Major Harold Oakes, Who Had Charge of Canadian Expedition On Eielson Search, Here Today

Major Harold A. Oakes, director of aerial operations of the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration Co., Winnipeg, who headed the Canadian aerial expedition which went into Fairbanks recently to institute a search for the missing aviators, Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, passed through here this morning aboard the Princess Mary bound for Vancouver en route to Winnipeg. Five other Canadian aviators who went in with Major Oakes are expected to come out in March, he said. They have some work to finish up yet, including replenishing of caches which were set out for the search party at North Cape by the Russian Soviet government. The two Fairchild airplanes which the party is using have been sold to the Alaska Airways, Major Oakes said. He regretted to hear of the fate of Eielson and Borland and commented that it was "the luck of the trail."

Thomas Rousay, well known local longshoreman, was struck on the back of the head by a timber which fell from a sling at the lumber assembly wharf at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and died at 1:30 this morning in the Prince Rupert General Hospital without having regained consciousness. The accident occurred while a crew of Pacific Stevedoring Co. longshoremen were engaged in loading rived spruce which had arrived from the Queen Charlotte Islands into box cars for shipment to the United States. The derrick on the wharf was being used and it is reported that a cable broke, the sling load collapsing and one of the heavy timbers striking Rousay on the back of his head not far above the neck. He was stunned and collapsed to the floor, never regaining his consciousness. Police were arranging this morning to hold an inquest into the fatality.

DRY AGENT IS ABUSED

Taken For Ride by Gang of Bootleggers and Badly Beaten Monday Night

SEATTLE, Jan. 30.—Deal D. Dunning, under-cover agent, was taken for a ride Monday night and terribly beaten. He was taken to the hospital by the police who found him wandering aimlessly dazed about the streets in the southern part of the city.

The police say he was kidnapped by a gang of bootlegger suspects whom he and another under-cover agent attempted to trap in a whiskey deal. He was set upon, they say, by three men and two women.

Just before Dunning was picked up by the police he had stumbled into M. S. Jackson, a south end resident. He asked Jackson to telephone police headquarters. While Jackson was telephoning Dunning wandered away. He was found by a prowler car detail later. Dunning, in telling about his experiences, said one woman in an automobile strangled him, while the other occupants took turns in beating him. He said he snapped his revolver at them several times but the cartridges failed to explode.

After driving about some time and beating him, he said he was thrown out of the machine on the highway toward Tacoma, when the car became stalled temporarily.

