Election Campaigns

BY THE NEWS of the last two days, we see that there are possibly three candidates who may offer themselves as the people's choice for mayor.

Election campaigns always are of interest and nearly always constitute a contentious subject.

Once, while campaigning in the home state of his opponent, William Howard Taft found his speech constantly interrupted by heckling from the audience.

Pausing in his address, Mr. Taft peered intently at the vegetable for a moment, then turned to his audience:

"It appears, ladies and gentlemen, that one of my opponents has lost his head."

Say a Good Word

WE, AS HUMAN beings, find nothing easier than telling others how wrong they are; how much better they could have done this or that; how we would have done it ourselves.

But we find also that such a relationship with our fellowman does not constitute a gateway to popularity. We should not forget, for instance, that the other fellow wishes to enjoy the same degree of importance which we desire.

Now, we need friends, for if we wish really to feel important and be happy at the same time, we need also a host of people to speak highly of us.

We have to say the good word first.

By this we do not mean flattery, for that is not sincere. With a little practise and hardly any trouble at all, we can find good points in all those with whom we come in contact.

We should remember that words and actions, even more than natural phenomena, are reciprocal.

Clean Streets

IT WAS a forward move by city council to decide on the purchase of waste-paper receptacles. They have been a need here for some time, for there is little so unsightly and reflects so poorly on the cleanliness of a city as paper strewn indiscriminately on sidewalks and streets.

We hope now, following the installation of the receptacles, that citizens will think each time before they decide to discard a read newspaper, chocolate bar wrapper or other paper refuse.

In certain Canadian cities, by-laws have been passed which make it illegal to discard waste of any kind on city streets.

Clean streets are a reflection on the community and so are dirty streets.

C. N. R. PROMOTION

Eric Wynne has been appointed general superintendent of motive power and car equipment for the Canadian National Railways Western Region, with headquarters in Winnipeg.

Mr. Wynne joined the company in 1911 as a call boy in the mechanical department at Melville, Sask. He became a machinist there in 1916.

Labor Sticks To Arms Plan

LONDON (AP)—The Labor Party is sticking to its policy of arming Britain fully, in defiance of left-wing critics led by Aneurin Bevan, former Labor minister.

The party published a policy statement today which declared the country's three-year £4,700,000 arms program is the "minimum required to deter aggression and so prevent a third world war."

The statement, prepared by the party's 27-member executive committee, which includes Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison among its leaders, will be submitted for debate at the party's annual convention at Scarborough early in October.

It will become the basis of a platform if, as many politicians expect, a general election is called this fall.

The 3,000-word statement called "our first duty—peace." It said an arms program "cannot be reduced unless there is a change for the better in conditions which made it necessary."

Bevan had urged immediate negotiations with Russia in an effort to end the arms race quickly. His party said the arms program "can be carried by our economy without too great a strain" but further taxation "must be levied on a small minority who draw large unearned incomes from private fortunes."

Food, Clothes, Not Cash Used in Betting on Races

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Despite the unpopularity of fixes, bribes, or losing that last two bucks on a longshot, Canadians have always followed eagerly the thundering hooves of racehorses.

Totem poles are not for burning, yet one was recently cremated in Vancouver, the ashes to be sent to England for presentation to cricketers.

GARBAGE AND SNIFF

Garbage disposal was a Prince Rupert problem all of thirty years ago and still remains more or less a question. When the city council of the day, in its wisdom, decided to cast city debris into one of the world's best and safest harbors, the situation left small room for argument.

First, appeared quantities of rubbish on scenic shores. Boating parties returned home full of picnic fare and suppressed indignation. Shipping interests complained. Tourists sometimes in-

Take the back-road racing of the 1820 London district, for example. A writer of that era describing the nags and the activities which surrounded them says he "never witnessed so ludicrous a scene" in his life.

No sleek, nervous horses or brilliantly-silked jockeys brightened the 1820 racing picture. And there were no backwoods plungers to put cash on the barrel-head, the 1820 equivalent of the modern pari-mutuel window.

The writer claims that he went to one horse race "just that I might witness the speed of their sorry horses, as they cantered over a quarter-mile course. Four horses were started for a bet of 10,000 feet of boards. The riders were clumsy-looking fellows, bootless and coatless."

Apparently the betting public, while seldom using cash, stood in great danger of losing their shirt. Although he records no such instance, the writer does describe several other deals where personal property took the place of money.

