United Farmers Decline to Take Stand On Oriental Immigration Despite Plea of B. C. Delegate

J. E. Armishaw Says It Is Question of Whether White Men or Yellow Are to Retain Possession of This Province

CALGARY, Jan. 24.—The United Farmers of Alberta, in annual convention here, refused to ballot today on a resolution favoring the termination of Oriental immigration into Canada and the cessation of property rights now vested in Oriental residents. The matter was referred to the board of directors and will probably be brought up again at next year's convention. The decision followed advice offered by J. K. Sutherland, U.F.A. director for Acadia, who contended that the matter should have at least a year's consideration.

Details of Massett Fatality Arrive

Thomas Pelton Killed Last Week When His Gun Accidentally Discharged

MASETT, Jan. 24.—A sad fatality occurred at Massett Inlet on Wednesday evening of last week, when a well known and respected homesteader, Thomas Pelton of the Nadu River district, was accidentally killed when his gun went off while he was taking it out of his rowboat. It appears that the deceased went down to the pole camp at the Nadu, where his parents are, to collect some parcels, taking a gun along with him, on the chance of getting a duck or two. Having secured the parcels, he landed at a spot about a mile up, beached the boat, and, standing at the bow, drew his gun, an old hammer type loaded in one barrel only, toward him. The hammer caught and fired the gun, blowing away the palm of his hand and a portion of the boat's bow, the charge passing finally into his groin, inflicting a fatal wound.

He then staggered from the boat up the beach some fifteen feet, fell on his face, and, it is thought, died instantly, as there were no signs of him having moved after that. He was missed later on, but could not be found and it was not until next day, Thursday noon, that the search party came across his frozen remains.

"At the request of the bereaved parents and relatives, he was buried on his own homestead on Sunday. Rev. R. P. Graham of St. Paul's Church, Massett, conducted the funeral ceremony, which was attended by practically all the inhabitants of the surrounding neighborhood.

Arthur Robertson, Wesley Singer and Fred Bellas represented New Massett at the graveside.

Naval Delegates at London Map Out Definite Plan For Prevention of Aggression

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A two-hour session of chief naval conference delegates at No. 10 Downing Street yesterday afternoon resulted in the definite mapping of a plan against aggressive naval armaments. Under the program individual nations will strive to settle their differences one with another while "the big five," or leaders of each delegation, sit as umpires or referees of the world, ready to take the field themselves to lend a helpful hand wherever a deadlock occurs.

The next meeting of delegates has been called for Monday. Meanwhile, the various delegations will fall to their tasks.

Would Improve Facilities For Registration

The question of the registration of voters was brought before the city council last night by Alderman Rudderham. He explained that many people had been disfranchised at the last election through not being on the list. Some were out of the city during the registration time. He thought the list should be open for a longer period. He suggested that the man who collected the poll tax should be authorized to put people on the list.

City Council Asks For Delay In Enforcement of Newly Announced Fish Regulations

The city council, at its initial meeting last night, decided by unanimous resolution to ask the provincial government to withhold the enforcement of fisheries regulations recently promulgated by Commissioner of Fisheries Howe until a thorough investigation had been made. This action was taken following the outlining of the question by Charles Lord, secretary of the Northern B. C. Salmon Fishermen's Association, to which Morton Ferguson, representing the cannerymen, replied, urging that the regulations were the best possible.

Mr. Lord took half an hour to outline his case. He went back to the first meeting in Victoria called by Hon. S. L. Howe, commissioner of fisheries, when A. W. Neill, M.P., of Alberni, had represented the local organization. Nothing was done there, but the next day Mr. Howe met the cannerymen.

Another meeting was held on January 6, but no agenda was sent out and the fishermen had no idea of the policy to be proposed. Mr. Howe read a memorandum defining his policy, which, he told them, was based on a desire to conserve the fish. His proposals would make all sunshine. However, Mr. Lord reminded the council, conservation was not obtained from dead fish, but live ones, and, therefore, the policy was not within the domain of the province.

