LOST MAN IS FOUND

Alf Skolvik Picked Up Exhausted After Being Missing on Campania Island

Out 53 Hours

Had No Food For Over Two Days—Supply of Matches Became Exhausted

Alf Skolvik, engineer and part owner of the local halibut boat Gony, is safe back aboard his vessel after a rather harrowing experience when he became lost on desolate Campania Island, down the coast from here, while hunting deer. The halibut boat Melville, Capt. John Ivarson, which returned to port yesterday afternoon after having joined the search for the missing man, reported his safety.

Skolvik was lost from Monday morning until Wednesday afternoon. He had had no food between Monday morning, when he ate a couple of pieces of bread before leaving his boat, and Wednesday afternoon when he was found in an exhausted condition on the north coast of Campania Island by the halibut boat Viking, one of the search boats. He was out for 53 hours.

According to word brought to the city by Capt. Ivarson, Skolvik walked himself into exhaustion before nightfall on Monday. He had reached the beach, however, and lit a fire that night but a storm blew it out. The lost man had exhausted his supply of dry matches and on Tuesday and Wednesday had no fire. He had also fired all his bullets in the effort to attract attention. It was fortunate that the Viking was searching close enough to shore to sight Skolvik. He was immediately taken on board.

Meantime, the Gony had come into port for the purpose of obtaining more searchers. The Gony, accompanied by the Melville, went back on Wednesday and, on arrival at Campania Island, found that Skolvik was safe.

The Gony and the Viking, like a number of other local halibutters, are "camping out" for the winter. The two boats are now at Union Bay in Grenville Channel and later plan on moving to Bella Coola.

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 4.—The Hudson Bay Co's trading steamer Baychimo, which was believed to have been ground to pieces following a terrific storm earlier in the week, was discovered yesterday 45 miles from where it had been frozen in the ice before the storm.

The discovery of the vessel was made by an Eskimo who reported that the vessel, apparently, was little damaged.

PUT MEN ON LAND

Would Be Better Policy Than Herding Them Into Unemployed Camps, Pattullo Feels

VANCOUVER, Dec. 4.—Visiting here after having completed a tour of the entire province, T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Liberal opposition in the British Columbia Legislature, contended that a policy of getting men on the land, thus establishing solid assets and providing sustenance for more people, was preferable to the present system of establishing unemployed "army camps" throughout the province. A large part of the money spent in these camps, Mr. Pattullo felt, would be eventually wasted.

Colonel Nicholls Discusses Gold As Money in Interesting Address To Rotary Club at Its Luncheon

Yesterday afternoon Colonel J. W. Nicholls gave a very interesting address on gold as a financial medium, at the weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club. He explained the suspension of gold payments by Britain and its effect on that and other countries. He said in part:

"In the primitive days commodities were used as money, and we can read in history of many typical examples: Cattle, grain, furs, salt, cowrie shells were all used, but with the advance of political and economical civilization, the metals have proved to be the best. Copper, silver and gold have each in turn been chosen until today gold is almost universally used amongst the highest developed countries. It is a striking example of the survival of the fittest. Gold is of equal quality in its pure state, so that no matter if it is secured in the Yukon or Australia it is the same for all practical purposes. Gold has large value in small bulk, is durable, easily converted from bullion to coin and vice versa at little cost and without loss. It has a low melting point. "It has been said that the production of gold is not keeping up with the requirements, and that the fall in prices and business depression are due to inadequate supplies of gold. This theory is flatly denied by the McMillan committee. This committee was created by the Ramsay MacDonald socialist government and comprised not only the best bankers of Great Britain, but also eminent economists, organized labor leaders, and outstanding business men of prominence. They go further and say that were the supplies of gold greater the same conditions would prevail.

