VICTORIA, March 20:—Amendments to the School Act introduced in the legislature yesterday by Hon. The tax will also apply to personal property within school districts where a school may be closed. The purpose of the next tax is to make persons outside school districts who use schools of adjoining districts pay something toward the cost of this service. The tax is designed to cover costs of rebates to farmers as previously announced and is expected to total about $200,000 annually.

BOY SCOUT HEAD DIES

Dr. J. W. Robertson Was Chief Commissioner For Canada Also Red Cross Chairman

OTTAWA, March 20:—Dr. J. W. Robertson of Toronto, aged 78, chief commissioner of the Boy Scouts' Association of Canada, died here last night. He was also chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society and to him were due many of the elements of Canada's national life which are now accepted as part and parcel of the country's general activities. These are varied in their range, extending from such purely humanitarian services as the Victoria Order of Nurses and the post-war development of the Red Cross Society to other exclusively economic features that have their most durable expression in the agricultural colleges of Ontario and Quebec.

FISHERIES BILL IS FINALLY PASSED

VICTORIA, March 20:—Final endorsement was given in the legislature yesterday afternoon to the new fisheries bill of Hon. S. L. Cross-Examination Brings Out Testimony Favorable to Fraud Defendants CALGARY, March 20:—Admission by Kenneth J. Morrison, chartered accountant, that the terms of "jitney broker" and "wash sales" did not necessarily suggest dishonest or disreputable brokerage operations and that the accumulated profits of Solloway, Mills & Co. mentioned in Tuesday's evidence might be accounted for by a large turnover with moderate profits in the company's many offices were made in the course of a stiff cross-examination by A. A. McGillivray, chief defence counsel, at the preliminary trial here yesterday of I. W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public.

Will Eventually Have Crop of Two Hundred Million Bushels a Year

So Declares Director of Beaverlodge Experimental Farm; Makes Suggestions For Outlet and Urges Preservation of Country For White Men

"While all interests are to be fairly considered, not forgetting feasibility of construction and economy of operation, the real key to the problem should be the welfare of the settler, who is the basis of all our prosperity, who has borne the brunt and burden of pioneering the country and whose interests should be considered paramount," declared W. D. Albright, director of the Federal Experimental Farm at Beaverlodge in the Peace River country, in an address at a dinner in the Hotel Vancouver recently. "Regarding his interests in a spirit of humanity and fairness and the other factors will gradually shape themselves harmoniously, with geography and enterprise the governing factors as to what port or ports the traffic will find. A dog-in-the-manger policy seldom pays. Towns and cities do not grow by indulging the parochial outlook, but rather by indulging the broad cosmopolitan point of view, realizing that their prosperity must always be founded upon the prosperity of their contributing territory and its basic industries.

"Some years ago I was asked to estimate the traffic potentialities of the Peace. I guessed the area at twenty million acres which many people then thought was wild, but which the best informed opinion now concedes to be conservative. Assuming that, with an allowance for summer fallow and feed crops, the annual production might be 10 bushels per acre, we see that we should have eventually a crop of two hundred million bushels of wheat or wheat and its equivalent in other traffic to move. It will probably not be all exported but the traffic will be there to move and the population to serve.

"Although not a railroad man by birth, training or adoption, I have done much railroading by resolution. I speak, however, as a layman, realizing the vast complexity of the problem involved. Ignorance is ever inclined to be dogmatic. When engineers and the highest transportation magnates in the country differ, who am I to say where? Salient Factors "Without speaking as an engineer, let me draw attention to one or two salient facts. The Peace River itself seems to constitute a natural division of the territory into two transportation zones. A canyon 300 or 900 feet deep, with clay, shale and soft sandstone banks is difficult to cross. At the town of Peace River I believe it used to take one of the smaller engines then in use to draw three loaded cars of wheat up the hill out of the valley. It was assumed that west of Hudson's Hope there was a natural rock crossing where the river could be crossed with a single-span high level bridge. But Murray Hill, in his report for the C.N.R., stated he believed that was not the case. (Continued on page two.)

