Col. Hiam Tells Prince Rupert Audience at Women's Canadian Club Dinner of League of Nations

Prince Rupert people who had the pleasure last evening of hearing Col. Thomas A. Hiam speak before the Women's Canadian Club were induced to believe that world peace is a much more tangible and immediate thing than many had supposed. Col. Hiam, in a pleasing and concise address, told of the work that is being accomplished toward this goal by the League of Nations. He described in a graphic way the great international organization that is being built up at Geneva to preserve the peace of the world and gave details of some crises that the league had already been instrumental in settling through diplomatic effort and practical solution. Mrs. R. F. McNaughton, president of the Women's Canadian Club, was in the chair. Besides the guest of honor and the president, there were seated at the head table past presidents and officers of the club. All the accommodation that had been provided was fully taken up.

The assistant to the president of the Canadian National Railways is well qualified to speak on the subject of "The League of Nations." For nine and a half years he was associated with the league as technical adviser for railways. Col. Hiam was on the Big Missouri mine, of which Stewart mine he was a part owner, when he received the call to go to London to join the league service. He told how the league was an outcome of in which it was provided that the first clause in the peace treaty machinery should be established to preserve the future peace of the world. This was known as the Covenant of the League of Nations.

The League of Nations was at first regarded with lack of seriousness on the part of the governments of the nations. However, that had changed and, at the last assembly of the league last September, there were no less than eleven prime ministers of various nations in attendance. Nine-tenths of the population of the world was now represented in the league. Its work was not entirely of a theoretical nature but instead was highly practical. The league consisted, Col. Hiam explained, of the nations who signed the covenant. These nations now numbered fifty-four in all. Russia, Mexico and United States were the only nations who had persistently stood outside the league. Others such as Spain and Argentine had threatened to retire but were still members. Brazil, which could not obtain a seat on the council, was the only nation which had actually dropped out. Apart from Russia, Mexico, United States and Brazil, the league was universal and some of its greatest support was received from Germany and others of the so-called ex-enemy countries.

Col. Hiam discussed the matter of why the United States, one of the original founders of the league through the late President Wilson, had not seen fit to join the league as yet. All negotiations were subject to ratification by the United States Congress and it had been unfortunate that President Wilson had fallen into disfavor, the country declining to have anything to do with anything he had been associated with. The league had suffered a political fate, as far as the United States was concerned.

That United States would join the league within the space of the next few years was confidently predicted by Col. Hiam. The attitude of that country toward the league was changing. An American office had been opened at Geneva and, through the contributions of its citizens, the United States was giving more to the financial support of the league than any other nation. The country was represented at all meetings of the league and had only recently joined the International Council. Without United States there would always be a great leakage where international pressure might be brought to bear. Col. Hiam expressed the belief that the league could get along very nicely without either Russia, Mexico or Brazil.

League Organization

Col. Hiam explained the constitutional organization of the league. First there was the annual assembly every September with delegates from all the countries of the world in attendance. The last session had been of about one month's duration.

There was also the council or executive body consisting of sixteen members, five of whom were permanent and the remainder elective each year.

The permanent secretariat carried on the routine work of the league. This was presided over by Sir Eric Drummond, a great Scotchman, who received a salary of $50,000 a year and, naturally, wielded great influence. He had the task of choosing his collaborators numbering about 500 persons who were drawn from all nations of the world. (Continued on page two.)

George Sylvester, who has charge of the Langara Fishing & Packing Co.'s clam cannery at Tow HHI, arrived in the city on the Princess Norah this morning from Vancouver, where he has been spending a vacation, and will sail tonight on the Prince John to make preparations for the reopening of the plant. The cannery has been closed down since December and is expected to resume operations about March 1. A good deal of new and up-to-date machinery is to be installed in the plant.

TORIES ARE SATISFIED

Passage of Fraser River Salmon Treaty to Be Arranged by Bennett

VANCOUVER, Jan. 11.—A Victoria despatch to the Vancouver Province yesterday said: "When Hon. R. B. Bennett reaches Victoria it is expected that efforts will be made to bring him and the British Columbia government together in assuring the passage of the Fraser River sockeye conservation treaty at the forthcoming session of parliament. "Meanwhile, it is understood here that a number of British Columbia members who were doubtful about the treaty at the last session of parliament have investigated it in the recess and are satisfied now that Premier Tolmie, the chief champion of the pact, is right in his conviction that it fully protects Canadian interests."

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavy-weight champion and aspirant for the world's title, knocked out Battling Tiger Johnny Cline of San Francisco here last night in the fifth round. It was the first knock-out suffered by Cline in three hundred and forty bouts.

Income Tax Discussed By Minister Dunning; Field May be Divided

Canadian Chamber of Commerce Delegation Meets Cabinet; Peace River Is Referred To

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—Speaking to a deputation representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce yesterday, Hon. Charles A. Dunning, minister of finance, said that some of the provincial governments were anxious to have the Dominion government get out of the income tax field. The federal tax, Mr. Dunning said, was a war tax and a large cost of the war still remained to be paid. "The Dominion cannot do it without the income tax," the minister declared.

Certain of the provinces, however, Mr. Dunning continued, had suggested that the field might be divided. For instance, the suggestion had been made that the field of personal income tax be left to the provinces and that of business income tax to the Dominion. "I am not making any promises," Mr. Dunning said, "but I think business men might very well study the matter." The deputation which met the minister of finance numbered 150 and Col. J. H. Woods of Calgary was the spokesman. They presented views in pursuance of resolutions passed last summer at the annual convention, including requests for the further conservation and development of the fisheries and development of the Peace River country by construction of branch lines and the early completion of a direct outlet to the Pacific coast.

