

Airplane Survivors Tell Experiences

EPIC STORY OF BURKE'S DEATH AND BURIAL TOLD BY MARTIN AND KADING

WHITEHORSE, Dec. 11.—In a conversation with Emil Kading and Bob Martin, who were rescued this week from the barren wilds of the Upper Liard River country by Pilot E. L. Wasson, the following story was obtained of their hardships and the death and burial of Capt. E. J. A. Burke:

After leaving Liard Post on October 11, they flew into a snowstorm and went back to the Liard River. They followed up the river, hoping to reach Wolf Lake, but were compelled to land in the river to await clear weather. They made another start the same day but the storm came on again before they had gone far and they were compelled to land again. This time, the pontoons struck a rock and floating ce and were badly damaged but the plane was undamaged.

They camped beside the plane for six days during which time Kading hunted for game with little success.

On October 17, they left the camp, travelling up the river, hoping to make Wolf Lake. The entire party was now becoming weak from lack of food and were unable to travel far at a time, on account of deep snow and the necessity to make frequent camps.

Burke was rapidly losing strength and it was easily seen that he could not hold out much longer. On November 15, Kading shot a caribou which gave he (Kading) and Martin renewed strength but Burke was too far gone to be helped. He drank some soup but it failed to revive him.

Burial of Paddy Burke

On November 20, Kading and Martin performed the sad duty of making a grave out of logs for Paddy about forty miles from the abandoned plane. They made it as safe as possible from the molestation of wild animals.

On November 8, Burke had made his last entry in the log and wrote a message for his wife who is now in Atlin.

On November 25, Wasson's plane flew over Kading and Martin but it was gone before the two men had time to make a big smoke. A few days later the plane passed over them again and they suffered the same heartbreaking experience.

Determined now to have fuel handy to make a big smoke in case the rescue plane should again be seen, they put all their energy into gathering a huge pile of dry boughs and listened intent for the sound of Wasson's motor.

Martin and Kading Found

Last Saturday while Kading was some distance from the camp gathering wood, Martin heard the sound of an approaching plane and called to Kading. Both men worked frantically piling fuel on the fire and making a huge smoke which was seen by Wasson and Walsh. Wasson circled over Martin and Kading as a signal that he had seen the smoke and then looked for a suitable landing place which was 10 miles from the camp.

Immediately after landing, Wasson and Walsh set out on snowshoes for the camp. Regardless of approaching darkness and a severe blizzard which soon sprang up, Wasson and Walsh trudged on but, in the storm, they missed the camp and mushed several miles beyond it before they made camp for the night.

On Sunday morning, Wasson and Walsh mushed back, shouting at intervals. Finally Martin and Kading heard them. Weakness made them unable to answer by shouting so they fired their last cartridge to attract attention. In a few minutes, Wasson and Walsh were providing the unfortunate men with food and stimulants.

They all camped together at this place on Sunday night and on Monday, Kading and Martin having recovered sufficiently, the party struck out for Wasson's plane which was reached late in the afternoon. Tuesday was stormy so the party had to remain in camp.

Kading and Martin had made such a wonderful comeback that, when they reached here at noon yesterday, from outward appearances, they looked none the worse for their trying experiences except for two months' growth of beards.

Martin has two slightly frozen toes and one of Kading's hands is frost-bitten but the condition of neither is serious.

Will Go Back For Burke Body

It is expected that Pilot Everett Wasson and Joe Walsh, heroes in the solving of the great air mystery, will go back to the Liard River soon to bring out Burke's body. The grave has been carefully marked. The body will have to be carried out 10 miles to the plane which will take the remains to Atlin where Mrs. Burke resides and where burial will likely be made.

Capt. Burke, World War airman, who perished in peace time adventuring, is survived, besides his widow by two small children—one a daughter, about twelve years of age, and the other a son, little more than a babe.

It is said here that Burke embarked upon the ill-fated flight against his better judgment, feeling that it was hazardous to embark upon such a long hop between seasons when a freeze-up was imminent. However, he had had bad luck during the season, having lost considerable time and a number of trips and, there being real money in Martin's expedition, he decided to take the chance which cost

TAYLOR AGAIN MAYOR OF VANCOUVER

VETERAN CHIEF MAGISTRATE IS AGAIN ENTRUSTED WITH OFFICE BY SOUTHERN CITY

Was Given Majority of More Than Five Thousand Votes Over Mayor W. H. Malkin at Polls Yesterday

VANCOUVER, Dec. 11.—Ex-Mayor Louis D. Taylor, who has served the city as chief magistrate for seven years at various times, was again elected in yesterday's civic election over Mayor W. H. Malkin with a majority of over five thousand votes. The vote was: Malkin, 17,464; Taylor, 22,550. There is but one new face on the aldermanic board, this being that of Walter Deptford, Laborite, who was elected in Ward Seven to succeed Angus McInnis M.P., who quit the city council to devote all his time to federal affairs.

