LEST WE FORGET

This is Armistice Day, the day on which we particularly remember the men who went overseas to fight the battles of the Empire.

As the Great War gets further off as a matter of history, we are apt to think more lightly of it. We forget the terrible time when no one knew whether the war would be won or lost.

DAILY EDITION Tuesday, November 11, 1930

Canada Regarded As Link Between Britain and States

Mr. Bird proceeded to discuss the subject of Anglo-American relations. Trade and trade rivalry played their parts in connection with the development of these relations. It was the same with nations as it was with persons. One would put up with rivalry only from one it liked and trusted. On the whole, the speaker asserted, feeling in the United States towards Great Britain had never been better at any extended period of time within the past century than it was today. On the other hand, feeling in Great Britain towards the United States was probably never worse within the last century than it was today. Owing to trade rivalry, etc., it would be more than ever necessary for the two nations to keep their political tempers, something which Great Britain had been famed for doing.

Naval Relations

Speaking of Anglo-American naval relations, Mr. Bird delved cursorily into naval history since the first of the century. Germany's challenge before the war to Great Britain's naval supremacy had brought about the alliance between Great Britain and Japan and the resultant moving of the British squadrons from the Pacific to Atlantic to meet the challenge of Germany. In a famous speech in 1916, President Wilson of United States had insisted that his country go ahead with a program which would give it the most adequate navy in the world. There came the second naval challenge to Great Britain. As a culmination of the Great War, in which United States had eventually thrown in her lot on the side of Great Britain and as a result of which the German fleet had been scuttled at Scapa Flow, the Washington naval conference was held in 1920 and, to the eternal credit of both sides, the naval competition between Great Britain and United States was called off. At the same time, the alliance between Great Britain and Japan was abrogated and, incidentally, the bogey of a United States-Japanese war had disappeared, the States being persuaded that there was no need to fear Japan.

Great Britain and the United States having come to an agreement even before the gathering, the naval conference in London this year had been a partial success. The conference had not been a complete success since Italy and France had been unable to come to an agreement, leaving the Mediterranean situation still to be guarded. Nevertheless, the agreement which had been reached at the conference between Great Britain, United States and Japan might be expected to have its effect upon Italy and France.

Impossible War

Canada and Great Britain being the best customers of the United States despite the trade rivalry existing between them, Mr. Bird predicted that this trade interest must eventually throw its weight against the possibility of war between these nations.

Turning to relations between Canada and Great Britain, Mr. Bird referred to the magnificent experiment of commonwealths instead of colonies within the British Empire. It was one of Great Britain's greatest and noblest experiments by means of which the "fine flower of the Empire" had been developed. Canada had held out for its rights as a nation and the Mother Country had met Canada more than half way in granting these requests with wisdom and liberality. Great Britain had shown that it was ready to recognize not only Canada but other Dominions as peoples of their own right competent to govern their own destinies. Now Canada was seeking the right to revise its own constitution and the speaker had no doubt that the British Parliament would grant this.

Preferential Tariffs

Discussing Anglo-Canadian trade, Mr. Bird mentioned the matter of tariff preferences and referred to the present industrial conditions in Great Britain. Great Britain could only support her forty millions of population providing she retained predominance in the world export market and not only in Empire trade. Only about one half of Britain's exports now went to the Empire and little more than a third of her imports came from the Empire. It was essential that Great Britain get back to the world market and lower costs of production.

Renewal of trade preferences with all the Dominions would, of course, be beneficial to Great Britain. If Great Britain were to obtain a larger market in Canada for her exports, it was necessary that she, like the United States, arrange credits in the Dominion, establish distribution plants with Canadian-managed sales forces, and establish assembly plants. Under such conditions, tariff preferences might be practicable.

