LEAGUE OF NATIONS NOT BAR TO TREATY

British Government's Right to Enter Security Pact Challenged By Conservatives in Commons

MATTER SETTLED

LONDON, April 8:—(Later)—Foreign Minister Briand of France, after a conference with Premier Macdonald of Great Britain, told French journalists late today that an agreement had been reached between Great Britain and France on the interpretation of Article 16 of the League of Nations covenant and, therefore, negotiations at the naval conference would be continued with a view to achieving a five-power treaty.

LONDON, April 8:—Yesterday the right of the British government to enter a security pact with France was challenged by the Conservatives in the House of Commons. It was argued by the opponents of the Labor government that the obligations of the country under the League of Nations would interfere with the obligations of the country under a security pact with any individual country.

Premier Macdonald defended his actions in a speech in which he reviewed the League of Nations' constitution and the manner in which the rights of individual nations were settled and claimed that his government was quite correct in the action it was preparing to take.

Use of Herring For Manufacture of Meal and Oil Is Discussed By George Bushby of Prince Rupert

He Answers Criticism of Those Who Object to the Taking of These Fish For His Plant at Tuck's Inlet

The question of the use of herring for the manufacture of fish meal, oil and other commodities is an important one and has been up for discussion on various occasions and most people are now agreed that it is just as important to manufacture the fish into these important ingredients employing a large staff of men at Prince Rupert as it is to permit them to be salted by aliens and shipped to the Orient to feed the people of China and Japan. The meal is used to feed poultry and cattle in this country in order to feed the Canadian people.

The matter comes up in connection with a letter received by the Daily News criticizing the taking of herring near Pearl Harbor for use at the Prince Rupert reduction plant. On receipt of the letter, which attacked a local industry, it was thought fair to give that industry an opportunity to defend itself. George Bushby, proprietor of the plant, was interviewed in regard to matters mentioned in the letter and he says:

"This year our plant has used a total of nearly 5,000 tons not 18,000 as suggested by your correspondent. This amount would have hardly any effect on the stupendous quantity of herring in these waters. They were not taken, none of them, in Pearl Harbor. The fish that came to us were taken outside that harbor."

VALUABLE INDUSTRY

The Rupert Marine Products is one of the important industries of Prince Rupert. This spring when there were a good many people out of work and merchants were feeling the strain of dull times, that plant was increasing its staff until it employed over 40 men. That meant a large payroll which would be missed in Prince Rupert if it were not available.

People are often talking about getting new industries for the city but the most important thing is to see that the industries we have already are well supported.

Often it is through mistaken ideas and not from any desire to knock that we injure our local industries. Take as an instance this same Rupert Marine Products. The only place in which herring can be sold is at that plant, except for bait. We are told that on the east coast and also in the North Sea where fishing is intensive, the herring are still holding their own. In Alaska there are nearly a dozen plants using the herring but only one on this side north of Vancouver Island.

There seems hardly any limit to the supply of herring although they often change their spawning grounds. Formerly they came into Prince Rupert harbor in large numbers. Possibly they did not like the oil here so stayed away.

We appreciate the right of our Port Simpson correspondent to air his views. We think he is mistaken and we have taken steps to try to set him right. We have a great deal more information on this subject but think sufficient has been said to make the situation clear to our correspondent and to all who read his letter.

There are plenty of road hogs on Easy Street.

MAKE MOST OF LIFE

It is very desirable to make the most of life as we go along. When we feel that we are about ready to begin enjoying ourselves is the time often when the grim reaper steps in and says "come with me." Yesterday there was the case of three trappers coming in from the northern wilds. They tried crossing the Peace River on the ice, fell through and that ended their careers. If they took enjoyment from their work it was all right. If not, they were out of luck.

We have heard of many similar local cases. The lesson is to take time to enjoy our work and play as we go along and not wait for a future that may not ever arrive for us.

Hot air is all right, but not at election times.

Topley Richfield Is Investigating Two Properties

"Except for spasmodic trading at a few cents a share there is no activity in Topley Richfield," says the Financial News of Vancouver, in reply to a questioner. "You probably have heard that the Topley property has been abandoned. The company has approximately $200,000 in quick assets and $50,000 in equipment, we are informed. We are further advised that the intention of the company is to conserve its assets until such time as a prospect can be found which offers a reasonable chance of giving a return to shareholders. Investigation of two different properties is now under way."