The resolution was introduced by Capt. James Fitzsimmons, Conservative member for Kaslo-Slocan.

MIGRATION DISCUSSED

Federal Government Would Have Provinces Assume More Responsibility in Matter

OTTAWA, March 20:—Steps taken by the Dominion government inviting the provinces to assume a larger share of responsibility in connection with immigration matters were laid before the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. CAPILANO ATTACHED

Still Another Claim is Made Against Vancouver Ship Which Was Seized Yesterday

SEATTLE, March 20:—Another attachment, this time amounting to $100,000, has been made against the steamer Chief Capilano, which was seized in the Straits of Juan de Fuca yesterday, and which is now moored at Port Townsend where she was taken by United States authorities. The latest action is taken by the Firemen's Fund Insurance Co. to whom the Robert Dollar Co. of San Francisco assigned claims for lumber cargo lost in the sinking in 1928 of the steamer Chief Maquilla in the Aleutian Islands.

Plan Is To Establish On Queen Charlotte Islands Great Elk Reserve; Animals Here Today

One of the greatest elk preserves in Canada will shortly be located on the Queen Charlotte Islands, according to plans announced by the provincial game board. Six female elk and two males have been obtained as a nucleus of the herd, the animals having been acquired from the Wainwright National Park and reached here today en route to their new home. The annual arrival of baby elk will follow not long after the little herd arrives on the islands.

This elk reserve has been planned for some time by Bryan Williams, game commissioner and one of the best known big game hunters and guides in Western Canada. As there are no predatory animals on the Queen Charlottes, it is believed that the herds will rapidly multiply until in time there will be thousands of the animals on the islands. There is very little settlement there, the chief industries being fishing and logging, so the elk will not be disturbed nor will they themselves be a menace to settlement.

Several additional shipments will be made from Wainwright later on, and it is proposed to capture some of the elk now on Vancouver Island and send them to the Queen Charlottes. There are said to be about 250 elk in the Shaw Creek reserve in Central Vancouver Island, but they are preyed upon by cougars and wolves.

Eventually it is proposed to permit shooting of elk on the Queen Charlottes, but for several years there will be rigid regulations against hunting of any kind there.

The eight elk, which arrived in a special baggage car attached to this afternoon's regular train from the East, were in charge of a mem-

LECTURES ON MINING

The course of lectures and other instruction on mineralogy and geology which will be held here next week should have a very wide appeal in Prince Rupert. This is the centre of a very large and rich mining country and everyone should know something about the mining profession. One way to get it is to attend the classes. George E. Winkler is a mining engineer of repute. His classes have been well attended at points in the interior. In Prince Rupert high school students and young men in many walks of life should be sufficiently interested to take up the work and gain an insight into the problems of the prospector. We strongly urge as many as possible to make it convenient to spend a week in the study of this fascinating subject.

EARL BALFOUR

Earl Balfour, one of Britain's greatest aristocrats, who was so big a man that until almost the close of his career he refused to accept a title, was one of the last of the old school politicians who refused to rely on newspaper publicity as a means of winning political battles. He was one of the men who made Britain great. While he relied largely on oratory to put over his campaigns either on the hustings or in the House of Commons, he never stooped to the pettiness of the usual run of party orators. He was a great Conservative but his liberalism carried the Conservative party over many a difficult period. He was above party politics although he used his party as a means of carrying out his policies.

