Relief Allotment For British Columbia Is Decided By Dominion

Sum of $900,000 to Be Donated For Unemployment But Premier Tolmie Has Not Yet Indicated His Acceptance of Amount

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—Senator Gideon Robertson, minister of labor, announced last night that he had intimated to Premier Tolmie of British Columbia by telegram that the Dominion government was prepared to donate $900,000 towards a program of public works construction to be carried out under unemployment relief in that province jointly between the municipalities, the province and the Dominion. At a late hour last night, Senator Robertson said that he had not yet received an answer to the telegram from Premier Tolmie.

Agreements were negotiated yesterday by the Dominion authorities with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island for their participation in the $20,000,000 unemployment relief scheme.

JOHN STARK HAS PASSED

Pioneer Prospector of North Passed Away at Anyox

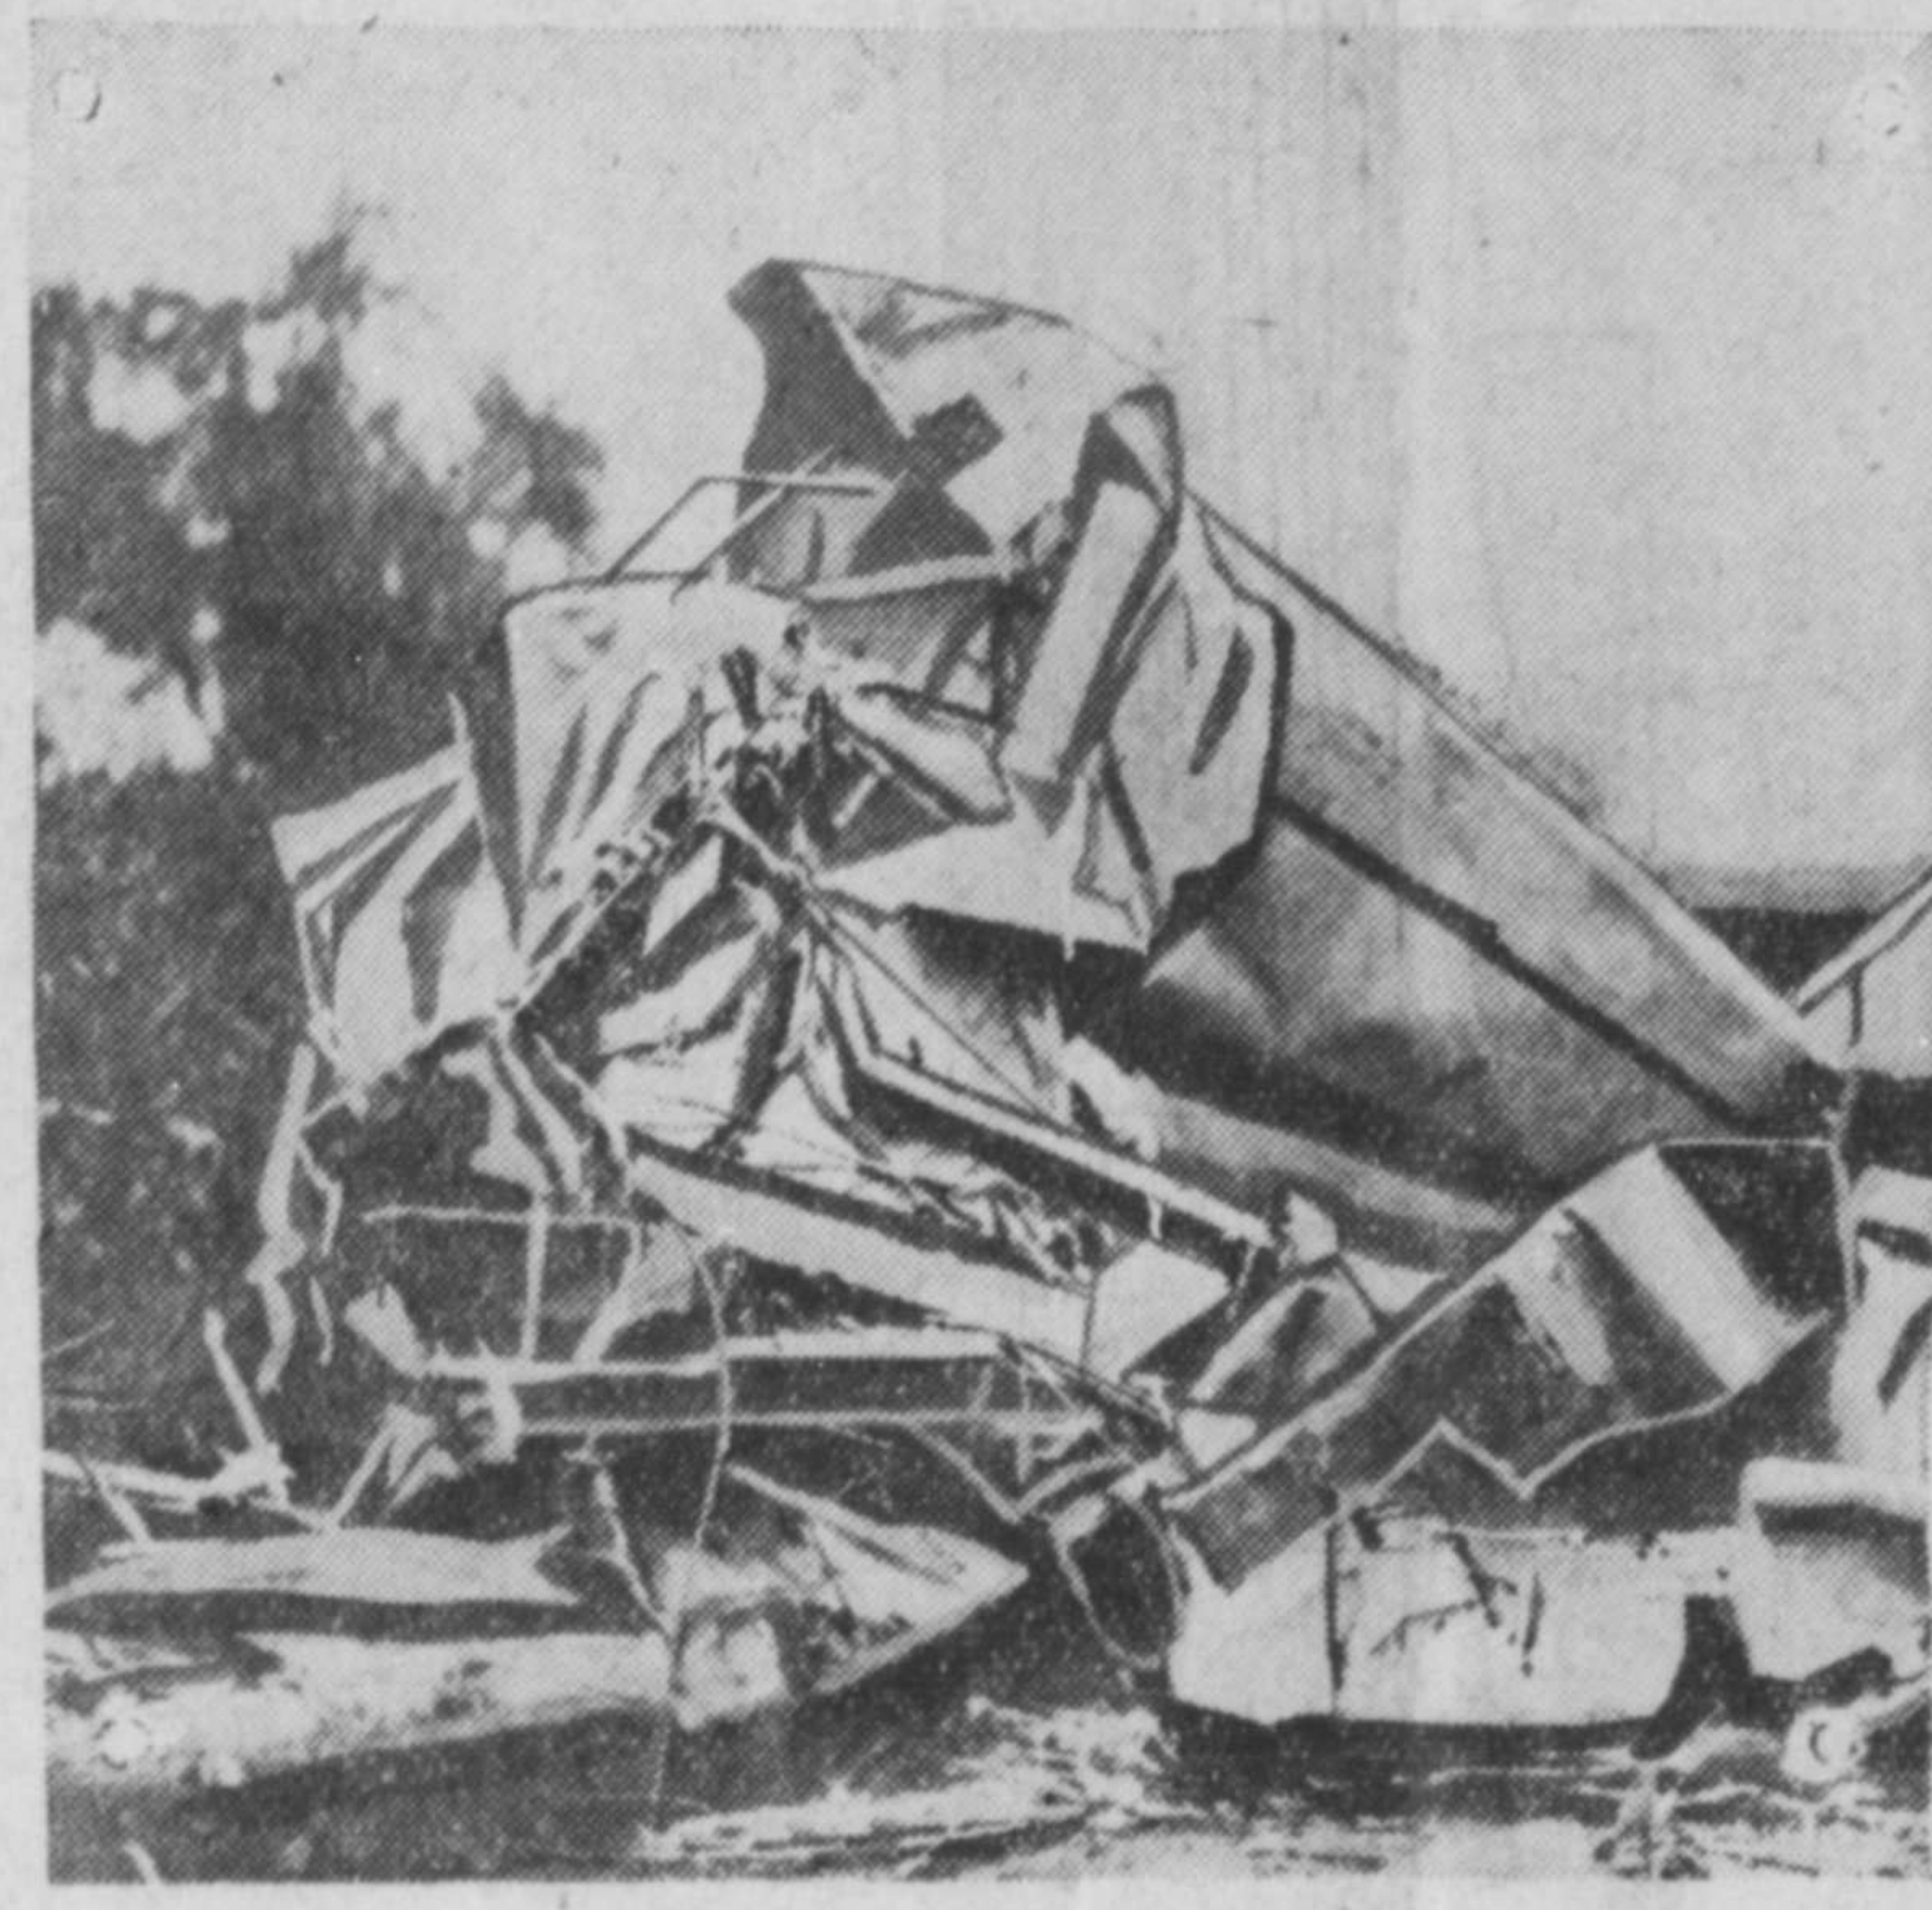

STEWART, Oct. 7.—The death of John Stark at Anyox last week has brought back to many old timers in Stewart the days of 1900-05 when Stark was one of the most active prospectors in this district. His death recalls some very interesting facts and figures surrounding the early history of the Portland Canal.

A party which included D. J. Rainey came to the canal in 1898 on the representations of a bunko artist and, as they were mainly after placer mining, most of them left sadly disappointed. One of the party a colored man named Cook, had some knowledge of prospecting and he it was who found the float that aroused the interest of Dad Rainey who went back east to Michigan and formed a company. Returning to the district in 1900, he staked the first claims known as the Roosevelt group, on Bitter Creek. The second group to be staked was at Maple Creek, by Wm. Noble; the third was the Red Cliff, by Noble and Rainey; and the fourth was the Mountain Boy, by Pap Stewart. All these claims were staked in 1902.

