INTERNAL CRISIS IN SOUTH KOREA

Talk of Government Of Rhee Going Sour

TAEGU, Korea (CP)—A cabinet crisis, brought about by financial scandal and mass executions, is threatening the South Korean government while Allied forces battle to defend the republic against the Communists.

There is talk of impeaching Dr. Syngman Rhee, 76-year-old first president of the United Nations-sponsored republic.

Rhee fired three cabinet ministers recently as an aftermath of the execution of 187 villagers at Kochang. Charged with Communist sympathies, the villagers were convicted by a military court and shot February 12.

The opposition party, the National Democrats, charges that meanwhile $2,000,000 in defence department funds has disappeared.

Vice President Lee See Yung asserts that Rhee is loading the government with his friends.

Col. Stone In Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lieut.-Col. J. R. Stone landed in Vancouver from Tokyo at 9 a.m. today and boarded a plane for Edmonton twenty minutes later, speeding to the bedside of his two-year-old daughter, Moire, who is suffering from a severe eye disease.

The commanding officer of the Princess Patricia's in Korea was given compassionate leave when he learned of his daughter's illness.

One eye has been removed and the other is threatened.

Conservatives Are Jubilant

Gains in Local Elections Hailed as Auguring Well For National Contest

LONDON (CP)—The Conservative party last night hailed successes in local government elections in England and Wales as a sign it will oust the Socialist government in the general elections expected this year.

Final figures gave the Conservatives a net gain of 103 seats out of a total of 3,407 up for election in 390 boroughs. But most gains were at the expense of the Independents who are still a big force in local government affairs.

Labor nominees had a net loss of three seats.

Tories are most elated over success in the industrial city of Leeds where they turned a Labor majority of eight into a Conservative majority of 22.

House Loan Interest up

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament will be asked to pass legislation increasing interest rates on loans obtained by prospective home owners under terms of the National Housing Act.

Resources Minister Winters told the House of Commons yesterday that legislation will increase to five per cent from 4 1/2 per cent the interest rate payable by borrowers.

Confidence in Police Chief

VANCOUVER — Police Chief Walter Mulligan and his department were given a unanimous vote of confidence by the board of police commissioners last night.

In view of recent allegations arising out of an alleged book-making racket and other matters, the chief demanded a vote of confidence or a full investigation.

Seamen Offered Increase in Pay

VANCOUVER — Three steamship companies have made a new pay offer to seamen who are threatening strike action. Retroactive to March the companies would give an increase of $7.50 per month with another increase of $6.37 September 1 next. There would be a 40-hour week.

French Assembly Is Dissolving

PARIS (CP)—The French National Assembly early today voted to dissolve July 4, thereby making certain a general election will be held next month, probably June 17.

Canada has New Weapon

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Defence Research Board, said today that Canada has started work on a new guided missile and a new anti-tank weapon which is expected to be more accurate than the United States Army's bazooka.

Retains World Chess Title

LONDON (CP)—Michael Botvinnik retained the world's chess championship by the narrowest possible margin in Moscow last night, ending a 24-match marathon against David Bronstein with a score of 12-12.

The rules of play were such that, if the final match ended in a draw, Botvinnik would retain the title.

Russia May Become Aggressor At Any Moment, Says Marshall

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CP)—Defence Secretary George Marshall said today that he operates on the assumption that Russia "may step into aggression at any moment" in Western Europe.

At the same time he told the Senate armed services committee investigating the dismissal of General MacArthur that he feels the risk of provoking Russia to war in the Far East is greater than is the danger in Europe.

Marshall said that reports received by the United States indicate continuous Soviet build-up by re-arrangement of her troops in Europe and by increasing her strength in the Far East.

Is Impressed With Pacific

William Eacott of St. Catharines, Ontario, arrived in the city Friday to spend a few weeks' holiday with his brother-in-law and sister, Staff Captain and Mrs. W. C. Poulton.

Mr. Eacott, who is partner in a large dry-cleaning business in the Niagara peninsula, was in the Royal Canadian Navy in the last war and served aboard HMCS Arrowhead and HMCS Strathadam in which corvettes he saw most of the Atlantic.

However, it fell to the lot of the CNR, through the services of their efficient conductor of train 195, to tell him the glories of the Pacific.

Mr. Eacott will return to Ontario at the end of the month.

Bridges Not Collapsing

VICTORIA—Hon. E. C. Carson denies a statement attributed to him that hundreds of highway bridges in British Columbia are liable to collapse. All bridges, he says, are safe up to the load limits posted on them.

Weather

Synopsis
Moist cool Pacific air covers all of the province today and cloudy skies and showers are quite general. Not much change in this condition is to be expected today but there will be some clearing in most sections tonight. By tomorrow a Pacific storm, which is now about 700 miles west of the coast, will be close enough to B.C. to be causing cloud and rain along the coast and increasing cloud over the interior. Strong northwest winds which developed over the north coast last night will moderate during the day. Fresh to strong southerly winds are expected in most regions along the coast tomorrow.

Forecast
North Coast Region—Cloudy today and tomorrow. A few showers today. Rain beginning tomorrow morning. Little change in temperature. Winds westerly (15 miles per hour) today, except west (30) over open waters this morning. Winds light tonight, becoming south (20) tomorrow. Lows tonight and highs tomorrow—at Port Hardy, 45 and 57; Sandspit and Prince Rupert, 45 and 55.

Murder and Suicide Seen in Case at Hull

HULL (CP)—Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knudsen, said to have come from Prince Rupert, both slain with a .30-30 rifle, were found Friday night in a dine-and-dance hotel here. Police Chief J. A. Robert said it was "positively a case of murder and suicide."

Vital Words Recounted

Manslaughter Trial at Prince George Arising Out of Train Wreck

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Testimony on the inclusion of two vital words in a train order took up the third day Friday of the manslaughter trial of Alfred John Atherton, 22-year-old Canadian National Railways telegrapher, charged following the Canoe River train wreck November 21 in which twenty-one persons perished when two trains collided head-on.

EVIDENCE CONCLUDED
Hearing of evidence in the case of Rex vs. A. J. Atherton was completed at the Supreme Court assizes shortly before noon today. Counsel and Mr. Justice A. D. MacFarlane are addressing the jury this afternoon and there may be a verdict by tonight.