FEWER GO OVER LINE

Net Loss to Canada in Population Last Year is 82 Persons

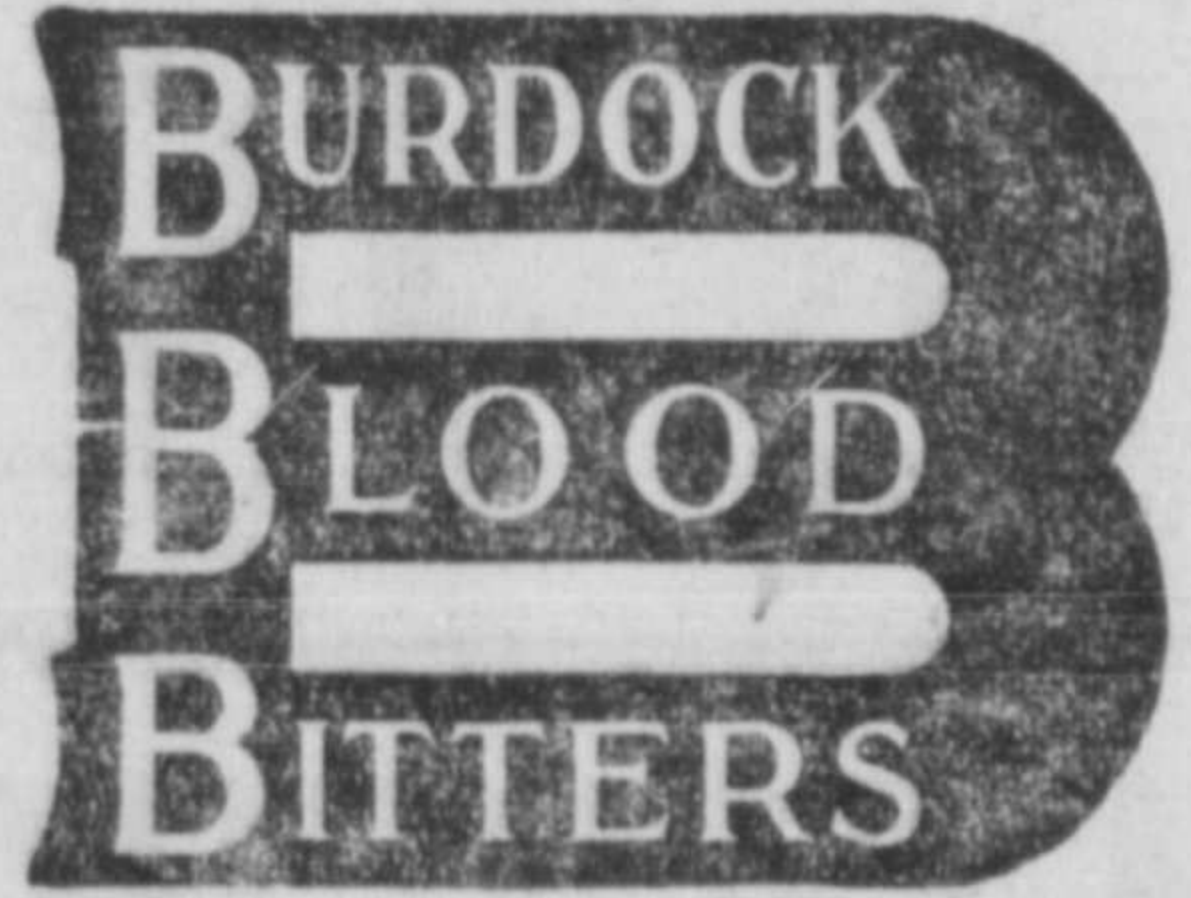

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The shift of population over the Canadian-American boundary is now near a balance. Proposals in congress for restriction of immigration from other countries of the western hemisphere to the United States have brought out testimony on the matter and have directed attention to figures which record the migration of population north and south. Among the figures is discovered data for 1929 listing as emigrants from the Dominion 64,440 immigrants 32,560 plus 33,798 returning Canadians, indicating a net loss to Canada of 82.

This situation has been brought about by a decline in emigration from the Dominion rather than an increase in immigration. A high point for emigration was touched in 1924 when 200,890 people moved south. Analysis of the figures shows that emigration of native-born Canadians has decreased rapidly. For example, in 1926 native Canadians to the number of 82,452 emigrated to the United States. In 1929 the count had fallen to 49,009.

TO CLAIM SON'S BODY

Ole Eielson of Fargo Coming to Alaska; May Be Buried in New York

FARGO, N.D., Jan. 30.—Ole Eielson yesterday began the long journey to Alaska to claim the body of his son, Colonel Ben Eielson, after it is found.

He intends to bring the body for burial in the Hatton, North Dakota, cemetery, and place it beside Ben's mother.

Arriving here from Hatton, he left for Seattle where he will sail February 5 for the northland. Before leaving he extended sympathies to the parents of Earl Borland, the death companion of Eielson. Eielson will be met in Seattle by his daughter, Adelaine, who is a teacher at Wenatchee.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 30.—Alfred Lomen yesterday wired Graham Grosvenor, president of the Aviation Corporation in New York City, suggesting that Colonel Ben Eielson, "father of aviation in Alaska," be buried in the Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Lomen added that this should be done providing the family of Eielson is agreeable to the arrangement. He says the aviator belongs to the nation.

Preparations are under way here for some sort of services to be held in Nome upon the arrival of the bodies.

Both of the Fairchild planes which took off from Teller arrived at the Nanuk at North Cape at 2:15 Monday without incident. Crosson and Gillam returned to the Nanuk from the scene of the wreck late Monday. He said the bodies had not been recovered but that digging for them continues.

MAJOR HAROLD OAKES, WHO HAD CHARGE OF CANADIAN EXPEDITION ON EIELSON SEARCH, HERE TODAY.

sible that the Canadians may fly out with these new machines unless they, too, should, be sold.

Major Oakes and his party left Toronto on December 15 last and reached Fairbanks on December 26. The planes were already there and several days were spent in testing them out. Weather then became so bad that the aviators could not leave Fairbanks and there was considerable delay. Flying by way of Nome and Teller, they finally reached North Cape a day or so ago. By that time American rescue flyers had found the wreck of Eielson's plane in Siberia. The Canadian flyers, based beside the trading ship Nanuk, left a couple of days ago on a 400-mile flight in an endeavor to dig the bodies of Eielson and Borland out of the snow and bring them out. Up to this morning no word had been received as to whether or not this task had met with success.