Production of a Big Newspaper Shown at Theatre

The workings of a big newspaper were well illustrated last evening at the Capitol Theatre when a picture was shown beginning at the falling of a huge log in the forest and ending in the distribution of the newspapers made from it. Attention is drawn to this because a good many local people will be interested to recognize members of the Vancouver Province staff engaged in their work in the editorial rooms, composing room, press room or offices. Every step of the work was well shown although there naturally had to be puzzling gaps for those not familiar with the processes.

The Letter Box

HERRING FISHERIES

Port Simpson, B.C.,
Editor, Daily News:—
There never was a proverbial saying that contained more truth than the one: "The herring are the food of the sea." Bitterly do we people of Port Simpson feel the verdict of this saying.

This year thousands of tons of pre-spawning herring have been taken out of Pearl Harbor which is the natural spawning beds for these fish.

The herring usually spawn about the twenty-fourth of March in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor and Port Simpson, but today, April 3, there is not the slightest sign of spawn anywhere and seining is still permitted right on the spawning grounds.

We do not object to the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Co. taking their 1800 tons as their pack is a necessity for halibut bait and food, but we do object to them being seined on the spawning ground.

Estimating conservatively the Tuck's Inlet reduction plant has taken out of Pearl Harbor 10 times the amount of herring that has been taken by the Cold Storage. All these pre-spawning herring, which were supposed to propagate their kind and feed the ocean, have been converted into fertilizer and meal.

Is the fishing industry and the livelihood of the population along the northern coast of B.C. to be jeopardized for the sake of a few more sacks of manure and the creation of a fortunes for a very few?

Alaska now feels sorely the judgment of their past sins of get and waste while the getting is good and to the dickens with the future. If the present system is kept up we will soon be in the same condition as Alaska is. The following fact will show the alarming depletion of the herring.

A few years ago the shore for miles at low water was covered with a cream colored spawn sometimes to the thickness of several inches. This spawn when cured formed one of the staple foods of the natives. Last year there was a pretence of spawn in an odd place and the natives feel very keenly the loss of one of their staple foods. The Lord only knows if there will be any spawn at all this year.

Destroy the food of the ocean and what happens to the fish that depend on them? Common sense will tell you.

Fish put Prince Rupert on the map and fish will keep her there. Therefore the fisheries are of vital importance to each and every citizen of Prince Rupert.

We, the citizens of Port Simpson, ask for the co-operation of the citizens of Prince Rupert to make a stand and stop the shameful depletion of the herring and launch a new policy which will make the herring run an ever increasing one and which will mean prosperity and happiness to us all.

A PORT SIMPSON FISHERMAN.
(This letter is answered on another page.—Ed.)

Perhaps we could bottle a part of it down

A MIGHTY FORCE

Daily Newspapers of Canada

THE daily newspaper is indispensable to the efficient, orderly operation of Canadian business. From coast to coast manufacturer, distributor and retailer depend on its sales influence to maintain a constant flow of goods from maker to merchant and from merchant to consumer.

Deprive commerce and industry of the sales-creating power of the daily newspaper and business would languish. Factory output would diminish, inventories would mount, dealers' shelves become clogged with merchandise and profits dwindle.

The daily newspaper performs the essential function of enabling the seller to place his offering promptly, forcibly and economically before the buyer. Whether it be the nation as a whole or a specific sector which the advertiser aims to influence, the daily newspaper has no equal as a means of direct and effective contact with the Canadian buying public.