Some good copper float was found, which gave assays of $70.00 in gold and 17% copper. This was shown to M. K. Rodgers by Wm. Noble, and on Noble's recommendation Stark was sent up to look over the ground. He staked about 150 claims along the Bear River, and here Mr. Noble pays him the tribute of saying that he (Stark) could get over more ground than any man he ever knew. In those days there were no trails or bridges. The first cable to be put across the Bear River was put in by Noble and Stark in three days, on the site of the present bridge, in 1904.

John Stark was one of the best known and best liked prospectors in this northern country, and his passing will be sincerely regretted by the many men who knew him in the early days.

MacDonald Government Endorsed Today at Annual Conference of Labor Party at Llandudno, Wales

LLANDUDNO, Wales, Oct. 7.—An amendment sponsored by the Independent Labor Party which would have censured the Labor Government of England for failure to solve the unemployment problem was defeated at the Labor Party's national conference here today. The majority against the amendment was about a million and a half proxy votes. James Maxton, leader of the Independent Labor Party threw his support to the government, at the same time criticizing it. He urged the government to go to the polls to seek a majority but he said: "We can't throw the Prime Minister overboard as we did J. H. Thomas. If the Prime Minister goes, the government goes." If the government was unable to carry out a labor policy, it should seek a majority, he said.

TROUBLE IS DENIED