CAPT. BURKE KNOWN HERE

Local People Had Flown With Dead Who Visited Prince Rupert Last Year

Four Lives Lost

It was with feelings of personal regret that many Prince Rupert people received the word yesterday afternoon that Capt. E. J. A. Burke, well known commercial aviator of Atlin, had died under such tragic circumstances. Quite a number of local people had flown with Capt. Burke in the north during the past summer. These included Dr. J. T. Mandy, resident mining engineer; J. D. Lawrence, local agent of the Government Telegraphs, Olof Hanson, M.P., and possibly others. Still other local people knew Capt. Burke through his having visited here in the past. It may be remembered that he was the pilot of the first airplane that visited Prince Rupert in 1929. It was a Boeing boat that was exploring a commercial route to Alaska.

Before taking up commercial flying two or three years ago, Capt. Burke was in the Royal Canadian Air Force. He won distinction as a flyer in the Great War. He is survived by a widow and children who went to Atlin to take up residence shortly before the start of the ill-fated flight on October 10, last.

It was ironical enough that Capt. Burke should have set his plane down safely on the Liard River, only to perish later from starvation while endeavoring to find his way out after his plane had been frozen in by the first cold spell of the fall.

Pilot Everett L. Wasson did yeoman work in his persistent efforts to solve the grim tragedy of the north which he was at last successful in accomplishing.

The now conceded but mysterious fate of Pilot Renahan and his two companions, Frank Hatcher, mechanic, and Sam Clerf, guide, makes four lives lost in connection with the disappearance of Capt. Burke.

Westview People Are Not Willing To Pay For Bus

Parents of Westview had no reply at last night's meeting of the school board to the suggestion offered them last month by the board that they might assume at least part of the cost of bus service to carry the children of that section of town to schools in town.

Trustee L. W. Waugh explained that some of the parents had expressed willingness to contribute financially to such a service. Not a sufficient number had expressed themselves, however.

In view of the fact that the board has no money available with which to finance the service, it was decided to drop the matter for the time being at least.

Almost six weeks after being stranded in Northern British Columbia Captain Burke, the well known flyer, starved to death. During all that time no attempt was made by the Canadian government air force, working under the Department of National Defence, to go to the rescue. Already they have been much criticized for this but they will be criticized more now that it is shown that, if they had acted, the story told yesterday might have been different.

Without full knowledge it is difficult to know what to say but it seems as if those in charge of the Air Force have laid themselves open for very severe criticism.

Philip Snowden Discusses Proposed Imperial Conference at Ottawa Next Year

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Rt. Hon. OLD FLOAT MAINTENANCE

City Council Asks Provincial Government to Keep Up Cow Bay Launch Harbor Temporarily

In reply to a communication from Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, the city council, at a special meeting yesterday afternoon, on motion of Ald. Collart and Ald. Linzey, decided to request the provincial government to maintain temporarily at least the old fishermen's floats in Cow Bay. It was felt by the council that these old floats were still a great convenience to the public.

Mr. Bruhn's communication pointed out that the government had practically no interest in continuing the Cow Bay floats, same being for the fishermen on the coast to whom they were free of charge, the city being, therefore, the main benefactor. In addition the Dominion government had provided new floats at a considerable cost. The provincial government proposed to do no more work on the floats but, before taking action, would like to be advised by the city.

EAT WHEAT PRODUCTS

One fact seems to stand out clearly in connection with the present state of the world wheat market, and that is that we have reached saturation point in wheat production, says Professor James Miller, professor of pathology at Queen's University. No doubt the situation at present is aggravated by other factors, such as the dumping of wheat by the Soviet Government at the expense of its own people, who are partially starving. This, however, may be no temporary occurrence. It is conceivable and even probable that with her revolution in agricultural methods Russia may throw more wheat each year on the world market, a situation which might indeed have been anticipated as a sequel to her industrial recovery.

