LUMBER IS DISCUSSED

Lengthy Debate By City Council Waxed Caustic at Times

Fir Declared Best

Editorial by Ald. Pullen Criticized By Other Aldermen

A recommendation from the board of works that the bid of the Rat Portage Lumber Co. for fir lumber at $290.95 be accepted and that the engineer be instructed to report to the council regarding different qualities of fir, spruce and hemlock lumber together with a recent editorial in the Daily News advocating the use of timber of this district in preference to that of the south precipitated a lengthy and at times caustic debate at last night's meeting of the city council.

After the recommendation of the board of works had been presented to the council, Ald. Rudderham, chairman of the board of works, read a letter from the city engineer on the respective merits of fir, spruce and hemlock and announced to the council the bids that had been received on the lumber to be used in decking of the board walk on Third Avenue between the Brooksbank building and McBride Street. The Rat Portage Co. tender on fir was $290.95 while on hemlock or spruce, the Big Bay Lumber Co. quoted $395. There were several other tenders on fir all of which were considerably higher than that of the Rat Portage Co.

The report of the city engineer on the quality of the lumber was as follows:

"Following instructions from your board of works I beg to report on qualities and prices of untreated lumber for sidewalks but it should be clearly borne in mind that 'wet-and-dry' conditions only are considered.

"B. C. fir, spruce and hemlock are of approximately the same strength while red cedar is about 60% as strong.

"The estimated life of B. C. fir under wet and dry conditions is 12 years while that of spruce and hemlock can not safely be put above five (Continued on page 4)

LETTER BOX

GROWING HOLLYHOCKS

Editor, Daily News:—

Your enquiry as to whether hollyhocks can be grown in Prince Rupert can safely be answered in the affirmative. A year or two ago I grew them from seed wintered them in the open and next summer they bloomed profusely. I have also seen them frequently in Mr. Tobey's garden.

Being a biennial plant, the seed has to be sown in boxes in June or July, then pricked out when old enough to the flower bed. If in a sheltered spot they can be allowed to winter in the bed, but if not then it would be safer to transfer them to a cold frame until spring. Slugs have rather an affinity for the young hollyhocks, so they have to be guarded against.

The seed I used was obtained from James Brand & Co., Vancouver, (Brand's Prize Strain) 25 cents a package, and can be obtained in shades of dark crimson, pink, yellow and white. All of them are pretty.

As the plants grow to eight or ten feet care must be taken to stake them early, otherwise they lose their stately appearance and soon become bedraggled and weather-beaten.

Horticulturally yours,
GEORGE RORIE.

ELKS MAKE FINE CHOICE

Beauty Shop is Full of Life and Action and Appeal is Universal

The one type of stage entertainment which has survived the tremendous competition of the talkies in the larger theatrical centres is the sprightly musical comedy with its color, its life, its action, its attractive girls, its music and dancing. It can be truly said that such is the ideal entertainment for the "tired business man," and its appeal to the amusement lover is universal. That is why the local Order of Elks have chosen "The Beauty Shop" for their annual theatrical offering as it contains every ingredient for a most enjoyable evening.

This clever comedy was written by Channing Pollock, who has more than a score of successes to his credit, including "The Fool," "The Enemy," "The Red Window," etc., and was presented to New York show-goers by Geo. M. Cohan with Raymond Hitchcock in the leading role. After a successful run of almost two years in the one theatre it was taken to London and scored a tremendous hit under the title of "Mr. Manhattan." More than sixty young ladies and young gentlemen are working hard to make this the outstanding success of many seasons. It will be seen in the Capitol Theatre on Tuesday, June 9, with a special matinee in the afternoon and the evening performance at 8:15.

New Aledor Wins Neck and Neck Race With Swan; Eddie Hudson Again Winner of Speedboat Sprint

Dr. L. W. Kergin, with his new power cruiser Aledor, won the cruiser race at the Port Simpson aquatic sports on Victoria Day this year. He was, however, given a very close run by the Power Corporation of Canada's cruiser Swan, skippered by Gunnar Anderson. It was neck and neck all the way with first one boat and then the other ahead. The Aledor, however, finished the 10-mile or so course from Port Simpson to Sparrowhawk buoy and back three lengths ahead of the Swan. The Vaquero, which won the challenge cup last year, trailed with Skipper George Dawes in command.

Eddie Hudson won the speedboat race for the third consecutive time, driving his Whiz Bang, powered with a 16 h.p. Johnson outboard motor, around the 12-mile course in the satisfactory time of 20 minutes, beating R. Boyd Young's Johnson equipped sea sled by two miles. Hudson won the Allan challenge trophy, put up by Dr. R. G. Large. Last year he took the Port Simpson speedboat race with the Whiz Bang and the year previous to that with the Spirit of Bronchitis.

There were to have been troller and packer races as well as other aquatic events at Port Simpson but time did not permit of their being run off. During the day there were also field sports.

