WASHINGTON GOVERNOR OBJECTS TO SALMON TREATY

Discord Between Province and State Feared Should Sockeye Pact Pass In Proposed Manner

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 21.—Control of the sockeye salmon in Washington waters is an inherent right of the state, Governor Roland H. Hartley contended in protesting yesterday to President Hoover against the contemplated Canadian-American treaty which would give this power to an international commission. "Control of the sockeye industry can best be maintained by interested officials of the province of British Columbia and the state of Washington," he said. The proposed treaty, he continued, would probably result in irritation and misunderstanding that would undermine the friendly relations now existing between the state and province.

At the end of the second period, Vancouver had a two-goal lead but the Cubs came back in the final period to score three goals, which were sufficient to win the game. The score was four to three.

The Union Steamship Co.'s passenger liner Cardena, which has been undergoing repairs at the local drydock following her stranding on December 20 on Village Island in the Skeena River when extensive damage was done, is scheduled to be launched from the pontoons about noon tomorrow. Work on the hull of the vessel is rapidly nearing completion.

After the Cardena takes to the water again, there will be some minor interior work to be carried out before the job is complete. She will sail on Friday or Saturday for Vancouver, where she will be re-commissioned next week on her regular schedule.

Entire Board of Big Missouri Re-elected 1930

The entire directorate was re-elected at the annual meeting of Big Missouri Mining Company Limited held in Tacoma last week. Informal reports showed that extensive development is in progress on the Big Missouri property in the Portland Canal district, while preparations for placing the Missouri Monarch Consolidated Mining Co.'s property, located in Nevada and in which Big Missouri has substantial holdings, on a production basis are under way. FURTHER PROTESTS

Southern Fishermen's Organizations Object to Howe Regulations

MONOPOLY FEARED

UCLUELET, Vancouver Island, Jan. 21.—Opposition to the fishing policy enunciated by Hon. S. L. Howe, provincial commissioner of fisheries, on the ground that it was a policy designed for the benefit of the canners, to whom it would give complete control of the industry, has been registered by the West Coast Salmon Fishermen's Association.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Jan. 21.—Meeting here, the British Columbia Fishermen's Protective Association voted against recognition of any "committee" to be composed of representatives of fishermen and cannery interests until the provincial fisheries department made clear its policy on many important points that affect the fishermen's interests.

NEW LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Many Believe That Hon. R. R. Bruce Will Be Asked To Continue For Another Term

VANCOUVER, Jan. 21.—Although the term of His Honor Robert Randolph Bruce still has 13 months to run, political and social circles are already beginning to discuss who will be his successor as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Some think Mr. Bruce will be asked to continue for a second term, as has often happened in other provinces, particularly where the incumbent has fulfilled his duties so eminently to the satisfaction of the general public as Mr. Bruce has done.

The appointment lies with the Dominion government, but is by no means a plum, except from the standpoint of the honor and distinction that goes with it. The salary, paid from the Dominion treasury, is $9000 a year, but an active governor usually spends several times that sum in travelling and entertaining.

Only wealthy men are thus in the realm of discussion for the office, although the province appropriates $35,000 a year for the maintenance of Government House and grounds.

The term of Mr. Bruce expires on February 24, 1931. His niece, Miss Helen Mackenzie, who has officiated as hostess at Government House during his incumbency, is to be married this coming spring. For this reason many believe he will not desire an extension of his term of office.

Brings Suits For Loss of Eye by Bottle Exploding

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—A waitress recently brought suit for $21,000 for the loss of an eye caused by an explosion of a bottle of soda water, when she was employed in a golf club house. She was unable to swear that the bottle in question belonged to the beverage company and the judge thought the case would go farther but could not award her damages for reasons not given at the time.

Representatives of Great Sea Powers Pledged Themselves To General Disarmament Principle

HIS MAJESTY THE KING

Chief figure at opening of naval disarmament conference in London today.

Epochal Gathering in London Opened by King George V. With Delegates From United States, Britain, France, Italy, Japan

PREMIER MACDONALD MAKES ELOQUENT LIMITATION PLEA

American Secretary of State Is in Accord With Doctrines Expressed; Canada's Minister One of Speakers

LONDON, Jan. 21.—King George V. formally opened the five-power naval conference here this morning with a six-minute speech which was broadcast over a world-wide radio hook-up. His Majesty pledged Great Britain's cooperation in an effort to limit the navies of the nations and expressed the hope that an agreement would be reached which would prepare the way for a general disarmament treaty. The King's face was ruddy, his step firm, and his voice rich and full of confidence.

"If each of us is equally determined to make some sacrifice and contribution towards the common good, the world will be making a lasting effort for alleviation of the heavy load of the common people," said the King.

"It is with sincere satisfaction that I am here with representatives of the naval powers who, by their deliberations, hope to curb the evil results of naval competition," His Majesty declared. "That competition has led to a feeling of insecurity among the nations. Since the great war all nations have done everything in their power to prevent a holocaust. One of the strongest columns in the edifice of peace we are erecting will be the elimination or reduction of navies to a point consistent with national security."

Following the King's address, the conference was formally organized with the nomination of Premier Ramsay Macdonald as chairman. The entire assembly stood respectfully as His Majesty passed out. Premier Macdonald then took the chair vacated by the King and began his own address, urging in eloquent terms the necessity of heightening the spirit of confidence among the peoples and thus paving the way for an agreement to halt competition in naval construction.