A. E. Tisdale, dispatcher at Kamloops, who sent the original order, admitted that had he been paying closer attention when Atherton repeated the order back to him, he would have noticed omission of the words "at Cedarside."

The crown claims that Atherton, in passing the order to the conductor of the westbound troop train, failed to include the words "at Cedarside" which would have sent the train into a siding there to await passing the east-bound passenger train.

The order did include the words "at Gosnell" where the troop train was to have again been shunted to a siding to await passing of another passenger train.

Expectation here is that the concluding explosion of the current series would be a big nuclear fission blast yet to be set off.

Eniwetok has been the site of three previous explosions—in April and May 1948.

The blasts there are reported to have been far more powerful than the Nagasaki-type of bombs used two years before in the Bikini experiments.

There are reasons to believe that the efficiency of the explosive progressed at equal if not greater rate in the two years elapsing between the Bikini and Eniwetok tests.

As I See It

YUGOSLAV RADIO

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA.—By sheer good luck I met, on a Belgrade street, young Len Davicho, who used to work for the CBC international service in Montreal.

It was interesting to meet this young chap for many reasons. But above all, he was able to fill in for me many of the missing links in my knowledge about the Yugoslav radio.

There are no 20 radio stations in Yugoslavia—and, like most other enterprises, they are state-owned. In the earlier years of the "Peoples' Republic," the control was highly centralized.

THERE IS A GREAT DEAL of competition between the different stations. Here in Belgrade, for instance, they have two stations whose top men really sit up at night figuring ways and means of getting ahead of the other fellow.

Recently the UN secretary-general, Trygve Lie, visited Belgrade. One manager of one Belgrade station got the idea that it would be a smart move to put on a western-style "actuality" broadcast when Mr. Lie got off the plane.

A little later, the other station got exactly the same idea, and made the same request—which Davicho had to refuse with some lame excuse or other.

Recently another change has been made—also in the direction of liberalizing the radio stations. Stations are now allowed to retain their own commentators, who go on the air free from all check or censorship by any other authority than the station management.

There have also been interesting changes in the programs. They used to put over about 10 newscasts each day—with each newscast of 15 minutes' duration. They cut down the number and also cut down the time of each. Now no newscast is for more than five minutes and some are for less.

THE MUSIC THEY USE HERE is rather more classical than we use, as a general run, in Canada. Perhaps I should say that the music they choose here is more like you hear on the CBC and less like that on the commercial stations.

But here, too, there is a difference. The big station in Belgrade (or, to give its proper name, Beograd) is more high flown than the smaller one. The little fellow puts over more of the light kind of music you would hear in the U.S. or on our own smaller stations.

NOT KNOWING THE LANGUAGE, I have no way of sizing up the talks programs they give here—nor their newscasts. But I think it is safe to say that in the radio, as in the press and even amongst the general public, there has been a definite relaxation of the rigid regimentation of the earlier days of this regime.

Only a few months back, the Tito government released no less than 10,000 prisoners. Of course, the pessimist would say that it was a terrible thing that there ever were 10,000 prisoners. But I count myself definitely among the optimists and look at the brighter side.

We hear criticism of the government here—quite open, and apparently without any great fear of consequences. But, though it may be brash for such a brief visitor to say so, it does not strike me as criticism which comes from a fear-ridden, much less tyrant-terrorized, people.

Recent articles, such as in Newsweek, for instance, are just plain silly—not to say internationally mischievous. One fellow wrote of the "appalling conditions" of the hotel in which I am writing this—the Majestic. Actually, it is about as good a hotel as I have struck most anywhere as I have traveled in Asia or

MUST HAVE CROPS Prince Rupert's first market was early enough—perhaps too much that way—but it somehow lacked staying powers. Situated at Fifth and Fraser Streets business at first seemed fair enough.

ALARM CLOCKS Things are different in many ways from a few years ago. Anyways in Prince Rupert, around six a.m., cars were seldom seen or heard. Footsteps were few. The change has not come as a cruel shock but gradually and on a broadening scale.

There is said to be a chance of the CNR Highway bus running during the day instead of at night as at present. Suggestions to that effect are finding encouragement. True enough that from twilight to 3:30 a.m. is the poorest time there is to go sight seeing along the scenic Skeena.

Tragedy

There are many dark moments in the history of man. Few are more momentous than the one presented to us by the words of our text. It reveals to us what might have been a story of real accomplishment as one of real tragedy.

The first cause was the fact that the people were always willing to compromise on a principle if it seemed to be the most convenient thing to do at the moment. The other was the desire to the will of man instead of the will of God.

Poorly Timed Service

IF THE railway company is going to engage in the bus service up the Skeena River at all, it might as well make it as comfortable and pleasant as possible for the passengers.

Bus service, at best, is none too comfortable but, when one has to sit up all night to travel that way, it is a trip which would be undertaken only under urgent necessity.

Being able to view the beautiful natural scenery all along the Skeena and then the Bulkley River would at least ease the journey.

The argument that business men can save daytime by travelling at night does not seem to hold since business men if they travel by car do not travel by night.

The railway company is not going to win much of the highway traffic with the kind of a schedule on which the Smithers bus now operates.

Penalizing Home Building

THERE could hardly be a more inexplicable piece of legislation than that which is being proposed at Ottawa to increase interest rates on loans obtained by prospective home-owners under terms of the National Housing Act.

It takes the National Housing Act just that much further out of the reach of people whom it should be designed to help—and Prince Rupert knows how almost unobtainable NHA assistance already is here.

Lack of housing is already one of Canada's most critical situations. Every growing community is suffering therefrom—none more than Prince Rupert.

The rhyme or reason of the government moving to make it more difficult for people to help themselves in regard to providing homes is difficult to perceive.

The increasing of the interest rate by legislation does not indicate much good faith on the part of the government to alleviate the housing shortage—and to discourage private enterprise of prospective home builders seems just about the most incongruous piece of business we could imagine.