AS FOREIGN SECRETARY

Balfour's work as foreign secretary will always be remembered for one historic document. It fell to him to engage in negotiations for the settlement of the debts contracted by the allies during the war. Great Britain had not only found it necessary to supply her allies with money herself, but she had had to stand surety for them with the United States. Great Britain had to promise to repay to the government at Washington money she got from the government to enable France, for instance, to continue the campaign. As the nations engaged in fighting Germany were fighting in a common cause, there was a widespread feeling that war debts should be regarded as part of the common sacrifice; and that the best way to settle them was by cancellation all round. The United States government would not listen to the suggestion, however. It took the view that, if the European powers could afford to maintain big armies and navies after peace had been declared, they could afford to pay their war debts. Negotiations were, therefore, set on foot for the funding of the various debts on a scale, and at rates of interest, which the states concerned were likely to be able to pay. Great Britain set the world an example of generosity and public spirit in the matter.

In what has ever since been known as the Balfour Declaration, she announced her willingness to demand no more from her allies in the shape of debt repayment than would suffice, together with such sums as she might receive from Germany by way of reparations, to cover the amount she herself was called upon to pay to the United States in the shape of interest and debt redemption. Through all the negotiations which have taken place since then, including those with which General Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young were so closely associated, the declaration made by Balfour, as British secretary, has been the standard by which all discussions and proposals have been measured.

AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

In 1921 Mr. Balfour again visited the United States in order to represent Great Britain at the Washington Conference on Disarmament. At that conference he gave dramatic proof of the sincerity of the British desire for world peace by his prompt and unhesitating acceptance of the project for the limitation of armaments set forth by the United States Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes. He described Mr. Hughes' speech as opening "a new chapter in the history of world construction," and, speaking of the proportions of naval strength laid down in the scheme, he said: "With the broad spirit in which it deals with those fleets, with the proportion of disarmament which it lays down for those fleets, the government of the country which I represent is in the fullest and heartiest sympathy."

A contemporary account of the incident says that Balfour's speech, which is said to have been made without notes save a few words scribbled on an envelope, "made a great impression as a lucid, eloquent, and dignified pronouncement, and it evoked prolonged applause."

R. A. C. HENRY,
 who has resigned as Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals to become Vice-President and General Manager of the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company. Mr. Henry was formerly Director of Economics of the Canadian National Railways. As Deputy Minister of Railways he had a place on the Board of Directors of the National System and he will remain on the Board, where his intimate knowledge of the affairs of the company will be of the greatest value.

Will Eventually Have Crop of Two Hundred Million Bushels Per Year

lieved that to find a feasible crossing of the deep tributaries of the Peace it would be necessary to keep the north line pretty well along the north edge of the Peace River Block, though it could be swung down towards the river in the vicinity of Hudson's Hope, sliding banks would make it difficult to cross, even at that point. By keeping somewhat up out of the canyon a good grade would be found on to Finlay Forks. But it seems as though it may be very difficult to converge the south and north lines and give them a common outlet. It seems more probable that there should be two outlets, one for the area south and one for the area north of the river and, considering the resources of timber, coal and minerals supplementing agriculture, I expect it will be found in time to come that there will be plenty of traffic for both. Among other factors entering into the situation are the divergent claims of the three railway systems concerned, the interests of the two established ports and one or more others in embryo. All these considerations present a problem that is complex. "It sometimes seems to me that if Canada is to hold her northern hinterland for the white race she must proceed without undue delay to people it with the class of people she desires for her future citizens. She should do this not by drumming up immigration but by building railways and so ordering her internal policy that people who are here may succeed and that others who come through the recommendation of their friends may also succeed. We have been approaching our population problem from the wrong angle.

Preserve For Whites
 "Touching on the matter of race, I would like to suggest that if we do not fill these territories at a reasonably early date with white men, they will in all probability go to the yellow—by infiltration, at first, of course. Ultimately perhaps, how? If you think the yellow men will not care to occupy these areas, let me point to Manchuria, where millions of Chinese are pouring in, growing mountains of soy beans and other products. Let me point to the most famous musher in the Mackenzie River territory, Waida, the Jap. "Use or lose" is Nature's motto and we should probably not be successful, even were we justified, in holding this vast territory long out of use.

"Let us then unite in sounding the slogan of your organization until from ocean to ocean across the Dominion rings the insistent demand, "On to the Peace!"