Referring to the Peace River, the deputation stated: "In this connection we are particularly pleased to note that our recommendations are apparently in accord with the policy of the government as outlined by the Prime Minister during his recent visit to Western Canada." Premier King said that the delegation's suggestions were valuable and the government had already given consideration to some of them.

The election of the village council at Port Simpson is taking place there today with Indian Agent W. E. Collison in charge.

including Russia and the United States, which had provided experts to advise on special questions. The league had no difficulty in the matter of language. There were two official languages—French and English. In addressing the League, the nations could use their own language, as Chancellor Stressemann of Germany had persistently done, but translations had to be made at the expense of the countries concerned. The last session of the council had been presided over by a Persian and the assembly by a representative of San Salvador. They had spoken either in English or French.

Geneva was a very international city. There were about 100 newspaper correspondents permanently stationed there with hundreds more when the assembly was in session. Geneva had been chosen as the headquarters for the league by President Wilson, the desire being to have the headquarters in some country that had not participated in the world war in order that all nations might have confidence in the spirit of the deliberations.

Some member nations of the league, including Canada, maintained offices at Geneva which corresponded to consulates. These offices were, of course, independent of the league organization, having been established to follow and advise in the work of the league.

In order to solve political difficulties, there had been set up technical organizations at Geneva in connection with the league. Departments included one economic and financial, a social section, a health section and a transport organization, the latter of which the speaker had been a member.

Referring to several international political differences that had been settled by the league, Col. Hiam mentioned the dispute between Italy and Greece by means of which war had been threatened. The league demanded an immediate settlement. Italy insisted that the arbitration should be by the Council of Ambassadors in Paris, while Greece was satisfied that the League should settle it. A settlement had been devised by the league which the Council of Ambassadors endorsed and transmitted to Italy. The dispute was speedily settled.

Greece and Bulgaria

Then there was the flare-up in the Balkans between Bulgaria and Greece over shooting of sentries on the border. A finding had been made against Bulgaria. Sentries were ordered moved back from the frontier and Swedish soldiers had been put into patrol the border for three years.

With the assistance of Premier Briand of France, the league had also been instrumental in settling a dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia. In these negotiations the Pacific Ocean was spanned for the first time by wireless telephone when Premier Briand spoke to the French diplomatic representative at Buenos Aires. In a single day $23,000 had been expended in telegrams.

The league was stronger by far today than it had ever been, stronger than its best friends a few years ago could possibly have hoped. There were league offices in Rome, Tokyo, Singapore, Berlin and Paris, and other offices would be opened.

At Geneva a new office building costing several million dollars was under construction. The league did not have to worry about finances. By means of the league the order of diplomacy had been entirely changed. Col. Hiam told of having had as his dinner guests one night a German admiral and a British admiral. Rather than play bridge, they had chosen to tell how they had chased each other during the war. Through such contacts war was made the more unlikely.

Col. Hiam attached much importance to the work being carried out by the technical organization of the league. Persia had been prevailed upon to discontinue cultivating the opium poppy as a result of the work of league experts who had shown how other crops could be grown there. The health organization was doing valuable work in disseminating information with regard to dread diseases. Exchange of health officers between various parts of the world had been arranged for.

The organization of transport had fostered a new variety of European telegram whereby peace messages had precedence over all other kinds of wires. Formerly war telegrams were given precedence. If war were threatened the league could turn the spotlight on the nations concerned and take such speedy and effective action, having also so extensive information, that one nation could hardly stand out and insist that it was right. The nations would be almost afraid to go to war.

Col. Hiam felt that the people of Canada did not take enough pride in the work of Canada in connection with the league. As Canada had rallied for war, so it had entered upon the machinery of peace. The influence of the Dominion was out of all proportion to its size and population. Many other countries even waited to see what Canada was going to do before they voted. Nor was Canada tied to Great Britain in the work of the league. The great confidence that other nations held in Canada, Col. Hiam attributed to the type of men the Dominion had sent to the league. Canada had also been always ready to put up when it came to contributing to the work of the league. Canada realized that it had much to lose in case of war, and therefore, the Dominion did much to prevent war. Canada was doing great work at Geneva.

Canada's Work

There was no nation that was more respected and Canadians should be proud of the work their fellowmen were doing in international council.

At the close of his address Col. Hiam was tendered a vote of thanks for the mastery way in which he had handled such a great subject. The vote of thanks was moved by Miss S. A. Mills.

Mrs. C. E. Cullin presided at the piano when "O Canada" was sung at the opening of the dinner and "God Save the King" at the close.

BROKERS IN TROUBLE

Heads of Solloway-Mills Co. Are Under Arrest in Toronto and Vancouver

ALBERTA INFORMATION

Charge is Conspiracy to Violate Common Law

EDMONTON, Jan. 11.—A warrant issued by the Alberta provincial police at the instance of the attorney general's department of that province charges W. C. Solloway with conducting conspiracy against common law in connection with his company's brokerage business in Alberta. Solloway is now in Vancouver. A similar charge was laid against Harvey Mills in Toronto.

"All the evidence is now being reviewed and the government will announce later if proceedings are to be taken," Attorney General Lymburn announced. He stated that it was the sole intention of his department to take only such steps as might appear to be necessary in the interests of justice in order to ensure all trading on the exchange was according to the standards contemplated by the law. The question of the solvency of the company is not involved.