Bad Timing and Taste

GENERAL EISENHOWER'S efforts to rebuild a united military front in Europe are certainly not going to be made any easier by a series of articles on the last war just concluded in Life Magazine. From first to last these have almost totally ignored the fact that there were others than American soldiers and American generals fighting.

When other Allied leaders have been mentioned, especially Montgomery, the references are almost always sarcastic or critical. From the heading of the series "The War America Fought" and from the text, the reader is given the unmistakable impression that the American generals were always right, the British always wrong.

If peace prevailed today and if this were just another of those "we won the war" pieces by an unknown author it would not greatly matter. But the present times are far from normal and the author, General Omar N. Bradley, is the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the United States.

It is unfortunate to say the least that such a highly-placed official at this critical time should allow his name to be attached to this one-sided attack on America's greatest ally in the last war and the greatest hope of support if we are faced with another.

This is very insidious propaganda to be poured into the minds of younger Canadians especially.

THE EXPERTS Say...

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Comfort in Shoes — Choose comfortable shoes if you want to be healthy, happy and wise — as well as easy on the eyes.

There's more than rhyme in that statement. You don't have to have a shoe expert tell you that tight shoes cramp not only our feet but our entire posture. And they put a kink in your temper as well.

Health department officials say that shoes too tight or in an unsuitable style may cause fatigue and nervous tension. For foot-ease they suggest a daily foot-bath in alternate hot and cold plunges; dry well and dust with good foot-powder.

The little woman has no excuse for undergoing self-torture simply to keep up with current shoe styles. At the moment good shoes are produced in more than 150 sizes, making possible a degree of fitting accuracy that grandma never dreamed of.

Nowadays shoes can be both comfortable and fashionable. Flexible leather soles insuring comfort and shape retention are available in any desired thinness and many types of finish.

Pumps with platform soles are among the favorites in spring fashion talk.

Some shoe experts repress lightness in the 1951 shoe. They say this is expressed in both look and feel, through the use of new fabrics and supple, unlined leather. Openness in design has returned to favor.

Phosphorescent satin and jersey shoes, rhinestone trim on back pumps appear the fashion favorite in Toronto where a window-shopper the other day spied a pair of nylon stockings with heels trimmed in brilliants.

FOR BABY
Perfect shoe fit in childhood is the best guarantee that junior will have healthy feet when he grows up.

Foot experts say a laced Oxford that gives snug support around the heel is best for all-around wear. It also must fit comfortably across the ball of the foot and permit three-quarters of an inch toe room.

Be sure to have the shoes fitted to the larger of the child's two feet.

Shoes should be equipped with genuine leather soles permitting perspiration to pass off while maintaining healthful temperature inside the shoe.

Excessive wearing of sneakers and flimsy shoes is frowned on. Experts point out that such footwear is meant only for specialized sports, played on soft ground. For walking, playing and running on hard surfaces, youngsters need the support provided by leather shoes.

Lilac, pale blue and green are among the delicate tones footwear is taking on this spring. As for styles many are delicate shell pumps whereas others are sandals with airy anklets.

White accents on brilliant or dark shoes also provides plenty of foot interest this spring. White inserts of mesh peep through dressmaker spectacles which follow the classic theme of blue or brown.

They Met on Trip to Rome

Prince Rupert-Born Nurse Becomes Bride Of Brooklyn Man

A romance which had its inception when the contracting couple met during the Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome culminated recently in New York for a well known Prince Rupert-born girl. Mrs. M. P. McCaffery returned to the city this week from Brooklyn where she went to attend the wedding of her second daughter, Mary, to Peter S. Farara of Brooklyn.

The marriage took place in the Church of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Mass being said at 10 a.m. by Rev. Father Coyne.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John Wilshire of Bangor, Maine.

Mrs. Clarence Thomson of Seattle, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Peter Fiorilla was groomsmen.

A reception was held in a Knights of Columbus Hall after which the bride and groom left for a trip to Miami, Florida. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Farara will reside in Brooklyn, a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital nurses' training school in Victoria, the bride served as a nurse in the United States Army during the war and has since been at the United States Marine Hospital in Seattle and more recently at Brooklyn.

The groom is identified with the service of Western Union Telegraphs in New York.

Haida Chapter Tea and Sale

A tea and sale of home cooking and aprons at the Civic Centre by HMCS Haida Chapter IOOE was well attended and successful.

In charge of aprons was Miss Polema Lineham; home cooking Miss Iona Hardy. Cashier was Anna Swang. Astrid Swang and Shari Ingalls were serving.

Miss Barbara Teng was receiving and Mrs. J. A. Teng and Miss Mary Addison were in the kitchen. It was decided two raffles would be held next Monday.

The Traffic Cop

School children, especially those attending Booth Memorial and King Edward Schools, are being asked by city police to keep off the streets where there are sidewalks. Where there are no sidewalks the left hand side of the street only should be walked, facing oncoming traffic. This is a requirement under the provisions of the Highway Act and concerns the safety of all pedestrians. Motorists are being requested to exercise added caution when travelling through school zones, making allowances for impulsive actions of children. "Particular vigilance is required when approaching or passing children, as they are very likely to do some unexpected thing which will result in their injury or death unless the driver has been vigilant," says the motor-vehicle driver's manual.

QUICKBREADS HANDY IN MAKING TEMPTING MEALS THESE DAYS

Would you like to make your meal just a little more tempting? If so, don't you think that a flaky tea biscuit, a hot muffin or a crunchy popover might do the trick? Home economists tell us that they have always been of the opinion that a good quickbread, of one sort or another made in your own kitchen, and served piping hot from the oven could appear more often on the family table than it does.

They tell us also that there are four main types of quickbreads namely, tea biscuits, muffins, popovers as well as loaves in which baking powder, not yeast, is used to make them rise. Variations of each type are so numerous that there are literally hundreds of different ones that can be made.