"I was soon assailed by a host of fellows requesting me to take their offers," the writer says. However, there was no cash involved in the bets. The reckoning was in goods or barter like everything else in the pioneer communities except tax payments.

VARIED BETS

The writer says the first person to attract his attention wanted to wager a barrel of salt pork that a horse called Split-the-Wind would win.

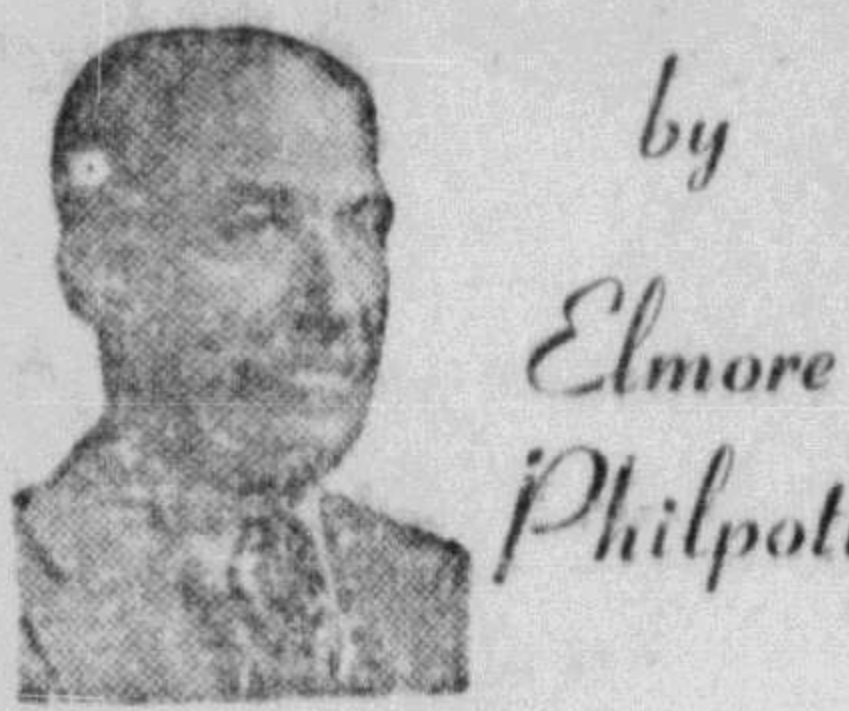

Other bets offered were: 50 pounds of pork sausage against a cheese of similar weight; a raw ox-hide against half its weight in tanned leather; and a pair of blacksmith's bellows against a barrel of West Indian molasses or $20 in cash.

"I venture to say that $10,000 at least were lost and won, without a single sou or specie being in the possession of anyone present," the writer concludes.

quired, though tactfully, where the stuff came from. Or had it been deliberately dumped so near home? Norman MacIntosh, pioneer newspaperman, enlightened them. He said an old barge, piled high, was towed out, and its contents left in the bay. The barge was called the "Sniff Yacht." Tourists stared, but neglected to sniff. They might have been thinking of doing so. Some looked a bit that way.

As I See It

China and Spain

A WRITER addresses a question to me through a Letter to Editor column:

"I wonder on what grounds Mr. Philpott would accept Red China in the UN, and reject Fascist Spain. They are both totalitarian states."

The writer of the above jumps to mistaken conclusions. I am completely opposed to the admission of Fascist Spain into the North Atlantic Alliance; and I agree with most observers in Britain and France that the United States has struck a deadly blow at the whole alliance of the western democracies by forecasting the tie-up with the Franco government. But—contrary to Democrat's mistaken assumption—I am not opposed to the admission of Spain to the UN.

I agree with Mr. Trygve Lie, the Secretary General of UN, that the sooner the UN becomes a truly universal organization the better. All nations should be admitted—simply because they are nations. For years past we have seen the ridiculous spectacle of Russia vetoing the entry of Finland, Austria, Italy, Portugal, Ireland. We have seen the United States (by the backstairs veto) similarly excluding Bulgaria, Rumania, Albania, and Mongolia. The utter absurdity of these exclusions, from both sides, is indicated by the fact that both Russia and the U.S.A. maintain normal diplomatic relations with the governments which they say are not fit to be admitted.

Everybody at the UN knows what the real qualifications for admission into UN is: The U.S.A. won't vote to let in any mode countries which will surely vote with the Soviet bloc. In revenge for that attitude, Russia won't let in any other countries.

So we have the ridiculous and disgraceful stalemate.