Major Oakes himself came out by way of Seward, which place he left on January 20. He boarded the Princess Mary at Juneau. Major Oakes is one of Canada's best known airmen. He organized the Western Canada Airways and later joined the service of the Mineral Exploration Co. He had charge at Winnipeg last fall of the search for the McAlpine party.

"We are all very sorry at the way it has turned out," said Major Oakes this morning in commenting on the discovery of the Eielson-Borland plane wreck and the supposed deaths of the two intrepid Alaskan explorers. "As time passed and we were unable to start on the search, our hopes for their safety dwindled, although there was still a faint hope that they might be safe. However, it seems to be all over now. Just the luck of the trail!"

ABOUT THE STOCK EXCHANGE

A STOCK Exchange is essentially a Public Service doing its best to make trading secure and efficient.

While this work has far-reaching results, the first principles of operation are simple. Somebody gives a broker an order. By cable or phone the broker's "floor" man gets the order for execution. The price paid for the stock is the official quotation on the "floor" at exactly that time. The seller writes a triplicate record of the transaction, timed mechanically to with a tenth-second. Buyer, seller and Exchange each retain one copy. So every sale is permanently recorded and made known on the ticker.

Stock prices on the floor of the Exchange are controlled by orders received from the Public to buy and sell. The Exchange exercises no control over fluctuations. Like a loud-speaker it simply broadcasts the trading minute by minute. Regulations governing trading were accepted by the Provincial Parliament in session in 1907. No trading can take place between members of the "floor." The Stock Exchange itself has nothing to do with arrangements between brokers and clients. Being members of the Exchange, brokers are directly servants of the investing

1 TO GIVE THE FACTS

2 TO DELIVER PROMPTLY

3 TO TRADE EFFICIENTLY

4 TO INFORM THE WORLD

Public and must follow the instructions of their clients. Every broker depends on his business to keep the confidence of his clients. Obviously, it is against his own best interests in any way to do anything but to supply clients with the facts concerning a company or a market situation.

The principles governing the Vancouver Stock Exchange are similar to those of London and New York. And as London's and New York's exchanges have performed great services to business in Great Britain and the United States, so must one agree that the Exchange in Vancouver has influenced investors to pay attention to industries in Western Canada.

The securities of these industries have not been affected. On the contrary the FACTS indicate even greater development. The Stock Exchange and its members stand pledged to play their part in making this progress sound and wholesome.

These four services are important to business . . . their truthful performance a matter of honor and integrity to all houses desiring continued good relations with the Public and the Stock Exchange.

This advertisement is published by Members of the Vancouver Stock Exchange in order to disseminate information concerning the functions of a Stock Exchange and the Business of Buying and Selling Securities.

HESTER BLACK DIES IN SOUTH

Was Well Known in Prince Rupert, Where She Lived Most of Her Life

Word was received in the city yesterday afternoon of the death in Vancouver yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, after a brief illness, of Miss Hester Black, daughter of the late Peter Black and Mrs. Black, pioneer residents of Prince Rupert. The news came as a great shock to many friends of the family here.

Deceased was born in Prince Rupert and was eighteen years of age. She had lived here all her life until a few years ago, when, after her father died, she moved to Vancouver with her mother. Last summer they were again here for several months.

Besides her mother, deceased leaves a brother, Peter, to mourn her loss. The surviving members of the family will receive general sympathy in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place in Vancouver.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

"Up there," said Battle. "Up the ivy again."
"Nonsense, Superintendent. What you are suggesting is impossible."
"Not at all impossible, sir. He'd done it once. He could do it twice."
"I don't mean impossible in that sense. But if the man wanted to escape, he'd never bolt back into the house."
"Safest place for him, Mr. Lomax."
"But Mr. O'Rourke's door was still locked on the inside when we came to him."
"And how did you get to him? Through Sir Stanley's room. That is the way our man went. Lady Eileen tells me she saw the door-knob of Mr. O'Rourke's door move. That was when our friend was up there the first time. I suspect the key was under Mr. O'Rourke's pillow. But his exit is clear enough the second time — through the communicating door and through Sir Stanley's room, which, of course was empty. Like every one else, Sir Stanley is rushing downstairs to the library. Our man's got a clear course."
"And where did he go then?" Superintendent Battle shrugged his burly shoulders and became evasive.

"Plenty of ways open. Into an empty room on the other side of the house and down the ivy again—out through a side door—or, just possibly, if it was an inside job, he—well, stayed in the house."

George looked at him in shocked surprise.

"Really, Battle, I should—I should feel it very deeply if one of my servants—er—I have the most perfect reliance on them—it would distress me very much to have to suspect—"

Exhibit "Z"

"Nobody's asking you to suspect any one, Mr. Lomax. I'm just putting all the possibilities before you. The servants may be all right—probably are."

