Prince Rupert Will Enter a Candidate In Big Los Angeles Event

Some Local Girl Will Go South to Be Guest of Screen Stars and Have Place of Honor at Fiesta

The Fair Board at its meeting last night decided to enter a candidate in the International Beautequest at Los Angeles in connection with the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the city...

Your candidate will be met at the railway station, dock or airport by a committee representing the Ocean Park Businessmen's Association.

She will be the guest of screen stars at various functions. She will be entertained by a reigning star of the screen at her home.

She will be included in all parties listed as part of the program of the International Beautequest and La Fiesta de Los Angeles.

She will occupy a position of honor in all gatherings including pageants, parades, spectacles, receptions and, in fact, all events planned for the International Beautequest and Los Angeles' great reception.

Candidates must be between the ages of 16 and 30, unmarried and of good character and the one going from Prince Rupert will be chosen in the following manner:

She or her sponsors must sell 50 tickets at $1 each for the big coronation ball to be staged on the last day of the fair in the exhibition building.

She may enter without sponsors if she wishes but she must sell the tickets.

The candidates must attend the Exhibition every evening while it is in progress here. On the first night one selection will be made by competent judges.

These three candidates will attend the coronation ball accompanied by the other candidates and at 9 o'clock, the final selection will be made.

Candidates from points around Prince Rupert may enter, such as Anyox, Ocean Falls, Smithers, Terrace, Stewart, Hazelton or other points and they will be required to sell 25 tickets to the coronation ball in order to qualify.

Candidates either in the city or out may be sponsored by organizations who may help them in disposing of tickets or otherwise in connection with the event.

Candidates or their sponsors should notify Secretary Vance of the Fair Association at as early a date as possible and as soon as the tickets are ready may commence disposing of them.

VICTORIA, July 30.—A. G. Bolton, Victoria representative of the Coastal Airways, announces that one of their planes will operate to Prince Rupert. They have two machines, one a Fairchild and the other a Bellanca, one of which will ply between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

Former Premier W. L. Mackenzie King contended that he was unwilling to sacrifice Parliament's right to control expenditures but pledged support towards the granting of definite liberal sums and giving the government whatever powers it needed to maintain order.

A program of public works will form the backbone of the relief program, Premier Bennett said.

Registration of unemployed is proceeding steadily, so far the number signing up for work at the government camps being 224. One hundred of these have registered at the City Hall, 88 at the provincial government offices, 30 at the employment bureau and six with the provincial police.

The work of registering goes on slowly as it takes time to fill out the forms and have the affidavit sworn. Many who come to register, when they find they have to wait a long time, leave and return later.

AROUSING OTTAWA

Ottawa seems to be aroused to the seriousness of the halibut situation at Prince Rupert and it now seems probable that some negotiations will be opened with the United States government with a view to having the duty against Canadian fish removed. If this is done the duty on American fish coming into Canada must also be removed. It is very good news to hear that the minister of fisheries is seriously considering the matter and that he has already given much thought to it. Possibly we may yet get action.

PUBLIC OPINION

The recommendation that the Government of Canada will have to take action in the Beauharnois case is undoubtedly the correct one. The company, since the exposures, will find it extremely difficult to carry on. No one would put money into a concern that was known to have made such a financial mess as did this company. It will have to be placed under new management and given a new start in such a way as to inspire public confidence.

THE KING'S CUP RACE

For the first time in the history of the King's Cup air races, inaugurated in 1921 and emblematic of amateur piloting supremacy and mechanical efficiency in Great Britain, an entry has been received from an overseas Dominion, say the Nelson News. To Canada goes this honor in the fact of John C. Webster having decided to participate with his Canadian-built Curtiss-Reid Rambler III motored with a British Gipsy III power plant capable of driving the machine at 130 m.p.h. Due importance is attached to the entry which is bound to arouse as much interest in England as it has at home. Not merely should the sporting and publicity side of the venture be considered, but the respect for Canadian industrial efficiency and progress which will redound to the credit of this Dominion at home as well as overseas, regardless of whether Mr. Webster finishes "in the money," should be duly stressed.

Participation in the King's Cup typifies business "leadership" and shows that our industrialists are both ready and willing to assume initiative in "putting their goods across" in overseas and domestic markets.

TELLS ABOUT LOUIS RIEL FORT GARRY

Wife of Mounted Police Commissioner Saved Life of Major Boulton and Others

WINNIPEG, July 30.—Mrs. Macleod, widow of Col. James Farquharson Macleod, Commissioner of the North West Mounted Police in the early, stirring days in Western Canada, in a recent interview with The Winnipeg Tribune, recalled some of the historic scenes through which she had passed with her husband. Mrs. Macleod was born on the Red River and is a member of the pioneer Drever family—her father was William Drever—which came with the Orkney settlement and Lord Selkirk in 1812.

