COLORFUL MARRIAGE

Queen Mary Present When Her Niece Is Married Today to Commoner

Costumes Pretty
Lady May Cambridge Bride of Capt. Henry Abel Smith

BALCOMBE, Eng., Oct. 24.—In the presence of Queen Mary, the bride's aunt, and a large assemblage, Lady May Cambridge, daughter of the Earl of Athlone, was married today to Capt. Henry Abel Smith, a commoner, in the little church of Balcombe. She was the first royal bride in England who did not promise at the altar to obey her husband.

Lady May Cambridge is the daughter of the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone. Apart from the fact the bride is so closely related to the King and Queen this wedding has attracted a phenomenal amount of pleasurable interest. The Earl of Athlone had a memorable tenure of office as Governor-General of South Africa, and Lady May Cambridge shares to the full the gracious qualities which her mother, Princess Alice, has always exhibited. Lady May's grandmother, the late Duchess of Albany (mother of the Countess of Athlone) and the Duchess of Teck (mother of Queen Mary and of the Earl of Athlone) were perhaps the most popular personages in the royal circle during the later years of Queen Victoria's reign. Many people who remember Her Majesty Queen Mary when she was "Princess May" find similar traces of character in the Lady May Cambridge of today. Lady May is the only member of the English royal family who has been educated at what is known as a "public school." She spent some time both at a school in Eastbourne and at St. Paul's School, Hammersmith.

Capt. Henry Abel Smith, whom she has married, was for some time A.D.C. to Lady May's father when he was Governor-General of South Africa. He belongs to the family who founded the firm of Smith, Payne and Smiths, one of the old-style banking firms established in the 18th Century. The family of Smiths is related to several notable branches of the peerage.

Lady May Cambridge wore a veil of priceless old Honiton lace, lent to her by the Queen. The veil was worn by Princess Alice, the bride's mother, when she was married to the Earl of Athlone. It is one of the most treasured family possessions belonging to the Queen.

Simplicity and tradition formed the key-note of the design of Lady May's gown. Plain and unadorned, the dress made a striking setting for the fair beauty of Lady May, and orange blossoms, the time-old emblem of a bride, crowned her hair.

The gown was of perfectly plain pearl-colored satin antique, cut on tight modern lines to suit the slim, girlish figure of the bride. The bodice fitted closely to the figure, and the lovely satin clung to the waist and hips, falling in graceful folds to an ankle-length skirt, cut on full and flowing lines. Long mitten sleeves add a touch of picturesque grace, and a long and very ample train of lustrous satin falling from the shoulders enhanced the beauty of the family veil.

Expectation is That Coalition Will be Accorded Large Margin at General Election on Tuesday

Thirty Million Voters Qualified With Women in Ascendancy by Two Million—Feminine Vote Thought Sympathetic to Administration.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—General opinion today is not only that the Nationalist government will be returned at next Tuesday's general election, but that it will have a large majority. Thirty million voters are qualified to express their preferences, with women in the ascendancy by about two million over men. Women organizers are working feverishly over the week-end. It is freely believed that the majority of the women are in favor of the Nationalist government.

Meantime the hectic campaign continues and a rest on Sunday will precede the last campaign day on Monday. Police are taking special precautions throughout the country to guard against disorders.

Although less than ten years ago only 20,000,000 persons in Great Britain had the vote, 30,000,000 will be entitled to register their opinions at the polls in the general election. The chief reason for the increase is the lessening of the restrictions on the women's franchise, the granting of the "flapper vote," putting five million new voters on the lists at one bound. In the last general elections, 1929, the electorate totalled 28,943,566, of whom more than 22,000,000 exercised their vote. The women numbered 1,611,699 more than the men.

VICTORY ON LOAD LINE

Prince Rupert Partly Succeeds in Protest at Discrimination

Prince Rupert's protest against this port having to observe winter load line rules, while Vancouver can load to summer lines, has been partially successful. The Department of Marine has given notice to this effect.