It was proposed by Mr. Howe to limit licenses to those already operating, and this, Mr. Lord claimed, gave the advantage to the larger interests. Mr. Lord also told of the arrangement made to issue five licenses on the Naas River, when only three canneries had been operating there for the past two years. One of the canneries had been dismantled in 1926 and had not been licensed for many years. It last operated in 1920, yet it was rated as a cannery by Mr. Howe and seines and gill nets were allotted to it.

The B. A. cannery at Port Essington was another case in point. It had been burned down and no attempt was made to rebuild it, yet 64 gill nets were assigned to it. Barnard Cove, where Millard had operated a floating cannery a few years ago, was granted six seines. There (Continued on page five.)

EDITORIAL

C. P. R. AND PRINCE RUPERT

The C. P. R. evidently would like to make Prince Rupert its outlet if it can get the right kind of a deal from the Canadian National Railway and from the Government. The port has all the advantages and few of the drawbacks, but the difficulty, if any, will be in making proper arrangements with the Canadian National and securing their endorsement by the Government.

Any line to the coast south of Peace River must touch the Canadian National main line, even if it should not come out at Hazelton or Fort Fraser, the routes favored locally. From the junction a running arrangement or joint ownership would have to be made with the National line.

The outlet for the Peace River should serve British Columbia if it is to receive any aid from the B. C. Government. Primarily, it should be devised to develop the Peace River Block in British Columbia and should open up the best part of the northern section of this province. That would mean coming out at Vanderhoof or west of that point, preferably at Hazelton.

Every effort of Prince Rupert should be toward securing the use of the best possible route and that by the two great railways, the C.N.R. and the C.P.R.

VICTORIA, Jan. 24.—Hon. W. A. Grant, the markets commissioner, to duty in the parliament buildings here. He will be assigned to close association with W. W. Duncan, marketing director, in efforts to secure for agriculturalists of the province outlets for all forms of produce.

The reorganization is attributed to the duplication of services on the prairies by various organizations.

MAIL ORDER BUSINESS

Buy at home is always a good policy. Local merchants now carry large stocks and most of them handle the best of goods. At least a few sell at eastern prices and do a good business. Very few are complaining at the lack of support.

We strongly urge local people wherever possible to buy from the local merchants. Naturally there are occasions when they cannot get the goods they want here so they send away for them. No matter how big the city, there are always a few things that cannot be secured and they must be imported. In a general way, however, Prince Rupert merchants carry just as up-to-date goods as outside firms and they sell at reasonable prices.

Now a word to the merchants. How are people here going to know that they can get the goods at low prices if these prices are not advertised. In many cases the local people do not invite residents to buy here because they do not advertise the prices of their goods. Let the people know and many of them will buy here instead of sending out of town.

REACHING OUT FOR BUSINESS

On Wednesday of this week The Daily News carried a large amount of national advertising and yesterday was a good follow up. Eastern people are now recognizing this as a profitable field for advertising and they are after the business. It is one indication that the country has prospects. It is also an indication that there is no holding back because of the recent financial scare. The manufacturers are going out for business just as strongly as ever in the past and within the next few months will probably exceed all previous efforts.

NEW HAZELTON

At the meeting of the patrons of the Hazelton Hospital on Monday night, it was reported that receipts of the institution for 1929 had totalled something like $27,000 with expenditures amounting to approximately $30,000. S. J. Winsby, R. S. Sargent and W. W. Anderson were re-elected patrons, Mr. Winsby being named chairman.

Mrs. A. E. Godenough of Smithers was a week-end visitor in Hazelton with Mrs. C. W. Dawson.

James Stoyhoff, section foreman at Dorreen and formerly at New Hazelton, was taken to the Prince Rupert General Hospital last week suffering with double pneumonia.

Weather has been extremely cold here during the past week. "There was joy in the hearts of the people when they got up on Wednesday morning and found it was only 10 below zero," the Omineca Herald observes.

The Felix Bridge Club met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. S. Sargent. Mrs. A. D. Chappell and Mrs. S. J. Winsby were the prize winners.