NICE, France, Oct. 7.—Reports published abroad that trouble had arisen aboard the British cruiser Revenge, which is anchored in Gulf Juan Harbor near here, were denied by authoritative sources today. It was announced that two sailors had been listed as deserters but officials said that nothing had occurred to justify rumors that the sailors were in revolt at conditions aboard the cruiser.

Parts of Airship Were Five Miles From Point Where Crash Occurred

Many Theories Voiced In England About Disaster—Destroyers Have Gone to Get Bodies—None Have So Far Been Identified

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Air Commander A. V. Holt, chief British investigator, was stated by the newspaper Le Temps last night to have advised the British government that the cause of the disaster to the dirigible R-101 on Sunday morning was a rupture of the metallic framework and not a derangement of the engine. The British expert based his view on the finding of metal parts of the dirigible five miles from where she crashed.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Theories as to the cause of the R-101 disaster ranged yesterday all the way from structural defects to inability to manoeuvre in a storm. As related here, the ship, when six or seven miles out of Cardington, began to respond sluggishly to control and started to wobble in the storm. Rain poured down in torrents and, gathering on the sides of the dirigible, added weight to the airship necessitating dropping of ballast. South of Beauvais, the dirigible slumped down into the valley, bumped once or twice slightly against the ground and then, falling to rise above the encircling rim of the valley, crashed into the hillside. The explosion followed immediately.

Pilot H. J. Leach believes that the crash may have snapped an electric connection and caused a spark which ignited the highly inflammable hydrogen lifting gas or that friction of some of the metal girders as they were roused may have brought the fatal spark.