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Provincial police today arrested Harvey Mills, member of the brokerage house of Solloway-Mills Co., on request of the attorney general of Alberta. VANCOUVER, Jan. 11.—I. W. C. Solloway was placed under detention here today at the instructions of the Alberta provincial police. After conferring with Wendell Farris K.C., his solicitor, Solloway said he was at a loss to understand what the charge could be. He added, however, that he would proceed to Edmonton on Sunday to face whatever charges might have been laid.

"We have always carried on our business in an open and above-board manner and shall continue to do so," Solloway stated.

COL. HIAM IS HEARD

Expresses Opinion to Board of Trade That No Single Railway Will Get Peace River Right

HOTEL DISCUSSED

Railway Official Recognizes Necessity of Providing Accommodation Here

One of the most significant statements made by Colonel T. A. Hiam, assistant to the C.N.R. president, yesterday, was that he did not think any one railway would be given the sole right to construct the western outlet of Peace River. He said he was here in Prince Rupert gathering data with a view to placing the whole situation before Sir Henry Thornton and the other authorities in the East and that report would have considerable weight in deciding the outcome.

Colonel Hiam was speaking at a little informal dinner given him by the council of the Board of Trade at which about twenty persons were present. There were several speakers, including Mayor McMordie, J. C. Brady, M.P., Alderman Collart and G. W. Nickerson. G. P. Tinker, president of the Board of Trade, presided. Other guests present included George McNicholl, general passenger agent, and J. M. McRae, general freight agent.

Mr. Tinker introduced the distinguished guest, after which the mayor officially welcomed him on behalf of the city and expressed the hope that he would come often.

J. C. Brady told a good story illustrating the fact that Prince Rupert was about to have removed the obstacles which had prevented her progress and expressed pleasure at the visit of the colonel.

Alderman Collart laid before the visitors the case for the Peace River outlet coming to Prince Rupert. He explained how, by carrying grain through Prince Rupert, it would reach the coast by a route 650 miles shorter than any other. He spoke of the apparent neglect by the C.N.R. of this port while centring on Vancouver, but stated that, now they were well established in Vancouver, it was expected they would turn their attention to this port. It was the only way they could make the line pay. He referred to the present grain situation and urged that Prince Rupert was the logical outlet for the grain from the Peace.

G. W. Nickerson expressed appreciation of the long stop-over of the executive officer. He said it was essential to transportation that hotels should be built and Prince Rupert had many advantages for it in this respect. A hotel was just as essential here as at any other point. Prince Rupert held many attractions such as deep sea fishing, inland fishing and the rugged scenery. Sir Henry Thornton had promised that, if he could secure the appropriation, he would build the hotel, and the people here confidently expected it would be commenced this year.

Came West Again

Col. Hiam drew attention to the fact that he was no stranger here. He had been away from Northern B. C. for ten years and, on a recent visit to Sir Henry Thornton, he had been asked if he would like to come back to Canada. Sir Henry had offered him his present position and he had accepted it and since that time had been organizing the office at Vancouver.

In regard to the Peace outlet, the colonel said the matter rested largely with the government. He doubted if the exclusive right to build would be given to either company. While he did not know where the outlet would be, he said he thought the chances of Prince Rupert were as good as any. He would see that all the advantages of the port were placed before the proper authorities and he wished to be kept well informed in regard to the situation.

The visitor said he was convinced, even before coming here, that a hotel was necessary. As soon as he reached the East he would find out what the situation in this regard was and how soon the hotel was likely to be built. He suggested that the Board of Trade keep him informed all the time of the special needs of the port so that he might have them under consideration.

J. M. McRae then spoke briefly in regard to freight rates, after which President Tinker thanked the visitors for being present and taking such a keen interest in Prince Rupert.

When a true genius appears in the world, you may know him by this sign, that the dunces are all in confederacy against him—Swift.

Consolidated Clearing Out Old Tunnels of Island Property Preparatory to Starting Operations

Word is received from the Queen Charlotte Islands to the effect that the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. is clearing out the old tunnels of the Ikeda group of claims on the south end of Moresby Island preparatory to instituting diamond drilling operations on the property.

It is reported, without any manner of official confirmation, that the Ikeda Co. has refused an offer of $300,000 for the property and is holding out for $1,000,000.

INSURANCE IS TAXABLE

Important Finding Made by Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald in Supreme Court

VANCOUVER, Jan. 11.—Moneys received for "use and occupation insurance" are subject to provincial income tax, according to a Supreme Court judgment of Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald.

Payment of this tax was contested by the British Columbia Fir & Cedar Co., Ltd., of Vancouver in an action at the suit of His Majesty the King in the right of the province of British Columbia.

When fire in August, 1923, destroyed part of the company's plant seventeen fire insurance firms paid the firm $43,000 for loss of net profits and $52,000 in connection with the fixed charges. The company paid the tax on part of this money and claimed overpayment to the crown in reply to the crown's claim for a larger amount.

Mr. Justice Macdonald pointed out that the moneys had been received from insurance paid in lieu of net profits.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY IS TO BE DISBANDED

Decision To This Effect Made Last Night at Annual Meeting of Organization

Owing to lack of interest which is being shown in the organization by Scottish people of the city, the St. Andrew's Society, at its annual meeting last night with President Howard Steen in the chair, decided to disband the society. Notice will be given that the society's quarters in the Hays Block will not be needed after next month.

The St. Andrew's Society has been an institution of Prince Rupert almost since the city came into being. Up to a few years ago the society was in a flourishing condition with a large membership roll. During recent years, however, interest in the organization has dwindled.