W. J. Larkworthy, well known New Hazelton merchant, returned this week after having spent the Christmas and New Year holidays visiting at Stratford, Ont., with his aged mother.

D. C. McKechnie, field engineer for the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., Prince Rupert, made an examination of the Silver Cup mine last week for his company.

William Holland has returned to Hazelton after taking six native children from Hazelton, Kispiox and Skeena Crossing to Indian boarding school at Edmonton.

SMITHERS

In addition to providing many comforts and necessities for the institution, the Women's Auxiliary to the Smithers Hospital set aside $300 during 1929 towards the fund for a new hospital here. This was reported at the annual meeting of the Auxiliary which was held last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. N. Carr. Officers for 1930 were elected as follows: president, Mrs. R. C. Bamford; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. N. H. Kilpatrick; executive, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Raymond; representative to hospital board, Mrs. J. H. Kelly.

William Pike is the only candidate so far to take out his nomination papers for the village council election next week. Frank V. Foster and L. B. Warner have signified their intention of seeking re-election and others mentioned as prospective candidates are S. J. Mayer, Fred Cook and John McKenzie. There are 242 names on the voters' list for the election.

The Anglican Young People's Association held a very enjoyable social evening in the Parish Hall last Friday. Among those contributing to the program were Miss Champion, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Hoskins, Mr. Jeanes, O. Hoskins, R. T. Collison, H. Smith, Mrs. Byrne and J. M. Collison. Winners in a contest were Mrs. Harvey Davies and Miss F. Evans R.N.

The municipality of the village of Smithers had a deficit of $1,693.49 on 1929 operations, the financial report shows.

Mystic Jewel Rebekah Lodge here has installed officers for the year as follows: noble grand, Mrs. Irma Bannister; vice grand, Mrs. Alice Walkland; recording secretary, Miss Bernice Clay; financial secretary, Miss Winnifred Large; treasurer, Miss C. H. McMillan.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the local Anglican Church has elected officers for the year as follows: president, Mrs. J. M. Collison; vice-president, Mrs. S. H. Hoskins; treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Kirby; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. W. J. Dawson; leaflet secretary, Mrs. E. Woodward; thank offering secretary, Mrs. Charles Reid; secretary, baby branch, Mrs. F. E. Page. Last year the sum of $950 was realized by the Auxiliary.

Ties are being moved to the loading yards here at a good rate. While snowfall has been light, continued cold weather has helped to preserve sleighing and, so far, little difficulty has been experienced in hauling the heavy loads.

PRINCE GEORGE

Ald. Reid, Ex-Mayor F. D. Taylor and Ald. Fraser were elected to two-year terms on the city council and Ex-Mayor J. H. Johnson to a one-year term at the civic elections here last week. Money by-laws providing $12,000 for sidewalk building and $30,000 for electric light plant extension were both ratified. There was quite a heavy vote against the electric light bylaw in view of the fact that the Power Corporation of Canada is contemplating the establishment of a plant in the district.

The lowest thermometer reading of an extremely cold week here was 32.9 below zero on Monday. Last Saturday was the only day during the week that the mercury went above zero, 14 above being recorded that day.

D. McLeod has been elected noble grand of Cariboo Oddfellows' Lodge for 1930 while Mrs. C. Sherman heads the Rebekah order.

The local branch of the Catholic Women's League has elected officers for 1930 as follows: president, Mrs. A. B. Taft; first vice-president, Mrs. J. Powers; second vice-president, Mrs. P. J. Moran; third vice-president, Mrs. T. Belina; secretary, Mrs. J. C. McKenzie; treasurer, Mrs. J. Hill.

Of Course... you can serve it hot

Most people want a hot breakfast dish for a cold day. Shredded Wheat is deliciously warming when eaten with hot milk. Crisp the biscuits in the oven and pour hot milk over them. The flavory shreds retain enough crispness to encourage thorough chewing—that's one reason it's so good for children. Delicious for any meal with fresh or stewed fruits.