After the local Chamber of Commerce had made a vigorous protest at the discrimination against this port, the minister of marine discussed the matter with the international convention and that body has now agreed to permit summer load lines to apply all the year around on ships proceeding to and from Prince Rupert via the Inside Passage. However, if they proceed out by way of Dixon's Entrance, they must load subject to winter load line regulations.

Mrs. William Boyle Dies in Ashcroft

Former Telkwa Woman Had Been in Failing Health for Several Years

Word was received in the interior this week of the death at Kamloops of Mrs. William M. Boyle, a former resident of Telkwa and more recently at Ashcroft. It was only a few weeks ago that Mr. and Mrs. Boyle left Telkwa where Mr. Boyle was for several years in charge of the Government Telegraph office. Mrs. Boyle had been ailing for years and, soon after her arrival in Ashcroft, her condition became such that it was necessary to take her to the Royal Inland Hospital at Kamloops, where she expired.

WILL USE OLD GRADE

Work Done 12 Years Ago Will Be Useful in Pacific Great Eastern Extension

VICTORIA, Oct. 24.—Engineers closely in touch with the Pacific Great Eastern situation have reported to the government that 60 miles of the old grade between Quesnel and Prince George can be used in case it is decided to proceed with the extension of the road which is now planned. The only part of the grade built 12 years ago to be scrapped will be that in the vicinity of Cottonwood Canyon where the railway is to be diverted to a new location further up Cottonwood River.

Work can proceed on the extension throughout the winter, engineers declare. Not only slashing but rock cutting and grade construction can be done. Major C. A. Crysdale will represent the provincial government on the extension work.

Eagles' Dance Great Success

Aerie Hall Scene of Much Merriment Last Night as Another of Popular Affairs Is Held

The Eagles' Lodge last night added a highly enjoyable serpentine dance to the long list of successful social events sponsored by the order. There were about 180 persons in attendance and the Aerie Hall was the scene of much merriment from 9:30 p.m. until 1:30 a.m. Noisemakers and other novelties added to the fun.

Splendid music was furnished by the Premier Orchestra and George Brooke was, as usual, a genial master of ceremonies. James Brown presided at the door. Delicious refreshments were served at midnight by the ladies. Throughout the coming winter season the Eagles plan on staging such dances as these—probably fortnightly.

Canon Rushbrook Addresses Ladies

Was Speaker Last Night at Meeting of United Church Women's Missionary Society

The autumn thank offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of First United Church was held last night at the home of Mrs. W. T. Kergin, Fourth Avenue West. There was a large turnout of members and friends.

The feature of the evening's proceedings was an address by Rev. Canon W. F. Rushbrook on marine mission work on the north coast in which he was engaged for so many years. He told some touching incidents of loneliness at remote isolated points along the coast and described what the visit of the mission boat often meant to people so situated.

Rev. Alfred Wilson, pastor of First United Church, in a brief speech, voiced appreciation to Canon Rushbrook for his address. There were vocal solos by Mrs. B. E. Valde, accompanied by Mrs. A. Wilson.

Delicious refreshments were served before the meeting closed.

It was one of two such creatures which were found.

INTERNATIONAL PUBLIC OPINION.

Until the last few years international public opinion has not amounted to much. It has not meant anything. Now that it has been crystallized through the League of Nations it has become a powerful influence and happily it is an influence for peace.

Just now we find Japan attacking Manchuria with what looked like a movement toward conquest. Immediately the League of Nations takes action and the United States is induced to join hands with that international organization for the first time. Practically all the nations of the world make joint representations to Japan, and the effect is to prevent continuation of hostilities.

BETTER CO-OPERATION.

The announcement that the C.P.R. and the Canadian National Railways have agreed to a plan for better co-operation for the purpose of cutting down expenses is one that will be received with satisfaction all over the country.

The more the railways cost to operate the higher will be the freight rates and the people of the country, chiefly the producers, are the ones who pay the bill. While at times competition is the life of trade, too keen competition starves those who are in business, especially when there is a duplication of services.

If the railways can operate more economically they can pay dividends and also can give low freight and passenger rates.