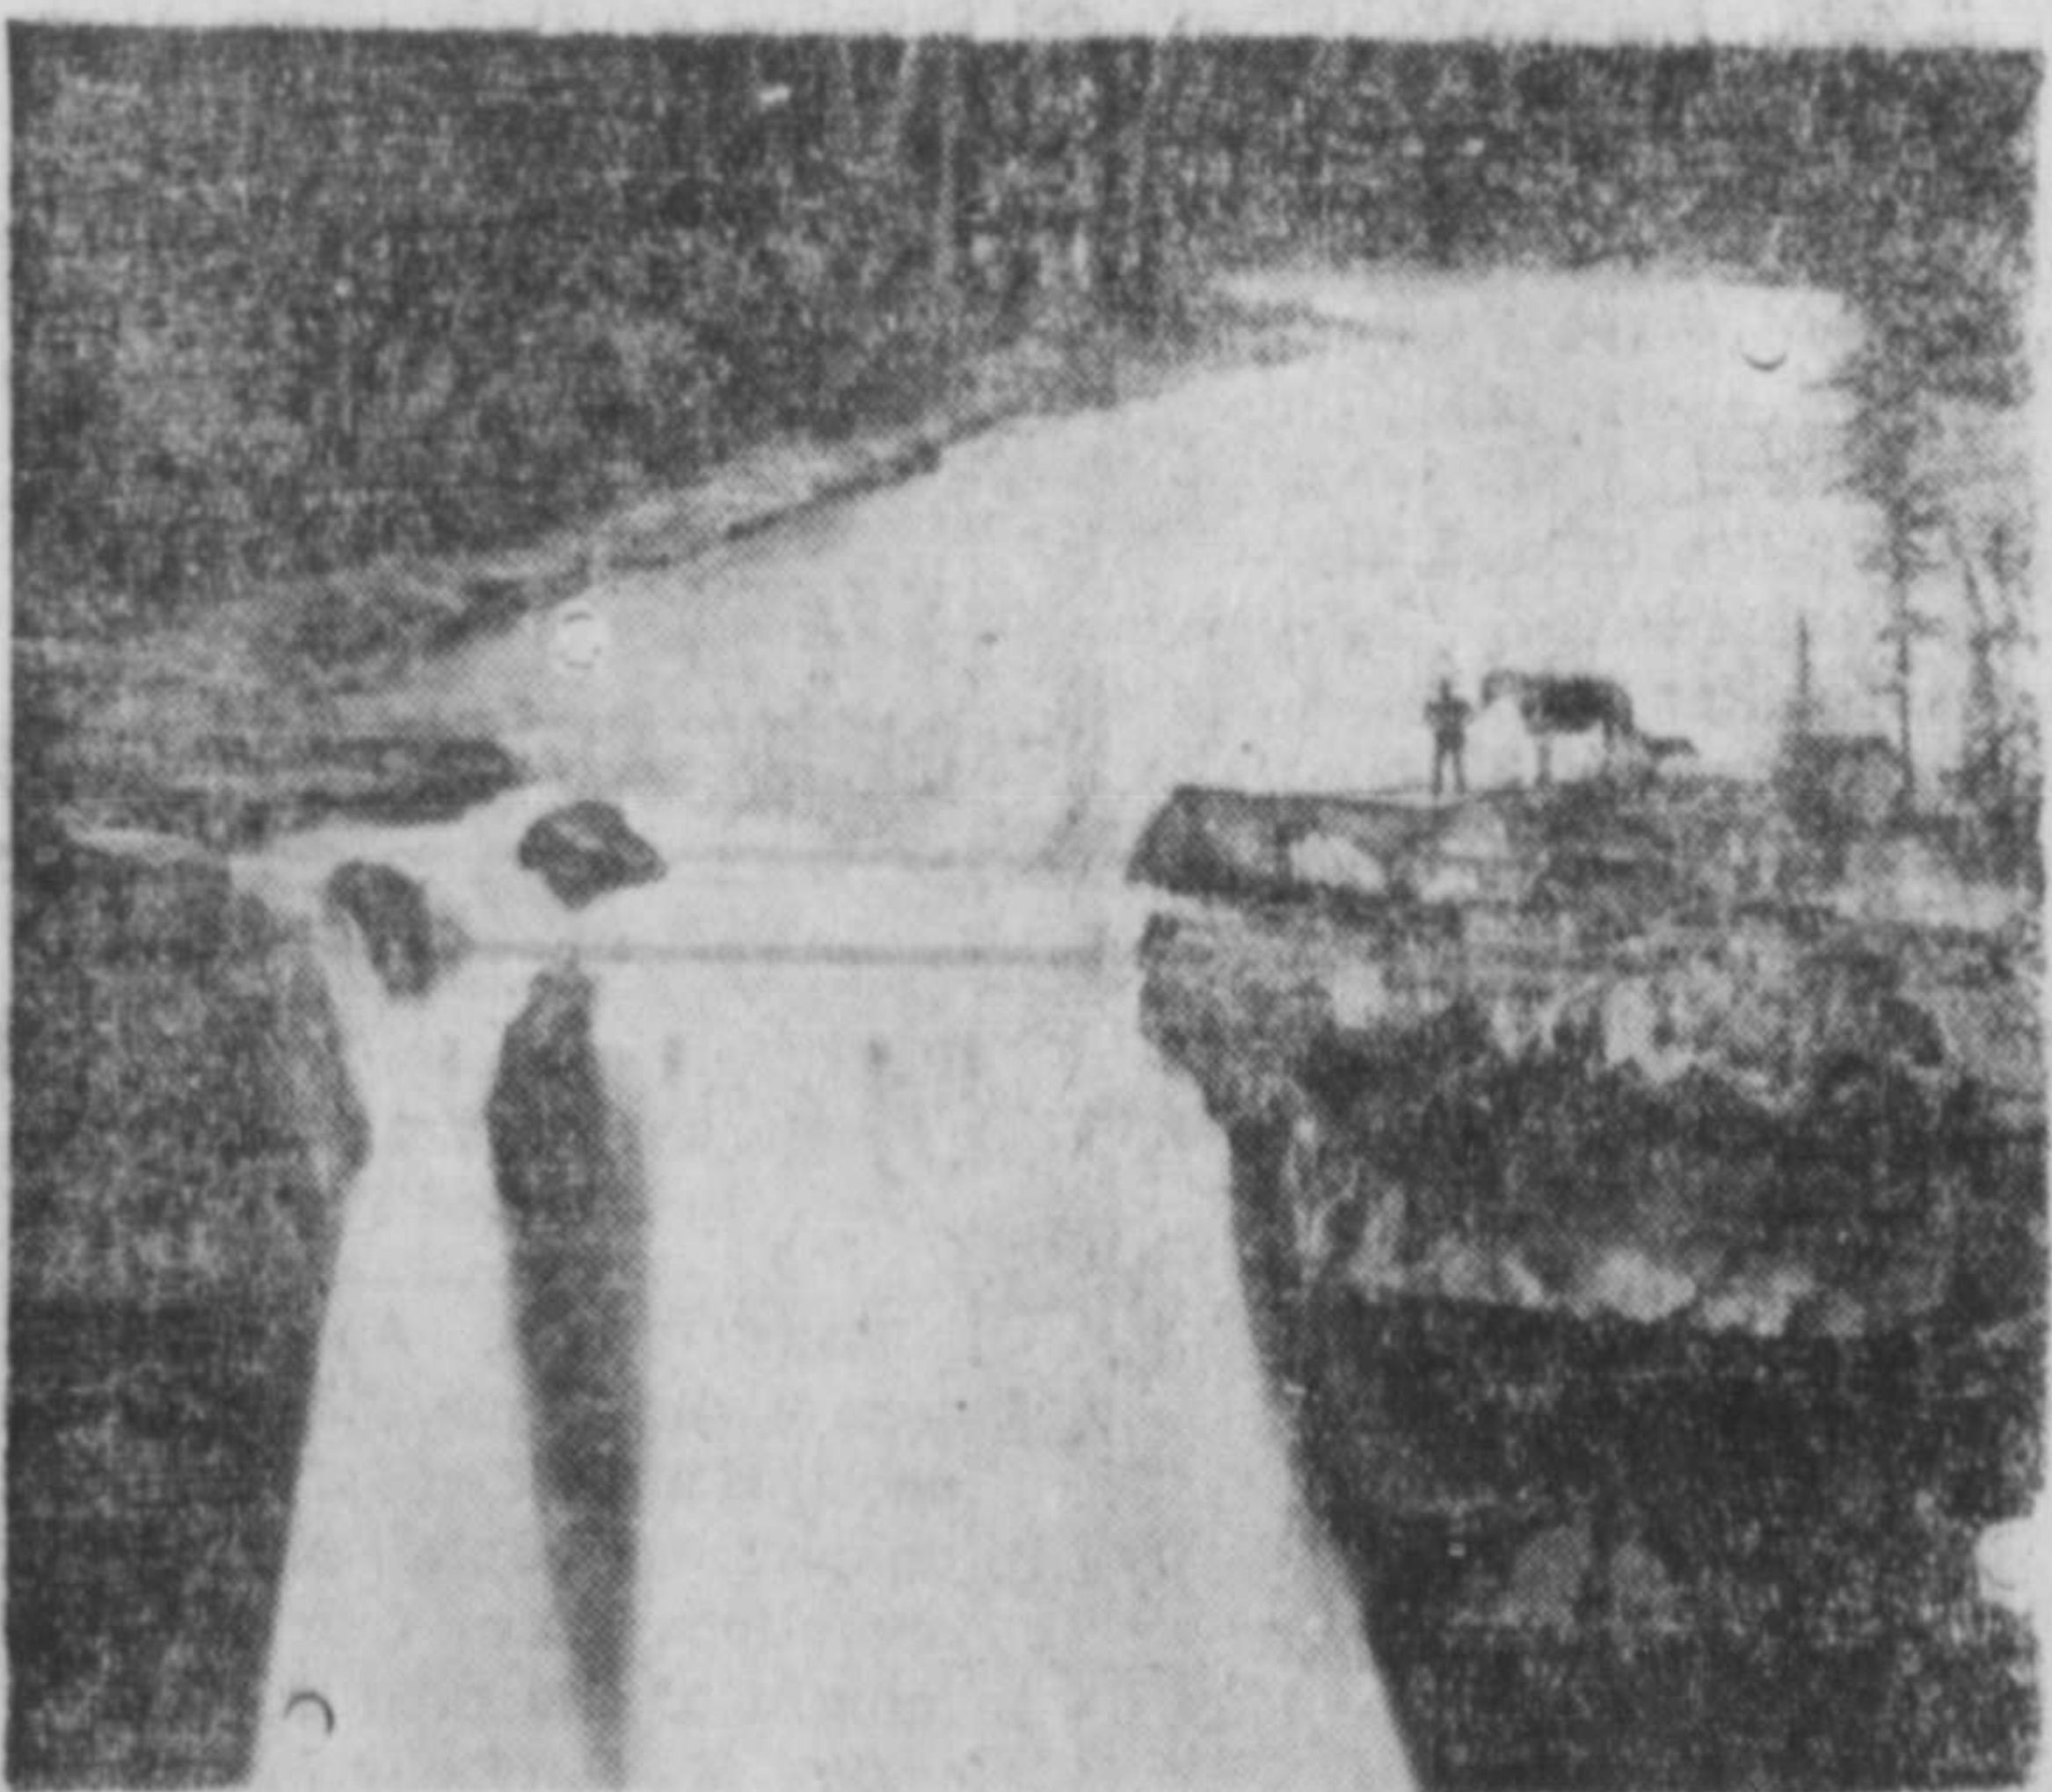

Its unique influence as a constructive business force arises from the fact that it renders a basic service—that of presenting every day the world's news. Practically every family in the Dominion reads a daily newspaper.

For this reason, daily newspaper circulation in a particular market is identical with the buying power of that market. Canadian business leaders recognize this and make the daily newspaper the foundation medium of their advertising campaigns. No other medium can take its place.

It is the most powerful sales lever in the hands of Canadian business.

HINTS FOR GARDENERS

A CUTTING GARDEN

Some times the beauty of the regular flower garden is marred of space before producing flowers, when blooms are cut for decoration indoors. To avoid this a supply of flowers are often grown in rows in the vegetable patch for cutting purposes only. Here, too, are grown those flowers such as cornflowers, scabiosa and