"The whole world," the premier said, "expects that we shall deliberate and negotiate on the assumption that, having put our names to the pacts of peace, we mean to respect our signatures."

UNITED STATES VIEW

Secretary of State Stimson of the United States followed with an address in which he remarked that the present effort at limitation was not to be regarded as final by any means. "Naval limitation is a continued process," he said. "We regard disarmament as a goal to be reached by successive steps and by frequent revision and improvement." Secretary Stimson pledged the cooperation of the United States to further endeavor on behalf of naval disarmament. "Our efforts to contribute to the success of endeavors in other fields will continue unabated," he declared.

RALSTON SPEAKS

Other delegation heads followed in alphabetical order in speaking. Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian minister of national defence, came next. "Canada comes with no assumption of undue prominence or importance," Colonel Ralston said. "She hopes particularly for the opportunity to be useful and helpful to those who will bear the burden of this great event. She is fully conscious that she is so situated as to be spared in some degree the anxiety which other nations experience regarding security. At the same time, she has been ready to assume what she conceives to be her natural responsibility and has shared in full measure with the nations of the world the bitter experiences of war."

The conference adjourned at 1:20 this afternoon to reconvene Thursday morning.

ROME, Jan. 21.—Minors should not be allowed in movies and music halls, said a resolution of the Italian national organization for maternity and infancy.

To combat the sinister influences of indoor amusements of that sort on the young, the organization's directorate urged more public playing fields, of which there are now 351 in the country.

COLD SNAP STILL ON

The cold snap, which has now been on nearly three weeks here, showed little if any signs of moderation this morning. The barometer was still standing steady around 29.75 and what little wind there was, was from the north. The minimum thermometer reading for the night at the Digby Island meteorological station was 21 above which was recorded early this morning.

ANNEXING UNITED STATES SUGGESTED

A year or two ago this paper suggested that Canada might some day annex the United States. The suggestion was received here with a certain amount of levity. Now, however, a United States publication with a large circulation repeats the suggestion and goes into considerable detail in regard to it. "Liberty" in its January 25 issue says:

It seems to be pretty generally agreed and understood that the United States not only should not, but never will, annex Canada.

Perhaps our schools do not broadcast as widely as they might the fact that we have tried twice to take Canada—once during the Revolution and once during the war of 1812—and failed both times. Well, twice is enough. It is fortunate no doubt that we did fail, and we are not going to try again.

However, if we are not going to annex Canada why wouldn't it be a good thing for Canada to annex us? There are a number of things to be said in favor of union.

This continent is a natural integer. The boundaries between the United States and Canada are for the most part imaginary lines. And Manitoba and North Dakota are far more homogeneous in the general occupation, character, and speech of their inhabitants than are North Dakota and Louisiana.

Canada supplies a lot of things we need and we supply a lot of things Canada needs. The boundary lines between us dam up a natural flow of wealth from both sides. Each country no doubt is poorer because of this tariff boundary, just as Illinois and Indiana would probably be poorer if there were a tariff boundary between them.

Form of Government

The Canadians already have a form of government well suited for us to join. Their provinces and our states are closely akin in character.

We could have our winter capital at Washington and our summer one at Ottawa, which would be a great improvement over things as they are now. Washington is a terrible place in summer.

The Washington baseball team could be transferred to Ottawa and play in far more enjoyable surroundings than those they have to put up with at present.

There are plenty of reasons, economic and otherwise, why all the territory north of the Rio Grande on this continent should be under the same government.

Of course, it is difficult to see how such a union is to take place—but it is also difficult to project one's imagination five hundred years into the future without seeing this territory belonging to one nation rather than to two.

There are really only two political differences of consequence between Canada and the United States, and one is in internal matters—the degree of local self-government allowed.

We believe this should be allowed as it is now in Canada, and we believe it would be a blessing if it were extended to the United States.

We offer that as our opinion.

Some will suspect no doubt that we are making direct reference to one of our constitutional amendments—and indeed we are. In this particular regard we think the government of Canada is superior to ours.

Empire Question

There is then the question of Great Britain. As a matter of fact, the connection there is now largely patriotic. The Canadians govern themselves to virtually as great an extent as do we. They exchange ministers with foreign countries and even levy tariffs on British-made products.

To all intents and purposes Canada is now a nation independent of Great Britain. It may be so even in foreign affairs, for the Canadians have direct representation with foreign governments and do not need to act through the British government.

It is hard to foresee what the future will bring in this respect, but the shiftings of political gravity may produce some day some form of alliance of English-speaking peoples as a matter of self-protection.

Should that day ever come it would be natural to expect that the political centre of gravity—the capital or capitals—would be on this side of the ocean.

We each play a part in the scheme of the universe even if only the part of the horrible example.

FOREIGN CAPITAL

Attracted To British Columbia's Mines by Stock Exchange

Recent publication by the Department of Mines of the "Preliminary Review of Mining Operations for 1929" indicates the world-wide interest in British Columbia mining enterprises. According to Charles G. Penneck, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, this institution has played an important part in the creation of this intensive mining activity.

The government's report states that the last three years had been characterized by intensive and widespread development of mineral properties and exploration for new prospects. The net result was that probably a dozen important profitable producing mines would be brought into existence.

Mining has an invested capital in British Columbia of $120,000,000, making it the third ranking industry. In 1928 $70,030,976 was produced from British Columbia mines, $12,500,000 paid out in dividends, and $30,000,000 in wages. In the past twenty years mines of this province produced $300,000,000 in new wealth.