PROTEST ENDORSED

Trades & Labor Council Backs Up Fishermen On New Regulations; Election of Officers Deferred

After having had the situation explained by Charles Lord, secretary of the Northern British Columbia Salmon Fishermen's Association, the Prince Rupert Trades & Labor Council last night endorsed a resolution passed by the fishermen's organization protesting against new provincial salmon fishery regulations which have been proposed by Hon. S. L. Howe, commissioner of fisheries for British Columbia.

A communication was read from Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades Congress, ruling that if salmon trollers of this district were to be formally identified with the local council, it would be necessary for them to affiliate with the Trades Congress. However, the council can receive fishermen delegates informally at any of its meetings. Credentials of George Hudema and George McCandless, representing the Railway Carmen's Union, were presented and these delegates took their seats in the council.

The question of the council endorsing a candidate for the one-year school trustee by-election was discussed and the matter referred to the executive with power to act. Owing to the extended discussions on routine business, the council deferred election of officers for 1930 until its next meeting.

Vice-President J. J. Gillis was in the chair during the early part of the meeting until the arrival from the council meeting of Ald. S. D. Macdonald, the president.

The city council last night decided to hold another election for school trustee, the one-year term having been left vacant at the recent election. The date has been set by the city clerk for February 6 with nominations on February 3. This action followed the reading of a communication from J. O. Williamson, notifying the council of the vacancy on the board.

The SEVEN DIALS MYSTERY

By Agatha Christie

Copyright by Public Ledger

INSTALMENT XXI.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Gerry Wade is found dead in bed at Chimneys, some of a house party. Seven out of eight alarm clocks placed in his room to awaken him are lined up on a mantel. The guests are told that death resulted from an overdose of sleeping powder. Jimmy Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to tell a sister, Lorraine, of Wade's death.

Lady Eileen Brent, known as "Bundle," finds a letter Wade had written to his sister making reference to the Seven Dials Bundle. That evening Gerry was murdered. En route to London a man, mysteriously shot, staggers into the road in front of Eileen's car. It proves to be Devereux, who dying, whispers: "Seven Dials—tell Jimmy Thesiger."

At Jimmy's quarters Bundle finds Lorraine. The three of them set out to trail the murderer. From Captain Battle at Scotland Yard Bundle obtains a list of secret societies. That evening with Bill Eversleigh, she visits the Seven Dials Club. A watchman, Alfred, is recognized as a former footman at Chimneys.

Cabinet Minister George Lomax plans a party. He has received a warning letter from the Seven Dials Society. Bundle gets an invitation. Meanwhile she hides in the meeting room of the society and witnesses a meeting attended by masked members. She reports to Thesiger, who has also obtained an invitation to the Cabinet member's party. Among the guests is one Herr Eberhard, an inventor who has military plans of interest to the Air Ministry.

To prevent the theft of these plans by members of the Seven Dials Society Eversleigh and Thesiger agree to stand watch after the other guests have retired. Jimmy takes the first watch and is armed with an automatic. At 10 minutes of 2 he hears the creak of a board—a sound from downstairs. He creeps cautiously down the staircase, then to the library door. Suddenly, flinging open the door, he turns on the lights. The big room is empty. He opens a window and steps out on the terrace. Then back in the library, he locks the door from the inside and pockets the key. He thinks he hears a soft patter of feet outside—

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

Lorraine came obediently. The superintendent had produced a large, clean pocket-handkerchief and was neatly bandaging the wounded man's arm. Lorraine helped him.

"He'll be all right," said the superintendent. "Don't you worry. As many lives as cats, these young fellows. It wasn't the loss of blood knocked him out either. He must have caught his head a crack on the floor as he fell."

Other Guests Arrive

Outside the knocking on the door had become tremendous. The voice of George Lomax, furiously upraised, came loud and distinct: "Who is in there? Open the door at once!"

Superintendent Battle sighed. "I suppose we shall have to," he said. "A pity."

His eyes darted round, taking in the scene. An automatic lay by Jimmy's side. The superintendent picked it up gingerly, holding it very delicately and examined it. He grunted and laid it on the table. Then he stepped across and unlocked the door.