SKIDEGATE

The correspondent of The Daily News here had a visit recently from one of the real old-time prospectors of other days in the person of William Campbell. It was thirty years ago that Bill located the three well known claims at Alberni—the Warspite, Mountain Rose and Last Dollar. Bill is seventy years of age, but he is still as hale and hearty as a youth of seventeen.

New Year was celebrated here with the annual masquerade dance in the Town Hall at Skidegate Mission. The affair was a great success, with people in attendance from all over the inlet. New Year dawned on the islands with bright sunshine and warm weather, reminding one almost of a midsummer day.

Mrs. E. C. Stevens had quite a few of the old-timers to Christmas dinner in her home at Skidegate. Among them were E. Wiggins, J. P. Dover, C. Miller, Queen Charlotte City, F. Atkins and P. Turner. A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

JOHNSTONE PRESIDENT

Chosen Last Night to Head Pioneers' Association During Coming Year

The annual meeting of the Prince Rupert Pioneers' Association was held last night in the City Hall. Reports for the year were presented and 1930 officers elected as follows:

Past President, Mrs. P. W. Anderson. President, G. W. Johnstone. Vice-president, N. Mussallem. Secretary, A. O. Franks. Treasurer, Fred Wesch. Historian, P. W. Anderson. Executive—F. W. Hart, Mrs. J. G. Viereck, Mrs. S. V. Cox, John Murray and J. E. Jack.

It was decided to hold the annual banquet as usual as close to March 10, the anniversary of incorporation, as possible. Another meeting will be held on January 24 to perfect arrangements for the affair.

MINERALS OF PEACE

Col. Cornwall Says Transportation Is Only Need Before Achieving Results

VANCOUVER, Jan. 11.—A great mineralized belt lying north of the Peace River country which "contains every mineral that goes with pre-Cambrian rocks" was pictured to the Vancouver "On-to-the-Peace" Association yesterday by Col. J. K. Cornwall, authority on the north.

"Five years will be ample to achieve splendid results in development of this great mineralized belt once rail transportation is provided," Col. Cornwall said, "between the Mackenzie River basin and the Pacific coast. Many gold, silver, lead and coal deposits are known and only await the coming of cheap transportation to return rich profits."

SPEECHES SEAL COVE

Election Meeting Last Night Was Well Attended By Ratepayers

There was a good turnout at the Seal Cove Ratepayers' meeting last night which was addressed by two of the mayoralty candidates and three candidates for alderman.

Before the candidates were called upon to speak, Robert McKay, chairman, spoke of the needs of the Seal Cove district and asked the speakers to state their views on such subjects as the road to the new fishermen's floats, the development of Violet Park and the cut-off road from Sixth Ave. to Eighth.

S. M. Newton repeated very largely what he had said at his previous meeting, stressing particularly what he proposed to do for the eastern section of the city.

Alderman Prudhomme answered
Mr. Newton and brought charges of mismanagement against the Newton regime. Once or twice Mr.
Newton interrupted the speaker and at the close Henry McLean, former city engineer, was asked to explain certain matters in regard to the method of handling crushed rock.

One interesting feature of Mr.
Prudhomme's speech was a suggestion that he would call in the assistance of the inspector of municipality to advise as to a course of action in municipal finance, if he were elected.

Aldermanic Questions

H. F. Pullen was the first of the aldermanic candidates called upon. He said he was in favor of the east end getting a fair proportion of any appropriations and particularly did he favor the opening of the road to the new floats.
However, everything depended upon whether they could get the money. As there would be little for the city council to do this year in regard to public works he strongly urged that their activities should be devoted to trying to bring in new industries. He dealt with a number of matters which were rather unusual at an aldermanic contest.

F. Wesch spoke very briefly, expressing himself in favor of more expenditures in the east end, especially in regard to those mentioned by the chairman.

George Casey made a feature of cutting down the police estimates.
No matter which way the people voted he thought the total cost could be reduced by five thousand dollars.

Nelson and Trail got along with three policemen each and he did not see why four would not be enough for Prince Rupert. At present $10,000 a year was being paid to the Provincial Government in addition to about $3,000 in fines, and other expenditures for them around the city hall amounted to about $4,000 a year, making in all $17,000. That was too much for a city this size.

Mr. Casey expressed the conviction that he would be elected.

The SEVEN DIALS MYSTERY

By Agatha Christie

Copyright by Public Ledger

THE STORY THUS FAR

Gerry Wade is found dead in bed at Chimneys, scene of a house party. Seven out of eight alarm clocks placed in his room to awaken him are lined up on a mantel. The guests are told that death resulted from an overdose of sleeping powder. Jimmy Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to tell a sister, Lorraine, of Wade's death.

Lady Eileen Brent, known as "Bundle," finds a letter Wade had written to his sister making reference to the Seven Dials. Bundle feels certain that Gerry was murdered. En route to London a man, mysteriously shot, staggers into the road in front of Eileen's car. It proves to be Devereux, who dying whispers: "Seven Dials—tell Jimmy Thesiger."

At Jimmy's quarters Bundle finds Lorraine. The three of them set out to trail the murderer.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY INSTALMENT XI

"Well, it saves trouble, doesn't it? We know where we are so to speak."

Bundle hesitated for a minute. "There was a man shot yesterday," she said slowly. "I thought I had run over him—"

"Mr. Ronald Devereux?"

"You know about it, of course. Why has there been nothing in the papers?"

"Do you really want to know that, Lady Eileen?"

"Yes, please."

