Decided Improvement in Tone Of Affairs in East; Advance In Wheat Price Encouraging

Ex-Mayor S. M. Newton Returns to City After Spending Year in Ontario—Cannot See Why More Wheat Should Not Come Here

"There is a decided improvement in the tone of business affairs generally in the east," declares S. M. Newton, ex-mayor and veteran newspaper publisher of the city, who returned on yesterday afternoon's train after having spent a year in Ontario. Commenting upon conditions on the prairies, Mr. Newton said that the sharp advances in the price of wheat during the past week or so had imbued the people with new spirit and optimism was rapidly developing. At Edmonton talk was heard of railway employees who had recently been cut off the payrolls in the interests of economy getting their jobs back so that the rapidly developing grain movement might be coped with.

Prairie papers, Mr. Newton said, had published statements to the effect that 100,000,000 bushels or one-third of the grain crop had been moved through Vancouver. "It seems very strange to me," declared the ex-mayor, "that with Vancouver getting all that grain, Prince Rupert should receive practically none."

Mr. Newton made headquarters while away at Toronto. He told of intense heat there during the past summer. The thermometer on some days had gone over 100 degrees and "I lost eight pounds in the heat," said Mr. Newton. During the Canadian National Exhibition, there had been most changeable weather. On one day it would be so cool that a person would have to wear an overcoat to keep comfortable. On the next the thermometer would shoot up over ninety.

The ex-mayor said that he intended to remain in Prince Rupert indefinitely.

LIZARD IS IN MUSEUM

Salamander Found Recently in the Peace River District Being Preserved at Victoria

VICTORIA, Nov. 5.—Salamanders or no salamanders, the Peace River district is going to have its lizards! Hardly had the coal-mining salamanders of Hudson's Hope been officially denied their claims to antiquity, than a genuine, if petrified section of an Ichthyosaurus was placed in the hands of Francis Kermodie, director of the Provincial Museum. Several ounces in weight and six inches in length, the stone fragment reached Mr. Kermodie and is now a duly accredited exhibit in the museum.

It disclosed 16 razor-sharp teeth on each side of the narrow-gauge section of the jawbone, which had been many times as long, and was identified as part of the sawbill mouth of one of the lesser of the great fish lizards, which at times attained a length of 22 feet. Petrification of the section has preserved for all time a fossil of marine life that occupied the great sea which years ago covered parts of the prairie provinces and most of the north-land.

The fish-eating lizards of prehistoric times are believed to have preceded even the great land reptiles, which places the birthday of this specimen at several millions of years ago. It was picked up on a sand bar at the mouth of Graham River and was donated to the museum by A. J. Pomeroy, of the police post at Hudson's Hope. Similar specimens have been found in the area before.

SEES SUGGESTION ABSURD

Editor, Daily News:—
 One can not conceive of anything more ridiculous or absurd, than the multitude of childish reasons advanced in the past two years by apologists of capitalism for the world industrial depression. And our local professional man's version that it was due to the labor government of Britain is in my opinion adding insult to injury. The so-called labor government was a minority in Parliament, checkmated on all sides by old traditional party members who are and have been the pillars of capitalism since its dawn, hence the labor government in itself was incapable of passing a single piece of legislation good or bad without the consent and approval of one or a portion of both of the old parties.

It is not necessary to be a world economist to know that. While I do not wish to insult the intelligence of your readers by assuming to tell them the cause of the depression, still there are a few economic factors that are known to us all that I think had a far greater influence on industrial stagnation than all the governments in the world.

Let us understand that world industrial activity is governed by economic determination, not by prime ministers or finance ministers. A Snowden, Mellon or Bennett budget has no effect on this universal law. But the law is governor of them all. This law is neither kind nor cruel, neither weeps nor rejoices, but commands attention and respect from all governments and all people. Hence human society has but one course to pursue. Comply or perish.

Capitalism, like all preceding economic systems has fulfilled its historic mission, and like all previous systems has nourished within itself the kernel of its own destruction. Britain's national government of today can no more ignore or defy present economic requirements than a mouse can defy a cat and live even though MacDonald, Baldwin, Snowden and Churchill are teamed together. It is not impossible for them to comply. But it is impossible for them to defy and feed the people.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
 G. B. CASEY.

REPORT INCORRECT

Editor, Daily News:—
 In publishing the evidence given at the inquest held at Terrace recently, I note that I am reported to have said that Mrs. Little was with me when certain discoveries were made about the ruins.

As this statement was not made by me nor is in accordance with the facts I would thank you to make the correction, which could have and should have been correctly given by your reporter.