"You have disturbed me," said George. "You have disturbed me greatly."

His eyes appeared more protuberant than ever.

To distract him, Jimmy poked delicately at a curious blackened object on the table.

"What's this?" he asked.

"That's exhibit 'Z,'" said Battle. "The last of our little lot. It is, or rather it has been, a glove."

He picked it up, the charred relic, and manipulated it with pride.

"Where did you find it?" asked Sir Oswald.

Battle jerked his head over his shoulder.

"In the grate—nearly burnt, but not quite. Queer: looks as though it had been chewed by a dog."

"It might possibly be Miss Wade's," suggested Jimmy. "She has several dogs."

The superintendent shook his head.

"This isn't a lady's glove—no, not even the large kind of loose glove ladies wear nowadays. Fit it on, sir, a moment."

He adjusted the blackened object over Jimmy's hand.

"You see—it's large even for you."

"Do you attach importance to this discovery?" inquired Sir Oswald coldly.

"You never know, Sir Oswald, what's going to be important or what isn't."

There was a sharp tap at the door and Bundle entered.

"I'm so sorry," she said apologetically, "but father has just rung up. He says I must come home because everybody is worrying him."

She paused.

"Yes, my dear Eileen?" said George encouragingly, perceiving that there was more to come.

"I wouldn't have interrupted you—only that I thought it might perhaps have something to do with all this. You see, what has upset father is that one of our footmen is missing. He went out last night and hasn't come back."

"What is the man's name?" It was Sir Oswald who took up the cross-examination.

"John Bauer."

"I believe he calls himself a Swiss—but I think he's a German. He speaks English perfectly, though."

"Ah!" Sir Oswald drew in his breath with a long, satisfied hiss.

"And he has been at Chimneys—how long?"

"Just under a month."

Sir Oswald turned to the other two.

The Missing Man

"Here is our missing man. You know, Lomax, as well as I do, that several foreign governments are after the thing. I remember the man now perfectly—tall, well-drilled fellow. Came about a fortnight before we left. A clever move. Any new servants here would be closely scrutinized, but at Chimneys, five miles away—" He did not finish the sentence.

"You think the plan was laid so long beforehand?"

"Why not? There are millions in that formula, Lomax. Doubtless Bauer hoped to get access to my private papers at Chimneys, and to learn something of forthcoming arrangements from them. It seems likely that he may have had an accomplice in this house—some one who put him wise to the lie of the land and who saw to the doping of O'Rourke. But Bauer was the man Miss Wade saw climbing down the ivy—the big, powerful man."

He turned to Superintendent Battle.

"Bauer was your man, Superintendent. And, somehow or other, you let him slip through your fingers."

BUNDLE WONDERS

There was no doubt that Superintendent Battle was taken aback. He fingered his chin thoughtfully.

"Sir Oswald is right, Battle," said George. "This is the man. Any hope of catching him?"

"There may be, sir. It certainly looks—well, suspicious. Of course, the man may turn up again—at Chimneys, I mean."

"Do you think it likely?"