Robert Gordon attended his first meeting last night a member of the board of directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital and was duly welcomed to his seat by James H. Thompson, the president.

Taking the place of the Princess Mary which has now been laid up at Victoria for annual overhaul, C. P.R. steamer Princess Royal will be here again tomorrow evening on the Prince Rupert-Ocean Falls-Vancouver route.

The house committee was authorized at last night's meeting of the hospital board to instal cupboards or some such storing space for old records of the hospital. In answer to questions, Dr. J. P. Cade said that it was necessary to preserve all records of the hospital even from the first since it might be necessary years afterwards to refer to any of them.

Dr. J. C. Dunn of Massett had a letter before the hospital board at its meeting last night, stating that Mrs. Dunn and daughter were now progressing well. Dr. Dunn expressed appreciation for efficient treatment that they had received while patients in the local hospital. To this he ascribed their satisfactory recovery.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of hospital directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital was held in the hospital last night. Those present were: James H. Thompson, president; G. P. A donation of $5 from Henry Prevost of Metlakatla was reported to the hospital board last night by the finance committee. The donation has already been suitably acknowledged by the secretary.

R. F. McNaughton, C.N.R. district passenger agent and Harold McEwen, division freight agent, will sail on the Prince George tonight for a trip to Vancouver on company business.

The condition of Carl Johnson, who has been a patient in the Prince Rupert General Hospital for several weeks suffering with pneumonia, is reported as still being critical.

In a letter at last night's meeting of the hospital board, Alex Macdonald suggested, in connection with the proposal to change the heating system at the hospital from coal to oil, the merits of an automatic coal burning system, such as had been installed in the Summit Apartments where it was giving good satisfaction. The letter was referred to the house committee for consideration in connection with the investigation into various heating systems. It was mentioned that J. H. McVety, who is prominently identified with the Vancouver General Hospital, had stated that oil was not proving satisfactory in hospitals. It was suggested, however, that Mr. McVety might be somewhat prejudiced on account of being so well aware of the inroads that oil was making on the coal industry.

C. R. Holdercroft, who was sent a few months ago to Tranquille but who is now in Vancouver, had a letter before the hospital board last night expressing his deep appreciation for splendid treatment he had received while a patient in the local institution.

PAYFOR STUDENTS

Ald. Macdonald Thinks That Pupil Nurses Should Be More Adequately Remunerated

Higher salaries for student nurses which he felt would be more in keeping with the standards of the profession were urged at last night's meeting of the hospital board by Ald. S. D. Macdonald. With the meagre stipends now paid, he felt that it made student nurses a privileged class. It prevented the daughters of the ordinary working men from aspiring to the profession. True, Miss Randal, registrar of nurses, had not approved of this suggestion when he had advanced it some years ago but he felt that conditions had changed in the way of increased cost of living, etc. He urged that, as a preliminary step, the secretary should get in touch with other hospitals in the province and ascertain what their scales might be.

Miss Jean Harrison R.N., lady superintendent, thought that it would be found that this hospital was paying its student nurses higher than any other hospital in the province. It would, of course, do no harm to find out definitely.

Even if the scale here were the highest, Ald. Macdonald felt that Prince Rupert might well lead the way to a still higher standard. As matters stood at present, he felt that student nurses, considering the long hours they worked, were inadequately paid.

Frank Dibb referred to an article which had appeared recently in the Vancouver Province wherein the nursing profession was dealt with in detail. Some hospitals, it was stated, could be operated more cheaply by employing all graduates instead of student nurses.

President J. H. Thompson stated that a Dominion-wide survey of nursing conditions in Canada was now under way.

Miss Harrison explained that an endeavor was being made to have nurses' training discontinued in some of the smaller hospitals where students were used merely for the work that could be got out of them without giving them any vestige of adequate training. Another object of the commission was to allocate nurses to fields where they could be best used and most readily assimilated. For instance, instead of so many nurses going in for special private work in the large cities, they might be encouraged to take up public health nursing or some such field that was not overcrowded, thus making a more equitable distribution of employment and less unemployment through crowding of nurses into certain fields.