"Well, we just thought we should like to have a clear 24 hours—see? It will be in the papers tomorrow."

"Oh!" Bundle studied him, puzzled.

What was hidden behind that immovable face? Did he regard the shooting of Ronald Devereux as an ordinary crime or as an extraordinary one?

"He mentioned Seven Dials when he was dying," said Bundle slowly.

"Thank you," said Bundle. "I'll make a note of that."

Only an Amateur

He wrote a few words on the blotting pad in front of him.

Bundle started on another tack. "Mr. Lomax, I understand, came to see you yesterday about a threatening letter he had had."

"He did."

"And that was written from Seven Dials?"

"It had Seven Dials written at the top of it, I believe."

Bundle felt as though she were battering hopelessly on a locked door.

"If you'll let me advise you, Lady Eileen—"

"I know what you're going to say. I should go home and—well, think no more about these matters."

"Leave it to you, in fact?"

"Well," said Superintendent Battle, "after all, we are the professionals."

"And I'm only an amateur? Yes, but you forget one thing—I may not have your knowledge and skill—but I have one advantage over you. I can work in the dark."

She thought that the superintendent seemed a little taken aback, as though the force of her words struck home.

"Of course," said Bundle, "if you won't give me a list of secret societies—"

"Oh! I never said that. You shall have a list of the whole lot."

He went to the door, put his head through and called out something, then came back to his chair. Bundle, rather unreasonably, felt baffled. The ease with which he acceded to her request seemed to her suspicious. He was looking at her now in a placid fashion.

"Do you remember the death of Mr. Gerald Wade?" she asked abruptly.

"Down at your place, wasn't it? Took an overdraft of sleeping mixture."

"His sister says he never took things to make him sleep."

Trouble Ahead

"Ah!" said the superintendent. "You'd be surprised what a lot of things there are that sisters don't know."

Bundle again felt baffled. She sat in silence till a man came in with a typewritten sheet of paper, which he handed to the superintendent.

"Here you are," said the latter when the other had left the room. "The Blood Brothers of St. Sebastian. The Wolf Hounds. The Comrades of Peace. The Comrades Club. The Friends of Oppression. The Children of Moscow. The Red Standard Bearers. The Herrings. The Comrades of the Fallen—and half a dozen more."

He handed it to her with a distinct twinkle in his eye.

"You give it to me," said Bundle, "because you know it's not going to be the slightest use to me. Do you want me to leave the whole thing alone?"

"I should prefer it," said Battle.

"You see—if you go messing round all these places—well, it's going to give you a lot of trouble."

"Looking after me, you mean?"

"Looking after you, Lady Eileen."

Bundle had risen to her feet. Now she stood undecided. So far the honors lay with Superintendent Battle. Then she remembered one slight incident and she based a last appeal upon it.

"I said just now that an amateur could do some things which a professional couldn't. You didn't contradict me. That's because you are an honest man, Superintendent Battle. You knew I was right."

"Go on," said Battle quietly.

"At Chimneys you let me help. Won't you let me help now?"

Bundle seemed to be turning the thing over in his mind. Emboldened by his silence, Bundle continued.

"You know pretty well what I'm like, Superintendent Battle. I butt into things. I'm a Nosey Parker. I don't want to get in your way or to try and do things that you're doing and can do a great deal better. But if there's a chance for an amateur, let me have it."

Again there was a pause, and then Superintendent Battle said quietly:

Dangerous Business

"You couldn't have spoken fairer than you have done, Lady Eileen. But I'm just going to say this to you. What you propose is dangerous. And when I say dangerous, I mean dangerous."

"I've grasped that," said Bundle. "I'm not a fool."

"No," said Superintendent Battle.

"You couldn't have spoken fairer than you have done, Lady Eileen. But I'm just going to say this to you. What you propose is dangerous. And when I say dangerous, I mean dangerous."

"I've grasped that," said Bundle. "I'm not a fool."

"No," said Superintendent Battle.

"Never knew a young lady who was less so. What I'll do for you, Lady Eileen, is this. I'll just give you one little hint. And I'm doing it because I never have thought much of the motto 'Safety First.' In my opinion half the people who spend their lives avoiding being run over by busses had much better be run over and put safely out of the way. They're no good."

This remarkable utterance issued from the conventional lips of Superintendent Battle quite took Bundle's breath away.

"What was the hint you were going to give me?" she asked at last.

"You know Mr. Eversleigh, don't you?"

"Know Bill? Why, of course. But what—"

"I think Mr. Bill Eversleigh will be able to tell you all you want to know about Seven Dials."

"Bill knows about it? Bill?"

"I didn't say that. Not at all. But I think, being a quick-witted young lady, you'll get what you want from him."

"And now," said Superintendent Battle firmly, "I'm not going to say another word."

Bundle set out to keep her appointment with Bill on the following evening full of expectation.

Bill greeted her with every sign of elation.

"Bill really is rather nice," thought Bundle to herself. "Just like a large, clumsy dog that wags its tail when it's pleased to see you."

The large dog was uttering short staccato yelps of comment and information.

"You look tremendously fit. Bundle. I can't tell you how pleased I am to see you. I've ordered oysters—you do like oysters, don't you? And how's everything? What did you want to go moulder about abroad so long? Were you having a very gay time?"

"No, deadly," said Bundle. "Perfectly foul. Old diseased colonels creeping about in the sun, and active, wizened spinsters running libraries and churches."