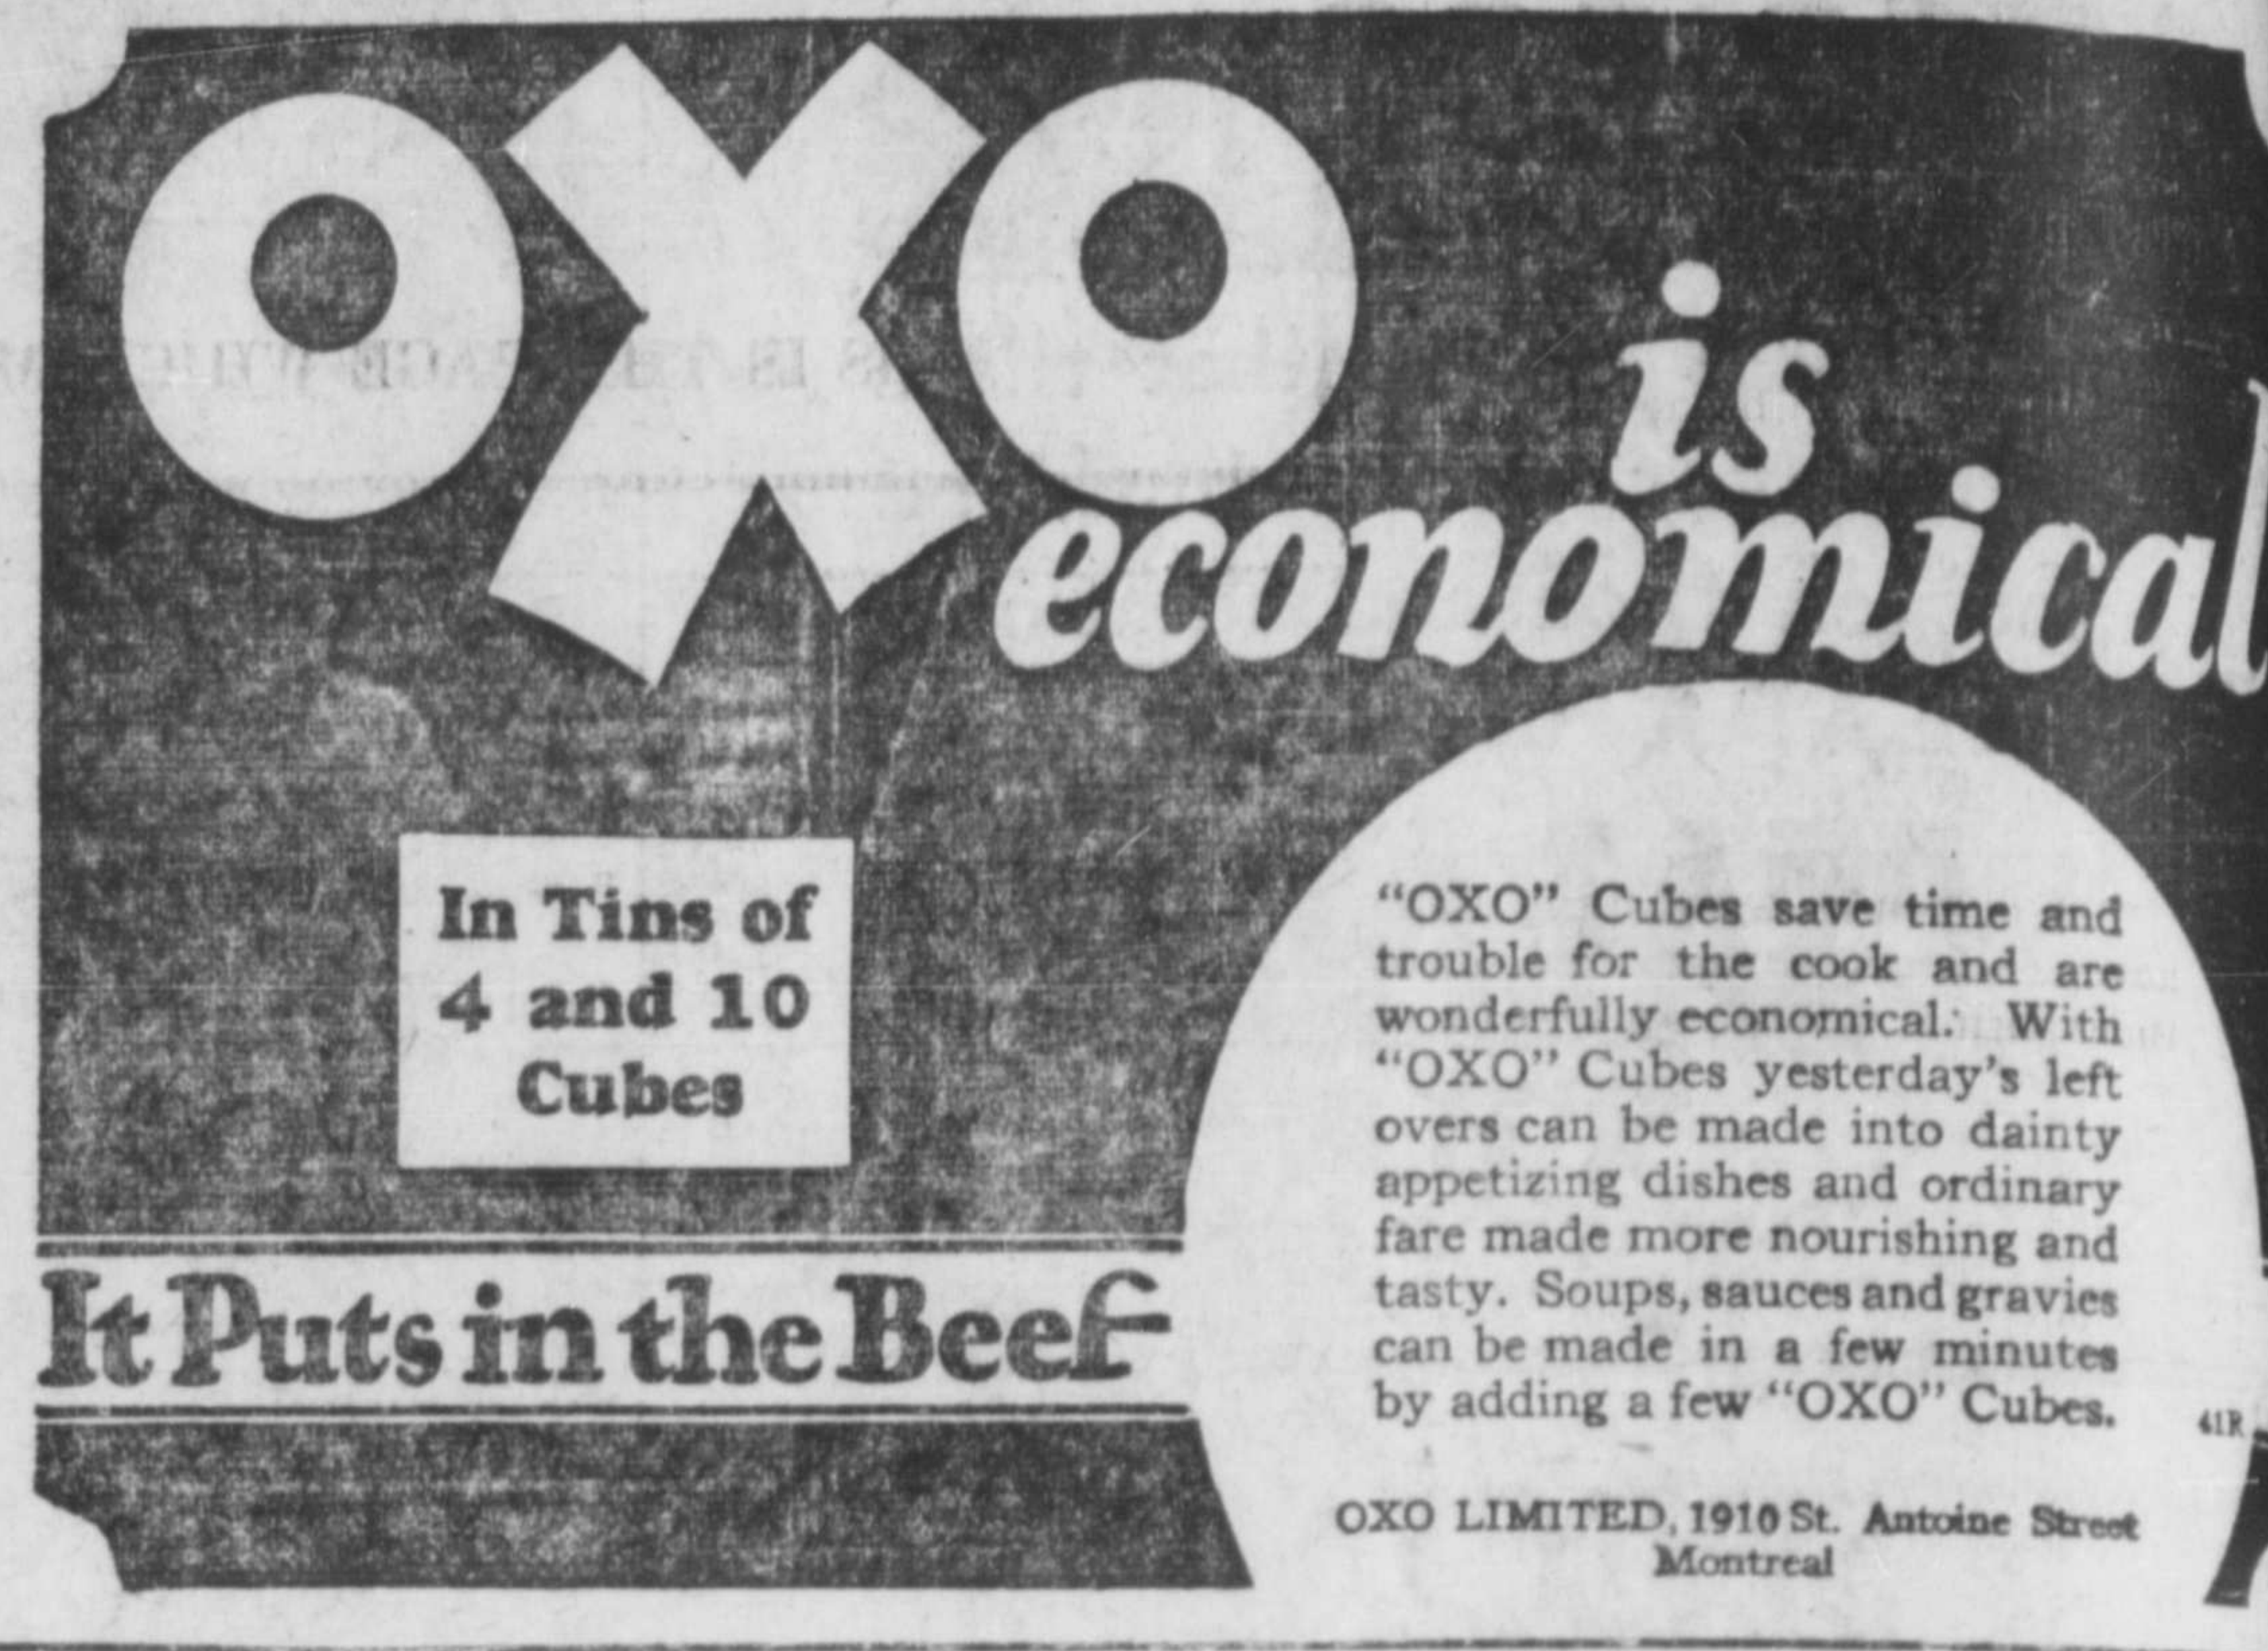

"No, it isn't," confessed Battle. "Yes, it certainly looks as though Bauer were the man. But I can't quite see how he got in and out of these grounds unobserved."

"I have already told you my opinion of the men you posted," said George. "Hopelessly inefficient—I don't want to blame you, Superintendent, but—" His pause was eloquent.

"Ah, well," said Battle lightly, "my shoulders are broad."

He shook his head and sighed.

"I must get to the telephone at once. Excuse me, gentlemen. I'm sorry, Mr. Lomax—I feel I've rather bungled this business. But it's been puzzling, more puzzling than you know."

He strode hurriedly from the room.

"Come into the garden," said Bundle to Jimmy. "I want to talk to you."

They went out together through the window. Jimmy stared down at the lawn, frowning.

"What's the matter?" asked Bundle.

Jimmy explained the circumstances of the pistol throwing.

An Extraordinary Man