Since its establishment in 1907, Mr. Penneck states, the Vancouver Stock Exchange has been a focal point for mining activity. Through engineers and financial experts employed by stock exchange members, data on companies and development of properties has been made available to the investor. Stock quotations, flashed by ticker to Montreal, New York and other financial centres, have also served to maintain the interest of capital in B. C. mining activities. The numerous services to the investing public maintained by the exchange have stimulated the flow of foreign capital and thus played a big part in the mining development of this province.

Kept Alive by Waving Arms In Snowdrift

CHITTENANGO, N.Y., Jan. 20. — William Randall, 76-year-old farmer, is alive today because he waved his arms and legs almost incessantly for seventeen hours while he lay in a snowdrift during a raging blizzard.

Randall had been working all day in the woods and came out to find himself completely hemmed in by huge snowdrifts. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and Randall was already weary and unsteady from his long day's work in the intense cold, but he plunged into the drifts in an attempt to break his way to the house. He progressed but a few feet before falling in a heap, too weak to rise again.

Recognizing that he was succumbing rapidly to the fatal drowsiness which precedes death by freezing, he began writhing and twisting his body, waving his arms and kicking his feet, in an attempt to keep sufficient circulation in his body to prevent his falling asleep.

A 9 o'clock the following morning Randall still was kicking as violently as his waning strength would permit. Harry Carpenter, a neighbor, passed near him and thought he saw something floundering in the snow but did not investigate. Returning three hours later he again noticed the disturbance and found Randall on the verge of unconsciousness.

The aged farmer was taken to a hospital, where he quickly rallied. His hands were the only part of his body which suffered from frost.

Official American League fielding records for the 1929 season show that the champion Philadelphia team tied with St. Louis for first place in team fielding at .975 with 5634 accepted chances for the A's and 5971 for St. Louis. That rare and spectacular feature—a triple play—was executed five times during the season. New York made two and Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis one each. Cleveland, leader in double plays in 1928 with 187, repeated this year with a total of only 162. On July 12 in the first game, St. Louis made five double plays against Philadelphia and on September 4, received the same treatment from Chicago. Joe Judge played 142 games for Washington at first base and was offered 1417 chances, of which he accepted 1411 (1323 putouts and 88 assists) for an average of .996. Charlie Gehringer had 404 putouts and 501 assists and but 23 errors in 154 games for a mark of .975. John Hodapp of Cleveland played 72 games at second with an average of .977. Gehringer participated in 93 double plays and Hodapp 32. Willie Kamm led the third basemen again with a mark of .978, having but 11 errors while making 221 putouts and 270 assists. Kamm was in 27 double plays and completed a triple play by pulling the hidden ball trick for the third time in his major league career. Shortstops were far below par, with Joe Boley the best of a mediocre field. The Philadelphia veteran was in only 88 games but strangely enough reached his best form late in the season and played brilliantly in the world series. His record of 161 putouts, 229 assists and 15 errors in 88 games for an average of .963 with 50 double plays was five points better than that of Leo Durocher, who had 197 putouts, 299 assists, 22 errors and 59 double plays for an average of .958 in 93 games. Al Simmons and Fred Schulte tied for outfielding honors with averages of .989. Thirteen pitchers who were in 24 or more games went through the season with perfect records. Fred Marberry had 50 chances in 49 games, George Walberg 60 in 40 games and Lloyd Brown 51 in 40 games. Harold Ruel led the catchers with .990 for 63 games, but Gordon Cochrane, who played in 135 games and handled 749 chances for an average of .983, was unanimously chosen as the outstanding receiver of the year. Joe Judge played through 80 consecutive games without an error and Simmons 99 games.

J. T. Zachary, the Yankees' veteran southpaw who has seen service with Washington and St. Louis as well as New York, led the American League pitchers both in percentage of games won and in lowest average of earned runs per game. Zachary worked in 26 games, seven of them complete, pitched 120 innings allowing 43 runs of which 33 were earned for an average of 2.47 per nine-inning game and won twelve straight games. Robert M. Grove was second with 2.82 earned runs with 20 victories and six defeats in 275 innings distributed through 42 games of which 21 were complete contests. Edwin A. Rommel was the only other hurler who held opponents to less than three earned runs per game. Rommel was employed mostly as relief man working in 32 games in which he hurled 114 innings. Twelve games were won and only two lost with an earned run average of 2.84. Rommel pitched four complete games. Grove fanned the most batters, 170. Earnshaw was second with 149 strikeouts and Pipgras third with 125. Earnshaw gave 125 bases on balls in 225 innings and Charlie Ruffing 118 in 244 rounds. Sam Grey worked 305 innings and 23 of his 43 games were complete. Alphonse Thomas of the White Sox pitched 24 complete games' out of 36 in which he appeared and was sixth in earned runs with 3.19 per game. There were no no-hit games and but four one-hit contests. Walberg, Faber, Wells and Pipgras turning in one game each. Alvin Crowder hurled three two-hit games and one four-hit performance. Howard Ehmke pitched but 55 innings and two complete games, of which one was a two-hit exhibition and the other a four-hit game. Zachary won 12 consecutive games and Ruf-ing lost the same number without a break. Al Thomas pitched nine consecutive complete games and his buddy, Ted Lyons, hurled a 21-round contest on May 24 against Detroit, the longest game of the season. In this game Uhle pitched 20 innings. Irving Hadley was relieved in twelve consecutive games which he started.