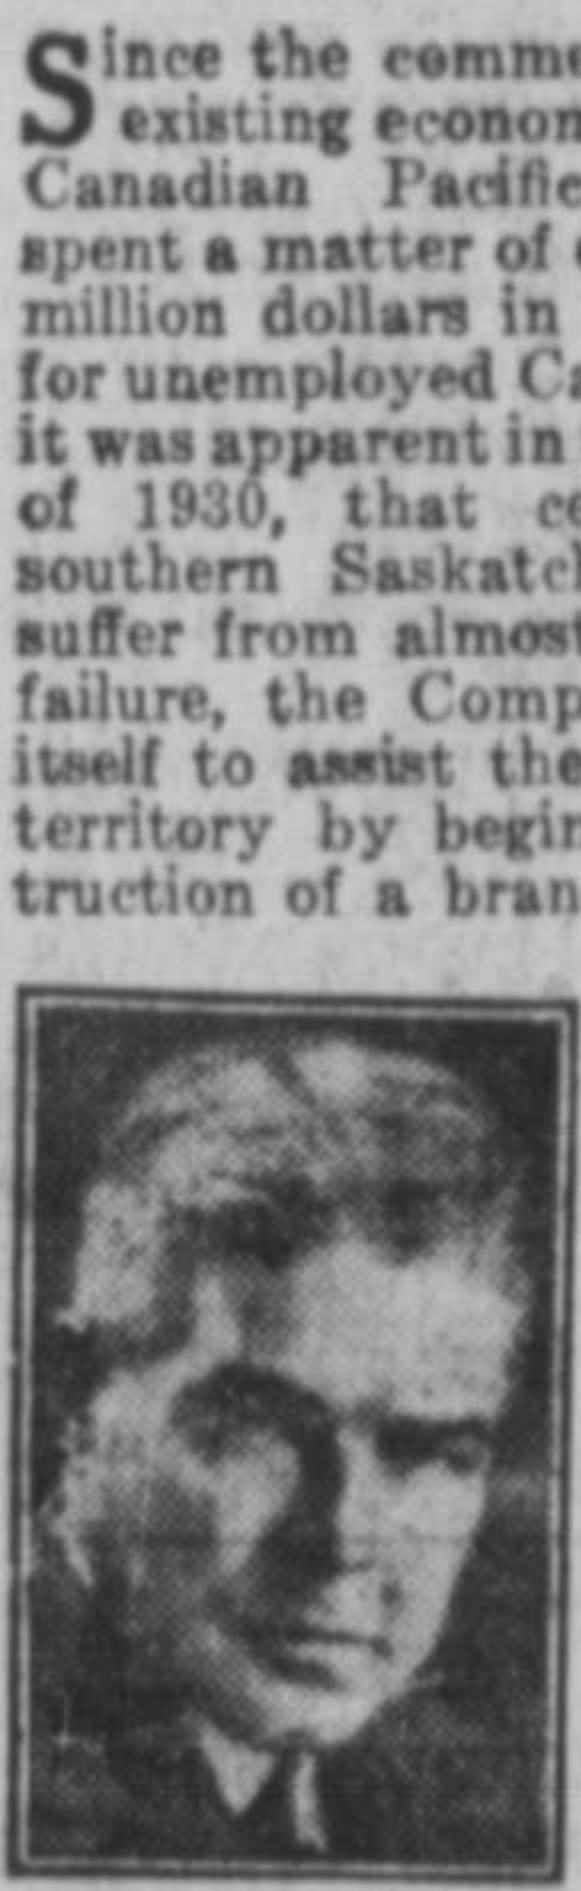

ECONOMY IN ROUTES.

It is the fear of the rate for wheat export being set too high that causes many people to oppose the operation of the P.G.E. as a grain carrying railway. To set a rate that would be profitable over that line would mean that the farmer would get less for his produce. The same grain could be hauled to Prince Rupert at two-thirds of the cost, probably less. If that line were built first the rate would be set for it and the rate to Prince Rupert, under the present system, would have to be the same.