salpiglossis, which have beautiful bloom but poor foliage. The main crop of asters may also be grown here as these plants occupy a good deal of space before producing flowers. California poppies, zinnias and marigolds can be grown both in the cutting garden and border. Planted in rows with vegetables and receiving regular cultivation, these flowers are easily attended to and often better on account of the thorough cultivation than when grown in the regular flower garden and course, they may be cut at will without disfiguring any border.

Use of Herring For Manufacture of Meal and Oil

there, so that the boat crew found it necessary to abstain from setting the seine among the spawning herring to avoid utterly ruining the net.

"The spawn that gathers on the beaches does not mature. The only spawn that does mature is that on the seaweed. The other is wasted and becomes food for seabirds. Very few of the natives now use the herring spawn for food, is along with oolichan grease being steadily discarded."

In a statement on the subject recently filed at the office of the minister of fisheries at Victoria, Mr. Bushby says:

Herring in District No. 2

In District No. 2 the herring are of a very lean variety, yielding little oil, not suitable for drysalting or Scotch curing—they are suitable only for halibut bait and for conversion into poultry and stock feed or fertilizer.

"Drysalting—Several attempts have been made to utilize these herring for drysalting, but they have turned out a very meagre product and do not appear at the right time for the Oriental market, being available generally in late February and in March, too late for the Oriental market."

"Scotch cure—This has been attempted with no result other than financial loss; the fish not being suitable for this purpose."

"Edible Fish Market—Over a period of seven years an average of 10 tons of herring is recorded as having been used for table purposes."