Regarding United States-Canadian relations, Mr. Bird asserted that Canada was very popular both in the press and on the platform of the United States. Although the United States virtually looked up to Canada in many things, the American Congress seemed usually blind to the interests of Canada as evidenced, for instance, in the Smoot-Hawley tariff and other things. If one listened only to the United States congress, one might think that there was no such thing in the States as Canadian-United States relations. Mr. Bird predicted, however, that in the course of the next century Canada would influence United States socially and politically rather than United States influence Canada simply because Canada was the sounder country socially and politically. United States already looked up to Canada in the matters of law enforcement, immigration and prohibition. Speaking of prohibition, Mr. Bird predicted that United States would eventually fall in with the sounder Canadian plan and turn over the matter of liquor laws to the state governments from the federal. Canada's legislative system was more flexible than that of the United States, more responsible to the people.

Canada a Link

Summarizing, Mr. Bird asserted

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—chief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets. ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Improved in Texture and Taste

that he considered Canada not only a link between United States and Great Britain but between Canada and much of Western Europe. While British wisdom, he thought, would prevent war between United States and Britain, the Dominions, through their friendliness with their neighbors, would have their effect in preventing war. While Canada shared certain predispositions and views with the United States, she also kept up her connection with Europe through membership in the League of Nations.

Concluding with reference to war, Mr. Bird alluded to the recent Great War which had been so graphically illustrated in the two great moving pictures "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "Journey's End." The lives of the young men on either one side or the other had been wasted through one side or the other being all wrong. If wars were to be prevented, the speaker asserted in concluding, there must be more than patriotism and self-interest but also an international mind.

Vote of Thanks

On the conclusion of Mr. Bird's address, a vote of thanks was tendered to him on motion of Miss Caroline Mitchell.

Mrs. William Cruikshank sang a pleasing vocal solo. Mrs. M. H. Blott accompanied Mrs. Cruikshank and also the singing of "O Canada" and "God Save the King."

The Women's Canadian Club will hold another dinner soon to hear Innes Taylor who was a member of the Byrd expedition to the South Pole.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the city council, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow evening as the mayor and members of the aldermanic board will be attending proceedings in connection with the observance of Armistice Day.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE
OTTAWA, CANADA
November 8th, 1930.

To Canadian Manufacturers, In Every Line of Business.

Remember the Golden Rule!

For some weeks now I have been urging consumers in every part of Canada to buy your products in preference to imported products. I have tried to make it quite clear to them that, in their own interest, it's the common sense thing to do.

Now if it is sound common sense that your fellow Canadians should support you, in your efforts to increase and to improve your production, isn't it also sound common sense that you, in the purchase of your materials, should support other Canadian producers who are trying to increase and to improve their production?

It's a poor rule that won't work both ways! When others wrench themselves out of life-long habits to do something that will help you, don't you agree that it's up to you to reciprocate in whatever way you can?

So let me ask you very frankly—are you co-operating in this campaign as fully as you might co-operate? When you buy materials and supplies, do you always make a conscientious effort to find some Canadian producer who can give you what will fill the bill? Conceding for the sake of argument that there are certain things you must import, because they cannot be produced in Canada, are your reasons for importing other things that do not fall within that category such that you would have no hesitation in making them public?

No fair-minded person is ever going to reproach you for buying imported materials and supplies when you can advance perfectly valid reasons for doing so. For example, if, after making diligent search, you were unable to find a single Canadian producer who could make delivery in the quality, and in the quantity, and within the time necessary to meet your requirements, and at a price you could afford to pay, that would be sufficient reason for your giving your order to a foreign producer.

And yet it hardly seems like playing the game, does it? It's equivalent to saying to the small Canadian producer—"To qualify for my business, you've got to show me that you can meet your big foreign competitor on every point—quality, quantity, time and price—otherwise you don't get it!"