Almost no one in authority lays any significance on the fact that smoking was permitted in dirigibles. Lack of buoyancy may have been due to rain gathering on the sides of the envelope but observers recall that, at her departure from Cardington, the ship rose only twenty feet or so.

Major G. H. Scott, one of those who perished and who also made the trip to Canada in the R-100, is reported by a friend to have "seemed to have some doubts on the question of the ship's lift."

Then, too, it is possible the ship may have suffered some damage in the storm such as the loss of a fin.

BEAUVAIS, France, Oct. 7.—While vigorous investigations were under way today into the loss of 48 lives in the wrecking of the airship R-101, two destroyers were on their way to France to bear home to sorrowing England the bodies of the victims. Despite the most searching examinations not a single body has been identified.

The presence of one stowaway and, possibly, two aboard the R-101 was admitted by John Holt, air commander and head of the British investigating committee.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The French cabinet decided yesterday that Tuesday (today) should be observed a day of national mourning throughout France for the victims of the R-101 disaster.

Taking Bodies Home

BEAUVAIS, October 7.—Thirty thousand people lined the street of this little city today as the procession of caissons bearing forty seven bodies of victims of the R-101 disaster Sunday morning were taken from Beauvais City Hall to the railroad station. They were placed reverentially on a special train which takes them to Boulogne-sur-Mer where they will be placed aboard the destroyers Tempest and Tribune for the trip across the Channel to home in England and their resting place in a single grave.

Thirty French airplanes hovered over the procession sometimes swooping so low as to scatter the frightened crowds.

France today paid its highest honor to the victims—a national day of mourning. Premier Tardieu left the cares of government and came to Beauvais. All festivities were suspended throughout France and flags everywhere were at half mast.

The official death list is now placed at forty-seven and nothing has developed to confirm rumors that a stowaway or a woman may have been on board. Five bodies—all members of the crew—are the only remains that it has been possible to identify.

HANSON'S SPEECH

Olof Hanson seems to have made a good start with his House of Commons address. It was brief but to the point. The text of the event as published in Hansard showed that he was not speaking for himself and could not possibly benefit personally from the work proceeding as proposed by him. This is mentioned because there had been some criticism of the speech as originally reported.

BENNETT AT CONFERENCE

Apparently Premier Bennett is one of the most important figures at the conference in London. He is listened to with respect as the representative of the largest Dominion. We are all glad to know that we have a man of the right calibre at the gathering. While not as picturesque a figure as Mackenzie King, yet he will uphold the honor and prestige of the Canadian nation in a worthy manner.

HUMOR AT VANCOUVER

J. Butterfield, writing in the Province says: "I have before me a long article culled from the Province about the doings of the Conservative Association. It is very interesting. It appears that the Conservatives are not in so very good shape around here. And it also appears that Mr. William Dick has been asking questions and not getting the answers he wants.

"Now, it happens that I went in to buy a pair of trousers a few weeks ago when I was in Vancouver, and Mr. Dick (in person) discovered me. And while I was waiting for the trousers, Mr. Dick engaged me in conversation.

"Knowing very well that the finger of this person is always upon the pulse of the public, he asked me what was actually the matter with the present Conservative government. And I told him.

"I told him that in the first place a man who has made a success of his own business is not necessarily a good minister of finance. I told him that a lawyer with a tremendous income and a poor grasp of the necessities of the moment is not necessarily a good attorney-general. I told him that Brother Pat Maitland's poetic and picturesque references to the beauty and productivity of every Canadian province from Halifax to Vancouver did not really constitute great political speaking, and I told him that I didn't know a d---d thing about the Premier.

"And I told him I was a Conservative.

NATURAL RELIEF FOR MOST PREVALENT DISEASE

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Eaten by Millions Daily to Prevent Constipation and Anemia

Constipation has been truly described as the curse of modern life. Its poisons cause countless ills—headaches, listlessness, indigestion—often serious disease.

Yet it can be relieved and prevented in an easy, pleasant, natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. It adds thoroughness to your diet that sweeps the system clean of all waste and insures regular elimination.

This delicious ready-to-eat cereal also helps prevent and relieve anemia. Scientific research shows that it is rich in iron—nearly all of which is absorbed, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Isn't it much wiser to relieve constipation with this healthful cereal than to take pills and drugs that only give temporary help and are often dangerous?

Be sure to add Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any reducing diet. Doctors recommend it.
If you wish to bid goodbye forever to constipation and its companion physical troubles, just begin eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Your grocer has it. It is served everywhere—in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. With cream or milk is one popular way to eat it. When sprinkled over cereals or soups, it adds flavor, as in cooked foods. Soak it in fruit juice. Whatever the style of eating, it is equally effective. In the red-and-green package—made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Improved in Taste and Texture.

Leaves From Fall's Fashion Tree

The Style Battle Is Finally Over

No More Atrocities

The style battle which began in feminine camps last fall is finally over. An armistice with good taste has been signed for which I, for one, give thanks. No more of the atrocities we suffered last year in the name of style. The longer skirts and the new silhouette have won, to be sure. But no longer do they run rampant, with no regard for the hour or the occasion or the person who is wearing them. The rules for the game of smartness have been made much more strict this season. This makes the game more interesting—but you will have to watch your step!