Scotland Yard Baffled For 12 Months

Bits of Finger Prints

For 12 months burglaries went on in Ealing, Hampstead, Kentish Town and Paddington, without a clue to the thief. Only the mearest suggestion of finger prints were left behind. But photographs of these prints were cleverly pieced together by experts until they had built up a complete finger print. Then one night a large hotel in Holborn was broken into; the safe and till were rifled. The police worked quickly and arrested a suspect. On taking his finger prints they were found to correspond to prints left at the other robberies. The man confessed and answered to the law for his misdeeds. Even small parts of his finger prints were dangerous to him.

Danger in Your Prints on the Food You Eat

Just as only small parts of a criminal's prints carried danger for him so only a small part of one of your finger prints might be fatal to you. Not because of any crime, for you are not a criminal—but in this way. Suppose the first finger of your right hand touched a spot on a door knob where some one had left disease germs. Your finger would pick up those germs.

Then, if it touched a chocolate or a biscuit that you were about to eat, the germs would find their way to your mouth. A few germs multiply to millions very quickly. If you were run down in health you might contract a dangerous disease.

These are not far fetched suppositions. Life Extension Institute research reveals that 27 germ diseases may be transmitted by the hands in this way.

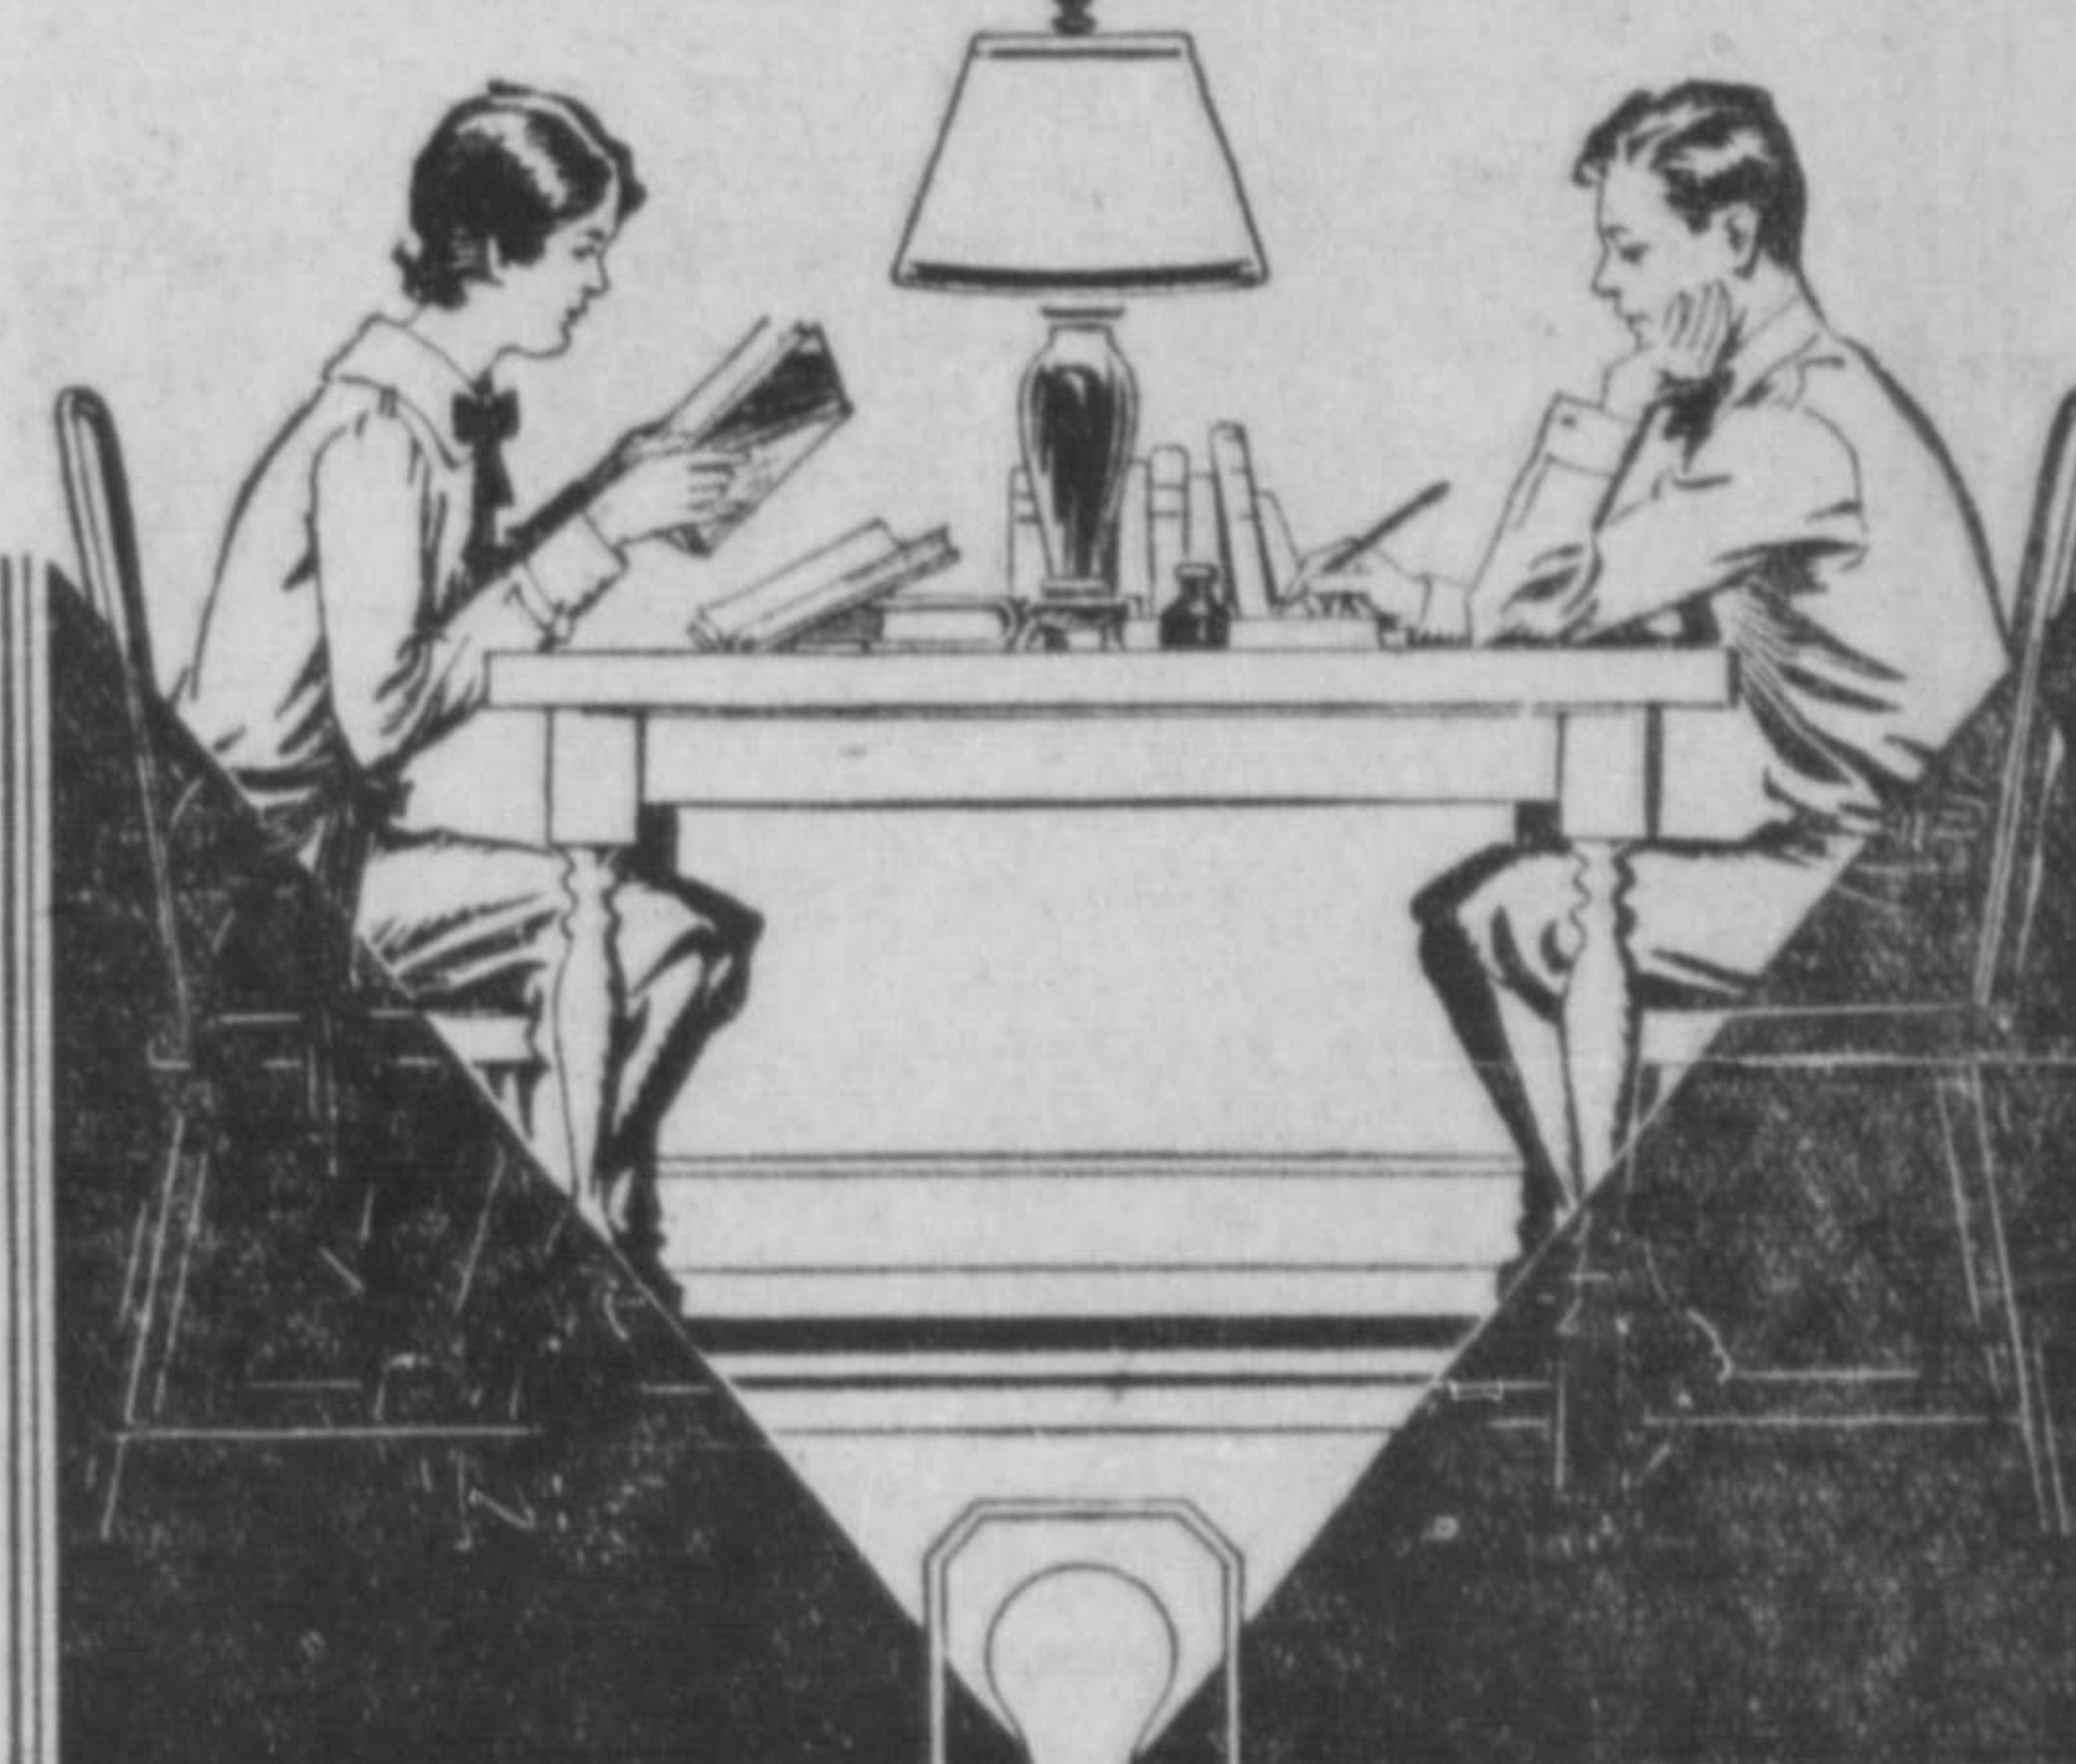

An Effective Germicide

Disease germs are everywhere. You cannot see them but you can guard against the danger in this sensible, modern way. Wash your hands many times a day—and always before meals—with one particular soap. Not any

Fair Building Road Discussed

City Council Will Be Able to Do Nothing For Another Two Weeks

The city council last night laid on the table for two weeks a letter from the fair board asking that such unemployment relief funds as are available after work on the Booth School grounds has been completed be used in the project of building a road around the Fair Hall.
City Engineer Good stated that it would be two weeks yet before he would know what money was available. Meantime, the city engineer will give the fair board such assistance as it desires in connection with the project.

Local Improvement Bylaws Are Passed

The city council last night gave introductory readings to local improvement construction bylaws providing for the grading of the north side of Seal Cove Circle from Fifth Avenue to Seventh Avenue and for 17-foot asphaltic sidewalks on the west side of Seventh Street from First Avenue to Second Avenue and on the south side of Second Avenue from Seventh to Eighth Street.

Advantages of Owning One's Home

There are many advantages in owning one's home instead of renting. The chief of these is the feeling of satisfaction that comes to the person who feels this is something of his own which he can improve and get all the benefits of the improvement. There is a feeling of permanency that cannot be secured in any other way.

Speaking of this the other day a local resident, who has had to move from city to city several times, said to a Daily News representative:

"For many years I worked for a comparatively small salary but I always owned my own house everywhere I went and I made money out of every case. Usually through the advance in value of the property I had the use of the house rent free for the time I was in the city."