Several people almost fell into the room. Nearly everybody said something at the same minute. George Lomax, spluttering and obdurate words which refused to come with sufficient fluency, exclaimed:

"The—the—the meaning of this? Ah! It's you, Superintendent. What has happened? I say—what has happened?"

Bill Eversleigh said: "My God! Old Jimmy!" and stared at the limp figure on the floor.

Lady Coote, clad in a resplendent purple dressing gown, cried out: "The poor boy!" and swept past Superintendent Battle to bend over the prostrate Jimmy in a motherly fashion.

Bundle said: "Lorraine!"

Herr Eberhard said: "Gott im Himmel!" and other words of that nature.

Sir Stanley Digby said: "My God, what's all this?"

A housemaid said: "Look at the blood," and screamed with pleasurable excitement.

A footman said: "Lor!"

The butler said, with a good deal more bravery in his manner than had been noticeable a few minutes earlier: "Now then, this won't do!" and waved away the underservants.

The efficient Mr. Rupert Bate-man said to George: "Shall we get rid of some of these people, sir?"

Then they all took fresh breath. "Incredible!" said George Lomax.

"Battle, what has happened?"

Battle gave him a look, and George's discreet habits assumed their usual sway.

"Now then," he said, moving to the door, "everyone go back to bed, please. There's been a—er—"

"A slight accident," said Superintendent Battle easily.

"A—er—an accident. I shall be much obliged if everyone will go back to bed."

Everyone was clearly reluctant to do so.

"Lady Coote—please—"

"The poor boy," said Lady Coote in a motherly fashion.

She rose from a kneeling position with great reluctance. And as she did so, Jimmy stirred and sat up.

"Hallo!" he said thickly. "What's the matter?"

He looked round him vacantly for a minute or two and then intelligence returned to his eyes.

"Have you got him?" he demanded eagerly.

"Got who?"

"The man. Climbed down the ivy. I was by the window there. Grabbed him and we had no end of a set-to—"

A Cat-Burglar

"One of those nasty, murderous cat burglars," said Lady Coote.

"Poor boy."

Jimmy was looking round him.

"I say—I'm afraid we—er—have made rather a mess of things. Fellow was as strong as an ox and we went fairly waltzing around."

The condition of the room was clear proof of this statement. Everything light and breakable within a range of twelve feet that could be broken had been broken.

"And what happened then?"

But Jimmy was looking round for something.

"Where's Leopold? The pride of the blue-nosed automatics."

Battle indicated the pistol on the table.

"Is this yours, Mr. Thesiger?"

"That's right. That's little Leopold. How many shots have been fired?"

"One shot."

Jimmy looked chagrined.

"I'm disappointed in Leopold," he murmured. "I can't have pressed the button properly, or he'd have gone on shooting."

"Who shot first?"

"I did. I'm afraid," said Jimmy.

"You see, the man twisted himself out of my grasp suddenly. I saw him making for the window and I closed my finger down on Leopold and let him have it. He turned in the window and fired at me and—well, I suppose after that I took the count."

He rubbed his head rather ruefully.

But Sir Stanley Digby was suddenly alert.

"Climbing down the ivy, you said? My God, Lomax, you don't think they've got away with it?"

He rushed from the room. For some curious reason nobody spoke during his absence. In a few minutes Sir Stanley returned. His round, chubby face was white as death.

"My God, Battle," he said, "they have got it. O'Rourke's fast asleep—drugged, I think. I can't wake him. And the papers have vanished!"

THE FORMULA RECOVERED

"Der liebe Gott!" said Herr Eberhard in a whisper.

His face had gone chalky white. George turned a face of dignified reproach on Battle.

"Is this true Battle? I left all arrangements in your hands."

The rocklike quality of the Superintendent showed out well. Not a muscle of his face moved.

"The best of us are defeated sometimes, sir," he said quietly.

"Then you mean—you really mean—that the document is gone?"

But to every one's intense surprise Superintendent Battle shook his head.