No action was taken on Ald. Macdonald's suggestion.

Pimples On Face Thought Everyone Was Looking At Her

Miss F. Foster, Nanaimo, B.C., writes:—"I used to suffer, something awful, with pimples on my face, and never felt as if I wanted to go out as I thought everyone was looking at me. A friend advised me to use so I got a bottle and it worked wonders, and after using the second one to look at my face one would never think I ever had a pimple."

Should Advertise In Local Papers

This Course Should Have Been Followed in Calling For Hospital Cook Applications, Ald. Macdonald Feels

Ald. S. D. Macdonald, at last night's meeting of the hospital board, criticized the course that had been followed recently in advertising in the Vancouver Province and not in the local papers for applications for a new hospital cook. He believed that, when help was wanted by a local institution, local people should be given the opportunity of applying. It would cost only a few dollars to advertise in the local press and, by so doing, complaints that local people had not been given a chance would be eliminated.

Miss Harrison, lady superintendent, stated that she was probably to blame. She thought that all local women who might be at all suitable knew that the position was open and had, accordingly, suggested that the advertisement be placed in the Vancouver paper. The position of hospital cook was a difficult and exacting one and more than mere household experience was required to fill it suitably. She stated that they had secured for the position a woman who had formerly been cook in Grace Hospital, Vancouver, and one whom they thought would prove very satisfactory.

Frank Dibb agreed with Ald. Macdonald that local applicants should be given a chance.

R. E. Benson inquired if a man cook would not be as suitable as a woman but was told by Miss Harrison that there was no accommodation for a male cook.

SERVICE OF RED CROSS

Experience During War-time Leads to Development for Raising Status of Homemaking in Canada

TORONTO, March 19—With the recent establishment in the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society at a Visiting Housekeepers' Service for the province, a second most important step has been taken along a trail leading to a raised status for housekeeping and home-making in Canada. The first step forward was made in Toronto five years ago, when a unique service of this kind was initiated in that city by the local Red Cross Society, The Housekeeping Centre then established being an experiment arousing widespread interest throughout the Dominion and in the United States, where a few similar enterprises are being tried out.

The original Canadian undertaking arose from war experience among philanthropic and social service workers generally. During the years when so many men were overseas, thousands of families of soldiers were visited by members of regimental auxiliaries or other agencies. It was found by workers at that time that one of the most urgent requirements was the visiting trained housekeeper who could not only assist, but advise. Funds, however, were lacking for the establishment of the necessary training school and centre, so that it was not until several years after the close of the war that the Toronto Red Cross was able to put its theories into practice by starting an experiment which has proven sociologically most valuable.

In 1924 this society grasped at the opportunity presented by the proposed abandonment by the city of the old Beverly Street Nursing Mission which had been conducted for many years in an old roomy house donated for the purpose in earlier days by Goldwin Smith. The use of the mission building was acquired, the house furnished, equipped for the purpose and placed under the management of Miss Denne, a household science specialist, who opened the centre in 1925 with half-a-dozen trainees in attendance.

Service a Success

The service subsequently provided has been unqualified success. In times of illness or other family stress it has given the best type of assistance to many hundreds of homes by the provision of trained helpers. The Visiting Housekeeper from the Centre knows how to care for children; how to prepare meals of the best from a limited budget; how to keep the house in order, and how to give simple bedside care to the sick. She steps in when the mother is incapacitated or there is other urgent need. Her salary is paid by the Centre, and all her work is done under its superintendence, so that the family has the benefit of conference with an expert social agency which co-operates with all other agencies to supply the exact type of assistance required during the time of stress.