In all businesses today people are looking for greater efficiency and greater economy. In that way they expect to meet the conditions with which all are faced.

Contributed Huge Sum To Assist Employment

C.P.R. Spent more than $11,000,000 on new Branch Lines and station buildings and provided 351,000 days work for men otherwise unemployed. Co-operated by doing work years ahead.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of Canadian Pacific Ry.

Since the commencement of the existing economic situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has spent a matter of eleven to twelve million dollars in providing work for unemployed Canadians. When it was apparent in the late summer of 1930, that certain areas of southern Saskatchewan were to suffer from almost complete crop failure, the Company took upon itself to assist the people in that territory by beginning the construction of a branch line between Vancouver and Mayrune. This line would not, in the ordinary course of events, have been built for some time, and certainly not at a time when there was no crop available in that particular territory. But the Company desired to give employment to the farmers and their teams in the drought area. The total cost of the line is estimated to be approximately $1,000,000, and this work is still proceeding. The Dominion Government subsequently undertook considerable work for the unemployment relief, and the Canadian Pacific was called upon to cooperate. This the Company did to the limit of its ability by anticipating works which would, normally, not have been started for a number of years. These works included a number of new branch lines, the building of a new station at Regina, some grade revision in British Columbia, and also the application on various subdivisions of new rail and new rock and gravel ballast. The total cost of these works were estimated at $11,514,000 and, according to agreement with the Government, are to be completed at the end of the current year. It is true that the Dominion agreed to pay interest for a limited period on this capital cost, but after receipt of this interest, the Canadian Pacific will still have expended over $10,500,000 from its own Treasury in order to improve the situation in the country generally. This expenditure has been made at a time when the Company's revenues are suffering severely as a result of business depression. This programme of work, undertaken in order to cooperate with the Government, had given 351,000 days work to individuals otherwise unemployed up to August 31st last, and at September 14th it was estimated that approximately 100,000 more working days would be furnished before the works were completed. Although the Company has succeeded in making substantial reductions in operating costs, it has hesitated to pursue its policy of economy to the limit out of regard for the serious obligation which rests upon all corporations to give as much employment as possible. While protecting the interest of shareholders as far as is consistent with its duty to the country, the Canadian Pacific has been conservative in its application of measures which would increase the number of unemployed in Canada. Only recently, after experiencing very severe decreases in earnings, have they pared down their forces to the bare essentials necessary for operation.

A SATURDAY SERMON

The Universality of Religion

No Race of People Is Without Some Form of Worship It Is Shown

By Rev. Charles E. Motte

Secretary of the Prince Rupert Ministerial Association

It is now generally recognized that no race of people has been shown to be without some form of worship, and modern research accounts for such a universal phenomenon by stating that religion is the product of human nature and is, therefore, the outcome of natural instinct. The Bible has spoken on this question long before science was ever thought of. It tells of how God created man in His own image, the highest and most intelligent of His creation, and how man became a living soul. His body is a creation of the earth while his nature is divinely inspired. Because of this dual creation, man has a capacity for spiritual life as well as material. This capacity has expressed itself in the varied forms of worship found throughout the history of the human race. Among uncivilized people many crude and horrible forms of worship have been found, but these have been correctly described as "the cry of the soul torn from its centre and separated from its object." The systematized religions such as Mohammedanism, Confucianism, Hinduism, Buddhism and others are expressions of the same cry. Their founders appeared to be conscious of a power greater than themselves and they undertook the task of seeking to solve the problem.

Religion as a product of human nature places all religions on the same common level and does not recognize the special claims of any particular one of them. Today the religions of the world are known. Their doctrines have been carefully examined; their spiritual values determined, and the results each has had upon civilization.

In deciding the value of any religion three things have to be carefully taken into consideration. The conception it gives of the great Infinite and Eternal; the relationship it reveals between God and man; and the effect it has upon civilization.