THE QUESTION of who is to represent China is, however, in a completely different category from those above. China is already a member of the UN. China was a member of the UN from the very beginning.

The real question now is: Is China's seat at UN to be held by the real government of China? Or is China's seat to be still held by the ex-government, by the Chiang Kai-shek regime which was defeated overwhelmingly and completely expelled from all the territories which belonged to China prior to the second world war?

THE QUESTION of China's seat at UN will not become acute unless we get peace in Europe. But let us not fool ourselves unless we get peace in Europe world war three will have to be fought.

In any event, even the most must recognize China. In fact, the American government is not even to be admitted of "Hamlet without Hamlet." To try to make peace with China which began with the war on China by Japan, is impossible—but it's an man's intelligence.

IT SEEMS to me that the idea of making a peace Japan, at the forthcoming Franco conference is a very unstable ground. For it is not even to be admitted of "Hamlet without Hamlet."

To try to make peace with China which began with the war on China by Japan, is impossible—but it's an man's intelligence.

C.B.C. to Air Royal Visit

Acting General Manager Donald Manson said today that the "C.B.C." was planning extensive radio coverage of the forthcoming visit of Their Royal Highnesses, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. From Canada, word pictures of the visit will flow to all parts of the world as the CBC makes its facilities and program available to many countries.

Broadcasts will extend over a period of nearly five weeks and will range from the landing at Quebec City to the departure from St. John's. The operation will be the biggest single undertaking that North America radio has faced since the highly successful broadcasts of the CBC in connection with the royal visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth in 1939.

Mr. Manson said that preliminary planning and preparations are well underway. Approximately thirty-five on-the-spot actuality broadcasts are tentatively scheduled from twenty-three Canadian cities. These will be supplemented by straight reports from other cities, by nightly edited versions of the day's actuality highlights, and by newscasts.

In addition to broadcasts on CBC's two national English networks, the CBC French network will provide French language coverage of all major events while the CBC International Service will beam broadcasts to all parts of the world.

E. L. Bushnell, director general of programs, has announced that detailed planning and direction of royal visit broadcasts is under the supervision of A. E. Powley, head of the CBC overseas unit during the last world war and now in charge of the special events department.

Two travelling teams of from eight to ten persons each will be assigned full time to coverage of the royal visit and will be supplemented regionally by the addition of broadcasting personnel from the various CBC production points across the country. The teams will "leap frog" across the country by air, train and car with their equipment, each team covering every other city along the route. Both teams will work together in some cities to handle heavy and complicated broadcast assignments. Hundreds of CBC personnel will be involved in the overall operation.

All cities along the royal visit route are now being surveyed and vantage points selected for microphone placement.

At Wedding Find Homes In Wreckage

GAVESEND, England—While occupants of two cottages in this Hertfordshire town were away attending a wedding, someone with a sharp axe and an over-grown grudge had a field day.

This was the trail of devastation that greeted Mrs. Mary Burd and Percy Pinkington when they returned to their respective homes.

Practically every piece of furniture had been smashed, upholstery slashed to ribbons and the water taps turned on, flooding the premises.

A new sideboard had been reduced to fragments, the knobs of every drawer hacked off and the contents strewn about the place. The raider's axe had been curbed in the panelled base of a new dining-table and its top chopped into kindling wood.

In the Pilkington residence, the radio set was wrecked, a settee and two easy chairs chopped to pieces and here again the water in the bathroom was left running.

Then the destructive prowler went upstairs, stole an assortment of clothing and £30. On the way out he called it quits after ripping out 15 star rails and pulling the stair carpet loose.

"I didn't know that I had an enemy in the world," remarked Mrs. Burd. "But I have now and I sure would like a few minutes alone with this maniac."

LETTERBOX

Editor, Daily News:

In order that the ratepayers may get a clear understanding of the question to be voted on September 13 dealing with the power situation, I herewith submit the questionnaire in full as approved by the City Council at the last regular meeting:

Question:

"Are you in favor of the City Council inviting the British Columbia Power Commission to examine and appraise all installed assets of the Northern B.C. Power Company now in use in connection with the water, light and power requirements of the City of Prince Rupert to determine the light and power rates under the Commission's operation?"

The effect of this motion would be to acquire the necessary information to enable the electors to decide between the B.C. Power Commission and the Northern B.C. Power Company as to which Company will provide future power in this City.

Back to School—Drivers Urged To Drive Safely

Next Tuesday sees the re-opening of the city schools and that means that motorists will need to be even more careful than usual. School zones are clearly marked and police hope that drivers will co-operate in the observance of safety rules and practices.