So valuable has the Housekeepers' Service proven that, in the past year, the Toronto Centre has been adopted as a community affair, receiving a substantial grant from the city, and an equal amount from the Toronto Red Cross, and a guarantee from the Federation for Community Service to carry all deficits. The bulk of those helped are unable to pay adequately for the service provided, which aims at assisting underprivileged and more needy families, irrespective of their ability to meet the full cost of the scientific help extended them.

Extended to the Province

Having in mind the general need which has been so convincingly demonstrated in the Toronto experiment, the Ontario Red Cross has now initiated a provincial enterprise under the directorship of Miss Margaret McCready, who is at the head of the Visiting Housekeepers' Department which aims to bring the service to all communities applying for it.

Already under Miss McCready's direction the Hamilton Red Cross is establishing a Housekeeping Service in March, with four trained women provided by the Toronto Centre, and it is anticipated, that within the next two months both Brantford and St. Catharines will

Sport Chat

The Oxford University lacrosse team will sail for the United States on March 22 for a four weeks' season. Games will be opened April 3 against the navy at Annapolis. Negotiations are under way for games with Harvard, Hobart, Brown, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Syracuse and John Hopkins. Three games will be played each week. A. E. Grauer, president of the team, a Rhodes scholar from British Columbia, was in the Olympic lacrosse team.

Japan is going in for winter sports. In this comparatively recent development, the younger element is showing the same enthusiasm and thoroughness which characterized its adoption of tennis, baseball and other warm weather games of the west. Popularity of ice games such as skating and skiing has broadened remarkably in the last five years. In 1928-29 it was estimated a quarter of a million persons travelled the ski runs and skating rinks of the northern provinces, most of them an overnight journey from the centres of population. This winter it is believed this total was almost doubled.

BILLIARD FINAL

The final session of the city team billiard championship between the Grotto and Elks, postponed from Tuesday night on account of the death of the late J. W. Scott, has now been set for tomorrow night.

BIRD LIFE IS DESCRIBED

know something about the useful and destructive birds which visited here and made their homes in the district. With this knowledge and interest, the young people would be able to help in the protection of those birds which brought so much gladness and beauty into the world.

Winter visitors such as the junco, song sparrow, winter wren and the blue jay were described. The junco and song sparrow could be encouraged to come to the gardens and would repay for crumbs not only by their singing but also by eating weed seeds and destructive larvae. The blue jay was, however, harmful and it is probably through this bird that the song birds are so few.

The white headed eagle was next described. This bird was classed as very destructive. It continuously preyed upon the young of the mallard duck and goose. It was a wonder, the speaker added, that there was one mallard duck or goose left so continuous were the depredations of this bird. Several migratory birds were next described and the speaker concluded by showing the difference between two birds which were often confused—the Wilson's Snipe and the Woodcock. The former was often seen on the townsite while the latter did not visit here.

Miss E. A. Mercer moved a vote of thanks to Canon Rushbrook and expressed the desire felt by everyone in the audience, that the association might be privileged in the very near future to hear another of Canon Rushbrook's interesting addresses on natural history. This vote of thanks was ably seconded by Miss Caroline Mitchell.

During the evening W. Plommer, accompanied by Miss E. P. Grassie sang, and Miss Ruth Gillies, a talented young pianist, played a piano-forte solo.

A number of new members were welcomed and enrolled, and a very pleasant meeting was brought to a close by the audience singing the National Anthem. Refreshments were served in the rooms of the Home Economics department and an enjoyable half-hour was spent in conversation.

RAIL PLAN IS THROWN OUT

Alberta Government Does Not Favor Beaverlodge-Narawa Route For Peace River

EDMONTON, March 19.—The Beaverlodge-Narawa railway project was thrown out of the railways committee of the legislature and will not get the charter it asked for. The vote was almost unanimous, Hugh Allen, U.F.A. member for Peace River being the only member to vote "No."