"I'm wondering," he ended, "what was in old Battle's mind when he got Cootie to throw the pistol. Something, I'll swear. Anyhow, it landed up about 10 yards farther than it should have done."

You know, Bundle, Battle's a deep one."

"He's an extraordinary man," said Bundle. "I want to tell you about last night."

She retold her conversation with the superintendent. Jimmy listened attentively.

"So the Countess is No. 1," he said thoughtfully. "It all hangs together very well. No. 2—Bauer—comes over from Chimneys. He climbs up into O'Rourke's room, knowing that O'Rourke has had a sleeping draft administered to him—by the Countess somehow or other. The arrangement is that he is to throw down the papers to the Countess, who will be waiting below. Then she'll nip back through the library and up to her room. If Bauer's caught leaving the place, they'll find nothing on him. Yes, it was a good plan—but it went pays.

wrong. No sooner is the Countess in the library than she comes coming and has to jump behind the screen. Jolly awkward for her because she can't warn her accomplice. No. 2 pinches the papers, looks out of the window, sees he thinks, the Countess was waiting, pitches the papers down to the ivy, where he finds a nasty surprise in the shape of me waiting for him. Pretty nifty work for the Countess waiting behind the screen. All things considered, she told a pretty good story. Yes, it hangs together very well."

"Too well," said Bundle decisively.

"Eh?" said Jimmy, surprised.

MUSIC CLUB GUEST DAY

Story of Opera Erminie Told and Illustrative Songs and Choruses Given

Guest day at the Ladies' Music Club was a very interesting, instructive and enjoyable event. Miss Lennox of the Japanese mission was in charge, the gathering taking place at the Cathedral Hall with the president, Mrs. R. L. McIntosh, in the chair. The platform had been suitably and artistically decorated by members of the Japanese mission, a lych-gate and greenery being the chief feature.

The program consisted of a study of the light opera Erminie by Edward Jakovsky in three acts.