"No, no, Mr. Lomax, it's not so bad as you think. Everything's all right. But you can't lay the credit for it at my door. You've got to thank this young lady."

He indicated Lorraine, who stared at him in surprise. Battle stepped across to her and gently took the brown paper parcel which she was still clutching mechanically.

"I think, Mr. Lomax," he said, "that you will find what you want here."

Sir Stanley Digby, quicker in action than George, snatched at the package and tore it open, investigating its contents eagerly. A sigh of relief escaped him and he mopped his brow. Herr Eberhard fell upon the child of his brain and clasped it to his heart, while a torrent of German burst from him.

CITY COUNCIL ASKS FOR DELAY IN ENFORCEMENT OF NEWLY ANNOUNCED FISH REGULATIONS.

were also other cases. On the other hand, Humpback Bay, which proposed to operate 86 gill nets and had chartered boats for the purpose, was given only 60 nets.

Mr. Lord claimed that the new system, which was already declared to be in operation, would work a hardship on the fisherman, preventing him from moving from one district to another. Seiners were in even worse plight than gill netters. They must elect where to go at the beginning of the season and stay with it because other places would be filled. They asked for the open door policy. It was the policy asked by all fishermen.

Trollers did not come under the regulations, but most trollers spent part of the season gill netting. As British subjects, he claimed they should not be circumscribed in their activities.

Cannery Representative

Morton Ferguson then spoke briefly. He said he expected Fred Mathers would have been present; but he had not yet arrived from the south. He asked that the council await his coming before committing itself. The fishing industry was in a deplorable condition. In 1927 the canners almost went broke and, as a result of the condition, amalgamations were brought about. Some places had been cut down to three days' fishing a week and this was bad for fishermen and canners. The men would make more if there were fewer of them. Those who did not wish to sell to the canners could sell to the cold storage plants at Butedale, Claxton and Prince Rupert. He believed the Howe policy was the best that could have been devised and was in the interests of the fishermen as well as the canners. The latter had to pay very high license fees, much higher than under the old regime.

Mr. Lord asked for immediate action. He declared that Mr. Howe had stated that cold storages attached to canneries would not be considered as cold storages. Anyway, the cold storage plants did not want sockeyes.

Member Speaks

J. C. Brady, M.P., spoke of the importance of the subject. He was there to get information. It was evident there was a divergence of opinion and the problem was acute and worthy of the deepest consideration, so that justice might be done to all. In his opinion, it was desirable that the regulations should not come into force this season, but that a thorough examination should be made into the question until all were satisfied. It would be the judicial thing not to enforce them during the coming season.

Mr. Lord asked for a resolution of protest. Ald. S. D. Macdonald said he appreciated the way in which the case for the fishermen had been stated. He believed the fishermen were all against the proposals of the government. He thought they should ask that the regulations be withheld and moved a resolution asking for this.

Ald. Brown feared a monopoly with which he would not be in accord. He seconded the motion. Ald. Pillsbury said he would like to have heard the cannerymen's side. In justice to them, he would like to hear a little more about the question.

Ald. Linzey thought the motion would cover what they wanted. It asked for delay. The fishermen were as one in opposing the regulations and he thought they should ask that they be withheld.

Alderman Rudderham said the question was important. The whole scheme, he thought, was framed in the south, and he thought they should ask to have a commission appointed to inquire into it and present their findings.

Ald. Collart also was against jumping at conclusions. He thought they should ask for delay. The vote was unanimous in favor of asking the chief commissioner to withhold the regulations for the coming season.

Prince Rupert Only Feasible Outlet For Canadian Pacific From North, Declares McMordie

Arguing that Prince Rupert was the only feasible outlet for the Canadian Pacific Railway to get the grain from the northern prairies to the market, Colonel S. P. McMordie gave a well-thought-out and very interesting address yesterday afternoon to the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon. While he gave this as his private opinion, he showed that it was feasible and reasonable and he expressed the opinion that something should be heard of it within the next two years.