Gold Standard "Now what is the gold standard? "I will try to explain it as it appears to be rather hazy to some people. Theoretically it means that countries having a gold standard or using gold as their medium for exchanging commodities will always exchange their paper currency for gold. In Canada the dollar is composed of 23.22 grains of pure gold. Therefore, Dominion $1.00 notes should be exchangeable for that amount of gold. But in actual fact it means that gold is simply used to adjust international balances of trade. I will give a simple illustration, which applied, of course, before Great Britain suspended gold payments. Supposing Great Britain had bought $1,000,000 worth more of goods and services than she had sold to foreign countries, the demand for foreign bills to pay the foreign countries would be greater than the supply. Foreign exchange, in terms of pounds, would rise, or in other words, the pound would buy less dollars.

Wealthy Nation "England is a rich nation and her wealth per capita is probably greater than any other country in the world. So why did England have to suspend gold payments? Well, France not only suspended gold payments a few years back, but settled her debts at 20c on the dollar when she established her franc at 4c in Canadian money instead of 20c in 1914. In other words, she repudiated 80c of her debt external and internal. Great Britain didn't do this, but while she suspended gold payments from 1914 to 1925 she then re-established her currency at par, in other words, she (continued on page six)

LETTERS FROM SANTA CLAUS

North Pole, December 4, 1931

People of Prince Rupert, Dear Folk:—

People often wonder how I can visit so many people at Christmas. How am I able to make so many people happy all in one day? It's the magic of the season that does it. People are in the mood to be happy. Some are happy because they give and others are happy because they receive. On that day men are no longer the grasping selfish creatures that you often find them. They relax and their real selves come to the fore. The magic of the season is on them and when people are like that I, the spirit of Christmas, can work wonders.

All you need is to get the Christmas idea in your minds and I can easily do the rest. Watch for me on Christmas Day.

SANTA CLAUS

Turned Blue In The Face He Coughed So Hard

Mr. Joseph Laudhardt, Melville, Sask., writes:—
"Last winter I had such a bad cold that when I started coughing I would turn blue in the face. I went to the druggist and asked him what I could do for it, and he handed me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. When I had finished it I felt a lot better, so I got another one and after that was finished I never had another cough all winter."

MAN IN THE MOON

There'll be a civic election pretty soon and then . . . But civic elections are not as bad as provincial or federal. There's less hot air spilled over the constituency.

The public man drones platitudes As if he'd bought them new He's full of stuffy virtues as

An old merino ewe; He sits the rail, bows to the storm And keeps "an open mind"; And he is where he is because Or pushes from behind.

Many a strong man is not strong enough to lift the mortgage on the house.

Jake says he'd like to undergo an operation but he fears what he might say while under the anaesthetic.

The last thing a man wants is a funeral, and that's the last thing he gets.

I'd worry if I only was sure I was worrying about the right thing.

While we're on the subject of bananas, here's Miss Laura Logan of California, who grows her own bananas just to the left of the porch as you go in. Banana plants are common out there, but usually don't bear much fruit.

NEW APPLE STOCKS IN

Winter Varieties Now Being Offered—Butter and Flour Prices Are Stiff

Winter varieties of apples are now being offered in local retail stores, wrapped stocks having commenced to arrive in earload lots from the Okanagan valley. The apple market is stiff.

Jamaica grapefruit are being offered for the first time on the local market. New Florida grapefruit is also in.

Onions are advancing on the wholesale market. Raisins and Currants, essential to the housewives for their Christmas cakes, have made an advance. Duty and exchange have forced up the price of the California product and, with increased demand, prices of the Australian varieties have gone up.

Eggs and butter prices are showing the usual seasonal advance. Flour and feed prices, after considerable fluctuation lately, are stiff again.

Meat prices are rather low just now with stock being slaughtered so as to avoid winter feeding.

Thought She'd Die If Left Alone

Ridgetown Woman Seemed Hopelessly Nervous But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) Helped Restore Her To Normal Health.

"Sister and I were engaged in business," writes Miss E. M. Shaw, Ridgetown, Ont. "I became exceedingly nervous. So much so that when sister went home to her midday meal, I almost invariably, after a few minutes, would lock the doors and follow her, as I was afraid I might die before she returned. I began taking Pink Pills, and six or seven boxes restored me."

The iron and other elements in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) increase the amount of haemoglobin in the blood—enabling the blood to carry more oxygen to the tissues.