Take Mohammedanism and what do we find? God is acknowledged but He is conceived as a despot to whom servile submission must be made. There is nothing whatever to reveal the relationship between God and man. It fails to give an ethical conception of God, and the result is seen in Mohammed's own moral character and in his low and degrading theory of women's inferiority. Motherhood is not held sacred, and any religion which does not recognize the purity of family life can never lift man to the highest ideals, nor can it ever claim to meet the demands of the capacity for spiritual life.

Buddhism was originally a system of humanitarianism, in which man is treated as a creature of fate, which denied the existence of a Supreme Being. Its doctrine of salvation lies in the suppression of desire, and thus lacks the necessary incentive for the development of spiritual life.

Confucianism places God beyond the reach of the people, with the result that its followers are without spiritual power.

The non-Christian religions are mainly local in their operation and are more or less adapted to the temperament of the people where they exist. Not one of these religions has been found in experience to fit in with the needs of an advancing civilization. However, it would be a mistake to seek to depreciate their value, as each one has made a notable contribution in the progress of history. Their founders were somewhat in the position of a worm living its life out in a circular drain pipe. They had indications of a life beyond their own and although bound by the confines of their own existence, they tried to establish a relationship with these unknown powers. The worm in the drain pipe would be affected by temperature and outside noises, and although it had these indications of a life beyond its own, it could not of itself solve the mystery. There had to be a break in from the outside, and this is what happened on the first Christmas eve.

The coming of Jesus was a break in upon the life of the world from the Eternal. Jesus declared a unique relationship of being one with God. "I and my Father are one." He also declared, "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again, I leave the world and go unto my Father." While He was in the world, His life, work, death, and resurrection. He revealed God, also making known the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He showed how sin separated man from God and how this could be so dealt with that man may be brought into communion with God as his Father. In the accomplishment of this the cross stands out as the central factor in the Christian religion.

The world is growing more and more of a unity and there is a growing need for a universal religion which recognizes the oneness of humanity, and which is adaptable to the needs of advancing civilization. After twenty centuries of experience the religion of Jesus has proved its value as a universal religion. It has operated in every environment, among all nations, among educated and illiterate people, and among lower as well as higher civilizations. There has been a world wide testimony to the Gospel Message revealing God, also to the bringing of men into communion with God; also to satisfying the demands of man's capacity for Spiritual Life. The historic development of the religion of Jesus is seen closely allied with the advancing life of humanity. It has never failed to minister to the growing and ever changing world, and a religion which does this can claim to have within it the elements of universality.

Mrs. Malcolm Martin of Bella Coola arrived in the city on the Cardena yesterday afternoon from the south to pay a visit here.

THEATRE MANAGER'S APPRECIATION HERE EXPRESSED

Editor, Daily News:
Please permit me, through your valued columns, to express my deep regret that, owing to a breakdown in the sound apparatus, I was unable to give the first show, as usual, last night.
Might I further express my appreciation and admiration for the attitude of the audience during the very trying wait of nearly two hours. I do not believe that anywhere in the whole Dominion there can be found an audience which would display such patience and good humor under similar circumstances, and I wish to extend them all my sincere thanks for their kindly consideration.
Repairs have now been effected and I can assure the public that the shows will proceed with their usual regularity.

Halibut Fleet on Last Lap—Prince John Rides Out
Big Storm—Insurance Rates Raised

With the legal closing of the season coming on Saturday next at midnight, two weeks earlier than before under revised treaty agreement, the halibut fleet is now on the last lap of the year 1931. A few of the boats tied up within the six weeks but the majority have kept on right to the end and have benefitted by it for the best prices of the year have been paid during the past week. With many boats still out, landings are expected to be rather heavy during the next week or ten days. Many of the American boats are expected to go right through to Seattle with their final catches without calling here.

The rather checkered career of Oliver Desner's power cruiser Rosina B. came to a close on Friday night of last week with a final blaze of glory when the vessel caught fire at the Kinahan Island fur farm, outside Prince Rupert, and was totally destroyed. The Rosina B. was one of the best known local cruisers and her familiar figure will be missed on the local waterfront.