You can generally tell the renter by a glance at his place. The man who is a permanent resident, owner of his home, belongs to a class all his own. He feels a pride in the fact that it is his.

An Unusual Plan of Unusual Convenience

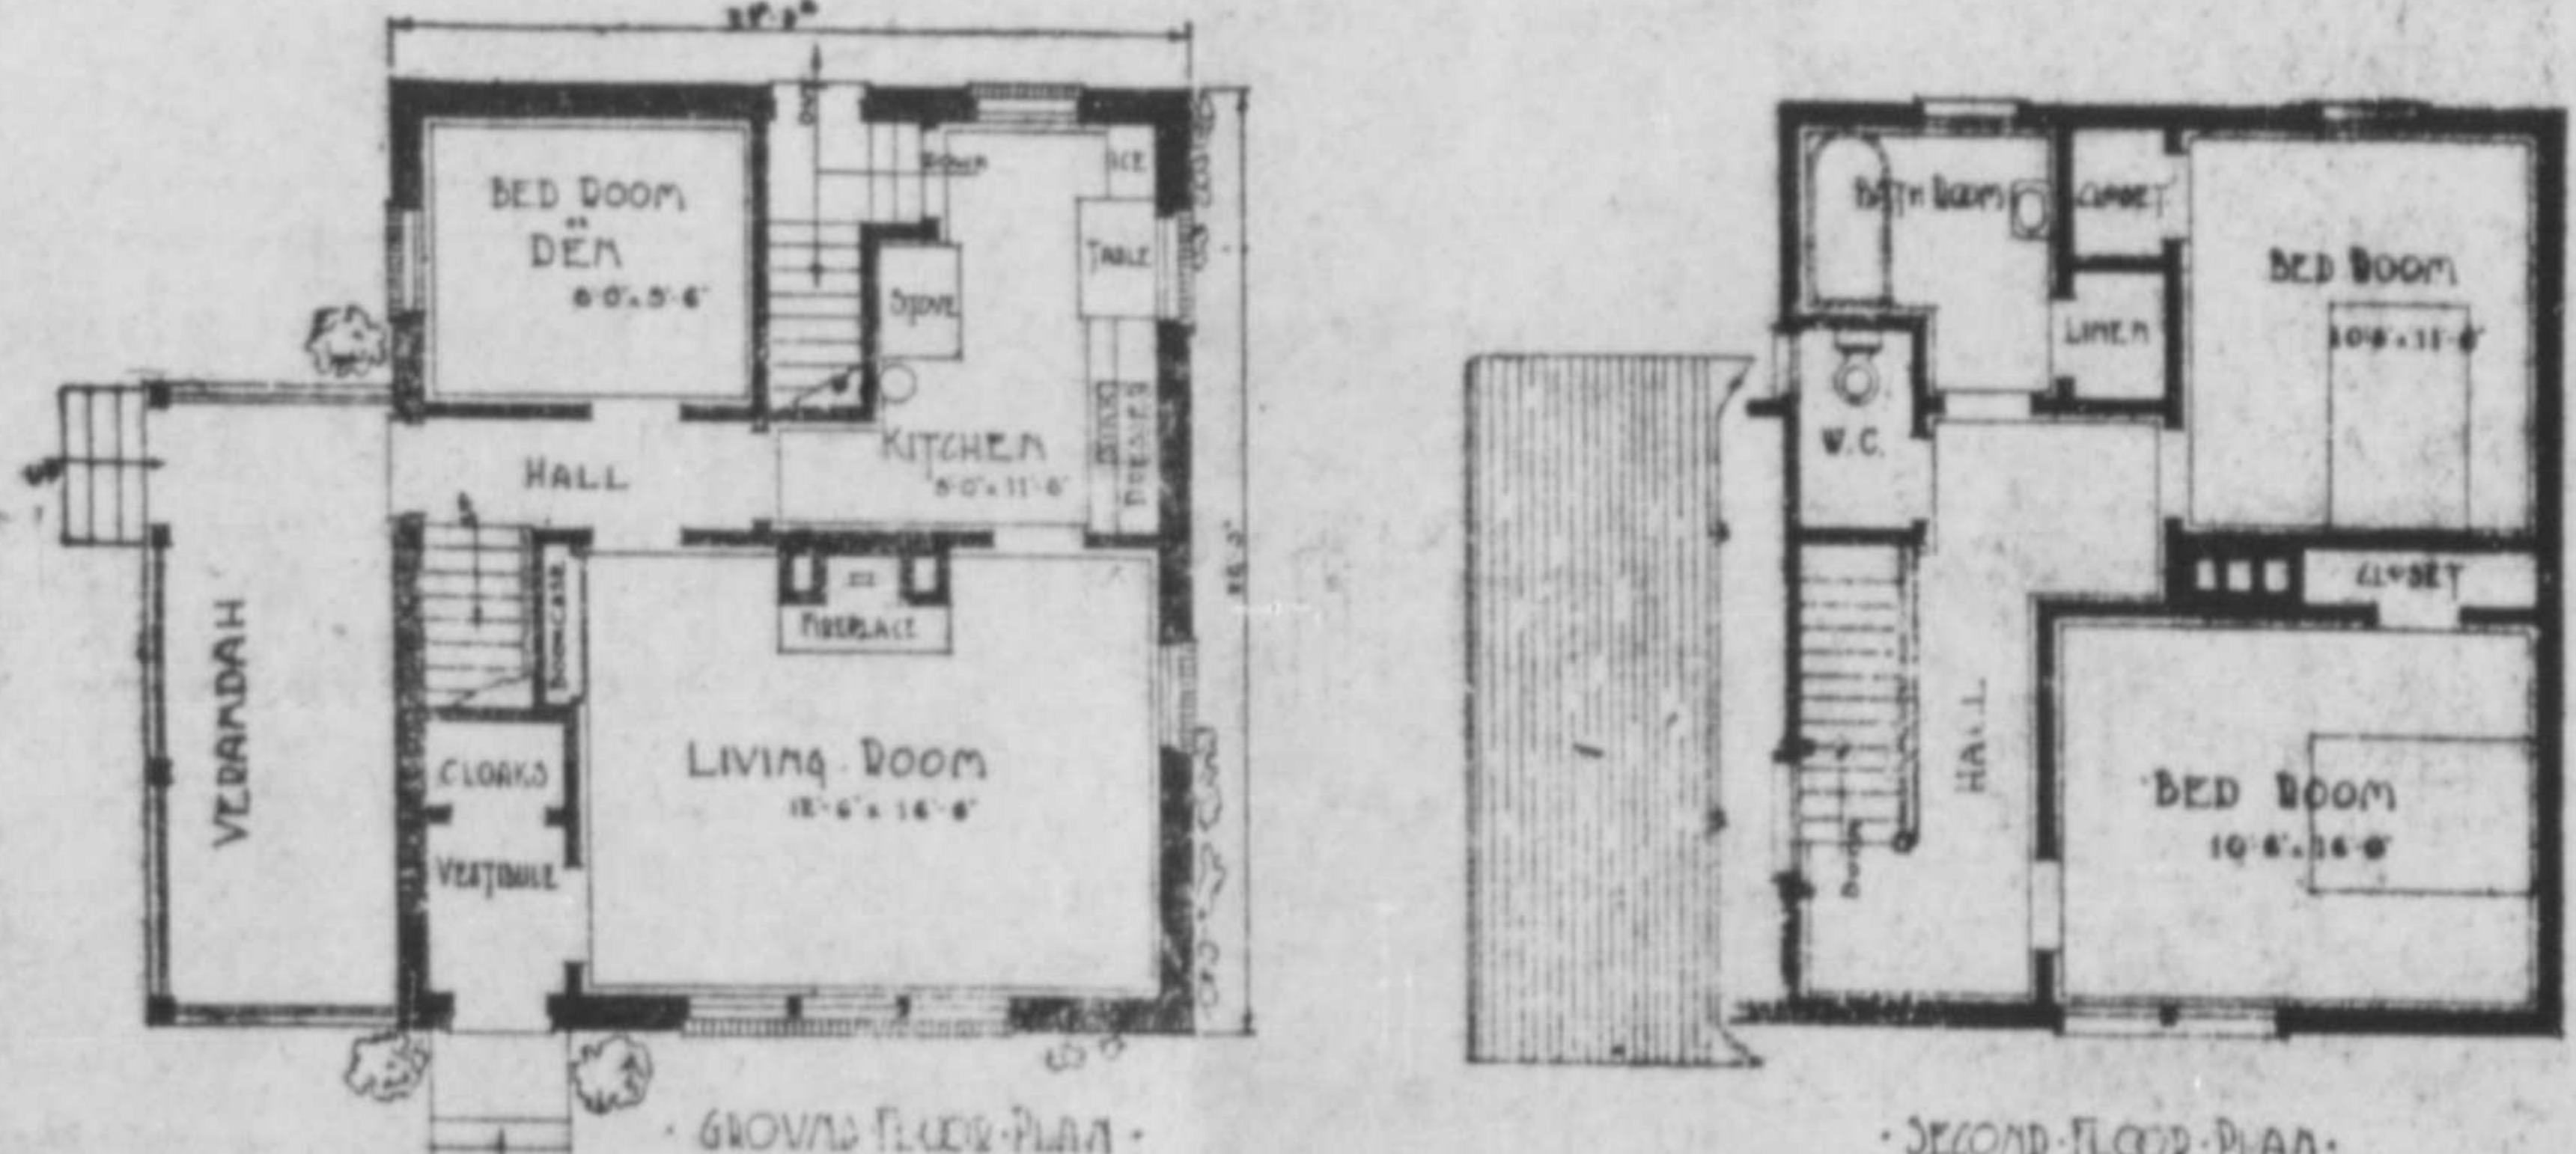

By G. H. MacDonald & H. A. Magoon, Architects

THIS desirable five-room square-plan home is particularly suitable for the husband and wife who have children, a moderate income, and sound taste.
The front door opens into a vestibule having a coat closet and directly connected with the living room with its brick mantel and built-in bookcase. For general purposes, however, it is probable that the side door would be more commonly used. This gives admittance to a hall from which the bedroom or den, kitchen, living room and staircase may be reached. The rear door is of the convenient grade entrance type having steps up to the kitchen and down to the cellar, and would serve its usual purposes. The kitchen is very conveniently arranged, containing dresser, sink, refrigerator, table and range with hot water boiler and would surely delight the most exacting housewife. Provision is made for a door between kitchen and living room, an item which would save many steps when serving food in the latter.

Upstairs are two large bedrooms each having a good clothes closet. It will be observed that the bathroom and water closet are separate a convenience which would be well applied to every home.
The walls are of concrete in the basement, while above the ground floor level they are frame, brick veneered to the top of the ground floor windows and stucco above.

The approximate cost of this home, exclusive of lot, would be $6,500.
Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architects direct. Address Messrs. G. H. MacDonald & H. A. Magoon, Tegler Building, Edmonton, Alta.

SUMMER HOMES should have this FIRE PROTECTION

Far from every hope of aid if a blaze takes hold, the inflammable construction of the average summer home makes it a source of danger and anxiety.