Stars in the Evening Mode

What with the extremely dressy afternoon modes being worn, the French designers have had to call on beads, fringe, embroidery to give the proper glamour to the evening styles. And so we have Mirande showing a lovely formal of topaz yellow georgette trimmed with strands of pale topaz colored crystal beads to form a double row of fringe on the bodice and tunic. We have deep silk fringe on satin fringe so long it reaches from neckline to waist—from hips to the hem. Yet there is nothing "fussy" about these frocks... their lines are looser than itself. Most of them are fitted nicely to the figure, curved just enough with no deep indentation where the waist occurs. At the knee they gradually break into a circular fullness which keeps increasing until it reaches a billow of loveliness just missing the floor in front, just brushing the floor in back. Velvets, satins, brocades... all the lustrous fabrics are good this year for formals... though lace, chiffon and georgette are also used extensively.

The Baffling Hat Mystery

"How ever will they stay on?" was my first question about the new hats they are wearing perched way back on the head. But stay on they do, inexplicable as it may seem. They are really just half crowns, and give a rakish, debonnaire effect that hats haven't had for many a season. Small shapes are the thing... beret effects and turbans predominating. Tricorns, too, are very smart. Hair shows under all of them... no more bald effects over forehead and ears. Very soft felt is used freely... so is velvet. Fabric hats of tweed and jersey are not to be overlooked. Agnes is showing hand-knitted hats combining wool and chenille which look very much like a rag off... but when you put them on they are marvels of chic. Little knifelike feathers in bright colors adorn not only hats of the sports type but the more formal ones, too. When hats have brims they are of the doubled variety, which gives a grace of line and a sophistication of roll that the tall women, especially, will love.

Shoes in Step With 1930

Simplicity without plainness seems to be the keynote of the new shoes for autumn. Suedes have a busy season ahead... they fit so perfectly into fall's more formal fashion picture. Bronze kid, too, is very smart for formal afternoon wear. The tendency is toward pumps of the step-in variety... sometimes with a simulated strap... sometimes with a tongue effect. Oxfords are promised a tremendous popularity, too, for fall... and one-strap shoes are always good. Clever combinations of leather are the rule... pin seal, reptiles, gunmetal, gold and silver kidskins are favored trimmings on suede and plain kid and calf. Fabric shoes play a dual role for afternoon and evening—dyed, of course, to harmonize with the costume. As for heels, they are lower for informal daytime hours, the height of the heel increasing with the length of the frock according to the formality of the occasion.

Up in Favor Go Cloth Frocks

Sheep seem to be stealing some of the silk worm's thunder this season... we find such a marked tendency toward cloth frocks. Of course, the biggest scoop of the season is wool lace... introduced by Chanel. Some people might consider them a bit rococo... but I for one think them a charming fashion. They are very feminine and decidedly practical... for wool lace doesn't wrinkle, stretch, sag or show spots. It is wonderfully versatile... nonchalantly appearing on the golf course for active sports... and then turning up again in the evening for a formal dinner and dance. Of course, I don't mean to imply that the very same frock does all this, but merely that the fabric itself, according to its treatment, runs the gamut from sports to formal. Jersey, either ribbed, lace or plain, takes unto itself new honors this season... as do wool crepe, covert, and the lovely lightweight tweeds. Brown is a favored color... vagabond green, independence blue and bacchante wine are good... but black is smartest of all. As for the styling of these little cloth frocks... ninety nine per cent of them are flared of skirt... and each has little individualities of detail which give distinction to them. Also the jumper frock with separate blouse, either of silk or wool, to suit the temperature, is staging a comeback for sports.

Velvet Again

"It's all velvet" this year... velvet suits, velvet coats and velvet frocks. Here, as in other fabrics, black in the smartest color. The velvet evening gown is in the limelight.

NEXT GAME TOMORROW

Both Philadelphia and St. Louis Will Make Strong Bid on Sixth World Series Match

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The World Series, baseball classic of the year, will be resumed here tomorrow by the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals. The teams are today travelling east from St. Louis where the third, fourth and fifth games of the series were played. The sixth game will take place tomorrow and, if Philadelphia wins, they will have taken their fourth victory and the second world championship in succession. A win for the Cardinals tomorrow, however, would tie the series up three all and make the seventh and deciding game necessary on Thursday.

The Athletics now have a decided edge on the series. That they will win at least one of the two games at home is pretty well conceded by baseball observers even if Connie Mack is running short of pitchers.

Both teams will make a set on tomorrow's game. The Athletics are now anxious to have it over and through with and, of course, the Cardinals will have to win tomorrow to keep in the running.

Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics made no forecast today except to say that he had faith in his boys.

Gabby Street, boss of the Cardinals, was very optimistic. "We can win two straight from the Athletics," he said, "and this we will do. We have done it already in this series and we can do it again."

Wild Bill Hallahan will pitch for the Cardinals tomorrow and Geo. Earnshaw or Lefty Grove or both will do a turn for the House of Mack. Cornelius McGillicuddy is evidently depending on these two to win the series for him.