"Give me England," said Bill. "I bar this foreign business—except Switzerland. Switzerland's all right. I'm thinking of going this Christmas. Why don't you come along?" "I'll think of it," said Bundle. "What have you been doing with yourself, lately, Bill?"

Bill's New Girl!

It was an incautious query. Bundle had merely made it out of politeness and as a preliminary to introducing her own topics of conversation.

It was, however, the opening for which Bill had been waiting.

"That's just what I've been wanting to tell you about. You're brainy, Bundle, and I want your advice. You know that musical show, 'Damn Your Eyes'?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm going to tell you about one of the dirtiest pieces of work imaginable. My God! the theatrical crowd. There's a girl—a Yankee girl—a perfect stunner—"

Bundle's heart sank. The grievances of Bill's lady friends were always interminable—they went on and on and there was no stemming them.

"This girl, Babe St. Maur her name is—"

"I wonder how she got that name?" said Bundle sarcastically. Bill replied literally.

"She got it out of Who's Who. Opened it and jabbed her finger down on a page without looking. Pretty nifty, eh? Her real name's Goldschmidt or Abramier—something quite impossible."

"Oh! quite," agreed Bundle.

"Well, Babe St. Maur is pretty smart. And she's got muscles. She was one of the eight girls who made the living bridge—"

"Bill," said Bundle desperately, "I went to see Jimmy Thesiger yesterday morning."

"Good old Jimmy," said Bill. "Well, as I was telling you, Babe's pretty smart. You've got to be nowadays. She can put it over on most theatrical people. If you want to live, be high-handed, that's what Babe says. And mind you she's the goods all right. She can act—it's marvelous how that girl can act. She'd not much chance in 'Damn Your Eyes'—just swamped in a pack of good-looking girls. I said why not try the legitimate stage—you know, Mrs. Tanqueray—that sort of stuff—but Babe only laughed—"

"Have you seen Jimmy at all?"

"Saw him this morning. Let me see, where was I? Oh, yes, I hadn't got to the rumpus yet. And mind you it was jealousy—sheer, spiteful jealousy. The other girl wasn't a patch on Babe for looks and she knew it. So she went behind her back—"

Codder's Party

Bundle resigned herself to the inevitable and heard the whole story of the unfortunate circumstances which had led up to Babe St. Maur's summary disappearance from the cast of 'Damn Your Eyes.' It took a long time. When Bill finally paused for breath and sympathy, Bundle said:

"You're quite right, Bill, it's a rotten shame. There must be a lot of jealousy about—"

"The whole theatrical world is rotten with it."

"It must be. Did Jimmy say anything to you about coming down to the Abbey next week?"

For the first time, Bill gave his attention to what Bundle was saying.

"He was full of a long rigmarole he wanted me to stuff Codders with. About wanting to stand in the Conservative interest. But you know, Bundle, it's too damned risky."

"Stuff," said Bundle. "If George does find him out, he won't blame you. You'll just have been taken in, that's all."

"That's not it at all," said Bill. "I mean it's too damned risky for Jimmy. Before he knows where he is, he'll be parked down somewhere like Tooting West, pledged to kiss babies and make speeches. You don't know how thorough Codders is and how frightfully energetic."

"Well, we'll have to risk that," said Bundle. "Jimmy can take care of himself all right."

"You don't know Codders," repeated Bill.

"Who's coming to this party, Bill? Is it anything very special?"

"Only the usual sort of muck Mrs. Macatta for one."

"The M.P.?"

"Yes, you know, always going off the deep end about Welfare and Pure Milk and Save the Children. Think of poor Jimmy being talked to by her."

"Never mind Jimmy. Go on telling me."

Among Those Invited

"Then there's a Hungarian, what they call a Young Hungarian. Countess something unpronounceable. She's all right."

He swallowed as though embarrassed and Bundle observed that he was crumpling his bread nervously.

"Young and beautiful?" she inquired delicately.

"Oh! rather."

"I didn't know George went in for female beauty much."

"Oh! he doesn't. She runs baby feeding in Budapest—something like that. Naturally she and Mrs. Macatta want to get together."

"Who else?"

"Sir Stanley Digby—"

"The Air Minister?"

"Yes. And his secretary, Terence O'Rourke. He's rather a lad, by the way—or used to be in his flying days. Then there's a perfectly poisonous German chap called Herr Eberhard. I don't know who he is, but we're all making the hell of a fuss about him. I've been twice told off to take him out to lunch, and I can tell you, Bundle, it was no joke. He's not like the Embassy chaps, who are all very decent. This man sucks in soup and eats peas with a knife. Not only that, but the brute is always biting his fingernails—positively gnaws at them."

"Pretty foul."

"Isn't it? I believe he invents things—something of the kind. Well, that's all. Oh! yes, Sir Oswald Coote."

"And Lady Coote?"

"Yes, I believe she's coming too."

Bundle sat lost in thought for some minutes. Bill's list was suggestive, but she hadn't time to think out various possibilities just now. She must get on to the next point.

"Bill?" she said. "What's all this about Seven Dials?"

Bill at once looked horribly embarrassed. He blinked and avoided her glance.

"I don't know what you mean," he said.

"Nonsense," said Bundle. "I was told you know all about it."

"About what?"

This was rather a poser. Bun-

RADIOFANS AT MEETING

Question of Interference Was Chief Subject of Discussion Last Night

The question of prevention of interference with radio reception was the chief subject of the meeting of the Radio Association held in the City Hall last evening. In the absence of D. C. McRae through sickness, Sid Reith took the chair.

It was reported that the trouble finding instrument owned by the government had been out of the city for two months and without it the local inspector was not able to do much.