Minimize the fire hazard by lining inside walls and ceilings with inexpensive Gyproc Wallboard that does not burn.

This building material is made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 3/8 of an inch thick. It nails and cuts as easily as lumber and with minimum waste.

Find out from your dealer how inexpensive Gyproc is; how easy to erect. Ask him for full information about its application or request a direction sheet from him.

Besides being fire-resistant, Gyproc has structural strength and insulation value. It is also draught and vermin-proof.

By panelling, you can save the expense of decoration, yet Gyproc is an excellent base for Alabastine, Gypdex or wallpaper.

City Council Turns Down Request For Lower Licence Fee

The city council last night denied a request from the Canadian Pacific Express Co. for a modification of its annual licence fee of $100. The company based its request on the ground that it did less business here than at certain other points where the licence fee was much lower. In view of the fact that the fee was covered by bylaw, Ald. Colliart felt that no change should be allowed and moved accordingly, the motion being seconded by Ald. McCutcheon and unanimously passed.

The city council last night, on motion of Ald. Pillsbury and Ald. Black, gave the Prince Rupert branch of the Navy League of Canada permission to hold its annual tag day on June 6.

Henry Halliwell of Terrace arrived in the city yesterday afternoon's train from the interior for a brief visit in town on personal business.

Phone Department Had April Surplus

The city telephone department operated at a surplus of $953.23 for the month of April, according to the financial statement of Samuel Massey, superintendent of the department, presented to the council at last night's meeting. Departmental expenditure for the month amounted to $2,943.37 while revenue was $3,896.70.

The city council last night adopted a recommendation from the finance committee that lot 32 and 33, Block 28, Section 1, (Taylor Street) be sold to W. E. Fisher for the sum of $200, subject to approval of the Exhibition Association. The lots were to have been turned over to the Fair Board for raffle purposes.

