Bishops of Catholic Church in Island of Mediterranean Withdrew Letter Which Enjoined Electorate Not to Vote For Ruling Party

VALETTA, Malta, June 3:—A dramatic end to the long dispute between the state and Catholic church in Malta came today with an unreserved apology by Lord Strickland, Prime Minister, to the bishops of Malta for his antagonism towards the authority of the church. As a result, the bishops have withdrawn a pastoral letter issued in May, 1930, enjoining the Catholic electorate not to vote for the Strickland party in the elections which were to have been held at that time.

DR. GRANT IS COMING

Former Pastor to Supply in Pulpit of First Presbyterian Church This Summer

Announcement was made this morning that Rev. Dr. Hugh R. Grant of Fort William, who for years was pastor of First Presbyterian Church here, will be in Prince Rupert in August to supply in the pulpit of the local church during the absence of the regular pastor, Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth, on vacation.

The session of the local church invited its old pastor to come here to supply and word has just been received from Dr. Grant accepting the invitation and expressing his pleasant anticipation at being able to visit Prince Rupert again.

INSURANCE OF HEALTH

Dr. R. G. Large Addresses Prince Rupert Rotary Club on Subject of Current Interest

Favors Plan

Urges Speedy Adoption of Some Compulsory System Along This Line—Describes Benefits

Advocating the speedy adoption in this province of some plan of compulsory state health insurance, Dr. R. G. Large delivered an interesting address before the Prince Rupert Rotary Club yesterday afternoon on this subject which is receiving much attention at the hands of legislators just now. Dr. Large had his case for state health insurance compiled in a concise and logical manner and he described at some length the benefits which would be derived from such legislation, also referring to the success that such a plan had had in other countries, particularly in Europe.

Dr. Large said in part as follows: "Within the next year or two, health insurance will be one of the foremost questions in the province. In fact, it will probably be the subject of the most important act of legislation undertaken at the next sitting of the provincial house. It therefore comes as a timely subject for investigation and discussion as each one of us here will be influenced in some degree at least by any legislation along this line which may be enacted.

"Health insurance is not a new idea but has been in effect in some form or other for many years in a number of countries.

"In its earlier years, health insurance was frequently voluntary, but the voluntary sickness insurance plan has now become generally accepted throughout Europe as impotent to achieve desired results and those countries which previously had expressed antagonism to the compulsory principle one by one have come or are coming to adopt it. Another marked change in European enactments and policies is a tendency to concentrate in increasing degree upon associated health preservation policies and to increase benefits in kind to insured persons—hospitalization, medical care, nursing, medicines, appliances, etc.—rather than to augment cash benefits or extend the payment period, which in former years had been the recognized practice as increasing reserve fund balances made possible. For example, in Great Britain during the first period of insurance 71% of benefit payments were in cash, and 29% in kind. During the second period the payments were 52% and 48% respectively, and now benefits in kind exceed cash payments. It is also becoming standard practice to divert available moneys in reserve fund balances to health extension work except in those countries which proportionately reduce the levies for sickness insurance as reserves are accumulated.

"We find some form of compulsory sickness insurance in the following countries: Austria, Bulgaria, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, France, Germany, Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Greece, Hungary, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Roumania, Russia, Yugoslavia and Switzerland. With the exception of Japan, compulsory sickness insurance is, in the Old Land, confined

Presbyterian Assembly In Toronto Warms Up; Delegate Of United Church Withdraws

LONDON, Ont., June 3:—Rev. Dr. James Endicott, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, withdrew yesterday from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He had been instructed to bring fraternal greetings to the Assembly but a heated discussion broke out on the question of receiving a delegate from the United Church. Before a decision had been reached, Dr. Endicott withdrew.

Behind the incident was a protest from the United Church over the use of the term "Presbyterian Church in Canada." A letter to the Assembly from Rev. T. Albert Moore, United Church secretary, contended that the Presbyterian Church, as such, had ceased to exist.

MADE TOUR OF NORTH

Colonization Official of Canadian National Railways Here Today

Robert England, western manager of colonization and agriculture for the Canadian National Railways, Winnipeg, completed his first trip through the central section of British Columbia, arriving here on the delayed train this morning and proceeding to Vancouver on the Prince George. He expressed himself as very pleased with everything he saw and with the prospects for agricultural extension in the Bulkley and Nechaco Valleys and intimated that he would return very soon and keep in close touch with the situation.