The colonel reviewed the wheat land settlement of the prairies, showing how business was gradually working northward and how the C.P.R. was cut off from ready access to the Pacific coast except through the difficult Kicking Horse Pass. The company had shown their interest in the northern section by being the first to take over the E.D. & B.C. from the province of Alberta, the ownership of which was shared by the Canadian National.

Colonel McMordie told how the Peace River had the largest tract of wheat land in North America, unequalled in productiveness by any other. While the Hudson Bay route would undoubtedly be a factor in the wheat business, he was of a different opinion in regard to the P.G.E., the grade and curvature and steel of which was against its use for heavy traffic unless it was almost completely rebuilt.

Colonel McMordie said he felt sure the C.P.R. had a northern outlet in mind, for it could not continue as a competitor in the northern field without it. From Prince George the distance to Prince Rupert and Vancouver was almost the same, but the advantage all lay with Prince Rupert. The P.G.E. was as Sir Henry Thornton had said "a transportation joke."

Speedy action was anticipated by the speaker in regard to the western outlet. Settlers were pouring in by the thousand and the desire of the west to give the settlers a chance by having the railway built would force the issue. He did not take seriously the Monkman Pass proposal, although, even if the line came out at Aleza Lake, Prince Rupert would still get much of the business. He congratulated the Peace River committee on its work and also the committee headed by J. H. Pillsbury which two years ago had prepared maps and secured data with a view to showing the expediency of the route. He felt sure the prophecy he made that the C.P.R. could not go anywhere else than to Prince Rupert would be realized.

Customs Port at 40-Mile Closed

Historic Office, Described in Departmental Publication, Was Once in Charge of Local Collector

The National Revenue Review, publication of the federal Department of Revenue, contains an interesting article written by T. R. Moulton of Vancouver on the early days of Forty Mile, where the first customs port of the Yukon Territory was opened in 1896. The first collector of customs at Forty Mile was the late D. W. Davis, who moved to Dawson when the port was moved from Forty Mile to that place. In 1902, it is interesting to note, that Jarvis H. McLeod, now collector of customs here, was assigned to take charge at Forty Mile. In 1905, Mr. McLeod went to Dawson as chief clerk, being succeeded at Forty Mile by T. R. Moulton, the author of the article.

The historic Forty Mile office was recently closed by the department. A picture of the old log customs house appears in connection with the article.

Union Steamer Off For South After Month's Overhaul in Local Dry Dock

Having completed repairs at the local dry dock following her stranding on December 20 on Village Island in the Skeena River, Union steamer Cardena, Capt. Andrew Johnstone, sailed about noon today direct for her home port of Vancouver. The vessel, sailing from Vancouver next Tuesday evening, will resume her regular schedule on the Vancouver-Bella Coola-Ocean Falls-Prince Rupert route. The Venture, Capt. E. Georgeson, has been maintaining this service during the absence of the Cardena.

At the city council meeting last night, it was decided that the fisheries committee of the council should meet F. D. Mathers of the B. C. Packers and discuss with him the new provincial fisheries regulations with a view to securing information for the council in regard to the views of the canners.

PUT YOUR MODEL T FORD IN SHAPE FOR THOUSANDS OF MILES OF ADDITIONAL SERVICE

More than four hundred thousand Model T Fords are still in active service and many of them can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of service—and even longer—at very small cost. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for re-conditioning the Model T Ford:

ENGINE
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$ 1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	4.50
Overhaul carburetor	1.50
Deluxe detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Overhaul motor and transmission, $25 to	30.00
REAR SYSTEM
Reline detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Replace rear axle shaft, drive shaft pinion or drive gear	5.50
Overhaul complete rear axle assembly, $5.75 to	7.00
FRONT SYSTEM
Overhaul front axle	$4.00 to 5.00
CHASSIS
Overhaul steering gear	3.50
Overhaul radiator	7.50
Overhaul starting motor	3.00
Overhaul generator	3.00

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the number of necessary parts needed depends on the condition of the car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford low-price policy.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T Ford over the longest period of time, we suggest that you bring car to us and have us estimate on the cost of putting it in good shape. A very small expenditure may be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.