Success in making quickbreads depends mainly on four points. The first requisite is to use a reliable recipe and to follow it carefully. The second point is to use good quality ingredients and unless the recipe says to have them hot or cold, use them at room temperature. Thirdly, follow the mixing directions carefully, being sure to use accurate level measurements and lastly, but not least, bake in a well regulated oven. A fifth point might be added and that is to serve quickbreads dripping with butter, honey, maple syrup or jam. They make anyone's mouth water just thinking about them. However, don't get the impression that serving these quickbreads dripping with honey or other sweets is the only way in which they may be served. Tea biscuits, may be used as a crust topping for pies, for puddings or in meat rolls. Fruit muffins, when served with sauce, make delicious puddings. Toasted muffins may be used instead of toast with poached eggs, while popovers and such members of the popover family as Yorkshire Pudding and cream puffs have their own particular uses. It is easily seen that there are many forms of quickbreads so there is no excuse for not serving them more often.

The main ingredients in making tea biscuits are flour, liquid, shortening, baking powder and salt. Generally, the standard proportion of liquid to flour is one part of liquid to three parts of flour, as we know it, makes the most tender biscuits. Eggs are not used in standard tea biscuits though they are sometimes added in such variations as scones and short cakes. The method of combining the ingredients for biscuits differ from the general method used for batters. There is, of course, a reason for this. Everyone wants a flaky texture fat is chopped or rubbed into the sifted dry ingredients. When the mixture looks like coarse cornmeal a "well" is made in the flour-fat mixture and the liquid is added, then mixed only until the dough thickens and the flour is moist. From this standard dough many variations can be made, for example, the milk or water ordinarily used in making biscuits may be replaced with tomato juice or orange juice. For a wonderful biscuit which is perfect to serve with salads or on top of vegetables casseroles grated Cheddar cheese may be added to the dough.

As the home economists mentioned there are numerous variations of muffins and one way in which they may be varied is by the kinds of flour, meal or cereal used in them. Those made of all cornmeal or whole wheat flour have a characteristic flavour and are quite heavy in texture. For lighter textured muffins usually an equal amount of white flour is used with cornmeal, rolled oats, bran, whole wheat or other flour. Another way to add variety to muffins is to stir in raisins, dried fruits, grated cheese, chopped ham or bacon, into the dry ingredients just before adding the liquid to the muffins. If fresh or well-drained cooked, canned or frozen fruit is folded into the muffin batter just before it is put in the pan, in a matter of minutes, you will be taking from the oven a batch of most colourful and appetizing muffins. Blueberry muffins are, of course, a favourite of this type, but other berries

Forging of Friendship Danes Rate Link is Doukhobor Aim Trade First

NELSON, (CP) — Strange, haunting Russian music has been drifting through the valleys in the west Kootenays of interior British Columbia.

It is part of a link of friendship and understanding various groups are trying to force between the Doukhobors and other Canadians.

Some months ago, the Young Peoples of the Spiritual Communities of Christ (Orthodox Doukhobors) and the ministerial associations and service organizations decided to try to put Christians in closer touch in this mountain-ringed land.

Result was a series of services in cities and towns throughout the west Kootenays. The service here drew more than 1,000 persons to the Civic Theatre and scores had to stand.

As a lesson in Christianity, the services were simple and moving.

At the service at nearby Trail, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, John Verigin, leader of the 10,000 Orthodox Doukhobors, told something of the history of the group and then introduced two choirs, explaining the meaning of the hymns they were going to sing. Without accompaniment or conductor, the choirs sang their native Russian hymns and folk songs. Later, they sang English hymns. The women wore their traditional white costumes.

Early history of the Doukhobors is obscure but in 1785 the group in Russia was named Doukhobors, meaning "spirit weavers."

They refused to bow to the authority of any man but only to "the spirit, dwelling within each man."

Persecution followed. Finally, in 1895, the sect emigrated to Canada.

Mr. Verigin said the Doukhobors had been misunderstood when they had refused to swear allegiance to the King. This had not been intended as a mark of disrespect. The Doukhobors admired the King and what he stood for. But they could swear allegiance only to God.

Friction increased and some Doukhobors had turned to violence. The orthodox Doukhobors had suffered as much as, or more, than anyone because of that violence. They had also suffered the accusations of their fellow Canadians, who attributed the riots and burnings to all Doukhobors instead of to the few radicals, the Sons of Freedom.

John Stochhoff of Brilliant said: "We have come here to show you we want to be friends."

At the Nelson service, Emmett Guiley of the American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers) said that when he had arrived in the west Kootenays several months before, he had found a "wall of misunderstanding" between the Doukhobors and other Canadians.

The meetings had done a great deal to break down this wall. "We think of problems to be solved on the other side of the world, when actually it is right at home that friendship is most needed," he said.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjorn Kraft said recently "the defence effort should not be brought into variance with the maintenance of a standard of living for our population which is in conformity with our democratic ideals: If we were to forget that, we would lose the battle on the home front."

Rationing came to an end last year, except for sugar and coffee, so there is but little black market activity. As is the case in most countries of Europe, anyone with enough money can buy almost anything.

Import controls have been unfavorable trade balance as low as possible.

The government has its best brains at work seeking ways to combat inflation. Latest proposals, however, amount to little more than the usual method of increasing taxes.

COMPULSORY SAVINGS
But two of the proposals are new in this country:

1. The introduction of compulsory savings for lower income groups. This is probably the least unpopular suggestion, since under it the government would return all the compulsory savings after a number of years. Sceptics ask how much these savings would be worth in buying power when they are returned, but the general feeling is that the measure would have a good anti-inflationary effect by reducing purchasing power.

2. Regulation of the cost-of-living index, which automatically controls the amount of cost-of-living allowances paid to salaried workers. This plan is the most hotly contested by the parliamentary opposition parties, mainly the Socialists.

The government proposes a regulation which would reduce the amount of the bonuses paid out following any increase in the published cost-of-living index. The Socialists are bitterly opposed and the fight looks as though it will be a lengthy one.

Unfortunately for Mr. Abel, today's hand was preceded by a discussion of extra tricks and how important it is always to get the maximum out of every contract.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 C	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Against Mr. Muzzy's three no trump contract, Mr. Dale opened the queen of hearts which was won in the closed hand by the ace.

Mr. Muzzy saw he had two spade winners, two hearts and four clubs, a total of eight tricks. All he had to do was win one diamond trick for his contract. He led a small diamond, put up dummy's king and it held the trick, Mr. Champion playing the lowly deuce.

