Donald Sutherland, minister of national defence, urging that the Dominion government take further steps to continue the search for her husband in the mountains back of Prince Rupert.

DAILY EDITION

VAGARIES OF LAW

They seem to be having a little dramatic entertainment in the United States with New Jersey state as the stage. At last after many months and years of effort, the opponents of prohibition have found a judge to declare the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution unconstitutional.

While no drastic changes are likely to follow from the judgment, it is one of the steps in a tremendous campaign of those financially interested to bring about the overthrow of the present law and restore to the country the right to sell liquor. Money is being spent and powerful influences used to bring about the change and possibly in time it may be effective. It is wonderful what money can do.

Those who claim that more liquor is being sold in the States today than under the former laws must feel foolish when they see those interested spending so much money to bring about a change that would reduce the amount of liquor sold. Such talk is foolish. Prohibition in the States does prohibit to a very large extent but there are very serious lapses, especially in what are known as the wet states.

MARGIN OF SIX VOTES

There was a margin of six votes only between the MacDonald Government and defeat at London yesterday. That was just one of the close votes taken in the British Commons since the advent of the Labor Government. It means little except as a possible warning to the government that its tenure is insecure and that it must not try gallivanting with the Reds or out it goes. It is held in power by a handful of Liberals who keep a close check on its activities and prevent it from taking any action which might be considered too radical.

NO GERMS POSSIBLE

Recent Condition in Edmonton Hospital Could Not Arise Here

The sterilizer condition which recently arose in an Edmonton hospital and caused the death of five operative cases could not possibly occur here, it is stated by Miss Jean Harrison R.N., lady superintendent of the Prince Rupert General Hospital. Streptococcus or other such germs could not live in the sterile atmosphere of the operating theatre in the local institution.

The only way that a germ can be introduced into an operating room, is by linen, instruments, or people. Linen is put through a steam sterilizer with adequate safeguards; instruments are cleaned by a bath of boiling water heated by steam in the operating room; nurses, doctors and patients are clothed in sterilized linen, with nose and mouth covered by gauze, and doctors' hands are covered by sterile rubber gloves, after the flesh has been scrubbed for five minutes and then placed in an antiseptic solution.

Not a thing in the operating room contains a germ. All possibility of germs being introduced is avoided and the system in use is considered an absolute safeguard against any deaths through lack of sterile arrangements.

Safety Gauges

Human and mechanical elements have been used as a gauge to certify that conditions are carried out.

The most important task, that of steam sterilization of linen, is not only checked by nurses but the huge sterilizing units that hold metal drums containing all necessary linen supplies, have two steam pressure gauges. The first one is set to show the amount of pressure, 15 pounds for 15 minutes being the accepted period. But this hospital goes still farther and leaves its linen under 20 pounds pressure, 250 degrees F., for one hour. In this way every possible germ is killed absolutely. A second gauge connects with a graph which actually records the heat and period for future reference. In addition to this, a Dial or Teller control is placed in the centre of the linen. The latter is a small glass-sealed tube in which is a slip of paper with the word "septic." But when this tube is submitted to the necessary heat the word "septic" is obliterated and the word "sterile" appears. This is the check for the nurse who opens the bundle of linen when ready for use.

PLEA MADE FOR FUNDS FOR SCHOOL

Rev. Joseph Allard Tells of Need for Catholic Instruction in North

SKAGWAY, ALASKA, Dec. 18.—On the second of July, 1907, the Atlin Indians, 80 in number were invited to go to a non-Catholic service. Though none of them were yet Catholic, they asked the present writer, a Catholic priest, what they should do. "I'll be with you to night," said the priest and none of them went to that service nor to any other non-Catholic service during the three years that the priest stayed in Atlin.

Seeing such a disposition with Indians who were either orthodox or protestant, or heathens, the priest, who had been visiting these Indians daily, yet less than a month, begged of his superior in Dawson to be allowed to stay in Atlin.

With the help of ten Catholic miners who subscribed $20.00 each the priest bought a house in the Indian village which was converted into a boarding school.