Mr. England drove in a motor car from Prince George to Hazelton and back, taking in the Lakes country south of Burns Lake. He was accompanied by Harry Bowman, special representative of the department in Central British Columbia, and also by Louis Le Bourdais of Quesnel, who is writing special newspaper articles on the country.

Mr. Bowman says settlers are still coming, some seven or eight cars of settlers' effects having arrived recently for the interior country. He says that his company is becoming more and more interested in the problem of building up Central B.C. and he thinks the visit of Mr. England means a great deal to the district.

UNITED STATES FINANCES

The whole question of national finance is under discussion at Washington today and amid the ballyhoo of the different groups it is difficult to get at the real facts. A cut of ten per cent is being made in the salaries and wages of employees of the government, providing the bill is passed, and provision is being made for very greatly increased taxation. There is a very influential group also that is urging that instead of making inordinate tax increases that the government cut down expenditures to such an extent that greatly increased taxation may not be necessary. Judging from the fuss being made over the proposed ten per cent cut in salaries, it is not likely that there will be much additional pruning so tax increases must be made in order to balance or nearly balance the national budget.

Under the American system of government it is much more difficult to estimate what is likely to be done than under a British administration. Where the cabinet is responsible for legislation it is pretty sure that the announcement of a leader means what it says. If he says something will be done, it means that he knows he has the backing to carry it through. In the States nobody seems to know what is going to happen.

JOSEPH STALIN

A photographer who recently took the picture of Joseph Stalin, head of the Union of Soviet Republics, usually known as Russia, says of the dictator:

"Taking him by and large, I'd put Stalin at the top of the list of all the thousands of humans I have photographed as an example of strength of will, character and that rarest of all qualities—the capacity for objective self-sacrifice. His body looks as if it would serve his purpose for another 30 years. And yet he would wear it out in the next 10 if he decided the next 10 were the most crucial in the development of his plans."

to European countries, while on the whole of the North and South American continents, Chile alone has embarked upon a compulsory scheme. In the United States, numerous commissions have been appointed by various states for the investigation of social insurance and, while individual reports strong favor the scheme, it has not as yet been entertained by either the state assemblies or the federal Congress.

Maternity Benefits

"A word as to the scope of health insurance, and the success which has attended it, might not be amiss before we leave consideration of the world situation. There are few countries which deal with sickness insurance and maternity benefits alone; most of the schemes embrace, as a national insurance whole, some such additional features as old age pensions, unemployment insurance, funeral, family and various other benefits. Maternity benefit, however, is a concomitant feature of all countries having compulsory sickness insurance, such benefits being either included in a general sickness insurance scheme or specially provided for as a separate institution. In most countries, also, the family is taken care of as well as the breadwinner.

"Generally speaking, the various compulsory health insurance schemes are operated satisfactorily and with great benefit to the population.

"No legislation as yet exists in Canada establishing compulsory sickness insurance, except with respect to certain occupational diseases for which compensation is granted under workmen's compensation laws of the several provinces. Voluntary sickness insurance schemes have been developed throughout Canada to a considerable extent, however, by insurance companies, fraternal societies, trade unions and industrial and commercial organizations.

"Before taking up the local situation perhaps a word as to the legal status of the question is in order. Undoubtedly, both practically and morally health insurance legislation should be national but, unfortunately, through the mandatory terms of the British North America Act, jurisdiction is placed with the provinces in all matters of health and kindred subjects. In the opinion of the deputy minister of justice, however, there is nothing to prevent the Dominion government from contributing to any scheme elaborated by the provinces.

"First, then, is a state health insurance law required in British Columbia? It would seem hardly necessary to dwell at any length on this question. A little thought on the state of affairs right here in Prince Rupert will convince the most sceptical that there is a dire need of some form of relief to the small wage earner when faced by illness. The problem of medical aid is serious enough in the city where all modern equipment necessary for present day treatment of the sick is available, but the problem is inevitably aggravated in a new country where sparsely settled districts present long distances as added impediment to supplying medical aid.