At this point if Mr. Muzzy had laid his hand on the table and claimed three no trump, his opponents would have had to concede. But since the ace of diamonds was obviously with Mr. Dale, it was clear to Mr. Muzzy that an extra trick was readily available.

MR. CHAMPION LOVES IT
 So he returned to his own hand at the third trick with the ace of clubs and led his last diamond up to the queen-five on the board. "How do you like it?" he said devilishly to Mr. Dale. "I don't know how Dale likes it, but I love it," roared Mr. Champion. Bewildered, Mr. Muzzy played dummy's queen of diamonds and Mr. Champion slaughtered it with the ace and ran four more diamond tricks to defeat the contract.

"Who brought up the subject of extra tricks anyway?" waited Mr. Abel. "Believe me, Muzzy," he continued, "extra tricks are important but I assure you that the idea of making your contract first is an idea that's here to stay."

SPORT SHOTS

Led by their president, Sir Leslie Bowker, the Fulham football team of the English First Division leaves next week on a post-season playing tour of Canada. The party, 20 strong, sails from Liverpool May 15 on the Empress of Scotland. Fresh from their recent international test against the Dinamos from Yugoslavia, the Fulham boys are eagerly looking forward to their tour. Although none of the major soccer awards came their way this season, they are confident the team will uphold the high traditions established by other Old Country clubs that have toured the Dominion.

Facing a well-paced exhibition schedule of 10 games, the team is due to reach Montreal May 22, with the opening game of the tour on the May 24 holiday against a team of Ontario all-stars at Toronto. After a side jaunt to New York where they tackle the touring Glasgow Celtics, the Londoners return to Montreal for a match on May 29. The team then proceeds westward for games in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria. Before returning home June 22, the visitors will play return matches in Toronto and Montreal.