"I remember during the Rebellion when we feared Riel was going to have Major Boulton shot," Mrs. Macleod said. "Among others, I went to the fort to persuade him to change his mind, and at last he relented, and Boulton was safe. But there was this man Thomas Scott who had just come to the place. Nobody knew him, so Riel decided to make him an example to terrorize the loyal supporters. Scott was given a trial with all the questions asked in French, which he could not understand, and then they shot him."

"When Major Butler came to Fort Garry ahead of Wolseley," said Mrs. Macleod, "I was down at the rapids visiting some friends. My host, the Rev. Mr. Gardiner, came in with a stranger. 'Mary,' he said to me, 'this is Major Butler, who is leaving to join Gen. Wolseley. His report must be taken back to Fort Garry, and sent to Lower Canada without falling into Riel's hands. Will you take it?'"

"I must have been about 17 at the time, and I do not know why I was not afraid, but I put the papers in my blouse and started the long drive back to Fort Garry. I had no sooner arrived when a party of rebels came to our stable and searched my sleigh. 'Did you see any stranger at the Rapids?' they asked me. 'No,' I said, the papers still in my blouse."

"Are you sure you passed nobody between here and the Rapids?" Again I said 'No,' and I must have convinced them, for we were able to send the papers east." Mrs. Macleod told about her marriage to Colonel Macleod in 1876. He had come to Fort Garry as brigade major on General Wolseley's staff. They were married at 5 o'clock and that evening he had to leave on a tour of his territory, and they did not see each other until many months later, when he joined her in Chicago, on her return from a trip to Toronto. Then began a thrilling journey for the bride. She went with her husband and his men by Portage la Prairie and Dauphin to Fort Pelly for the first Northwest Council. It was clear winter weather, and they travelled by dog team, and pitched their tents on the snow-covered prairie where the lonely howl of the wolves vied with the winter wind.

"The driver of my sleigh," said Mrs. Macleod, "was hanged the following year for murder." Then the scene of Mrs. Macleod's life shifted to Fort Macleod, which had been founded by her husband in 1874. Here young Mrs. Macleod would always go on the morning ride with her husband and the men. There were many times when the few tents of the Mounted Police were surrounded by dozens of Indian tepees, yet Mrs. Macleod felt none of the fear that she had known in Fort Garry when the Sioux came up from Minnesota after the massacre, and the air was sharp with foreboding, and in at the windows peered strange dark faces.

These Indians encamped near the Northwest Mounted Police were not strangers, but their charges, and their children, for they were deputies of the Great White Queen. "My husband always took the Indians' word," said Mrs. Macleod, proudly, "and they would do anything for Stamix-oto-kan, as they called him, for they trusted him completely."

Under Col. Macleod's administration, the liquor trader was routed; the Indians knew him as their mentor and friend; and a firm foundation was laid for the future achievements of the N. W. M. P. in the west.

Man in the Moon

Now that the Prince of Wales has made a hole in one all must admit he is perfectly qualified to rule an empire.

Half the people in Prince Rupert do not know how the other half live but they are keenly suspicious.

It was reported in the office that a man and his wife had words. She spoke them.

The newspapers told of a man without hands who played the piano but they forget to tell of the hundreds of girls with no voice who sing.

Brain is something a few people use and most people admire in the using.

Male Parent: "My dear girl, has he given you any encouragement?"
 Daughter: "Well, last night he asked if you and mother were pleasant to live with."

She—And what did papa say when you told him you couldn't sleep for thinking of me?
 Jack—He offered me a job as night watchman in his factory.

It is suggested that motor horns be standardized in pitch on one melodious note. B sharp would be very appropriate from a pedestrians point of view.

She "Tell me George, do you love me?"

He "Of course I do. Didn't I tell you so five minutes ago?"

She "Yes, George, but then men are so changeable, you know."

First Girl—He told me I was so interesting—so beautiful.

Second Girl—And you will trust yourself for life to a man who lays himself out to deceive you at the very beginning of your courtship?

An old miser, having listened to a powerful discourse on charity, said: "That sermon so strongly proves the necessity of almsgiving that—I've almost a mind to beg."

"How did you find your uncle?"

"In apple pie order."

"How is that?"

"Crusty!"

