then on to Vancouver. Own private opinion that on many such occasions lesser men would not have come through. Barney busier than ever, must try to arrange longer tete-a-tete.

Rode with Charlie McMillan, of Fleck's, to Pendleton Bay on Babine Lake. Fine frosty day, good to be alive. Fire weed is dead, but alder catkins there, as token of spring, and myriads of sparkling facets shine on frosted snow left after thaw.

Apprehensive as to what startling notice, "Public Nuisance Ground" forebodes. Just "Dump," rather in same category as "Rodent operator," meaning, simply, "Ratcatcher." Elevated soon in thought by notice, "Entering Babine Provincial Forest," lost in wonder at immensity of meaning. However, soon brought to earth again, by motion of car, recalling song, "One foot on sea, and one on land, to one thing constant ever," or something like it, substituting wheel for foot. Road follows proverbial drunken Indian, and logging trucks take everything in their stride, including eight inch ditches, and "tray cans. Passed super camping site on Pinkut Lake, used for many years by organizations of all kinds, this year by Forestry Branch, for camp for Rupert boys, under supervision Robey Miles, Rupert Civic Centre. Lake starting freeze. Noticed new Forestry buildings going up at the Babine, to cope with increased activity.

Babine Lake, the longest lake in B.C., about one hundred and ten miles, I think, is always blue, as blue as the Mediterranean, and what a paradise for fishermen. Talked with Hugo Milander, Swedish storekeeper, from whom, in summer, had bought delicious pears. "You should be here in another two weeks," had then said. "The lake shore will be a-glow." His new house opposite now finished.

"In summer time this is the busiest place imaginable," said Peggy McKeown. "Travellers, men looking for work, Indians looking for money, who then have a potlatch, and away they go. But the mills wouldn't want to be without them." Peggy went on to say: "It is essentially a summer cut here, and many people move out for the winter, but we have a school, it is a community effort, built last year, and there are twelve to fourteen pupils, including two Indians. There have been three fatalities here in the lake this year, and the other day the lake was rough, and two booms broke, and it was estimated nine hundred thousand feet of logs went dusting about there, but two tug boats swept the lake, and some were saved."

Visited Mrs. J. C. Saunders, daughter-in-law of Bill Saunders of Palling, man of ideas and ideals. Struck with health and beauty of children in Pendleton Bay, recalling too, Mrs. M. Holmes, blonde beauties of Mrs. M. Holmes of Decker Lake, who have exceptionally lovely harids.

Had heard of "Blondie's" prowess in cooking, and at first opportunity called at Engineer's Car, now in Burns Lake. Found "Blondie" entertaining Mrs. Conlon to afternoon tea, with famed apple pie. Pie definitely "Out of this world," and "Devil's Dream" tarts in same category. Lucky engineers to get pie every day.

Come to conclusion you have to know Canadians awfully well to know their surnames. Front names, only, order of day. "Blondie" is Ellen Egerton to you but "Blondie" to everyone the six hundred and seventy miles from Red Pass to Rupert, for many a year now. She keeps

FRANCOIS LAKE

Clarence Snyder's sister, Mrs. Don McKay, and his brother, Kelly Snyder, are up from Glenwood Springs, Colorado. They will take their mother, Mrs. Grace Snyder, back with them by car.

There will be a dance tonight in the hall to raise funds for the children's Christmas party. The Francois Lake orchestra is donating the music.

After a very cold spell, it is now mild and the snow almost gone. The roads are muddy.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and small Sharon have moved to Burns Lake.

The annual school meeting was held in the school Wednesday evening with nine present. J. H. Keefe was elected chairman and Mrs. Harold Neeve, secretary. Hugh Neeve was elected representative for another year.

Old Ferry is Moved South

FRANCOIS LAKE.—The old Francois Lake ferry came across for the last time on Wednesday morning when she was towed to the place where the new one was assembled. Here she will be dismantled and taken to Burns Lake for shipment by railway to Chase. There she will be rebuilt and have new deck, engines, etc., and will be used on Shuswap Lake as a ferry.

G. Love is superintendent the workmen here of the Victoria Machinery Depot.

For 26 years the old ferry faithfully worked during good and bad weather, night and day.

Ketchikan Trip Is Recommended

Leslie Pierce, local CNR employee, returned last evening from a brief holiday trip to Ketchikan, this being the first time he was ever in the Alaskan city, an experience he says he thoroughly enjoyed. He was shown around the town by William Terry who, up to a few years ago, made his home in Prince Rupert. Leslie says there are others in Prince Rupert like himself, who have gone no further north than here and he advises them to take a trip some time. Anyone will find it well worth while.
