LIBERAL CAMPAIGN IS LAUNCHED HERE

Prince Rupert Urged To Make Wise Choice In Federal Election

Canada Has Opportunity of Keeping Good Thing or Choosing For Uncertainty on July 28, Pattullo and Pearson Tell Local Meeting

Pointing out that the return to power of the Mackenzie King government at the polls on July 28 was considered a certainty, even by the large Conservative newspapers, and that it would be manifestly to the advantage of the riding of Skeena and the city of Prince Rupert to send to Ottawa a supporter of that government, T. D. Pattullo, M.L.A. for Prince Rupert and leader of the Liberal Opposition, and George S. Pearson, M.L.A. for Nanaimo, delivered masterly addresses last night in the Moose Hall to open in this city the Liberal federal campaign.

There was a large audience and a fine hearing was given both speakers. It was the first time that Mr. Pattullo had spoken publicly here since he was chosen permanent leader of the Liberal party in British Columbia and he received a warm welcome from his home town audience. It was the first visit to Prince Rupert of Mr. Pearson who proved himself to be a thoughtful and impressive speaker. Both Mr. Pattullo and Mr. Pearson scored many telling points and their addresses were punctuated with applause.

Leut. Col. S. P. McMordie D.S.O., president of the Skeena District Liberal Association, presided. In opening, Col. McMordie referred to the differences of opinion between Mr. Brady and the leading Conservative newspapers of this country as well as old country newspapers with regard to the Dunning budget. The chairman thought there was no district in Canada more vitally concerned in the result of this election than Skeena. He expressed the confidence that this campaign would be carried on without personalities and that all speakers would be accorded a good hearing.

George Pearson
Mr. Pearson, the first speaker, opened in jocular vein. It was his first visit to Prince Rupert and he was favorably impressed with the city and its prospects. He was not a hard-boiled politician, Mr. Pearson said, and his entry into public life had been comparatively recent. It was only after deep thought that he had associated himself with the Liberal party, believing that its policies assured more benefits to the country than those of any other party. He was supporting the Mackenzie King government, Mr. Pearson declared, because no other country in history had made so much progress, considering its small population of ten million people, as Canada had during the past eight years while that government had been in power. There would not have been that progress had there not been a government with sound policies, one that had exercised economy and had shown business foresight and great wisdom in carrying out the affairs of the country. There was independent data to bear out the progress that Canada had made in those eight years, declared Mr. Pearson. Never before in history had any government received such support from independent sources as the Mackenzie King administration was now being accorded. A critical point had been reached in the history of Canada, the speaker said, and there never had been a time when it was more necessary to do the right thing in order that the country should continue to progress rapidly. He urged the electors to put in office a bunch of business men and, in so doing, to use ordinary business judgment themselves. He asked the electors to analyze the situation and ask themselves—where did the present government commence and how did it find the country? Where had this government carried the country, had the country progressed in proportion to its opportunities and had that progress been too costly to the country and the individual citizen? Where was the present government leading the country, to greater progress, down or up?

Progress Made
From a financial standpoint, Mr. Pearson thought the present government had made progress. It had taken office in 1923 when the country was loaded with a war debt and was in a despondent condition. It had met the problems of soldiers' re-establishment. Yet it had been able to meet all capital expenditure from current revenue, reduce the public debt year by year and still bring about gradual cuts in taxation. Mr. Pearson thought that was real progress.

Regarding trade, Mr. Bennett seemed to be worried as he went about the country giving false impressions. The fact was that no country had progressed in trade as Canada had in the last eight years. Its trade had increased during that time by 90% and, since 1923, Canada for the first time had exported more than it imported. The country, notwithstanding what Mr. Bennett might say about export of raw products, was the largest producer of manufactured goods in the world per capita and it took one American and one German to equal one Canadian per capita in export of manufactured goods. Canada today was exporting one-third of its total products and was one of the three countries in the world that had a

Eleven Lives Lost As Three Trains Leave Tracks Within Western Ontario Flood Area

TORONTO, June 27.—Floods over an area of 20 miles in the districts of Sudbury and Capreol took a death toll of 11 lives in two train wrecks on the Canadian National Railways last night, according to an official statement made today. Both children of Mrs. A. Nedderburn, travelling with their mother, who was injured, were drowned when the colonist and day coaches of Train No. 4, from Winnipeg to Toronto, were partly submerged in Vermilion River when seven of the train's nine cars were derailed by a washout. Twenty-one persons were injured.