As regards Canada, producing as she does vastly more wheat than she can consume and with a surplus of unsold grain piling up in her elevators year by year, the situation is especially grave. There appear, however, to be three possible cures. One is the purchase of wheat in larger quantities by the Motherland. Under the suggested quota system, this may be effected, even although some system of imperial preference is for the moment declared to be impossible. The second method, surely a policy of despair but one which is already being discussed, is the giving up of large tracts of our wheat growing land in favor, I suppose, of crops of another description, or of grazing.

It seems to me that there is a third possibility, a palliative if not a cure—namely, the consumption of more wheat by the world generally and, as a beginning, by the ten million inhabitants of Canada.

There appeared in the daily press the other day an account of an experiment done upon a Chicago student for some reason or other, an experiment in the carrying out of which he lived on nothing but oatmeal and water and at the end of six months was found to be perfectly fit. This story may or may not be true, but a similar experiment used to be carried out by hundreds of Scottish lads during their university careers. Whole wheat meal may be accepted as an equivalent for oatmeal. It contains all the constituents necessary for a diet with the exception of water. It even contains certain vitamins. It is not, however, suggested that we in Canada should all live solely upon wheat meal, but merely that we should resolve to eat more cereal, making sure, of course, that this cereal is home grown.

The Letter Box

POSITION OF CANNERIES

Editor, Daily News:

A news item published in The Daily News December 8th, 1930, has attracted my attention for the reasons of inaccurate surmise relative to the canners' pack of last season earnings of the fishermen and the attitude of Hon. S. L. Howe.

The item under discussion was: "Salmon Pack Large But Canners Are Not Making Gain In 1930."

"Hon. S. L. Howe, provincial minister of fisheries stresses the limited authority exercised by the Provincial Government over the British Columbia Fisheries."

The Northern B. C. Salmon Fishermen's Assn. went on record opposing any further transference of administrative powers from The Federal to The Provincial Government.

Amongst various reasons advanced by the participants in the convention of the above association were:

Exorbitant operating licence fees for the dry-saltery in effect have eliminated former competition from the salteries by squeezing such out of business, which has resulted in the advantage for the canners in cheaper fish at the expense of salmon fishermen, while Hon. Howe is being credited with— "He deplores... and that many fishermen cannot make a comfortable living due to the fact that too many are allowed to operate."

From above it is evident that either Hon. Howe did not foresee that the increased dry-saltery licence fees will provide canners with cheaper fish and fishermen with the reduced earnings, or these results were the objective of Hon. S. L. Howe's intentions.

The increase in the canning licenses fees will of necessity be passed on to be borne by the fishermen over whose welfare Hon. Howe seems to be worried so much as the market conditions at present and for some time to come will prevent canners from passing this additional cost of operation to the consumers.

Whichever is the case, whether lack of foresight, or intentions on the part of Hon. Howe salmon fishermen are justified in their opposition to any increase of powers to Hon. S. L. Howe.

Next important part of the item that was not quoted by me before is:— "He deplores the fact that, while the current season's pack is the largest in the history of the province, the canners will stand the loss on the season's operations and that many of the fishermen cannot make comfortable living..."

According to the Pacific Fisherman, accurate statistics of which are accepted by all governments there is a world's shortage of salmon pack this season as figures below would indicate—

Total world's pack for 1930	8,900,000 cas.
Total world's pack for 1929	10,049,000 cas.
Total world's pack for 1928	10,637,000 cas.
Total pack put up by the Japanese and Siberian concerns:	1,800,000 cas.
Home consumption Japan & Russia	500,000 cas.

Leaving the balance for export 1,100,000 cas. England consumes about 2,000,000 cases per year.

Canada has preferential tariff conditions in France over Japan Russia and United States.

The results of the extensive advertisements in Canada and England by the Canadian canners have already favourably reacted on our canners enabling them this year to sell half as much more of canned salmon than was possible last year.

The contrast between the fact as disclosed and the stupidology by The Financial Post to which The Daily News refers as the source for the item under discussion, on behalf of our poor canners who are always pictured as operating with loss no matter how favorable conditions may be; either due to accident, or as a result of certain legislation leads me to the conclusion that the real trouble is not too many fishermen with inadequate earnings, as Hon. Howe assumes and deplores, but mismanagement of the industry under the system of production for profit.

Canada, as a whole, produces far more commodities than its population can consume, and, while a certain surplus is necessary for the purpose of exchange for commodities produced elsewhere but needed for consumption in Canada, the largest portion of this surplus (surplus value) is distributed among unprofitably employed.