According to reports from the Queen Charlotte Islands, the veteran coastal steamer Prince John had quite a time last Wednesday night while riding out between Cumshewa Inlet and Skidegate one of the worst storms in the history of the Islands. While the steamer was battling with the terrific seas, the steam steering gear is reported to have broken, whereupon Capt. Neil McLean, the master, ordered officers to man the hand steering gear which is aft on the vessel. By sheer grit and good seamanship, Captain McLean and his officers managed to ride out the storm for fourteen hours until the mechanical steering gear was mandated. During the commotion, Purser Bert Robson is reported to have been nearly washed overboard.

Shot Giant Turtle

The Provincial Museum at Victoria this week received the shell of a huge 1450-pound leatherneck turtle to add to its collection. Cannery employees on the west coast of Vancouver Island had previously enjoyed a tasty meal on the meat of the surprising catch made by pilchard fishermen on the west coast of Vancouver Island this summer. The shell arrived at the museum recently as a contribution from Capt. Henry White of the Haida Tribe of Indians, who incidentally was also responsible for securing for the museum the first specimen of Queen Charlotte caribou and the only one known. The turtle in the case was sighted by the seiner Snow King, about eight miles off Nootka when the boat was cruising for pilchards. The Snow King bore down on the turtle and a few minutes later a shot or two from Captain White's gun ended the wanderer's career. The prize was taken to the Nootka salmon cannery, where it was found to weigh 1450 pounds, measuring nine and one-half feet across, and about a foot and a half in thickness. Some of the meat was eaten by cannery employees, who found it tender and tasty. A case of canned turtle was also processed at the cannery, and the big shell was preserved as a curiosity. So far as is known this is the first time a turtle has been sighted off British Columbia and, incidentally the creature's presence has added to local conjecture as to whether or not there is any relation between the occurrence of particularly large runs of pilchards in provincial waters from time to time and the presence there, in the same periods, of specimens of marine life which, ordinarily, are found in more southerly areas only.

Insurance rates on small gasoline craft are slated for a rise, it is announced by the Association of B. C. Marine Underwriters. Statistics show that in the past four years 15 to 20 per cent more has been paid out in claims than was ever received by the companies, it is declared. The growth in the number of fire casualties is alarming, the underwriters say. Last year 14 gasoline fishing boats were destroyed by fire while air ady this year 22 fire losses have been dealt with. F. A. Fatcher is president and G. L. Schetky, secretary of the underwriters' association. V. G. D. Phillips is chairman of the gasoline section.

Halibut landings for the week ending yesterday were exceptionally light, totalling only 180,500 pounds, of which 14,700 pounds was Canadian and 165,800 pounds American

PROGRAM ENJOYED

Three One-Act Sketches Feature Entertainment at Presbyterian Church

Three excellent one-act sketches were features on a very acceptable program of entertainment which was offered to a capacity audience at First Presbyterian Church last evening. The entertainment was staged under the auspices of the board of managers of the church and Mr. Hollingworth, the pastor, presided. It was suggested that it might be the inauguration of a Little Theatre movement in the city.

The first sketch was a romance entitled "Yesterday," in which the characters were taken by Miss Annie Walker and George C. Mitchell both of whom acquitted themselves with credit. The second was a character sketch entitled "Low Life" in which Mrs. W. C. C. O'Neill, E. J. Smith and J. A. Teng were each excellent. In the third of the dramatic offerings Miss Malzie Macdonald, Mrs. Alex Mackenzie, Mrs. Robert Cameron and S. J. Hunter portrayed the roles splendidly, the title of the sketch being "A Study in Mother-in-Laws."

The evening's program also included selections by an orchestra consisting of Mrs. J. S. Black, Bert Cameron, Dave Eastman and Bob Greenfield; violin solos by Bert Cameron, and vocal solos by Mrs. H. N. Brocklesby, accompanied by Mrs. Donald Ross.

W. L. Sandison was house manager and property men were Robert Cameron and James Haddon. James Simpson was stage electrician, W. W. C. O'Neill presided at the door and ushers were Alex Mackenzie and W. L. Sandison.