At present it was at Stewart. The suggestion was made that an instrument be purchased by the association and it was thought the dealers would put up a good deal of the money. The absence of Inspector Batt from the meeting was the subject of comment.

Bad interference was reported in the neighborhood of Borden Street. Amateur interference was also complained of. Ben Rice reported that he had canvassed the city from Seal Cove to Fulton St., investigating the number of regenerative sets. He was given a good reception and a number of small sets were found. He suggested someone else continue the work westward.

There was a general discussion in regard to radio matters. It was decided to postpone the election of officers until a future meeting to be called for January 24.

Legion Leading In Billiards

Two More Postponed Games Were Played Last Evening

Two more games were played last night in the Grotto vs. Canadian Legion Billiard League fixture as a result of which the Legion now has a 724 to 555 lead over the Grotto. W. J. Nelson (Grotto) beat Col. S. P. McMordie (Canadian Legion) by 250 to 224, and M. Andrews (Canadian Legion) defeated George Waugh (Grotto) 250 to 161.

Games remaining to be played are: J. Andrews (Grotto) vs. G. P. Tinker (Canadian Legion), and M. McLachlan vs. J. W. Scott.

Twenty Years Ago

In Prince Rupert

January 11, 1910

In drawing up the charter of the city of Prince Rupert for incorporation, it is urged that provision be made whereby the mayor will have absolute control of the police force and will be held responsible for the manner in which laws against immorality, disorder, vice and crime are enforced.

Kispiox Valley farmers complain that their cabins have been broken into and tools, provisions, blankets, etc., taken. Two Indians were convicted this week on such charges and sentenced to jail.

Ore on the Portland Canal Mining Co's property at Stewart is reported to run $34 in gold and $54 in silver. The property was recently inspected by W. J. Elmdorff.

Much Ice in Skeena River; Old Fraser River Boat Coming North; Halibut Boat Changes Hands

There is more ice in the Skeena River near its mouth just now than there has been for several years, navigators report. Some of the ice sheets are of tremendous size, varying in thickness from ten inches to almost ten feet where it has piled up, and, during the past week, it was impossible to get higher up than Port Essington, the ice extending the full width of the river. The Ecstall River, near its mouth, is completely frozen over, the ice going up and down with the tides. Even the slough is full of ice above Inverness.

The condition, indeed, is somewhat unusual and has been accentuated by the cold snap of the past week.

The Pacific Salvage Co.'s power vessel Billmor, Capt. Lorne Peck, laden with dynamite and supplies for the operations of the Power Corporation of Canada on the Ecstall River and also having a party of men on board, was unable to reach her destination on Wednesday and had to return. Another attempt was to be made later in the week, but it was not expected it would be attended with any more success.

PACIFIC SALVAGE CO., LTD.

Having in tow an old dismantled Fraser River steamer, 135 feet long and built of steel, for delivery to the Chatham Sound Packing Co.'s cannery at Humpback Bay, Porcher Island, the Pacific Salvage Co.'s local power tug Salvage Princess left Vancouver on Wednesday of this week on her return to Prince Rupert after having been in the south since late in December. The old river boat will be used by the cannery company as a camp for gill-nets on the Skeena River during the salmon fishing season. The Salvage Princess, with Capt. Frank Tyler in command, is expected to arrive here by the end of next week.

Skipper Norman Brodhurst, foreman for the Pacific Salvage Co., suffered a rather painful accident on Tuesday of this week as a result of which he is laid up for a few days. He was thawing a steel tar barrel with a blow torch when the barrel exploded and the end was blown out. His face was lacerated and blackened up, the injuries, happily, proving less serious than might have been the case had he been standing at the end of the barrel. He was taken to the hospital for dressing of the injuries, after which he was able to proceed to his home.

Salt Lake Ice

Providing the cold snap continues, a sheet of ice on the Salt Lake, across the harbor, is expected to be ready for use of skaters by tonight or tomorrow. The original ice surface on the lake having been spoiled by the heavy snow, the Pacific Salvage Co. has had men at work this week flooding it anew with fresh water. The gate of the dam was taken out and the water allowed to fall. Then it was flooded again from the creek above with the fresh water over the old ice. The company intended to advertise sailing hours of boats for the lake.

Having had to break the ice in front of it all the way into the bay, the Pacific Salvage Co.'s power vessel Pachena, Capt. Charlie Larkin, had a rather strenuous time of it on Thursday of this week getting into Cloyah Bay with a load of supplies for the Power Corporation of Canada's transmission line clearing gang there. The ice in the bay was from two to four inches in thickness. Rod McLeod is foreman in charge of the clearing gang at Cloyah.

The newly opened Pacific Machine Works on the Pacific Salvage Co. dock, which specializes in the installation of Rap (Norwegian) semi-diesel engines with Arnt Solheim in charge, is doing a flourishing business, it is reported. The staff has already been increased to five men. In addition to the installations, considerable general engine repair and overhauling work is also being carried on from the shop.

Excavation work, involving considerable blasting, is still proceeding on the site of the new annex to the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station at the foot of McBride Street and it will be some time yet before actual construction work will be ready to be proceeded with by the contractors, Mitchell & Currie. There is a good deal of rock work to be done which takes time.

This week saw the return to their duties after the Christmas and New Year vacation of all the members of the staff of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station with the exception of the director, D. B. Finn, who, after spending the holidays at his home in Vancouver, is now in Ottawa attending the annual meeting of the Biological Board of Canada. He is expected to return to the station toward the end of the present month. John Dybhavn, manager of the Royal Fish Co. and Pacific Coast director of the board, is also in attendance at the Ottawa meeting.