Compulsory Health Insurance
"Admitting the need for some form of assistance, will compulsory health insurance fill the bill? I think we can safely say it will for several reasons:

"First—At present the man of small means, when taken ill, pro-crastinates in calling in a medical man, with the result that the seriousness of his disease is aggravated, and in some cases a fatal termination results where early treatment would have saved life. Under the operation of a scheme where no bill for medical attention faces the patient there will be no tendency to procrastinate.

"Second—Such a scheme would make possible the practice of a periodic medical examination, and the possibility through this medium of preventing the development of disease.

"Third—The removal of the mental worry which is caused by the contemplation of the impending bills will be removed and recovery from illness will be more rapid.

"Fourth—A properly organized plan of compulsory insurance provides the only reliable means of effectually preventing an epidemic.

"These are the four principle benefits to be derived from such a scheme, but there are many others, not the least of which is the financial assistance accruing to our hospitals which will be referred to later.

How Much Will It Cost?

"Secondly, how much will this insurance scheme cost? To arrive at the cost we must consider several things:

"One is the classes of persons to be served.

"There are, of course, both extremes of viewpoint here. Some would urge that it be confined to the poor only, others that everyone should be included. There are also those who think that a scheme should embrace the manual workers and also any who wish to enter voluntarily. To make a health insurance scheme sound, however, it should be confined to compulsory insurance for those classes where the contribution can be collected with certainty. If you include people, payment of whose contribution would be delayed or possibly not collected at all, you will jeopardize the success of the whole scheme. At the same time it is certainly desirable that people in the position of farmers, small shopkeepers, handy workmen, etc., should have the advantages of this social insurance, and doubtless when the scheme has been got under way, some solution to the difficulty will be found. Regarding voluntary contributors, during the early life of the scheme, they would also prove disastrous. This for two reasons: One, the absence of an employer and therefore of any machinery to collect the contribution. Two, the likelihood of the volunteer dropping out after a lengthy illness, and so putting the weight of expense on the compulsory member.

"It would seem therefore that the compulsory features should embrace every regularly employed person who is in receipt of an income only beyond which the burden of sickness costs can be expected to be borne without discomfiture. The Royal Commission after due thought have recommended that the income be set at $2400, believing that below this amount the extra costs of sickness seriously pinch upon the yearly budget. Finally it is quite obviously desirable that not only the wage earner but also his dependents should receive the insurance.

"Since the benefits to be received will be the same to all contributors, it would seem only fair that all should contribute alike. Therefore a flat rate of contribution would seem more equitable than a sliding scale according to income.

"There is no doubt that if the finances could stand it a cash benefit during the period of illness is a legitimate aim. In the case of single men the need for a cash benefit is not so great, but it is certainly desirable that, where the wage earner is ill, some cash should be coming in to care for the needs of the family. On the other hand the primary consideration is medical and hospital care. Strictly speaking, a cash benefit is not sickness insurance, but a form of unemployment insurance and in periods of unemployment the temptation to remain ill would be very great. In maternity cases, however, this objection does not apply as it would be difficult to imagine this being used to prolong cash benefits during periods of depression. During this trying time in a woman's life, it is particularly desirable that she have a little extra cash to better provide the comforts of life, so necessary at this time to preserve the health of both mother and child.

"To recapitulate, benefits in kind are best calculated to further the welfare of insured persons and therefore hospitalization and medical care are entitled to first consideration. As soon as finances permit, cash benefits should be added particularly maternity benefits.

No Taxation Increase

"In closing let me emphasize that the introduction of such a scheme of health insurance will not mean an increase in taxation. Take the case of the hospitals. If their bills are met as they would be under this scheme, the present annual deficit would be practically eliminated and the large provincial grants would become unnecessary. This would result in a saving to the province of approximately $1,415,000. Since part of the state contribution will undoubtedly be borne by the federal government, it can readily be seen that the present hospital grants will more than meet the state contribution, even under the most expensive scheme, and incidentally the pressing problem of hospital finances will be solved."

Remarkable Discovery By Canadian Doctor

IT is now recalled that a brilliant Canadian physician, M.D., M.C., L.R.C.S., Edinburgh, licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh, and post graduate of famous European hospitals, experimented for fifteen years to find a medicine which would act on the digestive and eliminative organs at once. The successful result he named Fruit-a-tives.