Don't remain in a nervous and run down condition. Go to a drug store and get a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. 50 cents a package.

Christmas Dinners and Hampers Will Be Provided For All Needy By Salvation Army Is Announced

The word Christmas to some brings a thrill of joy and expectancy, but, to others less fortunate it brings a heavy heart, sorrowful countenance and dark days because through unfortunate circumstances they are not able to partake in the festivities of Christmas.

But the Salvation Army is in a position to act on behalf of the Prince Rupert citizens to see that everyone enjoys Christmas, that the shadow of depression is chased away and the dark cloud turned inside out.

A Christmas dinner for the unemployed men on December 25 will be provided and hampers will be sent out to the families in need. To give those wishing to do so an opportunity to help in this work a subscription list will be opened on Saturday in the Daily News and the names of donors will be published from time to time. Money or goods may be sent to the Daily News office or the Salvation Army headquarters.

It may be a mistaken impression, but these football affairs seem to be getting a lot rowdier. Here's a bunch of the boys down in southern California bringing down the lucky lad with the ball. And they have no snow and sleet down there either to keep the working parts cool.

METLAKATLA VILLAGERS ANNOYED BY PORT SIMPSON

Editor, Daily News:
On Tuesday last a pretty wedding took place, and the whole village population gathered in the village hall for the wedding feast. Every one looked forward to a happy time and evidently everything went along smoothly. After justice was done to the food, of which there was a bountiful supply, Rev. Rushbrook was asked to propose a toast for the bride and bridegroom, to which everyone responded. Speeches followed by several others and then came the turn of the uncle of the bridegroom to make a speech, but his brand of oratory seemed to start the ball rolling to mar the otherwise happy evening, to be followed closely by two more speakers from Port Simpson, who forcibly brought to the villagers attention an ancestral pagan customs of the dim past. They laid claim that as Metlakatla was the birth-place of their ancestors, therefore, the village of Metlakatla belonged to them. This may be alright in the dim past, but Metlakatla wants to remain intact as a Christian community, and we deliberately want to remain ignorant of these ancient pagan usages. We want to be progressive and not to drift back to the ancient customs. At this point of the proceedings the villagers tried to be long-suffering towards the visitors, but when the last speaker from Port Simpson tried to 'bulldoze' the people and emphatically declared that the villagers must pay homage to their chiefs, nobles, the 'Kitwiliants' tribe, etc., and then started to plant imaginary posts at the extreme bounds of the village including Mission Point, it was more than the villagers could stand. It roused the ire of the Chief Councillor, and hardly before the very feeble applause accorded the last died, he, the Chief Councillor came forward to the speakers' platform and severely denounced the visitors for introducing a 'trifle of a very serious nature'—such a happy gathering (deserving applause). We are very glad Rev. Rushbrook was on the way home to Prince Rupert, and was not in the building when this occurred. In spite of all this unfriendly feeling introduced into our midst, the young people spent a happy evening, dancing to the sweet strains of music furnished by the capable Metlakatla Orchestra. The villagers will always be glad to welcome visitors who are friendly and courteous.

METLAKATLA RESIDENT.

Guide to Correspondents

The Daily News welcomes correspondence on live topics of the day or any other subject of public interest, but letters must be brief and to the point. The long-winded correspondent has no place in modern journalism.

Every letter must be signed by the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a matter of good faith and courtesy. All unsigned documents go to the waste paper basket. Letters of a caustic character must have the signature appended for publication.

Letter should be written on one side of the paper only. Correspondents must avoid personalities and the language should be such as would be allowed in the ordinary rules of debate.

COLONEL NICHOLLS DISCUSSES GOLD AS MONEY IN INTERESTING ADDRESS TO ROTARY CLUB AT ITS LUNCHEON.

told the world she would pay her debts both internal and external at 100 cents on the dollar. The only honorable thing for a debtor to do, and what she will do again in my humble opinion. Great Britain, through force of circumstances has suspended gold payments five times in the past century, 1847, 1857, 1886 and 1914 and 1931. Each time prior to this she has resumed unlimited gold payments or re-established her international payments at par or in full.