Sidewalks to Be Constructed

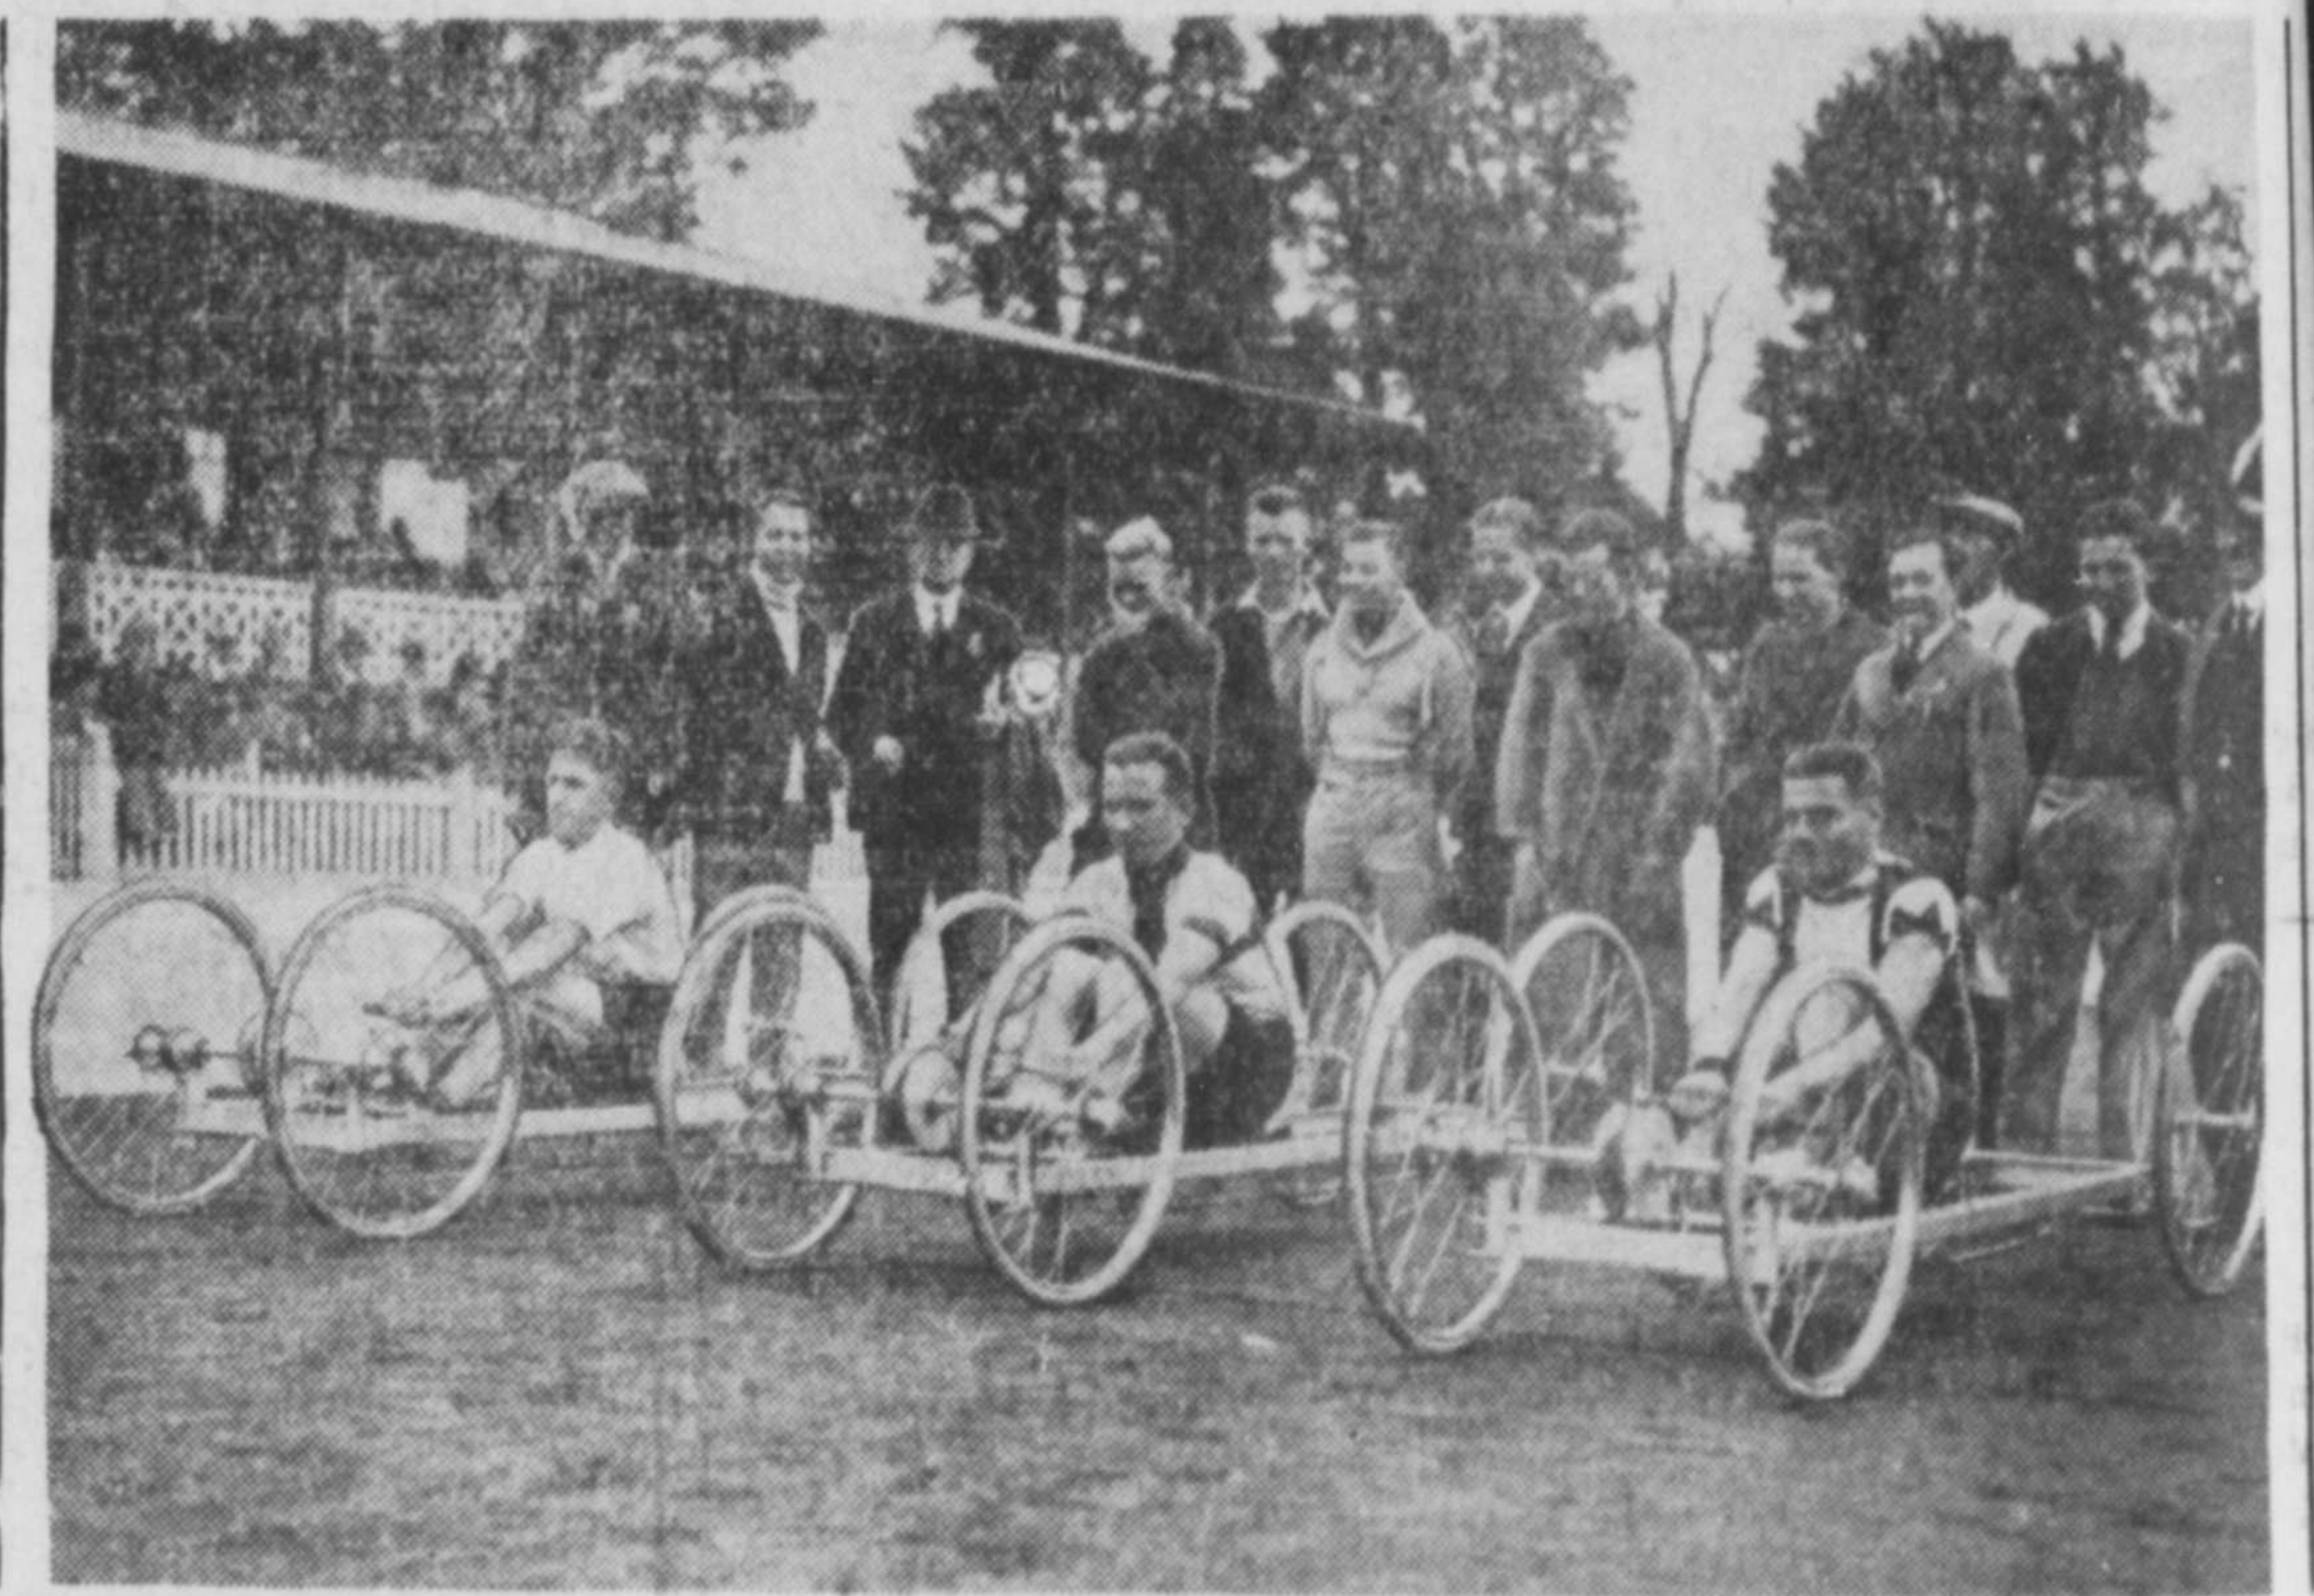

All But One of Eight Bylaws Accepted By Owners of Property On Several Streets

All the sidewalk paving bylaws on Second and Third Avenues with one exception, have been accepted by the owners and will come up for final ratification, probably at the next meeting of the city council. The one exception is a part of Second Avenue where they are talking of asking for a wooden walk.