Al Simmons, anchor man on the world champion Athletics, added one more honor to his heavy total for the year, by leading the American League "Runs Batted In" list. Simmons accounted for 157 of the 901 runs credited to the Mackmen, while Ruth, playing eight games less than Simmons, was responsible for 154 of the Yankees' tallies. Max Bishop became so particular about what he swung at, opposing pitchers grew weary of seeing him around the plate and passed him to first 128 times in 129 games. Blue was second with 126 bases on balls in 151 games, while Gehrig with 122 and Foxx with 103 were the others who were awarded more than 100 free tickets. Babe Ruth, who has been honored for years with more than 100 bases per season and holds the record with 170, accepted but 72 in 135 games. Joe Sewell tied his own world's record of four strikeouts in 152 games, while Cochrane whiffed only eight times in 135 games and Sam Rice nine in 150. Young Jimmy Foxx struck out 70 times trying for home runs, two more than Gehrig, who had 68 and ten more than Ruth, who this year fanned but 60 times.

A copy of an interesting special issue of the Oshawa (Ontario) Daily Times which was published on January 11 in connection with the opening of a new arena at the eastern automobile town has reached this office. The sports of hockey and skating are, of course, featured in the special 12-page section and there are some very attractive articles dealing with winter sports, past and present. The new Oshawa arena boasts the largest ice sheet of any in Ontario. It has accommodation for 3,750 people.

Killam and Strome, small towns near Edmonton, Alta., have women's curling clubs. The Killam women curlers met and reorganized shortly before Christmas when skips were drawn for the season's play. There are four rinks this winter and possibly there will be still more before the season is much further advanced. There is talk of a bonspiel being held between the women curlers of Killam and the women curlers of Strome.

Death has claimed two notable English cricketers in C. I. Thornton, the most tremendous batsman in the history of the game, and Willis Cuttall, the first player to make 1,000 and take 100 wickets in a season. Mr. Thornton first attracted attention when playing as a substitute in a match, he knocked the ball out of the enclosure 13 times during an innings, scoring 128 in two hours. He played for Cambridge against Oxford four times, being captain in 1872. Though in his eightieth year he retained his interest in the game. Willis Cuttall was a leading Lancashire cricketer of 30 years ago. He was both a bowling and batting mainstay. On giving up county cricket, Cuttall was appointed coach at Rugby School. He later became a first-class county umpire, his active connection with the game ending in 1928.

CHURCH MEETING

First Presbyterian Church Had Successful Year in 1929

The annual congregational meeting of First Presbyterian Church was held last evening, when the following officers for the year were elected:

Congregational secretary—W. W. C. O'Neill.
Board of managers—T. McClymont, D. McKenzie, L. W. Patmore, J. Greer, J. W. McKinley, E. J. Smith, S. Massey, W. W. C. O'Neill, A. McKenzie, J. Hadden, Mrs. J. M. Simpson, Mrs. W. L. Sandison.
Session—J. W. McKinley, Rev. Thomas McConnell (moderator).

Additional members of session will be elected later by the congregation. The appointment of congregational treasurer and trustees was left in the hands of the board of managers.

After a brief devotional service conducted by Rev. Thomas McConnell, the meeting elected Thomas McClymont chairman.

The various departments of the church presented reports which showed that during the past year the church made splendid progress in every one of its spheres of activity.

Rev. Thomas McConnell presented the report of the session. During the year twenty-two new members were received into full communion with the church. Mr. McConnell stressed the urgency of increasing the session by the election and ordination of new elders.

Ladies' Aid
Mrs. Sandison presented reports from the Ladies' Aid. The various activities of this organization and its auxiliary groups resulted in a sum of $1471.53 being received. Of this amount, $1138 had been given to the financial board of the church. The president, Mrs. D. C. Stuart, gave a cordial invitation to all ladies connected with the church to join and assist this vigorous organization in its splendid work for the church.

The report of the Sunday School, presented by E. J. Smith, showed that this most important department was in a very flourishing condition. There are at present sixteen teachers and 190 scholars enrolled. During the year the Sunday School handed to the financial board of the church $100. Three or four additional teachers are urgently needed to cope with the increasing enrollment of scholars.

The treasurer's report on the financial condition of the church, presented by A. McKenzie, was the most gratifying one that has been received during the past few years. From this report it is evident that, with the continued co-operation of every church department and the loyal support of all members and adherents, the outlook for the future, as far as finance is concerned, will be very bright indeed.

cal, intellectual and social sides of life.

Boy Scouts
Ben Ferguson, leader of the Boy Scouts, reported for this department and told of the successful and helpful work being carried on by the boys under his charge.

Mrs. Robert Cameron presented reports from the Missionary Society and Mission Band. These are two new organizations which are of the utmost importance in the life of the church. The former is for adults and the latter for boys and girls under 12. Both are growing and both will fan that missionary spirit which is the very life blood of a living and active church.

Mrs. McRobbie reported that the Cradle Roll department of the Sunday School contained the names of 40 children.

A special vote of thanks was accorded to the Ladies' Aid for its great work and assistance. Thanks were also voted to all officers and workers whose united efforts had made the past year's work so successful.

During the meeting regret was expressed at the death of F. G. Dawson. Mr. Dawson had always been a liberal supporter of the church and could always be counted upon to help when difficulties arose, financial or otherwise. He had served on the board of managers for 17 years, and at the time of his death was a member of the board of trustees.

Refreshments were served by members of the Women's Auxiliary at the close of the meeting.