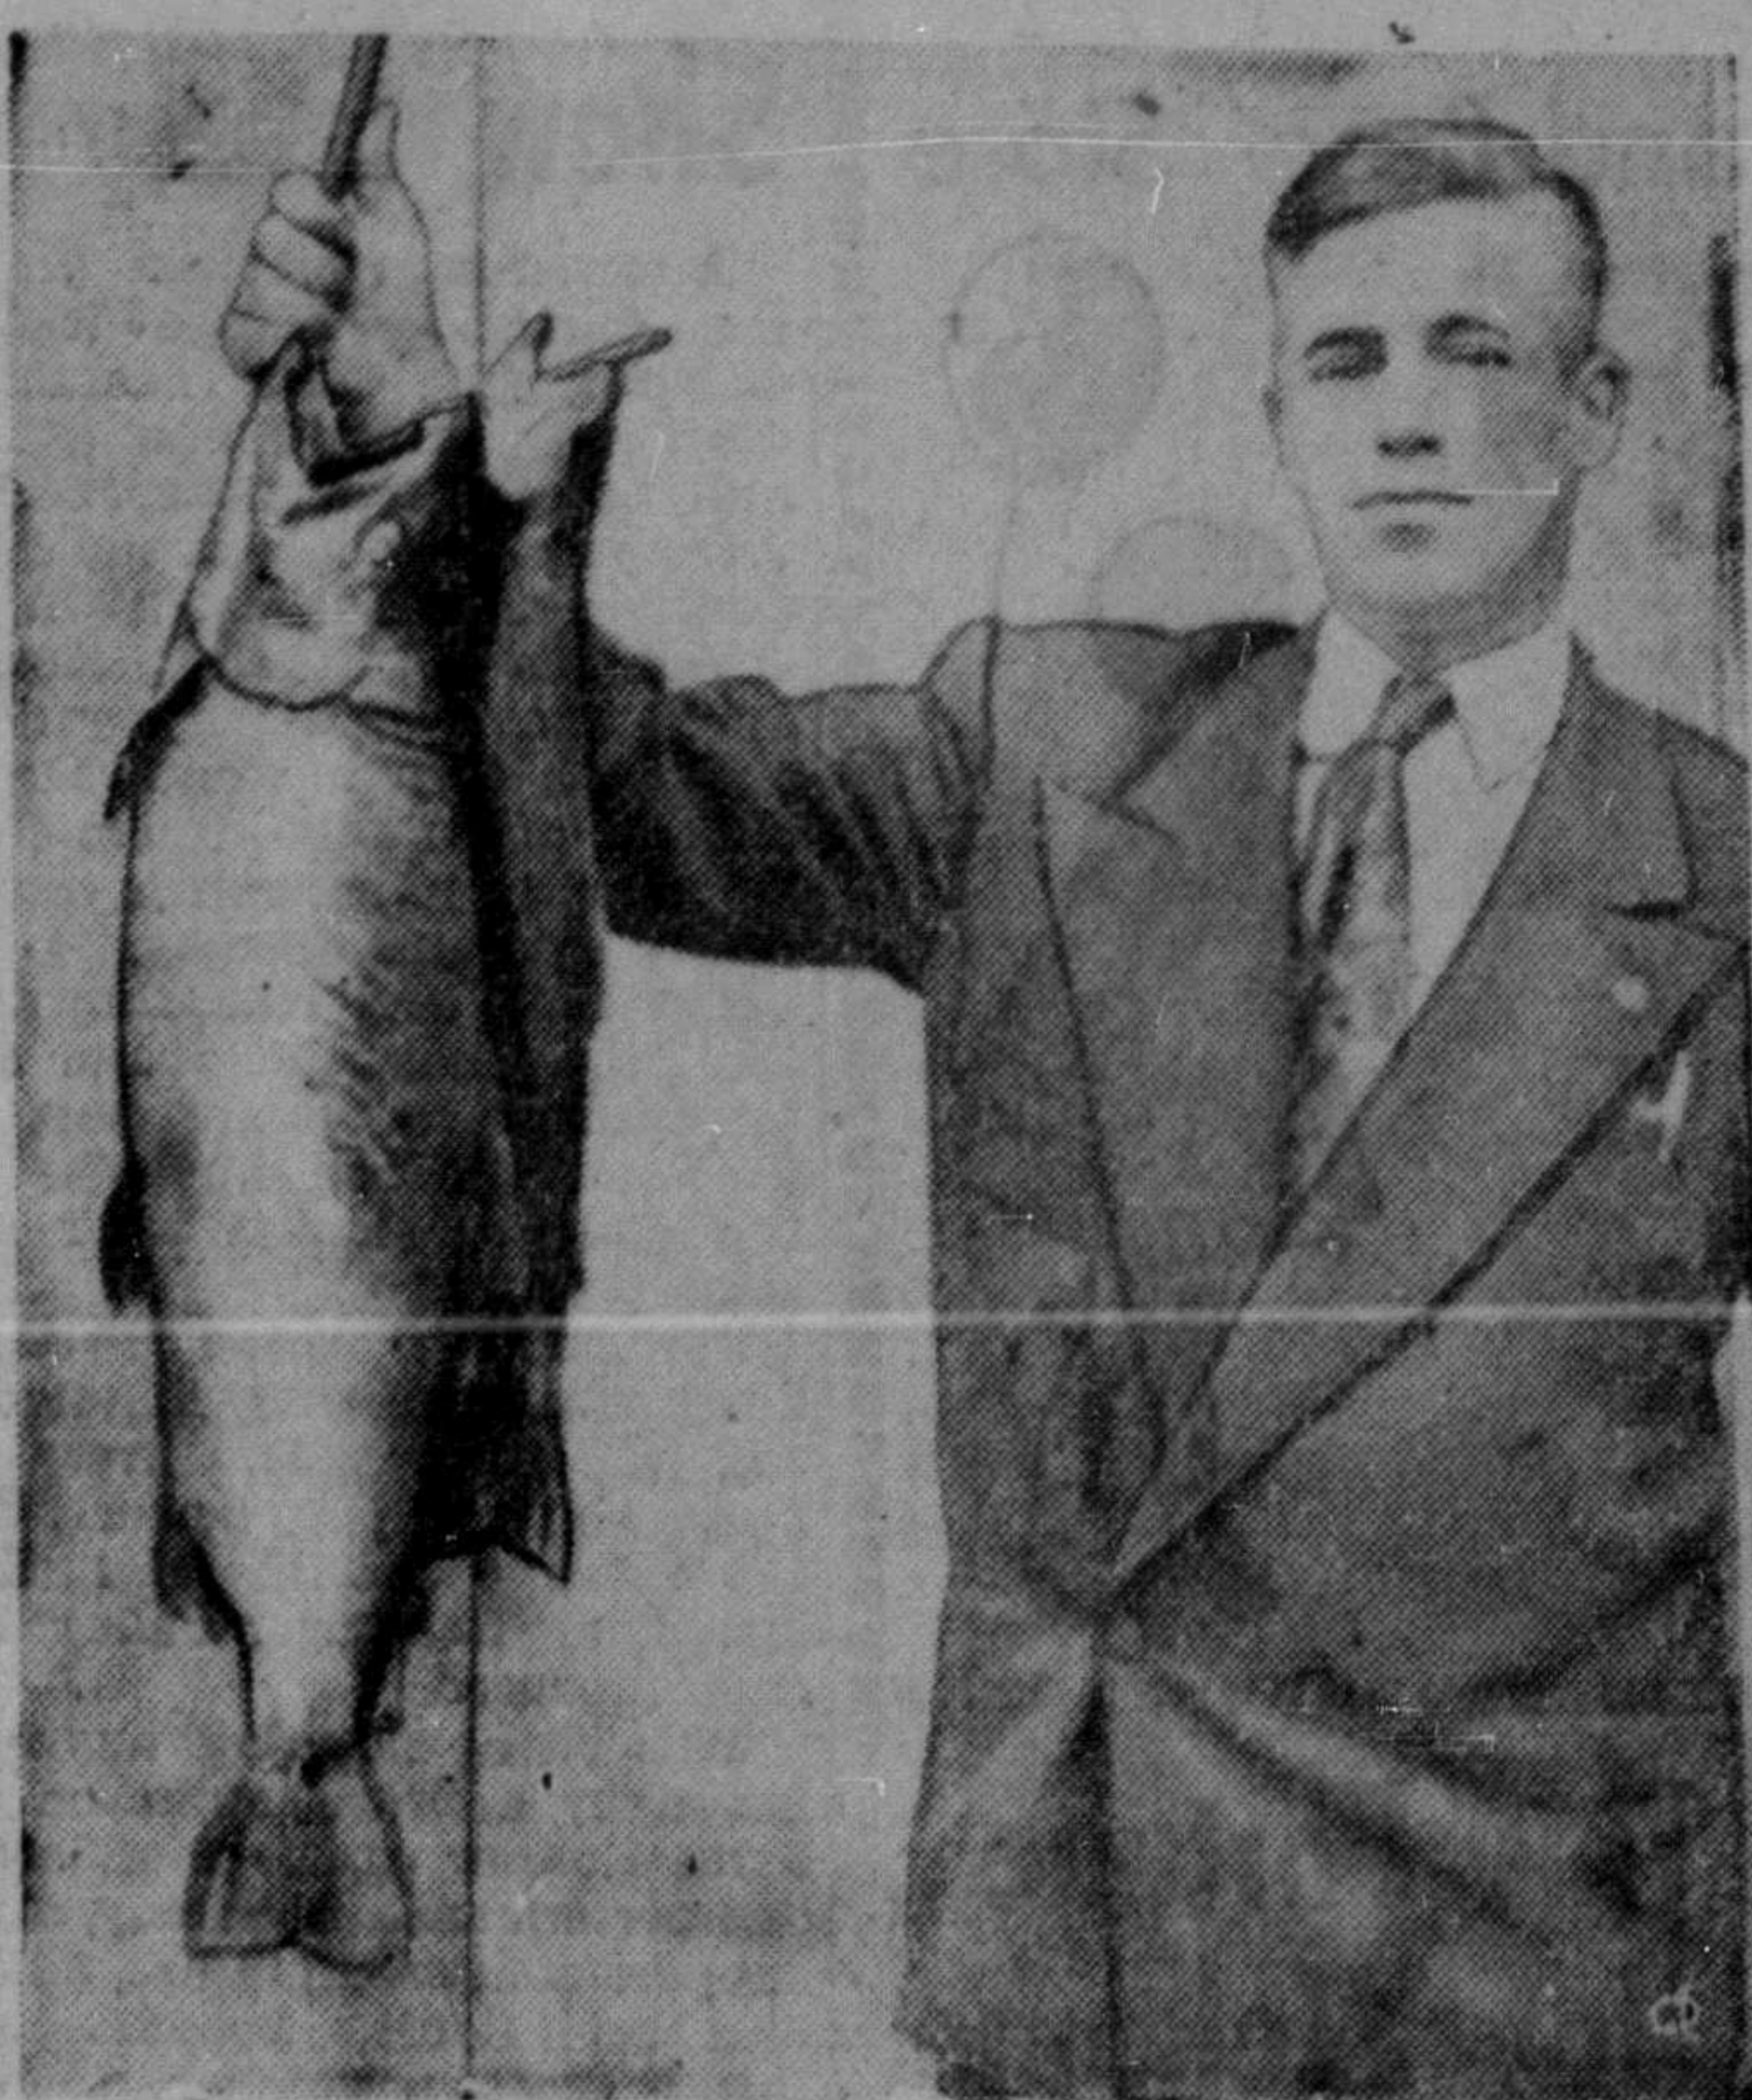

Organized in 1880 and one of the oldest professional clubs in England, the Fulham club for the first time is sending a representative team on a North American tour. Three of the club's players, however, appeared in Canada last year. The Irishmen Johnny Campbell and Robin Lawler were loaned to the visiting Belfast Celtics, while the captain of the team, Sir Taylor, toured the Dominion with the football Association all-star squad.

It is only two years since Fulham, after 30 years of striving, attained First Division rating. In that long, up-hill struggle the club's management steadfastly resisted the temptation of buying their way to promotion. Some of the wealthier clubs this season have been offering more than $100,000 for top-flight players.

Fulham followed the policy of acquiring up-and-coming players in deals that were easier on the pocketbook and by developing youngsters from nursery clubs and corner lots. The plan finally paid off in 1948-49 when the championship pennant of the Second Division was raised at Craven Cottage, the club's historic field overlooking the Thomas river.

While the team lays no claims to such great stars as Blackpool's Stanley Matthews or Newcastle's Jackie Milburn, it has in its lineup seven players of international status. Apart from the brilliant forward line, led by Taylor, the club's rearguard of Goalie Ian Black, supported by Fullbacks Joe Bacuzzi and Harry Freeman, is one of the soundest in the country. It also boasts of such stellar marksmen as Art Stevens and Bedford Jezzard as well as the speed demon, 24-year-old Jimmy Bowie. A well-knit combination, favoring an aggressive, open style of play, the white-and-black clad squad is certain to give a good account of itself. Frank Osborne, secretary-general manager and himself a former English internationalist, will direct the affairs of the club on the tour. Manager Bill Dodgin and Trainer Frank Penn will also accompany the team.

FISHING GOOD—Tired of hearing fishing in the Lake Simcoe district is poor, Mayor Charles Parker of Midland, Ont., cut himself a pole and headed for a nearby pool. Here he displays a 12-pound rainbow trout he caught. The fish measured 29½ inches. Record for Ontario is the 14-pound, four-ounce whopper caught near Sault Ste. Marie in 1935. Previous record for the Lake Simcoe area was a 10-pound, four-ounce rainbow caught in 1946 in the Pine River. (CP PHOTO)

This Fortune Not Welcome

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON (AP)—The girl with soft red hair putters around the kitchen in her duplex, making lunch sandwiches for her young husband, a radio engineer at $30 a week.