The fireman of freight train No. 401 from North Bay was fatally injured when the train ran into another washout 16 miles east of Capreol. Six unidentified trespassers, presumably riding the freight, were killed.

Train No. 3, Toronto to Winnipeg, was also derailed near Capreol but nobody was injured. The floods are of unprecedented proportions, tying up traffic on both railways in all directions.

Prince Rupert Trophies Will Be Exhibited In Seattle Stores and In One of Largest City Banks

Not one of the yachting trophies so far presented on the Pacific Coast can compare with the two large ones presented by the Prince Rupert Rowing and Yacht Club and the city of Prince Rupert, in connection with the Seattle-Prince Rupert race respectively and these two will be placed on view for two weeks in Seattle store windows and afterwards in the rotunda of one of the largest Seattle banks, according to Jack Powers, skipper of the yacht Maidie, which won the first over all race from Seattle to Prince Rupert. He told the Rotary Club this at the weekly luncheon which he addressed yesterday.

Captain Powers said he hoped the race would become an annual one and that several Prince Rupert boats would enter and that they would be prize winners.

The speaker gave an interesting account of former cruises to Juneau and also of this year's event and of the wonderful feeling it gave to win the race and to receive such a splendid trophy. He spoke of the reception given them here and of how the visitors appreciated it. He expected that next year there would be 25 or 30 boats in the race, attracted by the fine trophies and the tales of what Prince Rupert had done.

Trevor Johnston returned to the city on the Prince Rupert this morning from a trip to Vancouver and Victoria.

Lightning Hits Boat Near Brockville and Awful Tragedy Comes

Blinding Flash Struck Vessel and Ran Down Drill Into Packed Dynamite In River Shoal

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 27.—When a bolt of lightning struck their boat and utterly demolished it, 30 men were hurled to their deaths in the waters of the St. Lawrence River late yesterday. Only 12 of the crew of 42 were alive and of these several are in hospital more or less seriously injured. The boat was the J. P. King, a drilling vessel operated by A. P. Porter & Son of St. Catherine's on a federal government contract, blasting out a ship channel off this river port. The boat was engaged in drilling a shoal. The thunderstorm blew it up and there was a deafening report audible for miles around. A blinding sheet of lightning struck the boat, running down the drill into packed dynamite in the shoal and exploding it. The boat was a mass of wreckage.

The Political Corner

Vol. 1. Friday, June 27 No. 15.

IT IS TO LAUGH

The Tories are never tired of stating that the Liberal tariff policies are starving our Canadian manufacturers and causing our boys and girls to go to the States for work.

In contradiction of this rubbish we refer our readers to the monthly bank commercial letters of the Royal Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce for the month of June, 1930. The latter contains a table showing the great increase in Canadian manufactures for the years 1925 to 1928 as compared with the world increase during those years. Just to take a few of the illustrations given:

Whereas the world increase in steel manufacture was 14% the Canadian increase was 81%. Automobile manufacture, world, 7%, Canada, 66%. Paper, world, 9%; Canada 31%. Artificial silk, world, 103%; Canada, 217%. Increase in foreign trade, world, 3%; Canada 26%.

The monthly letter continues: "It is a proven fact that the rate of increase in Canadian production exceeded that of the world by a wide margin in many of the most important branches of economic life. This advance of Canada was so rapid as to place her among that small group of nations which enjoys a highly diversified economic organization."

During this period Canada rose to second position in the world in automobile manufacture; to third in paper and aluminum, and to fifth in rubber.

The Royal Bank monthly letter has this to say: "During the past seven years Canada has been producing wealth at a rate which has permitted the net export of approximately eight hundred million dollars of capital. This movement has resulted in an increase of nearly one billion dollars in Canadian investments abroad, and the re-purchase of more than five hundred million dollars' worth of Canadian securities which were owned in other countries."

And yet the Prince Rupert "Empire" says editorially: "You can take it from us, however, if you return the Mackenzie King Government to power you won't have to worry about business flowing through the Port of Prince Rupert, for there will be no business."

As the Frenchman says, "It is to laugh."

PRINCE RUPERT IS URGED TO MAKE WISE CHOICE

favorable trade balance. It was remarkable too for a country so young that Canada should have been able to export capital as well as products. Canada's increase in manufactured products had been vastly greater during the past few years than any other country in the world. He thought that Canada had progressed during the past eight years far beyond the proportion of other countries.

While this progress was being made, the government had been able to steadily bring about reductions in taxation year by year since 1923 and effect a downward revision on the tariff. It had also kept up to the times in social legislation and there was absolute evidence that the individual was more prosperous.