Man in the Moon

If the wife should be a nagger
Then the man should draw a dagger
And end the feud by hanging
With a rope;
But a man will never nag
Though he's married to a hag.
So his wife will never murder him, I hope.

The foregoing verse is published today just to show the kind of doggerel correspondents should not send us. We hate to refuse publication but this one is rather too raw. It's all right to make rhymes of that kind but when written they should be put in the stove for immediate consumption.

The mayor and aldermen are doing their first swearing this afternoon. They will probably swear a great deal more before the year ends.

Usually the girls that dress "fit to kill" are the same ones that cook that way.

I like a girl to dress
Even in time of stress,
For much depends on how a lass may look,
But of much greater import,
To the lad who comes to court,
Is the fact that she can wash a dish and cook.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets. ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

WOODBINE LAWSUIT

Stewart Mining Co. Suing Auditors
For Large Sum on Negligence and Fraud Claim

Claiming $748,189 damages for alleged negligence and fraud, Woodbine Gold Mining Co., Ltd., is a plaintiff in Supreme Court at Vancouver before Chief Justice Morrison against Arthur H. Edward and Edwards, Morgan & Co., chartered accountants.

Following a protest of Mr. J. W.
deB. Farris, K.C., that he was "here representing a responsible firm charged with negligence and fraud," his lordship stated that the case will be confined to the issues raised in the pleadings.

"My friend says he proposes to prove ante incorporation activities of Watson and there is nothing about that in the pleadings," Mr.
Farris pointed out.

The case was opened by G. L.
Fraser for the plaintiff company, who proceeded to elaborate the statement of claim.

The plaintiff pleaded that defendants were employed as its auditors, for which they were paid $3150, and that on May 18, 1928, and on February 20, 1929, they presented audited reports to the company and its shareholders. The reports, as alleged by the plaintiff, were "false, misleading and failed to disclose a true state of affairs of the plaintiff company.

Particulars of the alleged omissions include 1,450,000 treasury shares issued in February, 1927, to J. B. Watson, then president of the plaintiff company, or to his wife, Clara Louise Watson. It was alleged that the auditors failed to show that the Watsons held the shares in trust for the company.

Various other alleged omissions were recited by the plaintiff, which also pleaded that the auditors did not disclose that the company had without authority disbursed $39,689.
The $748,189 claim is computed on the basis of money lost by the company through being deprived of shares.

Alternatively, it seeks recovery of $3150 which had been paid the defendants for their services. It contends that the auditors agreed to return this money.

Allegations of fraud and negligence have been denied in a long statement of defense filed on behalf of the auditors.

The SEVEN DIALS MYSTERY

By Agatha Christie

Copyright by Public Ledger

INSTALMENT XIX.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Gerry Wade is found dead in bed at Chimneys, scene of a house party. Seven out of eight alarm clocks placed in his room to awaken him are lined up on a mantel. The guests are told that death resulted from an overdose of sleeping powder. Jimmy Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to tell a sister, Loraine, of Wade's death.

Lady Eileen Brent known as "Bundle" finds a letter Wade had written to his sister making reference to the Seven Dials. Bundle feels certain that Gerry was murdered. En route to London a man, mysteriously shot, staggers into the road in front of Eileen's car. It proves to be Devereux, who dying, whispers: "Seven Dials—tell—Jimmy Thesiger."

At Jimmy's quarters Bundle finds Loraine. The three of them set out to trail the murderer. From Captain Battle at Scotland Yard Bundle obtains a list of secret societies. That evening with Bill Eversleigh, she visits the Seven Dials Club. A watchman, Alfred, is recognized as a former footman at Chimneys.

Cabinet Minister George Lomax plans a party. He has received a warning letter from the Seven Dials Society. Bundle gets an invitation. Meantime she hides in the meeting room of the society and witnesses a meeting attended by masked members. She reports to Thesiger who has also obtained an invitation to the Cabinet member's party. Among the guests is one Herr Eberhard, an inventor who has military plans of interest to the Air Ministry.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

"Well, don't you go and pour confidences into her shell-pink ear," she remarked. "I'm going to bed. I was bored stiff in that drawing room and I'm not going back."

She left the room. Bill looked at Jimmy.

"Good old Bundle," he said. "I was afraid we might have trouble with her. You know how keen she is to be in everything. I think the way she took it was just wonderful."

"So did I," said Jimmy. "It staggered me."

"She's got some sense, Bundle has. She knows when a thing's plumb impossible. I say, oughtn't we to have some lethal weapons? Chaps usually do when they're going on this sort of stunt."

"I have a blue-nosed automatic," said Jimmy with gentle pride.

Could Not Sleep HEADACHES Were So Bad

Mrs. A. M. Arsenault, New Aberdeen, N.S., writes:—"For a period I had been troubled with headaches and they were so bad they kept me awake at night."

"I was advised by a friend, after having used many different kinds of medicine, to try

"After taking three bottles I was completely relieved, and can recommend it to be a perfect medicine."

"It weighs several pounds and looks most murderous. I'll lend it to you when the time comes."

Bill looked at him with respect and envy.

"What made you think of getting that?" he said.

"I don't know," said Jimmy, carelessly. "It just came to me."

"I hope we shan't go and shoot the wrong person," said Bill with some anxiety.

"That would be unfortunate," said Mr. Thesiger gravely.