"The man I marry," she declared, with a stamp of her foot, "must be a hero!"

"He will be," said the cautious bachelor.

Guide to Correspondents

The Daily News welcomes correspondence on live topics of the day or any other subject of public interest, but letters must be brief and to the point. The long-winded correspondent has no place in modern journalism.

Every letter must be signed by the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a matter of good faith and courtesy. All unsigned documents go to the waste paper basket. Letters of a caustic character must have the signature appended for publication.

Letter should be written on one side of the paper only. Correspondents must avoid personalities and the language should be such as would be allowed in the ordinary rules of debate.

Investigation Into Halibut Livers Proceeds

Charles F. Lanwermeyer Tells Juneau People of Work He Is Doing View to Industry

Halibut liver oil! Will babies cry for it? Maybe, some day. Experiments now in progress may prove it to be much richer in medicinal properties than cod liver oil, says the Juneau Empire.

Charles F. Lanwermeyer of the Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., has been in the north two months conducting research studies into the chemical content of halibut liver and arranging for supplies of the fish product to be used in further investigation. He came to Juneau this week from Ketchikan. Previously he had been at Prince Rupert, B.C.

Long Lived Fish

"In a long-lived fish like the halibut, according to the theory of scientists, there is stored up food content," explained Mr. Lanwermeyer.

"The belief obtains that the place for this storage is the liver. A halibut adds a pound to its weight every year of its life. A male halibut will attain a maximum of 75 pounds, a female, as much as 400. Supposedly a female may live as long as four hundred years.

"The liver of a 75-pound halibut weighs about one pound as a rule.

"About 15% of the halibut liver is oil, while 50% of the cod liver is oil.

Fifteen Times Richer

"A conservative estimate places halibut liver oil as about 15 times richer than cod liver oil in their known medicinal properties.

"These properties are called vitamins. Scientists do not know what vitamins are but they do know what they will do. They are classified by what they will do.

"To date, in the experiments conducted by the Abbott Laboratories, halibut liver oil has been administered to animals only. The results have been such as to encourage the present investigation and research.

Pharmaceutical Products

"The Abbott Laboratories manufacture pharmaceutical products, and maintain a large research department.

"If halibut liver oil should prove to be efficacious and its extraction made practicable, a production plant would probably be established in Alaska. Handling the material in this territory would be more feasible than shipping it to Illinois."

The laboratories are paying nine cents a pound for the livers. This part of the fish is now being thrown away.

After concluding his investigations in Juneau, Mr. Lanwermeyer will return to North Chicago.

World's Most Ancient Fashion

LONDON, July 30.—The fashion for wearing armlets that has become such a craze in the last few weeks revives one of the world's most ancient ornaments. In olden days circlets of gold were kept by Teuton kings in their treasury in order that they might be available to bestow upon those who earned the royal favor. Minstrels were generally rewarded with a gold armlet whenever they played before royalty. Nowadays the ornaments have become more democratic, for literally everyone wears one with a tennis or short-sleeved frock.

LETTER BOX

OBJECTS TO PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT RELIEF PLAN

Editor, Daily News:—

With reference to your remarks regarding government relief camps, I think it is a disgrace and insult to the workers. The government plan, which if carried out, will leave the men, with practically nothing after they buy boots, clothing, etc., as there are lots of days in the winter time when it is impossible to work, owing to the stormy weather.

Also I know camps can be run on much less than $1 per day for board. When I was out for two weeks on the same work, board was 20c. So some one must be wanting a rake-off.

Why not take a copy of the New Zealand scheme, where everyone is paid decent wages, and only 15 cents deducted for board. The majority of the workers want to pay their accounts, which the hotels, cafes, etc., have been good enough to credit them for, but under this plan impossible.

Yours truly,
AN UNEMPLOYED WORKER.

Twenty Years Ago In Prince Rupert

July 30, 1911
Britain prepares for war with Germany over occupation of Agadir in Morocco.

"Still striding into line with the up-to-date cities of the world, Prince Rupert today witnessed an auto car carrying a party of sight seeing tourists around the city. Members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Behnsen, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rolde of Vancouver and their friends in Prince Rupert, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hart. From the wharf the car sped off to McBride Street, thence along Fifth Avenue to the high level bridge over Hays Creek. After a swift race to the crest of the rise there, the party motored back by Sixth Avenue and round to Fourth at the Bacon residence from which such a fine view of the city and harbor is gained. From there it was a quick race to the Royal where the party breakfasted and then caught the Venture to continue their tour. This little incident so early in the history of Prince Rupert points to a very big tourist business before long."