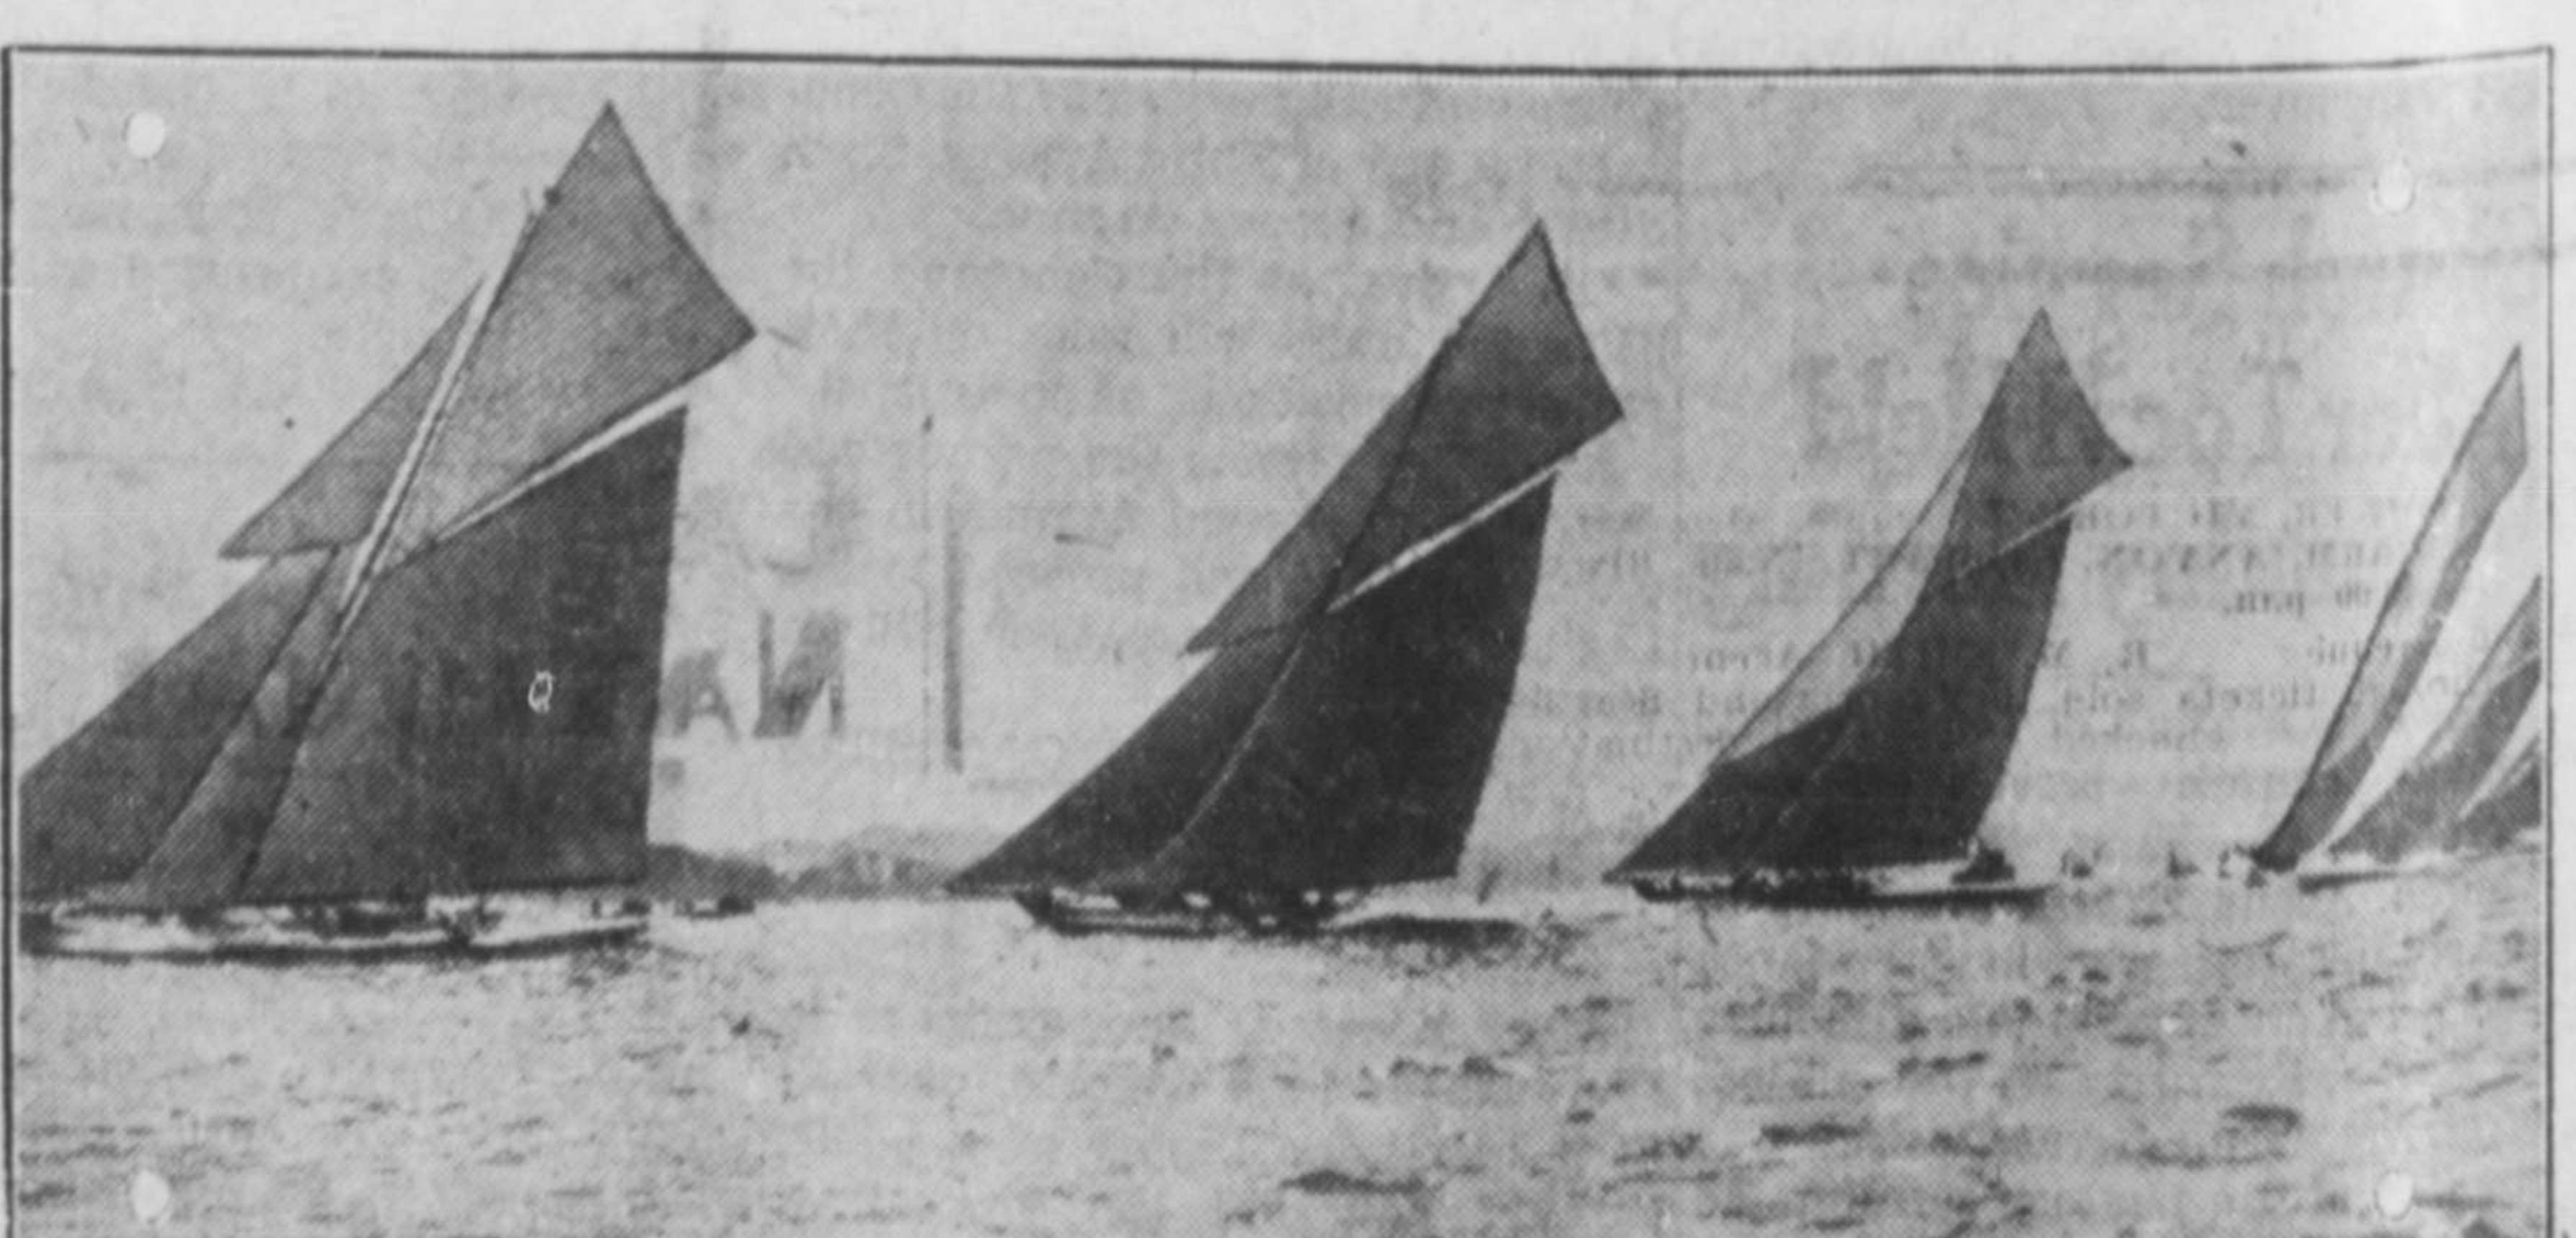

If every Canadian consumer had always taken that stand, and stuck to it, many a man who is a successful Canadian manufacturer to-day would have lost his entire stake without ever having made a sale! But despite the competition he was up against, and the handicaps under which he had to labour, he made sales because there were enough Canadian consumers willing to see to it that he got his start.

So I ask you, aren't there times when you could well afford to show some Canadian producer just that little extra consideration that would be the means of starting him on his way to bigger and better business? If he cannot give you the quantity you want, within the time you want it, the reason probably is that you and other Canadian manufacturers have never given him enough business to warrant him enlarging the modest little plant he began with. If he cannot deliver you out of stock the exact quality you want, might he not