JIMMY'S ADVENTURES

Our chronicle must here split into three separate and distinct portions. The night was to prove an eventful one and each of the three persons involved saw it from his or her own individual angle.

We will begin with that pleasant and engaging youth, Mr. Jimmy Thesiger, at a moment when he has at last exchanged final good-nights with his fellow conspirator, Bill Eversleigh.

"Don't forget," said Bill. "3 a.m. If you're still alive, that is," he added kindly.

"I may be an ass," said Jimmy, with rancorous remembrance of the remark Bundle had repeated to him, "but I'm not nearly so much of an ass as I look."

"That's what you said about Gerry Wade," said Bill slowly. "Do you remember? And that very night he—"

"Shut up, you damned fool," said Jimmy. "Haven't you got any tact?"

"Of course I've got tact," said Bill. "I'm a budding diplomatist. All diplomatists have tact."

"Ah!" said Jimmy. "You must be still in what they call the larval stage."

"I can't get over Bundle," said Bill, reverting abruptly to a former topic. "I should certainly have said that she'd be—well, difficult. Bundle's improved. She's improved very much."

"That's what your chief was saying," said Jimmy. "He said he was agreeably surprised."

Jimmy and Leopold

"I thought Bundle was laying it on a bit thick myself," said Bill. "But Codders is such an ass he'd swallow anything. Well, night-night. I expect you'll have a bit of a job waking me when the time comes—but stick to it."

"It won't be much good if you've taken a leaf out of Gerry Wade's book," said Jimmy maliciously.

Bill looked at him reproachfully.

"What the hell do you want to go and make a chap uncomfortable for?" he demanded.

"You're only getting your own back," said Jimmy. "Toddle along."

But Bill lingered. He stood uncomfortably, first on one foot and then on the other.

"Look here," he said.

"Yes?"

"What I mean to say is—well, I mean you'll be all right and all that, won't you? It's all very well ragging, but when I think of poor old Gerry—and then poor old Ronny—"

Jimmy gazed at him in exasperation. Bill was one of those who undoubtedly meant well, but the result of his efforts would not be described as heartening.

"I see," he remarked, "that I shall have to show you Leopold."

He slipped his hand into the pocket of the dark blue suit into which he had just changed and held out something for Bill's inspection.

"A real, genuine, blue-nosed automatic," he said with modest pride.

"No, I say," said Bill. "Is it really?"

He was undoubtedly impressed. "Stevens, my man, got him for me. Warranted clean and methodical in his habits. You press the button and Leopold does the rest."

"Oh!" said Bill. "I say, Jimmy?"

"Yes?"

"Be careful, won't you? I mean, don't go losing that thing off at any one. Pretty awkward if you shot old Digby walking in his sleep."

"That's all right," said Jimmy. "Naturally I want to get value out of Leopold now I've bought him, but I'll curb my bloodthirsty instincts as far as possible."

"Well, night-night," said Bill for the fourteenth time, and this time really did depart.

Jimmy was left alone to take up his vigil.

A Simple Task

Sir Stanley Digby occupied a room at the extremity of the west wing. A bathroom adjoined it on one side, and on the other a communicating door led into a smaller room, which was tenanted by Mr. Terence O'Rourke. The doors of these three rooms gave on to a short corridor. The watch-er had a simple task. A chair placed inconspicuously in the shadow of an oak press just where the corridor ran into the main gallery formed a perfect vantage ground. There was no other way into the west wing, and anyone going to or from it could not fail to be seen. One electric light was still on.

Jimmy ensconced himself comfortably, crossed his legs and waited. Leopold lay in readiness across his knee.

He glanced at his watch. It was 1:20—just an hour since the household had retired to rest. Not a sound broke the stillness, except for the far-off ticking of a clock somewhere.

Somehow or other, Jimmy did not much care for that sound. It recalled things. Gerald Wade—and those seven ticking clocks on the mantle-piece—Whose hand had placed them there, and why? He shivered.

It was a creepy business, this waiting. He didn't wonder that things happened at spiritualistic seances. Sitting in the gloom, one got all worked up—ready to start at the least sound. And unpleasant thoughts came crowding in on a fellow.

Ronny Devereux! Ronny Devereux and Gerry Wade. Both young, both full of life and energy; ordinary, jolly healthy young men. And now, where were they? Dank earth—worms getting them—Ugh, why couldn't he put these horrible thoughts out of his mind?

He looked again at his watch. Twenty minutes past one only. How the time crawled.

Extraordinary girl, Bundle. Fancy having the nerve and the daring actually to get into the midst of that Seven Dials place. Why hadn't he had the nerve and the initiative to think of that? He supposed because the thing was so fantastic.

No. 7. Who the hell could No. 7 be? Was he, perhaps, in the house at this minute? Disguised as a servant. He couldn't surely be one of the guests. No, that was impossible. But then, the whole thing was impossible. If he hadn't believed Bundle to be essentially truthful—well, he would have thought she had invented the whole thing.

Turned Light On

He yawned. Queer, to feel sleepy and yet at the same time strung up. He looked again at his watch. Ten minutes to two. Time was getting on.

And then, suddenly, he held his breath and leaned forward, listening. He had heard something. The minutes went past—There it was again. The creak of a board—

But it came from down stairs somewhere. There it was again! A slight, ominous creak. Somebody was moving stealthily about the house.

Jimmy sprang noiselessly to his feet. He crept silently to the head of the staircase. Everything seemed perfectly quiet. Yet he was quite certain he had really heard that stealthy sound. It was not imagination.