"Why did the Bank of England have to refuse to redeem its notes in gold? Well, it is quite simple. For centuries London has been the international money market. Foreign governments, foreign banks and foreign merchants kept large sums of money in London in deposit to settle their trade and other obligations. The London banker allowed interest on these balances and in turn loaned it out to other parties at interest. It was well known that some of these parties to whom they had loaned the money were in difficulties. For example, Austria and Germany, Brazil and Australia. Additionally, the government of Great Britain was regarded as extravagant in its expenditures for social and other services. There was a temporary loss of confidence and the whole world started to call for their money from the London banker. He couldn't pay it all at once as he could not liquidate his loans immediately so he has temporarily told the world that pending an improvement he can't pay. It is exactly the same as if everyone who deposits with the Bank of Montreal demanded payment the same day. It couldn't be done as the bank has invested its money in bonds and loans to merchants and, while it is perfectly solvent, it couldn't pay until it had sold its bonds and collected its loans from its customers.

Trade Stimulated

"What kind of currency has Great Britain now? Well, her currency is still pounds, shillings and pence and secured against gold, and her international balance of trade is settled by supply and demand. In other words, no longer is it settled by gold shipments. If she buys abroad more than she sells there is a greater demand for foreign currency and down goes the value of one pound in terms of dollars and francs. It is at present being prevented from collapsing altogether as it did in Germany, but is regulated by the old law of supply and demand. Great Britain is owed large sums of money and the whole world is now paying off some of these loans in the depreciated currency.

"What does it mean to Great Britain's trade. It is a very strange economic result and the old economic law is working out exactly, that her financial distress has temporarily stimulated trade. How did this happen? Well, take a simple example. A coal merchant in Montreal has been buying coal from Pennsylvania at $4.50 per ton. He could get the same coal in Cardiff for $4.86 per ton, or £1. Suddenly the exchange in Montreal on London is $4.00 to the pound, in other words, the coal would only cost $4.00 per ton, so he switches his order to Cardiff. Now similar transactions are going on in all lines of trade and Great Britain is temporarily able to under-cut her competitors in the world's markets. But can she keep it up? Most decidedly no! It might keep up if international trade improves, which apparently is happening today, but she can't keep it up for long without a universal trade improvement, and why? Well, the old economic laws will work again. England is not a producing country excepting in coal, iron and in a small way. She is a manufacturing country and has to import her raw materials to make up into articles for use and export. Those merchants who were lucky enough to have the raw materials in the country and paid for before her pound depreciated will make a profit when they resell them abroad in the buyers' currency, but when the same merchant goes to replace this raw material he has to pay 25% more or exactly higher in proportion to the lower value of the pound.

"England has to import most of her foodstuff and as soon as her present stocks are consumed she will have to replace them, and in terms pounds, shillings and pence that will cost exactly 25% more.

"I was amused to read some of the political speeches in Great Britain during the last election. The candidates were promising the voters notwithstanding the lower value of the pound they would not permit food prices to go up if they were elected. Well, they might just as well as promise to empty Prince Rupert harbor with a spoon. Food prices will advance in Great Britain by 25% notwithstanding all the parliaments in the world. This eventually will cause higher labor costs because notwithstanding the efforts of Henry Ford, wages will rise and fall with commodities. Not so fast, but over a period of years they follow pretty closely. Therefore, it won't be long before Great Britain's temporary advantage will be lost in her foreign trade."

Mr. Nicholls then spoke briefly of silver and its relation to gold and the futility of attempting to agree on a system of bi-metalism.

Great Britain has had 17 unsolved murder mysteries in the last three years, involving the deaths of 70 persons.

BEAUTY IS NOT JUST A GIFT

For every woman who inherits beauty, there are five who win charm and good looks. Without health, there can be little natural beauty. And a serious handicap to health is constipation.

This widespread ailment often causes headaches, listlessness, sallow skins, pimples—undermining both health and beauty. Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal provides "bulk," which gently clears out the wastes. And Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce.

Try two tablespoonfuls daily—usually sufficient for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.