During two years the priest conducted alone the boarding school, teaching, cooking for as many as nine Indian boys, with no other support practically than, that of the few Catholic miners in Atlin.

At the latter part of the second year the Indian Department in Ottawa granted the priest-teacher a salary of $750.00 a year.

With the greatest part of that salary another house costing $400 was bought to accommodate the Indian girls as boarders and a lady guardian.

The priest incapable of finding the lady-helper in the country, invited his own sister from Quebec to come and share his work. His sister came at her parents' expense and arrived in Atlin on the 12th day of October, 1909, took seven girls under her care, accompanied them to the school chapel 100 yards from her house, where she daily shared with her priest brother the teaching of both boys and girls.

In July, 1910, the Atlin missionary was called to Dawson to take charge of the church. There ended the residence of the priest in Atlin.

When the priest left Atlin, the Catholic-Indians comprised five families with their children, and all Indian children born while the priest was residing in the orthodox church. There were then 52 Catholic Indians and 14 white Catholics in Atlin.

Youthful Apostles

After the departure of the Atlin missionary, Indian boys who had spent but one year as boarders in the Atlin school where they had learned their catechism and practiced their faith, acted as apostles among their people.

In 1913, Tommy Shorty, then 18 years old wrote me the following lines about his widowed mother: "My mother she marry Charley Wilson, I don't stop it, because I know there is nothing bad in that marriage, because Charley Wilson, his first wife, she marry before, about two, three men, that's why I think there is nothing bad if he marry my mother."

In 1915, Billy Bond came to me when I visited Atlin and said: "Me and my wife we want Catholic church all winter we pray in the woods with your Catholic people, Taku Jim and family every night we say the beads. That's why now we want to be Catholic."

In 1920, John Jack the actual chief, till then an adherent of the Russian Church, said to me: "Last winter my boy Dick, he died. When he stopped in bed, he pray all the time in that little book you give him when he take communion. By-and-bye, he can't read no more. I get a white man to read for him. White man he get tired and said: 'I'll throw away your dirty little book.' My boy he say, 'please you read for me, you help me,' and all the time he bless himself, and I watch him and my wife too, that's why I want Catholic church now."

Since 1910 all Indian children born in Atlin were baptized by the visiting priests. The records of 1930 show 110 baptized Indians. Most of them died. 80 Catholic Indians remain scattered in many camps. Most of them are living far from any priest and are exposed to the complete loss of faith and to apostasy.

Two families are in Teslin, a non-Catholic.

Four families are in Juneau, Alaska.

Two families are in Carcross, Yukon, where there is a non-Catholic church and a non-Catholic boarding-school and where the Catholics have nothing.

There are two children of school age in Atlin. There are thirteen such children in Carcross five of them in one family, have already started to go to the non-Catholic school in Carcross. The parents of these five children as well as the parents of the other eight children object to sending their children at the boarding school at Lajac, B.C., one thousand miles away.

Site Secured

Realizing the uselessness of trying to maintain the Faith without school and by means of a short yearly priest's visit to a people but a little educated and trained in the Faith and still surrounded by preachers of all kinds of doctrines, I feel the need keenly of a boarding school for our Catholic Tlingit Indians.

With the help of Rev. Father E. Gallant, Pastor of Skagway, Alaska, I found a most fitting location for an Indian School in the town of Skagway itself.

Skagway is only 60 miles from Carcross and 140 miles from Atlin, whilst it is but 12 miles from Haines and 100 miles from Juneau and Douglas. In all those towns and in many others a little further away there are many Indian children in need of Catholic education.

True Atlin and Carcross are in the diocese of Prince Rupert, B.C., and Skagway, Juneau, etc., are in the diocese of Alaska, but these neighboring towns have one common need. They have but one family of natives, speaking the same language and having blood relations among themselves.

Hence the Bishops of both Prince Rupert, B.C., and of Juneau Alaska, ever solicitous to attend to the spiritual welfare of the whole flock entrusted in their worthy hands have sent me into Skagway to build an Indian School.

To build the necessary boarding school for boys and girls, at least forty thousand dollars are required and an additional ten thousand to feed boarders and staff during the first years.