This will leave the only part unpaved that small section between the Brooksbank Apartments on Third Avenue and McBride Street.

The engineer reports that sidewalk construction on Third Avenue will commence in a few days, just as soon as the creosoted lumber is available.

Other sidewalk bylaws will be before the city council in the near future.

Competitors lined up at Herts Hill track, England, recently for start of demonstration race with new land-skiffs, which was positively their first public appearance.

NEW CHURCH AT STEWART

United Congregation Decide to Go Ahead With Building

STEWART, Oct. 7.—Members of the United Church at a meeting last week, decided to go ahead with the building of a church here and to that end work will be started this week. The church owns two lots on Eighth Street, opposite the hospital, and these are already partially cleared by volunteer labor.

Since Rev. James Dewar first started services in Stewart last year the United Church has been growing rapidly and its members feel that the time for building their own church is now opportune. Heretofore services have been held in the Legion and Moose Halls. Rev. Ivan Baker is the resident pastor.

To Take Charge Of Radio Station

R. G. Emmerson Arrives From Dead Tree Point to Take Over Duties Here

R. G. Emmerson, for several years in charge of Dead Tree Point wireless station, arrived in the city on the Prince William yesterday morning from the Islands to take over the permanent appointment as chief operator here succeeding H. D. Tee, who was appointed radio inspector for Saskatchewan some months ago.

C. A. Moses, who has been relieving as chief operator here, will take a month's holiday in the south before proceeding to Dead Tree to take charge.

Before their departure from Dead Tree, a large party of friends motored from Skidegate and Queen Charlotte City to bid Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson God Speed. On behalf of the people of Skidegate Inlet a slate totem pole was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson. These people would have petitioned the government to have Mr. Emmerson left at Dead Tree but he explained that the move would be best for the schooling of the children.

Mr. Emmerson was in the naval service at Halifax at the time of the disaster and they lost one of their children in that blast. It was weeks before Mr. Emmerson could find out what had happened to his family as the only word he received of the disaster was by wireless on the boat on which he was operator. Shortly after he received leave from this boat, it was torpedoed by the Germans.

CHURCH HAS BIG DINNER

Large Crowd at United Church Anniversary Banquet Last Night; Speeches and Music

There was such a large attendance at the annual anniversary banquet of First United Church last night that it took two table sittings to accommodate all. The affair was most successful and enjoyable.

The banquet tables were beautifully adorned with dahlias and other fall flowers and were laden with all manner of good things to eat. After full justice had been done to this end of the proceedings an acceptable program of speeches and music commenced.

Rev. Alfred Wilson, the pastor was toastmaster and he punctuated his various remarks with witticisms and interesting anecdotes.

In opening the program, Mr. Wilson welcomed members of other congregations who were present. He then called upon Rev. C. E. Motte, pastor of Rupert East United Church, who, after a humorous opening, welcomed Mr. Wilson back after his holiday trip to England. Mr. Motte then spoke on church matters—national and local—and made an appeal for support of missionary work. He paid tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Dunn, retiring moderator, who had recently died.

Another pleasant feature of the evening's proceedings was the honoring of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kirkpatrick, long active workers of the church, who are leaving here next week to take up residence in Victoria. After due mention had been made of the support Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick had accorded the church, Mrs. W. T. Kerigin presented Mrs. Kirkpatrick with a beautiful silver flower basket while T. J. Shenton made Mr. Kirkpatrick the gift of a handsome fountain pen. Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick both replied and both expressed the many regrets they had at leaving Prince Rupert.

A toast to the Ladies' Aid was proposed by Frank Derry and seconded by George A. Edgecombe. Both spoke suitably.

During the proceedings there was lively community singing under the leadership of J. S. Wilson. An acceptable musical program included vocal solos by C. C. Kennedy, J. S. Wilson, Miss Edna Vickers and J. W. Plommer. Two numbers were sung by a group of choir members. Accompanists were Mrs. A. Wilson and Miss E. P. Grassie.

Among the ladies who assisted with the dinner were Mrs. Frank

Do You Play Bridge ??

THE chap who overbids his hand always loses in the long run. No person can continually bid what he hasn't got and make it.

Business in one way is something like a game of bridge . . . with merchants and manufacturers playing for your patronage. You want furniture and breakfast foods, books and clothes, radios, cigarettes and toys, groceries, fruits, vegetables, etc.—they want to sell you theirs. They bid with advertising.

The merchant who advertises an unworthy product can't win. He is simply inducing more people to find out in a shorter time how poor it is. He is overbidding his hand, and is bound to get set. Losing is too costly . . . depend upon it, products that are advertised must be good!

The advertisements in this newspaper are guides to the finest merchandise of every sort, merchandise carefully and faithfully made, of certain, honest value. You can trust the manufacturers who write them.

It pays to read the advertisements. They are bids backed by products that can compete in the open . . . and win.