She looks like any other suburban English housewife, which is what she likes to be. But fate has made the girl who was just plain Wendy Bell a year ago at once a peevish and a girl with a million dollar heartache.

When she was married in the village church at Cookham last year her husband was plain Mr. Arthur Liddell. A month after the marriage an uncle died, and he became the eighth Baron Ravensworth. Wendy, 25, became a Baroness.

This spring came another shock. Although the title is genuine, the wealth is not. Arthur had been left a gross estate of £409,000 pounds, or about $1,227,000. Almost half the legacy is in nearly worthless real estate, including a run-down old castle at Gateshead near Newcastle.

Various duties and legacies totalled £267,496 ($802,488). And this must be paid out of the personal estate which totalled only £164,219 ($492,657). So the young Baron and Baroness are a lot worse off financially than if they had never got the title.

Despite this, letters have poured into their home from all parts of England asking for slices of the "fortune." It got so bad that their solicitor gave a statement to the press asking that no further references be made suggesting that he had inherited a fortune.

"The executors are having great difficulty with persons mentioned as legatees in the will," said the solicitor's letter, "and we feel that Lord and Lady Ravensworth should be allowed to meet their problems without further publicity."

Meanwhile Wendy, or Lady Ravensworth, is more concerned with making up Arthur's mid-day

Range Riders Show Lively

A seven-man western group, the Calgary Range Riders, clowning, sang and strummed their way through one and a half hours of entertainment before some 200 people in the Civic Centre auditorium last night.

Versatile in their performance, some would play guitars one time, then a violin, accordion or bass fiddle—which they appeared to handle with astonishing ease and alacrity.

The radio and recording artists proved that gusto and enthusiasm is a major part in showmanship and applause of the audience showed their act went over well. For instance, when Freddie Lang came out with his fiddle for the first time, everyone knew he could play better than the first "sorrowful and flat strains of 'Red River Valley'" he first produced.

This bit of clowning was followed by a brash imitation of Fritz Kreisler at his most serious performance. Suddenly, with support of several guitars, banjo and bass fiddle, Freddie tore into a hoedown which had more than one toe ticking merrily to its rhythm.

Banjo solos by Mel Ringham brought out such oldies as "Wall Street Rag" and "Bye-Bye Blues"—or "Get Off the Stove, Mama, You're Too Old to Ride the Range," as MC Bill "Dix" Hilton called it.