Legitimate solution of small earnings and other problems for salmon fishermen under capitalism is the co-operative canneries and distributing plants and gradual displacement of the wasteful methods, which according to the canners themselves are the conditions over which they have no control, nor can they obtain government assistance to cope with as their endeavor at Ottawa in 1927-28 and last year Hon. Howe's proposition discloses.

I have no objection to Mr. S. L. Howe as a man who in effect serves the interest of the class he belongs to, but as a minister of fisheries who was in need of information from one of the canners (Mr. Gosse) as to the fact that he had jurisdiction over the matter that he intended to legislate in 1929, which he could obtain three months earlier from our association and who prophesies special sympathy for salmon fishermen as pointed out in the first part of this letter, well I may join the chorus and deplore it also.

With apology for those who may find it difficult to understand,
M. ANDERSON.

Congratulations From School Board For Fred Kergin to Be Conveyed

On motion of Trustee W. R. McAfee, seconded by Trustee L. W. Waucho, the board of school trustees decided last night to write a letter of congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Kergin in view of the fact that their son, Dr. F. G. Kergin, had been elected a Rhodes Scholar.

Trustee J. H. Thompson thought that the achievement of Dr. Fred Kergin reflected great credit upon the schools of Prince Rupert and he believed that the board should voice its recognition of such accomplishment.

"And to think that time after time he wanted to increase his life insurance and I talked him out of it. How hard I worked against myself and against my own interests. I wanted a bigger house. I wanted luxuries! I wanted everything except the protection he was urging me to accept.

It has been truly said that, "If every wife knew what every widow knows, every man would carry adequate Life Insurance".

And too often it is the children who must pay the penalty of the wife's prejudice.

A recent incident where an 18-year old girl from Greece had sought to enter Borden Street School to receive instruction in English only was reported to the school board at its meeting last night. The suggestion of Miss Mills that a private tutor should be obtained for such a pupil was endorsed by the board.

The school board last night authorized the secretary to write a letter to the principals of King Edward High School and Booth Memorial School expressing appreciation of members of the board at having been sent complimentary tickets for the forthcoming Christmas entertainment of those schools.

Miss E. A. Mercer, principal of Booth Memorial School, in her report for the month of November presented to the school board at its meeting last night, stated that Armistice Day had been suitably observed in her school. Miss Mercer thanked the board for granting permission to use the school auditorium for the forthcoming Christmas entertainment.

Ordinarily, Burke was known to be a very careful pilot. Kading, a German air mechanic, was said to be even more discreet.

SPORT CHAT

In order to clarify the position of the major leagues in their controversy with the minors over the draft, President John Heydler of the National League has issued a statement declaring: "We simply refuse to have another conference with minors on the draft. We have had too many now and they have led to nothing," the statement continued. "When the minors come to us with a concrete proposition we will consider, and not before. They must first agree among themselves as to what they will do. Naturally, our ultimatum will stand until that time. The reply of the majors to the minors as given out at Montreal by the latter is misleading to say the least."

To make the matter straight, he made public the telegram sent to Walter Haggood, chairman of the minor leagues' committee as follows: "Guided solely by past experiences, I doubt anything can be accomplished by further conferences. If the Class Double A Leagues can agree among themselves on some definite proposition, I am confident the same will receive full consideration by the major leagues. In the meantime, no action is possible looking to either rescinding or suspending the major leagues' resolution of July 9 which now is in effect."

This resolution calls for suspension of all business relations with the leagues not accepting the draft. A similar telegram sent by President Ernest A. Barnard of the American League, contained the following statement, Heydler said: "The Double A. Leaguers, in reaching agreement, should keep in mind that no plan will be accepted by the majors that cannot be carried out all down through the lower classifications and also carry the approval of the whole association of minor leagues."

Shop Today and Shop at Home

Prince Rupert merchants are offering some great values for Christmas this year. Many of them have dropped their prices to keep pace with the reductions made in the great centres of population.

This is a good time to buy. Get the shopping done before Christmas is too near and the stores are crowded with eager men and women anxious to grab for anything.

Most Prince Rupert people are not affected by the hard times. Many are better off today than they were last year because their money goes farther. They can buy more if they wish for their salaries remain the same.

Friends need remembering just the same this year as in the past. Some of them need it more.

Those who are able to do so would do well to shop mornings because at that time the merchants and their assistants have time to attend to your wants.