Police says they will enforce driving regulations with special attention to the school zones. The increased number of pupils added to the increased number of cars in use will add up to a serious hazard unless all do their part.

LONDON (CP)—More crimes of violence were committed in England and Wales last year than at any time since 1939, it is shown in a newly-issued government Blue Book.

Juveniles up to 14 years were also the greatest offenders for breaking and entering with more than 7000 arrests. Next to the age group over 30, they were also listed as the most frequent lawbreakers involving larceny.

American Car Prize Down Under

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Cars from Canada and the United States are so scarce and eagerly sought in New Zealand that 3,000 to be imported this year are being rationed out to essential users under extremely strict conditions.

Owing to the dollar shortage, scarcely any North American cars have been imported in recent years. When the government decided to make dollars available for 3,000 cars this year, it stated care should be taken to ensure that no black marketing took place.

Conditions under which the cars will be allotted ensure they go to those most in need of them. A total of 2,000 will be made available to persons who daily use back roads, with preference for those drivers using the worst roads.

Buyers must be essential users, such as back-country farmers, county engineers, employees in public utility services, doctors, veterinary surgeons, clergymen, stock and station agents, meat, dairy, sawmill and mining executives, and commercial travellers or others in similar occupations.

The remaining 400 are for taxi-drivers, but if they have had a new car since 1945 they qualify for the imports only in exceptional circumstances.

Each purchaser must sign a covenant not to dispose of the car in less than two years except at cost price, less depreciation.

If such a car is sold by the original purchaser, the new owner must also qualify for priority purchase and is also barred from selling again in less than the unexpired balance of the original two years term at more than cost price plus depreciation.

New cars are so scarce in New Zealand that those less than two years old, of any make, can be sold at hundreds of dollars above the new-car price even if they have covered 20,000 miles or more. Pre-war North American cars still bring about their original purchase price.

THEY QUERY CENSUS

17,942, up slightly from 17,132 in 1941. Mr. Vidler said figures compiled by his own department showed the city's population as 15,907, which is 1,965 higher than the census figure.

Pondering the situation, the Bureau said in a polite statement that St. Thomas' figures will be investigated. The preliminary census figures are always subject to revision; one of the reasons for issuing them is to try to locate persons who may have been omitted in the June census count.

But the bureau defends its 18,000 census-takers to the hilt. In its St. Thomas statement the bureau recalled that in previous counts municipal authorities have brought forward totals different to those obtained by the census enumerators.

"Some municipalities produced lists of people who believe they were missed," it said. "All such cases were investigated. In almost all instances, the persons on a list of having been missed, were found included in the census records."

CHECK MANY LISTS
What's the reason for such differences? Well, said one census official, some municipalities, taking pride in their growth, are inclined to embellish the figures slightly.

Mind you, the bureau is not saying that about St. Thomas. But it emphasized that before any totals are issued "even on a preliminary basis," they are compared with "many existing records."

In each enumerated area, for example, the totals are checked against the list of voters compiled in 1949, "which represents an actual listing of names."

The total number of voters is increased by 50 percent to cover others in the area of a non-voting age. This total is compared with the census total.

"On this basis," said the bureau, "the estimated total for St. Thomas was 18,308 and the census total was 17,942."

The census figure likely will move even closer to the 18,308 figure when the final figures are released next November or December, the bureau said. The final estimate likely will jump "by possibly a few hundred" to include those away from their homes at the time the original census was made.

Mine Found by Luck Sold to 'Frisco Co.

STEWART.—A mine which was discovered while looking for a wounded horse was sold this week when Owen McFadden, veteran prospector, turned over his recent Marmot River discovery to Vernon Allen & Associates of San Francisco.

The deal calls for a small cash payment and an undetermined block of stock in the new company to be formed.

Mr. McFadden accompanied Mr. Allen to San Francisco by plane, where final documents will be signed.

Work on the property is to begin as soon as arrangements are made for necessary labor and equipment. It is understood Mr. McFadden will be in charge of the work.

This property was discovered when Mr. McFadden was packing supplies for Big Four mines. One of his horses fell off the trail on the Marmot River, North Fork, and while trying to rescue the animal the prospector discovered the extensive lead showing.

Allen & Associates also are taking over the Willoughby Creek property owned by McFadden. This property is situated south of Meziadin Lake, which is across the divide from Stewart, some 35 miles.