Already over $400 was spent this fall for slashing, blowing stumps and pulling roots, but there are more stumps and roots, as well as a ditch to drain and fill and the ground to level.

That the grounds may be prepared and the foundations laid down in the spring—and the school ready for use next fall, is the hope of the first Catholic Tlingit Indian Mission of Alaska.

Will any of my tourist friends whom I have met in Atlin, and others interested in Christian education and the salvation of souls help in this godly work? I still have my bread box of old, but I have no dough!

"WHAT WE NEED IS MORE PAYROLLS!"

HOW often do you hear someone make that remark when referring to business conditions in British Columbia? According to the report issued recently by the Department of Labor of the British Columbia Government, the wage earners of British Columbia earned $192,092,249.51 in 1929. It isn't "More Payrolls" we need in B.C. as much as "More Support" for the payrolls we already have. Directly or indirectly you get a share of this payroll. Help to increase it. Ask "where from" when buying. Ask for B.C. Products.

Four Metlakatla Boats Search For Henry Rudland

METLAKATLA, Dec. 18.—A gloom was cast over the entire village through the supposed tragedy that befel Henry Rudland and a white companion who drifted away from Luey Island in a small dinghy in a heavy storm. There is very little hope held out for their safety although there is a possible chance that one or both of them might have lashed himself to the little dinghy on realizing that all hope for safety was gone.

Based on this conjecture, search parties were organized and consisted of four seinboats, Rio Rita, Spud, Hazel L. and Dicky Boy. Capt. Pete Leighton was appointed to be in command of the fleet, and all of the necessary foodstuffs were able provided for by the women of the village.

Shop Today and Shop at Home

Prince Rupert merchants are offering some great values for Christmas this year. Many of them have dropped their prices to keep pace with the reductions made in the great centres of population.

This is a good time to buy. Get the shopping done before Christmas is too near and the stores are crowded with eager men and women anxious to grab for anything.

Most Prince Rupert people are not affected by the hard times. Many are better off today than they were last year because their money goes farther. They can buy more if they wish for their salaries remain the same.

Friends need remembering just the same this year as in the past. Some of them need it more.

Those who are able to do so would do well to shop mornings because at that time the merchants and their assistants have time to attend to your wants.

Read the Daily News advertisements, for they will help you in your selection.

WAS GREAT ENGINEER

Late Lieut. Col. Leonard Was Also Prominent In Military Affairs of Canada

Lieutenant-Colonel Reuben Wells Leonard, whose death in St. Catherine's, Ont., was reported yesterday, was officer commanding of guides, Second Division, in the Great War and from 1910 to 1913, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission of Canada.

Born in Brantford, Ont., February 21, 1860, the late Col. Leonard was educated at Brantford Collegiate Institute and the Royal Military College at Kingston where he was awarded a silver medal in 1883. He served in the Northwest Rebellion as staff officer of transport and in other capacities in 1885 after two years' experience with the Canadian Pacific Railway on the engineering staff. After the Rebellion he was again with the C. P. R., serving the company at various times in the several western provinces including British Columbia. Sometimes he was chief engineer and at other times manager of construction. Later he was identified with other railways, hydro-electric undertakings and mines. He was in service soon after the outbreak of the Great War.

The late Col. Leonard was a governor of the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College in Toronto and Bishop Ridley College in St. Catherine's. He was an ex-president of the Royal Military Hospital and became identified with a number of public and semi-public bodies. He was a Conservative in politics and an Anglican in religious belief. He was very fond of outdoor sports. In general appearance he was always the soldier with his military carriage, his long moustache and short beard.