After a further period of use in private practice, Fruit-a-tives was made available to the public. It is a complete medicine, acting on five vital organs and will rid you of constipation, headaches, biliousness, indigestion. You can use it with confidence also for rheumatism or other uric acid diseases. 25c and 50c. Sold by all druggists.

"The Miracle Man" Here Featuring Sylvia Sidney, Chester Morris, Hobart Bosworth and Others

Boasting one of the most distinguished all-star casts of the current season in talking pictures, "The Miracle Man," classic American play, will be offered as the week-end feature on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here. Sylvia Sidney and Chester Morris play the leading romantic roles in this picture, the former as the "girl friend and the later as a dapper young confidence crook. Hobart Bosworth plays the central role as a faith-healer patriarch. John Wray plays the part of a fake paralytic. Others who are prominently cast include Irving Pichel, Robert Coogan, Boris Karloff.

The story deals with the reformation of a gang of crooks by a faith-healer known as the Patriarch in the vicinity where he lives. Chester Morris plans to exploit the Patriarch for the benefit of the gang. The plans work admirably but with some unexpected results. The anti-climax of the picture is impressive and touching.

"The Miracle Man" was first published as a novel and later became a play and silent movie. Moving picture fans may recall Betty Compson, Thomas Meighan and Lon Chaney played the leading parts in the old silent picture.

June 3, 1912 In addition to the post of harbor master which he has held for some time, Capt. Edward McCoskrie has received notice of his appointment as port warden and shipping master. He will make his headquarters in the new Federal Block on Third Avenue.

The line having been approved by A. G. Kerr of the Board of Railway Commissioners, who arrived in the city yesterday, it is expected that passenger and freight trains will soon be operating between Prince Rupert and Skeena Crossing where the big bridge is nearing completion.

The fine new steamer Princess Sophia has arrived at Victoria from the Clyde, where she was built, and will go into service on the Alaska route this summer. She may also be used on the Queen Charlotte Islands service, it is stated.

REGIMENT WINS CUP

Cinch City League Football Championship For Second Consecutive Season

Merchants Lose

Score of Game Last Night 2 to Nil—Wind Hampers Play

By defeating Merchants 2-0 in a Mobley Cup City League series game last night, Regiment clinched the League championship for the second successive season before a fair crowd of spectators which was not as large as usual, due to the wind and rainy evening.

Regiment—Smith; Hunt and Wingham; Vance, DeJong and Edgcombe; Walters, Clark, Watson (captain), Colussi and Norrington.

Merchants—Morgan; Douglas and Menzies; Gilker, MacKay and Hill; Amor, Hardy, A. Dickens (captain), H. Dickens and Wicks.

Referee—Manson.

Linesmen—Blake and Howe.

Regiment won the toss and elected to kick down hill. A treacherous cross wind was blowing. Both teams were forced to make changes from the selected elevens. Regiment was short of Thurber through illness and Redpath through injuries sustained in the last game, while Merchants could only muster ten men to start with as Fong failed to show up. They were obliged to call on Morgan to play in goal to make up the eleven and Menzies went to full back.

The opening exchanges favored Regiment, which was early in the attack but missed several golden opportunities through poor finishing on the part of the front rank. The soldiers deservedly took the lead, however, after 17 minutes play when Colussi scored a very clean goal. This player dribbled the ball close in, beating three opponents in clever style before scoring from close range which gave Morgan no chance to save. This was followed shortly afterwards by a good shot by Watson which Morgan saved well. Play veered to the other end for a change and Wicks narrowly missed when well placed. Play was quickly transferred to the other end and Walters put in a long shot which was followed up by Norrington who almost scored when he got through but Morgan cleared. The same two players for the Regiment were involved in another attack but Douglas cleared at the expense of a corner which was unproductive. Wicks got away for the Merchants but his parting effort was weak. Back to the other end came the Greens and H. Dickens handled just outside the penalty area. Norrington took the free kick which kick which was well placed but Menzies headed clear. Half-time arrived with the score 1-0 in favor of the Regiment.