Steel guitar expert was Don Thompson, a young, sober-faced man who seemed to be the only lunch than with being a Baroness. Neither she nor her husband use the title, and she lines up with the rest of her neighbors for the weekly meat ration. Arthur, Baron Ravensworth, has no intention of quitting his job as an engineer with the BBC.

member of the frolicking gang who did not enter into the playful antics.

"Topsy Fingers," a Spanish guitar solo by Tony Stoltz, showed a master control of nimble fingers over strings and keyboard. It was the artist's own composition. He later displayed he was no slouch on the accordion, either.

Western ballads, such as "Beautiful, Beautiful Brown Eyes" and "The Little Shirt My Mother Made for Me," were sung by Hilton, assisted in duet by Curly Koochin, tall range-rider and master of the "Yee-haa" cry, while Norm Towne slapped the bass until it turned several times in dizziness.

Added feature to the show was the singing of Buddy Reynolds, radio and recording artist from Vancouver, giving out with his own composition and first recording, "Ocean of Golden Dreams," and ending with "The Spruce Fly," a recent composition of his which he said had just become No. 1 on the Canadian Western Hit Parade. The concert was followed by dancing. For tonight's show the Range Riders have promised a different act. In the afternoon they visited a downtown music store, autographing recordings and informally chatting with lovers of western music.

WATERFRONT -- WHIFFS

Fish Boat Loading Facilities Badly Needed— Machine Shops Busy—Halibut Landings

The problem of loading facilities for fishing vessels came up again this week and a small step was made towards its solution—if it isn't only just talk, as one fisherman put it.

One of the oil companies along the waterfront has put out a feeler by expressing the desire to build a wharf and loading facilities at the present site of the Yacht Club—if the Yacht Club would find another place to do. Some members feel this would be great—they have just the spot in mind where they would like to move, either at Seal Cove or near the dry dock. But it costs money to move and the Yacht Club just can't put its hands in its pocket and come up with $10,000 or so.

All agree the fishermen should have a place close in to take on supplies. Some of the fishermen feel Prince Rupert business men should look after this, because, after all, "the businessmen benefit by us—we keep the town going," they say.

Businessmen admit this is true, but also feel that the fishermen should themselves get after what they want. "It's no good just beefing and talking about it," is their opinion. And why couldn't some of the fish companies and heavy suppliers along the waterfront provide some facilities? they ask. Each added facility would do much to relieve the congestion.

Last Sunday the Salt Lakes ferry made its inaugural trip of the season and at least 30 people took advantage of the warmest day of the year (unofficially 72 above) to visit the resort.

A. P. "Tony" Crawley, operator of the ferry, says it is the earliest he has ever started the run and he was surprised the way people turned out, mostly with picnic lunches. However, there were a good 20 hardy individuals who went swimming, Tony reports, and according to the swimmers the water "was just great."

A round trip to the Salt Lakes resort takes about 40 minutes running.

Most of the waterfront shops are experiencing two great shortages these days: materials and labor. There just aren't any extra skilled tradesmen to be had in Prince Rupert, they say, and in nearly all cases some business has to be turned down or customers put on a long waiting list.

Tradesmen in greatest demand are sheet-metal workers, welders, electricians and machinists. Although all the shops pay union wages, employers feel tradesmen are "getting a better deal" elsewhere, with board and room thrown in and plenty of chances to work overtime and double time. Then, again, they say there are no houses or rooms for rent and that is a big reason it is hard to get help.

One employer felt that there are not enough young people interested in learning trades; that there is actually a shortage of tradesmen in the whole province and that this supply will become much less in view of Alcan activity in the north.

"Why, I bet when the aluminum outfit starts work they'll be able to take every welder and machinist in the province."

"Duke," a black Labrador pup of magnificent size, was a passenger on the Coquitlam from Vancouver to Masset yesterday.

On deck in a wire cage during the ship's stopover in Prince Rupert, Duke seemed content but highly interested in his surroundings. He joins his master, Art Humphreys, at Queen Charlotte Cannery.

Passengers arriving here yesterday afternoon on the steamer Coquitlam from Vancouver were G. S. Reade, Mrs. Ardagh, G. Tough, S. Pastor, A. W. Beech, Mrs. Schultzik, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. Goddard, G. Peacock, E. Blais, Mr. and Mrs. I. McHardy and children, H. Brudwald, W. Fulton, W. Noble, H. Norris, T. J. Volp, F. O. McGuire, Mrs. L. C. McGuire, Peter Ryan, I. Sater, C. Lyaberg, T. Best, W. ### HALIBUT FISHING HEAVY

At the present rate of fishing, the halibut season this year for Area No. 2 may be even shorter than the 26 days in 1950. Up to yesterday, 6,300,000 pounds of halibut had been taken from the area as compared with 5,600,000 pounds in the corresponding period last year. The quota for the area is 25,500,000 pounds. Most of the fish so far caught from Area No. 2 has been poured into Prince Rupert which has had 4,215,520 pounds to date. Prices, reaching at the top over 19c, are a far cry from last year's range but cannot be regarded as disappointing for such high prices had not been anticipated this year. Highest price so far this season was 19.7c, 17.5c and 15.5c paid the San Juan by Pacific Fisheries for 30,000 pounds on Thursday of this week. A larger proportion than ever of the fish is going into cold storage this year rather than being shipped to the fresh fish markets.

The Relief, Capt. Merrill Sollows, sold the first halibut on the exchange this season, landing 18,000 pounds and bought by Bacon Fisheries. First carload of fresh halibut shipped east this season was loaded by Bacon for the Chicago market.

George Raft In Thriller

Tough, crackling entertainment is provided in "Lucky Nick Cain," billed next Monday and Tuesday as the feature picture at Totem Theatre. George Raft is an American gambler who becomes involved in the hidden dangers of modern Europe. Assured and nerveless in the face of mounting tension, he untangles an intricate and persuasive melodramatic mesh.

Filmed almost entirely in Italy, the picture goes from squalid sections of the underworld to beautifully jagged peaks along the sea coast. Through the scenic shifts moves an adventure of a fast and suspenseful kind. Raft is supported through perilous journey by Coleen Gray and the tables are set down on her luck until the George and the tables are turned. Further aiding Raft is Stalola as a native Italian on a bicycle with Greer and Margaret Grahame plus charmers.