SOVIET IS EASING UP

Stringent Luxury Edict of Russian Government is Being Modified

MOSCOW, Nov. 6—After having demanded the greatest material sacrifices from its people so as to concentrate on its agricultural and industrial program, the Soviet Government is beginning to relax the stringent measures invoked to drain the utmost in resources from the nation.

Closely following the widespread rumors that food rationing was to be abolished soon, government leaders in speeches during recent weeks have openly committed the nation to a policy of higher living standards for the masses.

It has been emphasized, however, that this will mean no let up in the economic "war" now being waged on all fronts to develop the country industrially and agriculturally. It is taken for granted that modifications in the hardships now enforced would be inspired by confidence that the five-year plan in general will be more than fulfilled.

From recent official speeches and published comment the impression has become general that leaders of the Soviet now feel that, at the present rate of progress, the country can afford to pay more attention to the human phase involved without detracting from the work of industry.

Morale of Workers

Furthermore indications are that the Russian leaders recognize the value of strengthening by such means the morale of citizen-workers for the task ahead, the difficulties of which no one attempts to minimize.

From the outset of the five-year plan the people were called upon to subordinate material comforts and sometimes actual necessities to the economic development of the nation in order that the Soviet Union might be reasonably independent of other countries.

The output of "light" industry, from which comes various commodities for home consumption such as foodstuffs and clothing, has been held to the minimum that maximum energy might be directed toward building up the "heavy" or basic industry.

Government leaders frankly admitted that only by this means could Russia hope to become a self-contained country and thus overtake advanced capitalist nations from the industrial standpoint within ten years. The effect of this was the adoption of food rationing and the restriction of housing space in large centres to extremely limited accommodations.

The softening of this policy was first noticed several months ago when restrictions on the purchase of certain forms of merchandise were partially lifted. This was the initial step in what was evidently intended to be the gradual betterment of living conditions all around.

SEAPLANE DEPARTS

The Gypsy Moth seaplane of the Northern B. C. Airways, piloted by Desmond Murphy and with O. Rollag, air engineer, going as far as Stewart left at 1:30 p.m. today for Stewart whence it will await an improvement of weather conditions before flying north from there to Echo Lake on the Government Telegraphers line to bring out Operator Robert Quinn, who is seriously ill.

The weather was far from favorable at Stewart this morning for flying but it was thought advisable to have the plane there and ready to take advantage of the first improvement in conditions. There were indications of improvement this morning.

MANY PARTS IN AIRSHIP

The dirigible Akron, world's largest airship, is assembled by no fewer than 10,000,000 separate parts. Approximately 6,500,000 rivets were used to bind it together.

HORRIFIED

she studied this strange child's features!

EDNA CARTER never forgot the great lesson of courage she learned in childhood. In a small hill cabin—cut off by howling winds and driving snow—the twin mysteries of birth and death visited together—the little new life and her mother's life flickered out like candles. Watching her father's grief—Edna learned to be brave and strong in the face of tragedy.

She blossomed to glorious womanhood—and then met Gerald Barnes—the only man in the world for her, she knew. Their love was like a song of joy—and after a dazzling courtship they were married. Then Gerald began to be away—on business trips, he said—and she, trustful—had no suspicion of the truth. Till the day broke when no Gerald returned—and fear clutching her heart—she went to find him.

What was her grief and stupefaction—to find in the home of another woman—her husband's portrait in wedding clothes—his features in a strange child's face! Should she tell this other faithful wife that Gerald had betrayed them both—warp another life as hers was warped?

Fate sounded ominous drums—Tragedy stalked again—and unexpected Sorrow stunned them both! How Edna emerged victorious—triumphant—and won to peace and happiness is told in HER STRANGE WAY OUT—a true-life story that will thrill and move you! Read it complete in DECEMBER TRUE STORY MAGAZINE—Be sure to get your copy today?

She had accepted his love—his name. And now that there was no trace of him—she came to the one woman who could tell of her husband's fate! What she learned broke her heart and steeled her will—impelled her to a sacrifice only a noble woman could make!

Guide to Correspondents

The Daily News welcomes correspondence on live topics of the day or any other subject of public interest, but letters must be brief and to the point. The long-winded correspondent has no place in modern journalism.

Every letter must be signed by the writer, not necessarily by publication but as a matter of good faith and courtesy. All unsigned documents go to the waste paper basket. Letters of a caustic character must have the signature appended for publication.

Letter should be written on one side of the paper only. Correspondents must avoid personalities and the language should be such as would be allowed in the ordinary rules of debate.