years. The life of red cedar should at least equal that of B. C. fir.
"From the point of view of price, Vancouver estimates for this particular order of B. C. fir No. 1 common rough, F.O.B. Prince Rupert vary from $290.95 to $350 but, in my opinion, these prices can be modified from $290.95 to approximately $310 with different shipping arrangements. The bids from two local firms for the same order F.O.B. Prince Rupert are from 30% to 40% above the lowest Vancouver price while a bid from a local firm for an order of spruce or hemlock No. 1 rough common is $395 or approximately 35% higher than the lowest Vancouver bid for B. C. fir No. 1 rough common both F.O.B. Prince Rupert."

Ald. Pullen stated that information he had been able to gather seemed to indicate that the life of hemlock was nearly as long as that of fir in this climate. It was hard for him to believe that the life of hemlock could be only five years. If he were building himself, he would not take that statement as Gospel. This was not the idea of men he had been talking to, Ald. Pullen declared. As a general principle, he was strongly in favor, wherever and whenever possible, of using local products. The local sawmill was having a struggle for existence and he believed that everything possible should be done to support it.

After stating that the intention of board of works was to use cedar for substructure and fir for superstructure such as decking, Ald. Rudderham read from a government report to the effect that, hemlock being very subject to attacks of fungi, should not be used in exposed position unless protected. Sitka spruce was not durable especially when exposed to alternate wet and dry weather. If four or five years could be got out of spruce or hemlock outside here, it would be lucky. On the other hand, it was established that fir would stay good up to fifteen years. He thought that it was only wasting the money of the people to put down spruce or hemlock for decking in place of fir.