NEWSPAPERS' USEFULNESS

Sir George Newman Speaks in Praise of Their Extension and Development

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A few words in praise of newspapers by Sir George Newman, M.D., Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health and Board of Education in a recent official report has prompted the News-Chronicle to devote an editorial to the matter. Sir George's reference to newspapers is as follows: "In recent years there has been an enormous extension and development in all classes of newspapers in the presentation, interpretation and application of our knowledge of the science and art of hygiene. Of its educational value there can be no doubt." Commenting editorially on this the News-Chronicle says:

"So many people seem to be concerned nowadays with discovering what is bad in the modern newspaper that it is rather a relief to find a man of the eminence of Sir George Newman drawing attention to their usefulness." Quoting Sir George's words the News-Chronicle says: "This is the direct service which the modern newspaper renders from the doctor's point of view. Even from that limited point of view, there is another, an indirect service unquestionably in our opinion at least as important. It is impossible to assess the figures the contribution which newspapers make to national health by helping to keep the minds of their countless readers amused, interested and instructed in the great game of life. We are miserable sinners, of course; but even the wretched newspaper has its virtues; as the croakers would discover to their cost if the Press ceased to exist, or even reverted suddenly to those older conditions of which the very real sins, both of omission and commission, are conveniently forgotten by the critics of the modern newspaper."

Hospital Repairs To Be Made; Vote of $500 For Work

Having received a report from the house committee that leaks had developed in the roof at certain parts of the older section of the building, the hospital board, at its regular monthly meeting last night, appropriated the sum of $500 to be used in making repairs to the roof and general renovations about the premises. An inspection of the roof will be made at once to determine the extent of repairs necessary.

VANDERHOOF FURS VANCOUVER SHOW

R. C. McCorkell of Vanderhoof was among the exhibitors at the B. C. Fox and Fur Farmers' Association show which was held in Vancouver last week in conjunction with the Winter Fair and Livestock Show. He had some fine cross foxes and a pair of fisher, the latter being the only ones of that species entered in the show.

TO BUILD NEW BOAT

Mission Vessel Northern Cross Is Sold to Robert Blance

Sale of the well known mission cruiser Northern Cross, one of Prince Rupert's staunchest, speediest and trimmest motor boats, to Robert Blance of this city and the giving of an order to the local dry dock for the construction of a new and more commodious 47-foot diesel-powered vessel was announced this morning by Canon W. F. Rushbrook of the Anglican Church Coast Mission.

This interesting announcement brings to mind the history of the Prince Rupert coast mission which was started some twenty-five or thirty years ago in a more or less small way when Canon Rushbrook, as the opportunity and the means permitted, would visit the small and isolated settlements in the district. First a Columbia River fishing smack was used and later a small motor launch was obtained by Canon Rushbrook with money that had been given by the Ndvv League in recognition of work the canon had done among the railway construction camps. The Woman's Auxiliary gave further assistance in connection with securing this boat.

Some years later, due to the energy of the late Archbishop F. H. DuVernet, the Northern Cross was obtained and the scope of the missionary work in the district made much more extensive. For years, Canon Rushbrook carried on his looked-for and greatly-appreciated ministrations to the isolated and small settlements along this part of the coast, his place being taken a couple of years ago by the energetic young man, Rev. W. B. Jennings.

Further advance in the missionary work out of here is marked by the letting of the contract to the local dry dock for the construction of a more commodious craft with which to carry on and extend the work under the capable supervision of Rev. W. B. Jennings. The new Northern Cross will be 47 feet long overall, will have two cabins with engine room and will be equipped with a 47 h.p. full-diesel Gardner engine.

The opportunity is being given any who would care to assist in promoting the happiness and general welfare of the people in the lonely coast settlements to send donations towards defraying the cost of construction of the new Northern Cross.

Inspection By Fire Marshal

Improvement to Dumb Waiter Is Only Changes Suggested at Local Hospital

A communication from the deputy fire marshal, W. A. Oswald, read at last night's meeting of the hospital board, stated that the writer had recently visited the institution. He had found that dumb waiter doors were kept open and recommended that they may be altered so as to close automatically. The deputy fire marshal also inquired as to what kind of x-ray film was used in the hospital. An answer has already been made to this query by the managing secretary. The matter of the dumb waiter doors was referred to the house committee with power to act.

New Bell System To Be Installed At Hospital Here

On recommendation of the house committee, the hospital board, at its meeting last night, accepted a tender from the Northern B. C. Power Co. of $31 for installation of a new bell system on the floors. The figure will include all work and equipment needed as well as certain repairs. The Northern B. C. Power Co.'s was the only tender.