Very quietly and cautiously he crept down the staircase. Leopold clasped tightly in his right hand. Not a sound in the big hall. If he had been correct in assuming that the muffled sound came from directly beneath him, then it must have come from the library.

Jimmy stole to the door of it, listened, but heard nothing; then, suddenly flinging open the door, he switched on the lights.

Nothing! The big room was flooded with light. But it was empty.

Jimmy frowned.

"I could have sworn—" he murmured to himself.

The library was a large room with three windows which opened on to the terrace. Jimmy strode across the room. The middle window was unlatched.

He opened it and stepped out on the terrace, looking from end to end of it. Nothing!

"Looks all right," he murmured to himself. "And yet—"

He remained for a minute lost in thought. Then he stepped back into the library. Crossing to the door, he locked it and put the key in his pocket. Then he switched off the light. He stood for a minute listening, then crossed softly to the open window and stood there, Leopold ready in his hand.

Was there, or was there not, a soft patter of feet along the terrace? No—his imagination. He grasped Leopold tightly and stood listening.

In the distance a stable clock chimed two.

BUNDLE'S ADVENTURES

Bundle Brent was a resourceful girl—she was also a girl of imagination. She had foreseen that Bill, if not Jimmy, would make objections to her participation in the possible dangers of the night. It was not Bundle's idea to waste time in argument. She had laid her own plans and made her own arrangements. A glance from her bedroom window shortly before dinner had been highly satisfactory. She had known that the gray walls of the Abbey were plentifully adorned with ivy, but the ivy outside her window was particularly solid looking and would present no difficulties to one of her athletic propensities.

She had no fault to find with Bill's and Jimmy's arrangements as far as they went. But in her opinion they did not go far enough. She offered no criticism, because she intended to see to that side of things herself. Briefly, while Jimmy and Bill were devoting themselves to the inside of the Abbey Bundle intended to devote her attentions to the outside.

Her own meek acquiescence in the tame role assigned to her gave her an infinity of pleasure, though she wondered scornfully how either of the two men could be so easily deceived. Bill, of course,

Ready For Action

Once in the privacy of her own room, Bundle set rapidly to work. First she discarded her evening dress, and the negligible trifle which she wore beneath it, and started again, so to speak, from the foundations. Bundle had not brought her maid with her, and she herself had packed. Otherwise, the puzzled Frenchwoman might have wondered why her lady took a pair of riding breeches and no further equine equipment.

Arrayed in riding breeches, rubber-soled shoes, and a dark-colored pull-over, Bundle was ready for the fray. She glanced at the time. As yet, it was only half-past 12. Too early by far. Whatever was going to happen would not happen for some time yet. The occupants of the house must all be given time to get off to sleep. Half-past one was the time fixed by Bundle for the start of operations.

She switched off her light and sat down by the window to wait. Furtively at the appointed moment she rose, pushed up the sash and swung her leg over the sill. The night was a fine one, cold and still. There was starlight but no moon.

She found the descent very easy. Bundle and her two sisters had run wild in the park at Chimneys as small children, and they could all climb like cats. Bundle arrived in a flower-bed, rather breathless but quite unscathed.

She paused a minute to take stock of her plans. She knew the Air Minister and his secretary were in the west wing; that was the opposite side of the house from where Bundle was now standing. A terrace ran along the south and west side of the house, ending abruptly against a wall fruit garden.

Will Collect All Radio Licenses

It is understood that a drive will be made in Prince Rupert for the collection of radio licenses. In several of the cities those not securing licenses have been sued in the police court and fined and a condition like this may occur here.

Licenses cost only a dollar and may be purchased from the post office, McRae Bros., the Kent Hardware, or the radio inspector.

BURNS LAKE

It took only twenty minutes for the Circle R. Hotel on the north shore of Francois Lake to be destroyed by fire early last Thursday morning. The proprietor, John Roberts, and his wife escaped in their night attire, while several guests rushed through the blazing lobby in their bare feet. Zero weather was prevailing.

The new trail from Wistaria to Francois Lake is proving a great boon to the settlers, who are thus brought much closer to the outside world.

The Francois Lake ferry has ceased operating owing to the ice and its service will probably not be resumed until the lake is free of ice about next May.

STEWART

Melvin Matheson, foreman at Nine Mile for the Premier Gold Mining Co., is a patient in the Stewart General Hospital suffering from lacerations and bruises he sustained last week in a runaway from the Premier barn at Hyder.

Ed. Fernald is in a critical condition in the local hospital with burns about his abdomen, back and legs sustained last Wednesday when a can of crude oil which he was using to kindle a fire in his cabin at Hyder, exploded. Mr. Fernald is one of the old timers of Stewart and had been employed at the Premier Gold Mining Co.'s dock house.

G. R. Bancroft, well known consulting mining engineer, who is a visitor here, predicts that 1930 will be a better year in Stewart mining development than was 1929 owing to the fact that the stock market will be more stabilized.

Mrs. O. Michelizza has purchased the interest of Mrs. Obuchina in the Ritz Cafe here.

Rube Hull, news editor of the Stewart News, is still a patient in the Stewart General Hospital following his seizure with paralysis several months ago. He is in excellent spirits, however, and hopes that before long he will be able to be around again.

Alex Dodds, a resident of Stewart since 1919, died in his sleep last week in his cabin. He was 74 years of age and had been employed at various mining properties in the district. A sister resides in Perth, Ont. The funeral was held here on Saturday afternoon.