Read the Daily News advertisements, for they will help you in your selection.

Are You a Judge of Whisky?

Men have been known to think, and even hear to say, that the whisky with a "kick" or a bite is stronger than the whisky without it.

It is seldom so, the "kick" is due to one fact and one fact only, which is the admixture of raw spirit to a blend.

"WHITE HORSE" is a whisky without a bite or kick, and which fits perfectly each occasion, and every mood.

A more mellow, generous and delightful spirit than "WHITE HORSE" is not obtainable.

Theatre Offer Is Made to Schools

Col. McMordie Would Give Free Pass to Most Popular Child in Each Division

On recommendation of principals, the school board decided last night that it could not entertain an offer from Col. S. P. McMordie, manager of the Capitol Theatre, to give free passes to the most popular pupil in each division of the schools. A letter will be sent to Col. McMordie thanking him for his offer and expressing regret that it could not be accepted. Col. McMordie's letter was as follows:

"Christmas will soon be here and as this day belongs particularly to the children, the Capitol Theatre would like to be Santa Claus to a limited number of the children of the schools of the city.

"To select the children, the consent and co-operation of the school board is necessary and I am writing to ask if you would kindly help me in this matter and ask the teachers of the various classes to have their pupils select a child from each class room and I would be pleased to give them a pass to the theatre from, say December 20 to January 3, in this way covering the Christmas season.

"If your board approves of my request, might I ask that I be advised of the selections made, not later than December 17, and that all children so chosen attend the matinee of December 20 on which occasion I would be very pleased if the school board and also the teachers, would be my guests.

More Correspondence On Overstaffing of Schools Received

Another communication was read at last night's meeting of the school board from S. J. Willis, superintendent of education, who suggested recently that schools of this city, judging from the average number of pupils in each class, might be over staffed with teachers. The fact that senior matriculation and commercial classes were operated in connection with the High School might account for the number of teachers there, Mr. Willis admitted.

As for the public schools, Mr. Willis felt that forty pupils in a class could be handled nicely.

Miss E. A. Mercer, principal of Booth Memorial School, presented a statement to the board showing the number of pupils in each class in her school. The board was unable to see where it would be possible to cut down the teaching staff of that school.

WIRELESS OF POLICE

Whole Province Is Covered By Service—One of Stations Located In Prince Rupert

TRANSMIT FINGER PRINTS

Operating one of the most complete and successful short-wave wireless chains on the continent the British Columbia police radio system has handled 3600 messages, containing 180,000 words, at its seven stations in its first year, it was learned recently. Many smart captives are credited to use of the system, which keeps the headquarters at Victoria in touch with its far-flung posts from the Yukon to the forty-ninth parallel.

As a sidelight on the use of the service, it is stated that plane to shore communication could be maintained throughout the search for the missing aviators in the northern country if planes taking part in the search for the Burge and Renahan parties had similar apparatus.

Aircraft Contact

The police sets, of fifty watts power, operate on wave lengths of 40, 46, 82 and 86 metres, and have a range of from 50 to 700 miles, by daylight. These sets could maintain contact with similarly equipped aircraft operating over any part of British Columbia, through one or other of its stations located at Victoria, Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Prince George, Kamloops, Nelson and also the police patrol vessel operating out of Prince Rupert.

The system was instituted after experiments in the fall and spring of 1928-29, under instruction from Col. J. H. McMullin, superintendent of the provincial police. A daily two-way service is kept up with each police divisional post in the province, and replies to queries from Victoria headquarters can be received in the city inside of three minutes from the farthest limits of the service.

It was over the short-wave wireless system that first word was received of the Cozena Spencer tragedy, and likewise the news of the North Pine and Houston murders recently.

Transmit Prints

Arrangements are now being made for the transmission of finger prints classifications, so that the outside posts of the service may obtain instant recognition from the criminal investigation department files here of any prints they photograph at the scene of a crime.

Finger printing is growing in importance, as police forces all over the world exchange notes on known offenders, and will be one of the subjects to be taught at Douglas House, the new provincial police school to open shortly with a ten weeks' course for junior police officers. Transmission of the classifications by wireless will bring the advantages of the central criminal bureau to every part of the system in the province.

While many agencies are making use of short-wave wireless communication, few have developed its effectiveness to the point where they maintain constant touch over the wide area and under such frontier conditions as embraced in the British Columbia police wireless system.—Victoria Colonist.