"Kippering—These herring have been proven quite unsuitable for this purpose—all herring converted into kippers being imported from Alaska."

"Reduction work—These herring are of very poor quality as regards oil content, averaging not over five gallons of oil to the ton. This small yield of oil makes these herring unsatisfactory for general reduction purposes. By this I mean, that no one would consider the erection of a plant for the purpose of reducing herring and the paucity of oil making such operation unremunerative."

"Our plant—We find it profitable to handle herring in our plant for the reason that we handle all the salmon waste from the Skeena and Naas Rivers, halibut heads from the fish houses in Prince Rupert, and have to maintain the plant and a fleet of tugboats and scows for this purpose from February to November, therefore in our particular case it pays us to reduce herring in our slack time, as it keeps our boats and crews in commission, enables the plant to keep in operation and gives considerable employment at a time when work is scarce and very desirable.

"Comparison between Vancouver Island and District No. 2—In the Vancouver Island district there are numerous dry salteries with much capital invested, and the raw material for these already established plants must be protected—also there are some 23 fish reduction plants in that area, with large capacities for raw fish, with a large equipment in boats and gear, therefore the contention of the department that no herring should be used for reduction in that district is very reasonable, depletion of local supply being feared."

"In District No. 2, there are only two reduction plants and not any herring salteries. The plant at Butedale tried out herring, but, owing to lack of oil, gained no success—our plant being the other."

"There being no salteries in the district, no harm can be done to capital, and as we operate the only plant desirous of using herring, and as our capacity is quite limited, and as the supply of herring is very large, it is not reasonable to apply the same rule in District No. 2 as is applied to the Vancouver Island district, over 400 miles distant."

"In my opinion each district should be handled according to actual conditions as they exist—a blanket policy not being applicable to all parts of the coast line—as witnessed by the fact that the Prince Rupert herring is entirely different from the southern herring and the Alaska fat herring."

Special Conditions

"It is well known that vast quantities of herring occupy the area of which Pearl Harbor is the centre, and the Dominion Fisheries have already closed Pearl Harbor to all fishing, except under special conditions for securing bait when it is available nowhere else."

"Mr. Found, the deputy minister, during many conversations with me, has repeatedly and emphatically expressed himself as being not only in favor of using District No. 2 herring for conversion into feed, but is anxious that this should be done to provide such feed for poultry and stock.

"The deputy minister is contented to permit us to use this herring under the proper control of the departmental officials, providing it is not done to excess, when his officials will use preventive measures."

"The Dominion Fishery Regulations have permitted herring to be used for reduction purposes in District No. 2 for a number of years, excepting only Pearl Harbor as a forbidden area."

"The writer is quite in accord with the aims of both the Dominion and provincial departments in their policy of conservation, but such conversation should be along the lines of conservation and not prohibition."

"If these fish cannot be and are not used for human edible purposes, why should they be totally withheld from us to convert into feed for domestic stock and poultry?"

"Surely it is as important to feed the Canadian hen as it is to feed the Oriental humans—and in the case of District No. 2 we do not even drysalt herring for the Oriental market."

"The process of reduction distributes more money in the community than does the drysalting industry, and at the same time places large quantities of big protein feed at the disposal of our Canadian egg producers and a certain amount of fertilizer at the disposal of our agriculturists."

"Even in the matter of freights, the fish meal and oil give business to our domestic railways and steamship companies, whereas the drysalt business gives the bulk of its freight money to Japanese Maru boats."

"In Europe herring has been used for reduction purposes for many years and herring has been intensively fished in very restricted waters for generations, being fished by Great Britain, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Holland, France and Denmark, and yet, in spite of such intensive fishing by thousands of boats, it is recorded that last year there was the greatest run of herring in the memory of man."

"While in Europe there are thousands of boats, our plant only wants to utilize one seine boat with five men."

Dr. C. A. Eggert, who has been spending a few days in the city will sail by the Prince George on Thursday night on his return to Vancouver.

JURIST OF NOTE DIED

Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, Former Judge of Supreme Court, Passes in Toronto

HAD GREAT INFLUENCE

Standing Was High in Canadian Business and Professional Circles

TORONTO, April 8.—Hon. Wallace Nesbitt K.C., former judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, died yesterday at the age of 72. He was one of those men who, without seeking political honors holding elective office, exercised a great influence on the trend of opinion and affairs in Canada. His high standing in professional and business circles, his broad scholarship, his ability as a speaker, his keen interest in national and imperial matters and his readiness to devote himself to public causes gave him an influence appreciated by few.