soon be able to do so with the patronage that you and others might give him, by enabling him to keep pace with his big foreign competitor in bidding for skilled labour, in trying out new processes, and equipping himself with new devices as they are brought out? And if his price is a little high, just ask yourself if the preservation of your business makes it absolutely necessary for you to buy in the cheapest market!

As I write this I have before me two competitive articles, both produced in Canada. They sell to the same class of people, at the same price, and are apparently on a parity so far as quality is concerned. Both are made from the same kind of material, but whereas the material in one is 100 per cent Canadian, the material in the other is 100 per cent imported. The producer of the article made from Canadian material admits that he could make a little more profit for himself by using imported material, but he won't do it—he says he doesn't need to! The producer of the article made from imported material, while contending that the exigencies of his business make it necessary for him to buy in the cheapest market, only uses that as an excuse to swell his profits!

If you want the "Produced in Canada" movement to be a real success—to bear abundant fruit—remember the Golden Rule, and do unto others as you would have others do unto you! Don't assume that a thing is not now procurable in Canada, just because it wasn't when you first started importing it! Why not take us into your confidence regarding all your importations, and see if we cannot help you to locate suitable Canadian sources of supply?

Very sincerely yours,
H. H. Stevens
Minister of Trade and Commerce.

HIGH WINS LAST GAME

Booth Memorial School Defeated In Last Game of Junior League First Half

High inflicted the most severe defeat of the season on Saturday last on Booth Memorial School in the Junior Football League when they won 5-1.