Hon. V. W. Smith, minister of railways, took a stand against a charter, contending that the route proposed was impracticable from the standpoint of economical construction. The 78 miles he said within the Alberta bounds would carry the road only to the British Columbia boundary, but that the company had made no arrangements to proceed beyond that point.

Railways Keep Faith

Mr. Smith also pointed out that since their joint purchase of the Northern Alberta lines the C.P.R. and C.N.R. have been keeping faith and have done even more in the way of development and improvement than they agreed to. At a cost of $2,000,000 or more, 65 miles of new construction will be undertaken this year, new steel will be laid on 100 miles, some eight or ten new stations are to be built this summer, and an extra passenger train will be put on.

An intensive survey of the whole north country has also been undertaken, involving an expenditure already of $365,000, and the railway companies have been making every effort to find out what really is in the country. The promoters of the Beaverlodge project have neither made any such survey nor submitted any plans of that sort.

The estimated cost of the proposed road is too low, Mr. Smith believed, and he was more than doubtful as to the possibility of low gradients over a large part of the route.

Premier Seconds Motion

Premier Brownlee also took a hand at the killing, seconding Mr. Smith's motion not to proceed with the bill and pointing out that the legislature is in honor bound to keep faith with the railway companies to whom the provincial lines were sold and with whom an agreement was made and ratified.

"We have no reason to complain," said Mr. Brownlee, "of the treatment given the Peace River country by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. in the eight months since they took over the northern lines. They have a good program of extensions, and a longer opportunity should be given them to work out their plans and policies. On the grounds of good faith alone, this house should not give a charter to other interests until there has been such opportunity or until there has been some evidence of failure on the part of the two companies to live up to their agreement."

Both Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, the respective heads of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific systems, have been communicated with since the bill was first brought up, the premier said, and letters have been received from them to the effect that they objected to charter rights being given of the kind proposed.

"As to the coast outlet," Mr. Brownlee concluded, "that will come, we believe, if the two national roads are given a fair opportunity to work out a plan. We are not disposed to sit back and let them have the business of the north country without doing some developing, but they are moving, and it would be a mistake for us to mix the situation again by letting in another competitive element."

Hugh Allen For Charter

Hugh Allen claimed that more consideration should be given the Beaverlodge project. If the route is impracticable, as suggested, it would at least be harmless to give a charter. Mr. Allen saw in the proposed road a solution of the coast outlet problem, and he said the people of the Peace River district are fearful that the north will be developed in the interests of British Columbia rather than of Alberta.

The heavy weight of opinion in the committee was against the scheme, however, and by a decisive vote the bill was killed, so far as the present session is concerned.

C. N. R. steamer Prince John, Capt. William Thomas, arrived in port at 5.30 this morning from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands with a fair-sized passenger list and freight cargo.

Hospital Work Under Review

Report of House Committee Caused Discussion at Last Night's Meeting

Reporting for the house committee of which he is chairman, Ald. Brown stated at last night's meeting of the hospital board that repairs to the floor of the Fifth Avenue entrance to the hospital and in the kitchen, as authorized by the board a month ago, had been effected. The system of water pipes in the building had also been renovated.

R. E. Benson inquired by what means the work had been carried out in repairing the floors and if bids had been asked. He was in favor of such work being done by contract wherever possible.

Ald. Brown explained that the nature of the work did not lend itself to calling for tenders since there was so much preliminary work to be done in order to ascertain just what repairs were necessary. Being in the building a good deal himself at the time, he had authorized L. C. Eby to proceed with the work without formally consulting with the committee.

Ald. Macdonald mentioned that Ald. Brown had mentioned the matter to him and that he (Ald. Macdonald) had approved of the action being taken. He, himself, was in favor of giving everybody a chance on such work wherever possible. The idea should be dispelled that all hospital work was going to be done by contract.

President J. H. Thompson thought that, in future, it would be wise for members of the committee to get together when such work was to be carried out.

Suffering from a cold, William Goldbloom entered the Prince Rupert General Hospital last evening for a few days' treatment.