During the past four years during which he had been a member of the board of works, Ald. Rudderham continued, it had been the policy to use local lumber for all repairs to sidewalks even though it was known the price was high. Under bylaws, however, he believed that a line should be drawn.
Ald. Rudderham charged Ald. Pullen with rushing into print "as though we were a bunch of dubs, conveying to the people of Prince Rupert the suggestion that we are not conducting the affairs of the city in the proper manner." Ald. Rudderham thought that Ald. Pullen could have obtained the information he had asked for without writing the editorial that had appeared.

Ald. Pillsbury told of experience he had had over a period of many years with spruce, hemlock and fir. The life of hemlock would not exceed four years while spruce might be a year or so better. Records of the Canadian National Railways were available which brought out the respective merits very plain. He felt that Ald. Pullen had not got this information without writing an editorial. "Anyone is clear who would think of using spruce or hemlock in preference to fir for decking," Ald. Pillsbury declared.

Ald. Macdonald inquired if there could not be some way of creosoting or otherwise processing local timber so it would be more durable under local conditions.
It would cost $100,000 or $150,000 to establish the simplest kind of a creosoting plant and then there would be little demand for creosoted spruce or hemlock, City Engineer Good replied.

Ald. McCutcheon could not see how local institutions could hope to get business with such a wide spread in prices.

Mayor Orme told how the district forester would advocate nothing else but fir for decking purposes here. The mayor did not think any member of the council was not in favor of using the local product wherever possible. It was to the mutual advantage of all to support local industries.

Ald. Pullen mentioned how it had taken so long to educate the builders of London to the superiority of British Columbia timber. However, it had finally been done. Even in the matter of hemlock and spruce against fir, there might be a possibility that a mistake had been made. He had no idea that the board of works was attempting to put anything over and he had no faith in the city engineer.

Under the circumstances, Ald. Colliart could not see how any other decision could be made than that of the board of works.

After some further discussion the original recommendation of the board of works was adopted.

CANON IS SPEAKER

Presbyterian Young People's Society Hears Interesting Address on Marine Natural Life

Canon W. F. Rushbrook was an interesting speaker last evening at the fortnightly meeting of the Young People's Society of First Presbyterian Church, his subject being "Marine Natural Life." Canon Rushbrook dealt particularly with the parasite known as the toredo.

There were about thirty-three members present at the meeting over which the president of the society, E. J. Smith, presided. The proceedings closed with a recreational period, with the pastor, Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth, in charge.

PRINCIPLE OF "I AM MY BROTHER'S BROTHER" RATHER THAN "KEEPER"

would be required. If the student was to be self-governing, he must be prepared to exhibit a large measure of good judgment and moral stability.

Applying the principle of "I am my brother's brother" to industry Mr. Hollingworth declared that there was a social and economic solidarity from which there could be no escape. The talents of all were needed. Those members of the industrial body who were less conspicuous were needed. It was only when this was fully realized that there was industrial peace and prosperity. No man was rich enough, wise enough or good enough to take upon himself to be some other man's keeper. Employees preferred to have their full wages paid to them and to be allowed to provide for their own welfare as they may see fit. The management could not say that it was the employees' keeper.

Mr. Hollingworth then referred to the growing demand for a more democratic spirit in the control of the great industries. Shop committees and shop conferences between management and men were becoming increasingly common. The man who invested his five talents of capital and administrative ability had clear right to be heard and considered in the control of the concern. Also the plain men and women, who invested their best talents of muscle and skill, had a right to be heard and considered.

Two Together

If two hands got along better when they acted together, each one supplementing the work of the other, if two eyes got on better when they acted together, if two feet got along better when they moved along together, why not two men or classes of men, employees and employers, or two races of men, or two nations?

Referring to the growing demand for a more equitable distribution of the good things of life, the joint product of brain and brawn between those who toiled mainly with their hands and those who toiled mainly with their heads, the speaker did not approve of an equal distribution for it seemed morally justifiable as well as economically desirable that exceptional ability should receive an exceptional reward. But there should be a more equitable distribution which could not be made according to some ironclad rule of supply and demand. There must be a steady regard to human values involved in the huge economic process.

"Of this we may be sure," concluded the speaker, "if that final social order of which we dream and for which we pray is ever to be realized, it will only come as man learns to say: 'We are Brothers.' Let us take hold together and, not in selfish antagonism but in friendly co-operation, let us move together towards better economic methods."

Prior to Mr. Hollingworth's address, the club disposed of a few business matters. A committee already appointed was given power to act in the matter of negotiating with the Fair Board for concessions at the 1931 Exhibition. As many members as possible were requested to go to Ketchikan on June 13 when members of the local club will pay a fraternal visit to the Ketchikan Club. W. M. Watts was winner of the luncheon raffle. President C. C. Mills was in the chair.