Norman L. Freeman and John L. Kask, local representatives of the International Fisheries Commission, are still in Vancouver, where they spent the holidays. One or both of them are expected to be back by the end of the month.

In Winter Quarters

The gale early last week sent most of the pleasure boats from the C. N. R. Yacht Club floats to more secure winter quarters. Several of the boats have been taken out of the water for the season. There was but one single boat left at the floats this week.

Two new iron tanks are being installed in Capt. Anskar Wick's local halibut boat R. W. The work is being carried out by the Atlas Boiler Works.

Dr. C. H. Hankinson, his successor in the medical practice here, has taken over Dr. J. A. West's power boat Wyo on the departure of the latter for Vancouver to locate. The Wyo is twenty-two feet long and is equipped with a Universal engine. She was built originally by Capt. F. T. Saunders, former agent here for the Marine Department and now located in Vancouver.

Billy Fulton and party, travelling in L. W. Patmore's power cruiser Mary G., visited Pillsbury Cove last Saturday and took a big bag of twenty-six exceptionally large mallards which somebody is unkind enough to suggest may have strayed from one of the nearby farms. J. H. Pillsbury, after whom the cove was named, also went along and aided in the killing.

George Bryant and party also made a trip on Saturday and bagged a couple of quackers.

The Suga boatbuilding establishment is completing the construction of a 26-foot stock model gillnetter. A 4 h.p. Regal engine, out of another boat, is to be installed in the new vessel.

C. O. Rowe's power cruiser Mipal has been taken out of the water at the Suga yard for a general overhaul.

New Dry Exhaust

A new dry exhaust is being installed in the local halibut boat Bayview by the Star Welding and Machine Shop.

Overhaul of the clutch of the halibut boat Emba, formerly Cedric, has also been carried out at the Star Welding establishment.

Magnus Hveding's new halibut boat Gulvik has been down at the Pacific Machine Works this week for the installation of a gurdy. A 35 h.p. Rap semi-diesel engine has been installed in this boat and is reported to be functioning well. The Gulvik will be ready to go immediately the 1936 fishing season opens.

Martin Valderhaug, Prince Rupert fisherman, has let the contract to K. Tsumura, Cow Bay boatbuilder, for the construction of a new 32-foot trolling boat. Work on the new vessel will be commenced shortly. An 8 h.p. Vivian engine has been purchased from the Star Welding & Machine Works for installation in the new boat.

The Star Welding also reports the sale of a 15 h.p. Vivian engine to John Clausen for installation in his fish packer Alna. Delivery of the engine is to be made in February.

The halibut boat Sea Maid, Capt. Henry Doiron, left Prince Rupert on Tuesday for northern waters to engage in black cod fishing. The Sea Maid will deliver her catches under contract to the new cold storage plant which has been established at Victoria. It was estimated that the first trip would take about two weeks' time. The Sea Maid will resume halibut fishing on the opening of the season.

Capt. Jack McLean, owner of the Prince Rupert halibut boat M. A. 3., has purchased the Mayflower from Capt. George Cook, who is having a new halibutter built by T. Suehiro, Cow Bay boatbuilder. The hull of the Mayflower is now being almost completely rebuilt at McLean's boatbuilding and the vessel is to be ready for use in fishing by Capt. McLean on the reopening of the season. The Mayflower is 40 feet long and is equipped with a 16 h.p. N. and S. gas engine. The vessel was formerly owned by Capt. J. D. Thurber. Capt. McLean is now advertising the M. A. B. for sale.

Gammon & Watt's seineboat Bertha G. left Prince Rupert on Wednesday to prospect for signs of the first herring run of the season in adjacent waters. The vessel is already to engage in seining as soon as the run appears. Weather was too cold, however, when she left to permit of engaging successfully in fishing.

The freighter Salvor is at the Albert & McCaffery dock this week-end discharging a cargo of Vancouver Island coal.

The waterfront boys are quite well satisfied to leave the question of choosing a mayor this year to their landlubber friends up town. None of the three candidates, with the possible exception of Doc Orme through his sons, have many marine interests, though all are well enough known. The contest, as far as can be judged, would appear to be a rather close one with nobody much surprised if any one of the three should be elected. Now that the new fishermen's floats are about to be constructed and the Cow Bay question has been settled, there is little of direct interest to the waterfront in the municipal field. In the aldermanic arena, however, are some well-known waterfront figures such as J. H. Pillsbury, manager of the Pacific Stevedoring Co.; R. F. Perry, foreman of the railway B. and B. department; George Casey, who has always been known as a champion of the fishermen; George Rudderham of the Imperial Machine Works staff; and Harry Pullen, a pleasure boat owner.

Word is received from the islands that Capt. C. Nelson of Queen Charlotte City is building a new 45-foot fishing boat which will be equipped with a 45 h.p. Atlas Imperial full diesel engine. The boat is scheduled to go into commission on March 1.

From Port Simpson come reports of quite a run of spring salmon in Cunningham's Passage. It is reported that some thirty or forty boats, mostly native, have been fishing this week and that their operations have been attended with good results. In Metlakatle Passage, a spring salmon run is also reported.

Urges Squealers Be Prohibited

At the radio meeting last night R. J. T. Rose suggested that the time had arrived when the government should take action to prevent the use of regenerative sets entirely as they cause a nuisance. Radio had now become so general the people were entitled to more protection. In many other countries the law forbids their use entirely.