High was without Fisher for whom V. Miller played while Booth had to find substitutes for five of their regular players. While the substitutes did well, the absence of the first choice players was a handicap.

High won the toss and played uphill and with the wind. Blake soon put his team a goal up with a long dropping shot that gave Allen no chance. High had the better of the game and, following a partial clearance, Miller put High two goals up and Cross added a third. Wardroper crossed a beauty but Nelson, who was really too ill to play, missed a good chance.

The second half found High on top most of the time. In a break-away, Wardroper picked up a cross from Cromp and went through to score a beauty, but High was back pegging away at the Booth goal and soon Cross headed a fine goal and then Walters with a long drive took the Booth goal by surprise to make the total five.

High School—Suehiro; Walters; Davies; Arney, Blake, Bridden; Marshall, Hill, Cross, Welle, Miller.
Booth—Norman Allen; Ferguson; Ritchie; Green, Christison, MacDonald; Wardroper, Santerbane, Nelson, McPhee, Cromp.

Referee, W. W. C. O'Neill; linesmen, J. S. Wilson and O. Wingham. Suehiro had an easy time in goal. Walters found it dangerous to try tricking the opposing forwards and lost the ball several times. His speed and powerful kicking were valuable. Davies was a forceful back. There was little class in the halfback line but all three played steadily with Blake occasionally feeding his forwards. Cross was the most dangerous player on the field, clever with head and feet and showing good judgment and courage. Marshall was next best of the High forwards and was unlucky not to score. Hill has improved and combined well. Welle and Miller were triers.

The Booth forwards were rarely

PLANE PASSED LUCY ID. NIGHT OF OCTOBER 28 BUT NOT GREEN ID.

Up to last night, there was no word of the two Royal Canadian Air Force Fairchild seaplanes which left Jericho Beach, Vancouver, on Saturday for Prince Rupert to join in the search for Renahan under direction of Pilot Eckmann. It was quite evident, however, that they must have been stormbound somewhere down the coast, probably before crossing Queen Charlotte Sound. Weather reports from all coast points indicated very stormy weather with heavy rains and high winds. There was no surprise or alarm at the fact that the Canadian planes had not shown up.

Today marks exactly two weeks since Renahan became missing. Had the party escaped to some island unhurt and been able to remove their rations from the plane, they would easily have been able to survive as they were carrying food enough. There has been plenty of rain to provide them with water even had they landed on a very small island.

Should success soon mark the hunt for Renahan, it is understood that the government planes coming here might proceed to Atlin to institute a new search for Capt. E. J. A. Burke and two companions to engage in rescue operations for whom Renahan was speeding north when he became lost. Renahan's zeal to get speedily started on the rescue might easily have accounted for his effort to make Ketchikan in the dark on the night of October 28.

TAG DAY SUCCESS

The investiture and presentation of badges to members of the Third Prince Rupert Troop of Boy Scouts was an outstanding event. Scoutmaster P. C. Miller conducted the proceedings and the presentations were made by Mrs. W. T. Kergin. Badges were awarded as follows: Tenderfoot Badge and Investiture—Martin Erickson.

Second Class—Patrol Second Louis Astoria; Scouts Bob Houston and Maurice Davey.

Ambulance Badge—Patrol Leader Victor Miller, Patrol Leader Walter Smith, Patrol Second Leslie Wilson. Swimmer Badge—Patrol Leader Joe Naylor, Patrol Second Leslie Wilson.

Novel and keenly contested competitions added much to the success and merriment of the evening, winners being Mrs. W. T. Kergin, Miss I. Haddock, Mrs. Walker, Misses Morison, Grassie, Vickers and J. Edgcombe.

Demonstrations of first aid work and games by the Boy Scouts were very entertaining and with ample and enjoyable refreshments served by a committee under Mrs. Halcrow and Miss Sharp the evening was brought to a successful close.

G. A. Edgcombe was in charge of the program for the evening.