The present economic depression was not Canada's problem alone but one from which all countries of the world were suffering. The fact was, according even to the authorities of the banks, that Canada was suffering less than any other country in the world.

Unemployment

The Conservatives, Mr. Pearson said, were inclined to make a great deal of the unemployment situation. As a matter of fact, he believed it was disgraceful the way that Bennett and his party were using this unfortunate condition for political purposes. He would ask Mr. Bennett, however, how he was going to straighten it out? The fact was that Mr. Bennett had no solution to offer and had even said that he would not give unemployment insurance. "What can the working-man expect, anyway, from the Conservative party in the matter of unemployment?" Mr. Pearson asked amid applause. He told of his own personal experience with the Tolmie government at Victoria in the matter of seasonal unemployment at the coal mining town of Nanaimo. The Tolmie government had scoffed in the House at his proposal that a board of industrial relations be set up. The suggestion, however, had been adopted in the town of Nanaimo and had already been productive of relieving unemployment.

"All I want to see," said Mr. Pearson, "is the position of the people improved. Will the Tory government tackle the problem? I say no. The trouble is they don't understand it. Their mental attitude is not right. (Applause). They don't know how to go about solving the unemployment problem." He referred to how the provincial government of British Columbia had already tried to pass the buck to the Dominion government.

"I am convinced," concluded Mr. Pearson, "that the people of Canada will be making a serious mistake if they think of changing their government at this time. One has only to read the bigger and the thinking Conservative papers, not the petty ones that merely parrot Bennett. They admit that the Mackenzie King government has such a record that demands that it be sent back into power. And what are the people going to do when even the Conservatives themselves think that?"

Mr. Pattullo

It was always an extraordinarily great pleasure for him to get back to Prince Rupert, Mr. Pattullo declared. He complimented Mr. Pearson on his address. He was a man, he said, who was capable of rendering great service to this province.

"This is the most important election in the history of Canada," Mr. Pattullo declared in launching right into his subject. "Are we satisfied with this government and its policies or are we going to discharge it and put another one in? If so, who were the people going to put in? Were they familiar with Mr. Bennett and his associates?"

How They Promise

In 1926 in the provincial campaign, Mr. Pattullo recalled, the Conservatives had said if the people turned out the nefarious Liberal government and put them in there would be no more unemployment and everything would be fine. But what had happened? The fact was that the Tolmie government had turned out to be a great fiasco. "The most incompetent, imprudent, ignorant and expensive government in the history of the province," Mr. Pattullo dubbed it. He could not see where the Bennett government, should one get in office, would be any better.

Mr. Pattullo referred to Mr. Bennett's exhortation that Canada should follow a vigorous tariff policy like the United States. He (Pattullo) did not think that United States prosperity had been due in any large measure to protective tariff. The country had been prosperous not because of that tariff but in spite of it. One thing at the start that the Americans had done was to get away from the Tories, the Bennetts and the General McRae's of that time, to a new freedom and a new liberalism.

The speaker referred to the progress Canada had made after the Laurier government had come into office in 1896. The policy of a tariff for revenue and an active immigration policy had been instrumental in developing the Northwest Territories into three great provinces.

The Liberal policy, Mr. Pattullo declared, was one of moving with the times. The party did not adhere to hard and fast principles but to the right principles. The Liberal party was ready to adopt the best policy no matter whether it be protection or free trade. In the Dunning budget there was the marvelously statesmanlike feat of having both greater freedom and greater protection of trade. What was more, all the important items affecting the farmers of the prairies were protected by countervailing duties which provided for downward as well as upward revision providing what might be done on the other side.

Opposed to Preference

Mr. Bennett and his party, Mr. Pattullo pointed out, were opposed to British preference. Premier King would go to those two Imperial conferences in the fall holding out an olive branch. Bennett said he would be ready to dicker. First he would want to find out what the Old Country was willing to do for Canada. Colonial Secretary Amery, Mr. Pattullo recalled, had said a few years ago: "From now on the mother country recognizes all the nations of the Empire on an equal basis with no inferiority complex." If Premier King had said that he would have been accused of treason by these very Conservatives. Mr. Pattullo believed that the people of Canada were overwhelmingly in favor of remaining with the Empire on the present basis. The Tory party was now to be seen in the role of throwing away the British flag. To beat this government would be for Canadians to give notice that they were not satisfied with the present Imperial status.