Montreal with Pen and Pencil

One of the oldest, most picturesque and historic cities on this continent—the city of Montreal—has found a worthy biography in the work of Victor Morin and the well-known Canadian Academician Charles W. Simpson, who have between them produced, under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a description in words and drawings bearing the above title. Written originally in French it has been rendered into English in a translation that conserves the original verve and atmosphere of the book. In forty pages of clear and readable type with fifteen full page reproductions of pictures that are in themselves works of art, the story of the city is told for the past three hundred years. Lay-out shows two contrasted and typical scenes: the famous church of Notre Dame, second largest on the continent; and Bonsecours market that resembles a scene taken from a city of Normandy.

A Valuable Buying Guide

BEFORE you order dinner at a restaurant, you consult the bill-of-fare. Before you take a long trip by motor-car, you pore over road maps. Before you start out on a shopping trip, you should consult the advertisements in this paper. For the same reasons!

The advertising columns are a buying guide to you in the purchase of everything you need—including amusements! A guide that saves your time and conserves your energy; that saves useless steps and guards against false ones; that puts the s-t-r-e-t-c-h in family budgets.

The advertisements in this paper are so interesting, it is difficult to see how anyone could overlook them . . . fail to profit by them. Just check with yourself and be sure that you are reading the advertisements regularly—the big ones and the little ones. It is time well spent . . . always.

For example, read the grocery store "ads" this week.

Avoid time-wasting, money-wasting, detours on the road to Merchandise value. Read the advertising "road maps."

CONVICTION SUSTAINED

Dido Gurvich Loses County Court Appeal Against Police Court Liquor Sale Conviction

Dismissing the appeal of the defendant, Judge Young in County Court yesterday afternoon sustained a conviction and fine of $300 imposed by Magistrate McClymont in city police court upon Dido Gurvich for selling liquor. L. W. Patmore was counsel for Gurvich and W. E. Fisher for the crown.

The evidence in the case was to the effect that two Americans went to Gurvich's place to obtain liquor. Gurvich said that he had no permit but that he could get the liquor for them. He sent his driver, Roy Fisher, to the vendor's and the liquor was secured. Then it was turned over to Gurvich, who, in turn, transferred it to the Americans. Gurvich admitted that he was willing to secure the liquor in consideration of the taxi fare. On being arrested, and after he had been warned that he was to be charged with selling liquor, he told police officers that he was "wrong" and that he intended to plead guilty without engaging a lawyer.

In his argument on behalf of Gurvich, Mr. Patmore contended that a sale had not actually taken place insofar as Gurvich was concerned. He had merely acted as agent for the Americans. The only sale was when the liquor had been purchased from the vendor. Defence counsel tendered several court decisions in support of this contention. There was not the element of a sale. Mr. Patmore admitted that here might have been an offence, that of using another person's permit, for which there was a penalty of $50, but not of selling, for which the fine was $300. The police, however, had been too greedy and would not be satisfied with the smaller fine.

Mr. Fisher contended that, before Gurvich sent for the liquor, an arrangement had been made that $15 was to be paid for it. The Government Liquor Act provided that any sale, barter, supply or distribution should be considered as a sale. It was not even necessary to show that money had been passed or liquor consumed. He would rely on the section of the act which provided that "no person shall expose, keep for sale or directly or indirectly sell or offer to sell or for any consideration or under any pretext give any person any liquor." In this case, the accused himself had admitted that the dollar taxi fare was his consideration for doing the job. This, crown counsel, was sufficient in itself to support the conviction. Further, accused had admitted that he was wrong.

His honor announced that he was quite satisfied from the evidence that the action of Gurvich came within the purview of the definition of sale under the Liquor Act and, therefore, he dismissed the appeal. Mr. Fisher asked that the fine be increased but the judge declined to interfere with this.

Brother of Local Man Died Lately At Keno Hill, Y.T.

The death occurred at Keno Hill, Yukon Territory, on January 11, of Thomas Hyde Hinton, a brother of J. A. Hinton of this city and also of W. F. Hinton of Toronto, well known here as a former railway official. The late Mr. Hinton was 60 years of age. The funeral took place in the north.

NOT IN SCOTLAND

CONFERENCE HEARD HERE

Local Radio Fans Well Rewarded by Waiting Up to Tune In This Morning

KING GEORGE SPEAKS

His Majesty as Well as Premier Macdonald Heard Distinctly on Local Sets

For the first time in the history of local reception, King George V. was heard by Prince Rupert radio fans last night. His Majesty was speaking at the opening of the five-power naval disarmament conference at London. It was 11 a.m. Greenwich time and 3 o'clock here.

The opening of the conference was broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co. of Britain, successfully picked up on this side of the Atlantic Ocean by the National Broadcasting Co. of America, by whom it was relayed through various stations to all parts of this continent. The whole undertaking was a great success. It was the first time in history that a European monarch was heard over the radio in America.

Except for a little interruption on the part of Digby Island wireless station reception of the opening of the conference here was excellent. The speeches of King George, Premier Ramsay Macdonald and other speakers came in very clearly. The King spoke about five minutes and Premier Macdonald a little longer. The premier promised that he would do his best to facilitate the work of the conference and show his impartiality.

Most of the local fans who waited up to hear the proceedings tuned in on KOMO station, Seattle. In connection with the broadcast, this station played a program of national airs of the five nations represented at the conference—Great Britain, United States, France, Japan and Italy. This in itself proved very acceptable.