The story of the opera was told by Miss Lennox in a very interesting paper. It revolves around a beautiful girl, Erminie, and her lover, Eugene, although in the play they divide the honors of importance with two thieves, Ravennes and Cadeau. The play shows scenes in the birthday celebration of Erminie in whose honor a fete is held in the village and there is a grand ball in the evening. The program of musical numbers follows:

Program

- Overture—Mrs. Eddie Smith.
- Opening Chorus—Miss Olafson.
- Solo—"When Love is Young" Mrs. Jarvis McLeod and chorus consisting of Mrs. Cullen, Mrs. Ableson and Mrs. D. Ross.
- Duet—"Past and Future," Mrs. Miller and Mr. Lincoln.
- Gavotte—Miss Olafson.
- Chorus—"Here our Lord and Lady Wait." "Women's Dress"—Mrs. Allen and chorus.
- Solo—"Darkest the Hour," Mrs. Anderson.
- Solo—"The Sighing Swain," Mrs. J. H. Carson.
- Solo—"What the Dickbirds say," Mrs. Cullen.
- "Lullaby"—Mrs. Ross and chorus.
- "Goodnight"—Chorus, consisting of Mesdames Allen, Ableson, Cullen and Ross, Mr. Blott and Mr. Lincoln.
- Refreshments were served at the close. Mrs. Bushby pouring tea and Mrs. Parkin, coffee. Those serving included Mrs. James Farquhar, Mrs. Ableson, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Heilbroner, Mrs. Ernest Anderson and Mrs. S. D. Johnston.

RECITAL IS MEMORABLE

Large Audience Delighted By Frederic van Werkhoven

Although Prince Rupert is some distance from the larger centres, the city is blessed occasionally by the visit from outstanding artists. Such a visitation took place last evening, when Frederic van Werkhoven gave a piano-forte recital at the First United Church. The church was packed, and the large audience listened with rapt attention to the program given. They testified their appreciation of the quality of the playing by the applause and at the close the distinguished artist thanked his audience for the kind reception.

There was no superfluity of technique, nothing spectacular for the sake of effect, but a technical brilliant and sufficient to meet the needs of the difficult and effective compositions played. Each and every solo was played with the careless ease which betokens a mastery of his art and instrument.

The theme of the Moonlight Sonata was wonderfully well done. Its tonal qualities were brought out in a haunting manner. Rachmaninoff was understood and the Preludes played were satisfying. Mr. van Werkhoven possesses power and delicacy and his recital will be an event to be remembered. Greig's Concerto in A minor was unforgettable; an encore was asked, and he favored with an exquisite solo of his own composition.

The third item on the program introduced W. Beaumont, cellist. Rupert is the richer for having in its midst one who plays the cello as he does. He is heard seldom, but last evening the audience showed their appreciation of his very delightful playing. How splendidly they played together! The accompanist was worthy the cellist and the cellist worthy his accompanist. Nothing so exquisite has been heard here for some time.

Mr. van Werkhoven's own compositions were unusual and worthy of recognition. The whole entertainment was an outstanding one and it made a strong appeal to the musical people present. The program was as follows:

- 1—Moonlight Sonata, Beethoven, piano solo.
- 2—Polonaise in Ab Major, Chopin, piano solo.
- 3—(a) Solweig's Song, Ed. Greig; (b) Eolian, Walter Alcock; cello solo.
- 4—Scherzo in Bb Minor, Chopin, piano solo.
- 5—(a) Prelude in G Minor, Rachmaninoff; (b) Prelude in C Sharp Minor, Rachmaninoff; piano solo.
- 6—Arléquin, David Popper, cello solo.
- 7—(a) Nocturne for Left Hand Alone, Schubert; (b) Tracks on the Snow, Werkhoven; (c) Fantasia Impromptu, Chopin; piano solo.
- 8—Piano Concerto in A Minor, 3rd Pt., Ed. Greig, piano solo.
- 9—(a) Serenade, G. Pierné; (b) Ase's Tod, Ed. Greig; cello solo.
- 10—(a) Prelude in G Minor, Werkhoven; (b) Intermezzo, Werkhoven; (c) Prelude in Ab Major, Werkhoven; piano solo.
- 11—Sonata, 2nd Movement, Ed. Greig, piano and cello.
- God Save the King.

Fisheries Are Discussed by a Committee

Last night the fisheries committee of the city council, under the chairmanship of Alderman Rudderham, met Fred Mathers of the B. C. Packers and Charles Lord, representing the salmon fishermen, and talked over the whole situation at length. No decision was arrived at but it is understood another gathering will be held tomorrow evening when a number of those directly or indirectly interested in the fisheries will be present. The committee consisted of Aldermen Rudderham, Brown and Pullen.

Several of the newer members of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club gave "Who's Who" talks at the regular weekly luncheon of the club today. Among them were H. A. DeWulfe, G. E. Gulick and J. J. Little. President G. A. Bryant was in the chair.