Mr. Pattullo then proceeded to refer to Mr. Bennett's statement that, if elected, he would scrap the trade treaties, treaties that were designed to be of mutual advantage to the two sides concerned but which had turned out to be of distinct benefit to Canada. For instance abrogation of the Australian treaty would affect 20% of the output at Ocean Falls paper mill and even more at Powell River. Yet Mr. Bennett said he would "blast" his way to trade. Canada had seen how successful the Wheat Pool had been in forcing the world to do business with it. Unless Canada had foreign trade, how was it going to carry the burden, how was it going to dispose of the great surplus of production? What was the use of taking a chance? The people knew what to expect from the Mackenzie King government. They knew its record. How were the people to expect as good, much less a better, record? If there were a repetition of Victoria at Ottawa, Canada would be the laughing stock of the world.

Mr. Pattullo thought that there were two important matters in the present campaign; first, the status of Canada within the British Empire, second, the vital necessity of trade treaties to the industrial life of Canada.

Mr. Brady

The speaker then proceeded to pay his respects to Mr. Brady, reading from the Daily News which he thought had given Mr. Brady an eminently fair deal in reporting his meetings. The speaker referred humorously to Mr. Brady attributing to Premier King "a hopeless state of mental aberration." Nevertheless, Mr. Brady had made an absolutely false statement when he attributed to Premier King the remark that he would not give a five cent piece to a Conservative government "even if children were starving, men were walking the streets and the women had no food in their homes." Much less than refusing to give them a five-cent piece, Mr. Pattullo thought that the King government had treated the provinces with Conservative governments very liberally. Great concessions had been made to the Maritimes and to Ontario and even to British Columbia in the return of natural resources. Notwithstanding this, Premier Tolmie and the other Conservative premiers said they would use all the force of their governments against the King administration. The fact was that Mr. King was the greatest leader in Canada, a student of British affairs and of labor matters, essentially a man of the people. In the matter of unemployment, Mr. Pattullo agreed that, first, the municipalities were responsible, then the provinces, and, if they failed, the Dominion government.

An Irishman's Statement

Mr. Brady had said that it was the Conservative party that had always been true to the Empire. "And Mr. Brady an Irishman," remarked Mr. Pattullo. Mr. Bennett had said that Canada should be kept for the Canadians. His policies were all for self-interest and for personal advantage. Mr. Pattullo asked the audience to compare the dignity, the broadmindedness and the sympathy of the utterances of William Lyon Mackenzie and those of Mr. Bennett.

Another matter which Mr. Pattullo considered all-important was that this district should elect a

ELKS DEFEAT CENTRALS IN GOOD GAME

Antlered Herd Now in Undisputed Lead in City Baseball League as Result of 4-3 Win

DOWNEY HITS TWO HOMERS

Elks defeated Centrals 4-3 in last night's baseball fixture and as a result step out in front in the City League while the Centrals drop into the cellar position. The outstanding features of the game were Cecil Downey's two home runs into left field, the first clearing the score board and bouncing through the fence, while the second went even farther and sailed right through the fence.

Outside of these two wallops, big Herman Loblick had the Hotelmen helpless and no other man on the team was able to connect safely. Loblick starred at the bat for the winners, poling out three singles in four trips to the plate.

Elks scored twice in the first inning on two errors a sacrifice and a single. Centrals tied the score in their half when Downie hit number one after Hill had got on when Mitchell let his third strike get away from him. There was no more scoring until the sixth when, with two out, Downie connected for his second circuit clout, and it looked as though Centrals had the game on ice. Three singles and an error in the seventh allowed Elks to squeeze over two runs which were sufficient to cop the game. In their half of the seventh, Bury and Barry, first men up, both walked, Loblick losing sight of home plate for seven balls in succession. Morrison sacrificed time to second and third and then McNulty and Farquhar both struck out to end the game.

Presentation of certificates by Mrs. T. M. Spencer.

Miss Mercer presided and in introducing Mrs. Spencer, expressed the gratitude of the school for her coming to make the presentations. Miss Mercer also referred to the case of Jenny Johnston who had won the prize for the Essay on Fire Prevention. Owing to the departure of Jenny for Scotland it had been impossible to present the certificate at this assembly.

Speaking on behalf of the graduating class Marion Ryan expressed their regret at leaving the Booth School where they had spent many happy and profitable years. They would try to do honor to their old school.

In replying thereto Beatrice Berner wished the graduating class all success in the High School where their progress would be followed with interest by the Booth School. She also assured the graduating class that the pupils still in attendance at the Booth School would do their utmost to see that the high standard set by Miss Mercer and her staff would be maintained.

Cheers were given with enthusiasm for the graduating class and for the school.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.