Second Half

Immediately on resuming the Merchants set about to get the equalizer and, for the first 15 minutes, pressed almost continuously and kept the Regiment hemmed in their own half of the field. The Merchants' forwards were always bunched together, however, and crowded one another's play. A. Dickens was always hard tried and came close on several occasions but Smith cleared his charge well. Wicks put in a beauty from a lovely pass from A. Dickens but the Regiment goal-keeper again saved. Amor had a good chance but frittered away the opportunity when well placed. A nice piece of combination on the part of the Merchants—MacKay to Dickens to Wicks—spelt danger but the wingers shot just cleared the bar. End to end play followed, each goal being visited in turn. Walters got through for the Regiment and centered to Clark, whose shot was well saved by Morgan but the ball rebounded to Norrington who had a simple task to score a second goal for the Regiment. This occurred after 30 minutes play. The Merchants tried hard to score but always found a Regiment defender in the way. Wicks and A. Dickens especially had hard lines. Dickens put in a hot one but Smith saved well and Wicks hit the crossbar when a goal seemed certain. Colussi put in a good shot after some nice passing on the Green's right wing. The Merchants were still trying hard to score when the final whistle went.

Play Below Standard

The play was not up to the usual standard but the bad wind considerably hampered the players. The Regiment were well served by Smith in goal and DeJong and Edgcombe at halfback, while all the forwards worked hard but Colussi was outstanding. For the Merchants Wicks and A. Dickens were the pick of the forwards while George Hill and Menzies played well in defence.

SPORT CHAT

A striking picture in the London Daily Mirror of the kick which resulted in Newcastle United's hotly disputed first goal in the Cup Final throws new light on the controversy. The goal was the one by means of which Newcastle equalized with the Arsenal five minutes before half time. The picture shows that the ball was over the line when the kick was taken. Another point borne out by the photograph is that the referee and both the linesmen were down the field and beyond the penalty area at the time. It can also be seen that each had a player between him and the man who was taking the kick; thus it is possible that in each case the line of vision was interrupted.

This, as the Mirror sporting editor points out, will renew the demand for goal judges which has been voiced for many years. It would be the duty of such judges to stay always in line with the goal and so obtain a clear view of any kick which it might be thought had been taken over the line. Below are the views of well known football authorities on the subject.

David Jack (Arsenal): "For years it has been my idea that we should have goal judges, and I have always said so."

A. J. Palmer (assistant secretary, Chelsea): "Several incidents which have occurred in the last few years at Chelsea persuaded me that goal judges would have been an asset. My only doubt is whether the smaller clubs could bear the cost."

Sir Frederick Wall (secretary, Football Association): "It would be confusion worse confounded. Substantially, the officials work exceedingly well. Occasionally a mistake may have been made or some people think so."

DOES YOUR BUSINESS NEED A DOCTOR?

Now, Mr. Businessman, have you ever tried to diagnose the reason for that sudden drop in profit over the figures of "last month?" If the temperature of your business alarms you there is no need for you to lose any sleep—the remedy is simple.

ADVERTISE

"Ah!" you say, "But that's all very well. I'm only a small man and can't afford it." That's the reason the small man remains a small man. The big men in business today did not become big by hiding their light under a bushel, they advertised, and Advertiser, and ADVERTISED. Advertising is as necessary to a "sick" business as the doctor's services are to a sick person. And it will find the money to pay its own bills, if done judiciously, from the increased volume of increased profits. Start with a small appropriation

FOUGHT TO HOLD FLAG

Union Jack Figured Prominently During Recent Newfoundland Riots

Torn To Shreds When Police Bear Staff Away—Sidelights on Disorders

HALIFAX, June 2—Under the reproving stare of a British light cruiser anchored in Saint John's Harbor, Newfoundland has been endeavoring to disentangle her political structure following recent riots.

Newspapers and liner passengers arriving at Halifax have shed new light on the recent disorders, in the course of which an unruly mob wrecked the Colonial Building, broke up a session of the legislature and made Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires almost a refugee for several days.

The Union Jack figured prominently during the uprising of April 5, according to the Evening Telegram and the Daily News, both published in Saint John's.

Headed by a flag-bearer and the Guards' band, a citizens' committee marched toward the Colonial Building to present to the legislature a resolution calling for a "proper investigation" of charges made by Hon. Peter Cashin against the prime minister. In response to a published notice thousands of citizens joined the parade until the crowd swelled to nearly ten thousand. Shops and business establishments were closed and all eyes were turned toward the legislature.