At the early age of 45 years, the late Mr. Nesbitt was made a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada. The fact that the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then Prime Minister, went outside his own party to fill the vacancy on the bench indicates the high regard he held for Mr. Nesbitt's legal ability. But Mr. Nesbitt remained a judge only two years, retiring to resume private practice in 1905. For many years he enjoyed the distinction among barristers of being the only ex-member of Canada's highest court in private practice and in fact one of the few ex-judges in the country actively engaged in legal work.

Mr. Nesbitt was born on a farm near Woodstock, Ont., May 13, 1853, the son of the late Major J. S. Nesbitt. He was educated at Woodstock College and Osgoode Hall and was called to the bar of Ontario in 1881. His first practice was in Hamilton but he later moved to Toronto. He was made Queen's Counsel in 1896 and was made a member of the bar of Nova Scotia in 1907.

Successful Lawyer

As a lawyer, Mr. Nesbitt was eminently successful. He was counsel for many large corporations and acted in many important cases. On numerous occasions he appeared before the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council in London.

A staunch advocate of the closest imperial connection, Mr. Nesbitt always had independently formed opinions on public topics and did not hesitate to voice them on the public platform. Some of his views on controversial matters have since been confirmed by adoption and although others have been rejected and almost forgotten there can be no doubt of his influence on the development of Canada.

He was a strong advocate of the idea of Imperial federation, when that question was moot. He suggested a round-table conference of the public men of Great Britain and the Dominions to discuss the proposal and envisioned the establishment of a council of the Empire composed of representatives of its component parts.

During the period preceding the general election of 1911 he strongly opposed the scheme for reciprocity of trade between Canada and the United States. He predicted its adoption would eventually lead not only to economic but to political union. At this time he advanced a suggestion, adopted several years later, to establish a tariff board to advise the government on fiscal matters.

Opposed Washington Envoy

When the appointment of a Canadian minister to Washington was discussed he opposed the idea; but he was host to the first diplomat to a foreign power from one of the British Dominions, Hon. Timothy A. Smiddy, first Irish Free State minister to the United States, on the latter's visit to Toronto.

Mr. Nesbitt took a keen interest in the welfare of the legal profession, particularly in legal education. He was a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada and later treasurer, the highest office in that body. As a bencher he was a member of the legal education committee and was a frequent visitor to the Osgoode Hall Law School, often addressing the students and sitting in at lectures to observe methods of teaching. During his life he made a gift of $10,000 to the Law Society, the income of which was to be used for the improvement of legal education in Ontario.

He also took a prominent part in the activities of the Canadian Bar Association. In 1928 he was elected president.

Mr. Nesbitt was married twice, first to Mrs. Louise Plumb in 1889.

She died in 1894 and in 1898 he married Miss Amy Beatty. He had one son.

A Knight of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, Mr. Nesbitt was honorary president of the order in Canada and president of the Ontario branch. He was also a Mason. He was a Conservative. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

His clubs were the Toronto, the Toronto Golf, the Ontario Jockey, the Rideau and the Ottawa Golf, Ottawa; and the Garrick and the Ceell, London, England.

Russia Discussed By Fireside Club

Baptist Church Young People Had Weekly Meeting Last Night

The regular meeting of the Fireside Club was held in the Baptist Church Parlors last evening. The president, V. Houston was in the chair. Assisting in the devotional exercises were Miss Jean Smith, Miss Cathie Watson, M. R. Dafeo and G. Daniels.

After the devotional exercises a period of open discussion took place, the topic being "Persecution in Russia."

A fair attendance was recorded, though the looming examinations kept some of the younger members away.

They Pay You

ADVERTISEMENTS pay you to read them. They pay you in time. From the advertisements in this newspaper you can learn where to get what you want. instead of searching around. You can know the merits of each article offered for sale.

They pay you in money. Advertisements help you to get full value for your dollars. Goods which are consistently advertised are of consistently high quality for their prices.

They pay you in satisfaction. Manufacturers and merchants will not undertake an advertising campaign until they are sure their product is right. It would be ruinous to advertise an unworthy product, for that would simply call added attention to its deficiencies.

They pay you in information. Advertisements tell of new products, of new designs, new materials, better workmanship. Well-informed people always read the advertisements to keep posted.

Reading the advertisements is an investment that pays big returns.