The committee was admitted to the assembly and the crowd waited. There was delay as the members discussed a motion of Sir Richard to have the petition received and turned over to a committee of five to be named by the speaker. The crowd became fidgety, and some youths amused themselves by throwing stones at the windows. Police got busy and used their batons on the unruly ones. An uproar ensued. While there was still argument within and battle without, the delegation reappeared and attempted to re-form the parade and return to the theatre whence it had come.

Battled For Flag

Again the flag-bearer and the band led off, followed by the committee and a section of the crowd of citizens. But there was another section keen for staying and continuing the battle, and they would not fight under anything less than the Union Jack. So they promptly seized the flag and bore it back toward the ward zone. The law-abiding citizens wanted to march under the Union Jack, however, so they put up a struggle for repossession. The police joined in, and it was a three-cornered brawl. By the time the unruly ones reached the building and were using the staff to batter in the door, the flag was in shreds. Finally the police won that section of the battle, captured the torn flag and carried it to the safety of the assembly.

The next scene is described like this in The Daily News: "Soon there was a breach in the doors and as men started to force their way in, the police inside, some twenty or more with batons drawn, hit every head as it appeared. Then police, under orders, charged down the steps, driving bystanders before them, many of them innocent spectators. This seemed to get the crowd going. Soon there was turmoil and the youths present got out of hand and pelted stones and other missiles through the window. The mounted police, because of the horses and their efforts to keep order, caused further trouble. Constable Lake, who was mounted on one of the horses, was forcibly dragged off the horse and when on the ground was hit with pickets and stones. Some of the spectators interfered, and he was lifted off the ground and put in a motor and taken to the general hospital. Constable Layman and a civilian named Healey are also in the general hospital. At an early hour this morning the hospital stated that Constables Lake and Layman were suffering from scalp wounds and Mr. Healey from an injured foot. None of these men are seriously injured."

After this scuffle, it seems, the police charged the throng and struck right and left with their bat-tons. A short time later a nearby druggist was treating 15 injured.

Police Held Prisoners

Then the demonstrators gained the upper hand and drove the police into the building, where they kept them prisoners until late that night. Every window in the building had been smashed. Youths took possession of the first floor and wrecked every room. A piano was dragged out to a nearby park, used for a few tunes of jazz, and destroyed. The piano was owned by Miss Morris, librarian, whose furniture, private papers and books were thrown out and destroyed.

Two deliberate attempts were made to set the building on fire, but each time the flames were stamped out by indignant citizens who declined to participate in the disorders.

Some boisterous individuals had been shouting continuously for "Squires," threatening to "throw him in the harbor." But the prime minister and Charles H. Hutchings, inspector general of police, did not venture out for several hours. Lady Squires, only woman member of the legislature, had been escorted through the crowd by L. E. Emerson. She had a bandage around her head and it was said she had been struck by a missile that broke a window.

The prime minister's escape, shortly before eight o'clock, was facilitated by Rev. W. E. Godfrey, sponsor of the resolution that caused all the excitement, Rev. Father Pippy and Rev. C. H. Johnson, who entered the building with about 40 citizens and escorted Sir Richard to a nearby dwelling, from which he fled through the back door. A mob of the mob attempted to cut off his escape but they were delayed by the preachers, who pleaded with them several times.

Stores Were Looted

Further damage was done at the Colonial Building that night, and several stores were looted. The next day a crowd of about 250 paraded through the streets and attempted to break into the central liquor store. Here they were addressed by Hon. Peter Cashin, who had laid the serious charges against the prime minister after resigning his portfolio of finance and customs. Mr. Cashin persuaded them to return to their homes. A few minor breaks have occurred since, but no recurrence of violent disorders is expected. Two thousand war veterans and other citizens have been enrolled to augment the police force, if necessary, and HMS, Dragon, a light cruiser of the Royal Navy, carrying 400 British tars, was at anchor in the harbor.

The prime minister, who spent some time at Harbor Grace following the disorders, has returned to Saint John's and is busy disentangling the political affairs of the country. Governor Sir John Middleton has promised to appoint a royal commission to investigate the disturbances.
