STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Government Tells Why Educational Expenditures Must Be Curtailed

VICTORIA, Jan. 21.—A statement issued today shows in detail the amount of money estimated to pass through the Education Department during the year ending March 31, 1932.

This amount is looked upon by many people of the province as being a government expenditure and, as such, excessive.

On examination it will be seen that very little of it is government expenditure in the proper sense, as 96 out of every $100 is used in providing cash grants to educational institutions, and in providing educational services that the people would otherwise have to do without or provide for themselves.

If this department is to reduce its expenditure to any appreciable amount, the educational services such as correspondence instruction to children in remote parts of the province, industrial education (such as manual training and home economics), training of teachers, and the maintenance of the school for the blind must be curtailed.

In addition, the cash grants to municipalities, rural school districts, the university, etc., must be curtailed.

Letters have been sent out to the municipal school boards, notifying them of the reduction of grants that must be made in order to reduce the expenditure of the department.

Present grants to the rural school districts will be continued to the end of June, as these districts have already made provision for their finances to that date.

During the coming session the amount of reduction in grants will be definitely decided upon, so that the rural boards will know before the annual meeting in July exactly what government assistance they will receive.

Total estimates of the department for the year are placed at $4,737,110.

DAILY EDITION  Thursday, Jan. 21, 1932

DISTINCTLY BETTER

Roger Babson, the well known economist, says that 1932 will be distinctly better than 1931. In making that statement he is guided by a number of indications, the chief of which is the law of action and reaction. According to him, the higher and the longer the inflation, the lower and longer the depression. That is what misled a good many eminent financiers and economists who predicted a more speedy return to better conditions. He said they based their estimates on previous periods of depression which followed less marked periods of inflation.

Just as the pendulum swings back farther it is forced forward farther, so this depression followed a period of tremendous inflation continued over a longer period than usual. Now the pendulum has reached the end of its backward swing and is already moving forward as shown in improved conditions in the east and in Britain. Gradually from now on we shall find improvement.

FISH AS AN EXAMPLE

Take the fishing industry as an example. There has been over-production and last spring the cold storage plants were cluttered up with unsold frozen stock while the canned goods of the previous year were also unsold. This year the fish is pretty well cleared out. Prices are low but the fish is gone and there is room for the new catch. While the low prices of foodstuffs generally will work against any high prices, it is expected that there will be a sale for all the catch at a price that may prove remunerative to the fishermen.

FISHING HAS COMMENCED

Fishing has commenced. Herring are already coming in and a few spring salmon are being taken and sold in the city. Very soon we shall see the halibut boats going out to the banks and bringing in their catches. Later hundreds of salmon trollers will be going out to the various points of vantage and this will relieve the employment situation to a very considerable extent.

The mill will have to cut boxes and men will be cutting logs in the woods. There will be some demand for lumber and poles and step by step we shall find the present stagnation change to a period of activity. Each day that passes brings us nearer to the time when there will be an improvement.

FUND CREATED

A very small dispatch to the Vancouver Province from Victoria states that the provincial government has created a special fund of two million dollars by special warrant with which to finance unemployment disbursements to municipalities. Federal contributions to unemployment relief will be paid into this fund as they are received.

Two million dollars is a great deal of money to appropriate by special warrant without sanction of the legislature, but the government is fully justified in doing so at a time like this. Now that the fund has been created, it will be in order to pay out some of the checks.

HOW IS IT DONE?

A good many people will be inquiring how this "creating a fund" is brought about. Doubtless it is setting apart money, but where does it come from? Who has been putting it up? It is hardly likely that it comes from any recently collected taxes. It could not well be from the federal government, for it could hardly be described as created, if it came from them. The inference is that the banks have loosened up a little and advanced the two million more with the understanding that they will get it back from the taxes or from the sale of bonds whenever such a sale can be made.

LIFE OF REV. GEO. EDGAR

Details of Death of Veteran Missionary Among Coast Natives

KLEMTU, Jan. 21.—In September last Mrs. Jones, wife of the postmaster of Klemtu Cannery, presented the late Rev. George Edgar with a fine picture of the Savior as a token of her appreciation of what he was doing, not only in the village but what he had accomplished in coast villages. He decided to hang the picture in the church but, thinking of what would meet his Savior's eyes if he looked down at the church, he decided it would look very shabby to His eyes. So he bought paint and varnish and with his own hands stained and varnished the pews and pulpit. It was a strenuous task at his age in addition to his other duties but, as day by day it grew to look so much better, he felt his Savior's smile of approval and only wished he were able to do the walls also. He finished his task the third week of October and the following Sabbath preached a very impressive sermon on what man owed to God.

During the first week of November he seemed to be trying to rise above the many troubles which were pressing on him and on the morning of November 7 he seemed to have succeeded. Before leaving the house to accompany Mr. Fougner to the cannery he said: "I believe things are going to improve and we all will be happier than we have been for some months." As he followed Mr. Fougner he turned back three times smiling and waving his hand. Along the way he met two people to whom he stopped and spoke words of comfort in their trouble. He also spoke to several little children.

About half way to the cannery he slipped but caught hold of the railing and then went on without complaining of not feeling well. As he spoke from the wharf to Mr. Fougner in his boat below he seemed in an unusually happy frame of mind. But on entering the store and placing his mail on the counter, he turned to his grandson, Edgar Preston, and let him know he was not feeling comfortable. He staggered against him, Andrew Robinson went to Edgar's assistance and they lowered him to the floor. Mr. Marshall, acting postmaster in

Mr. Jones' absence, then went to him and Andrew and he carried Mr. Edgar to a bed in the manager's room but all efforts to bring him to consciousness failed and in a few minutes his spirit passed to be with the Savior he had so dearly loved and faithfully served.

When the word was brought over to the home none could believe it and, even when his body arrived, it seemed impossible that the one who had left about an hour previous in a condition which seemed good for service for years could really have left for the other world.

Funeral Service

Dr. Darby and Mr. Gibson, accompanied by their friends, arrived and a service was held in the church at which both of these workers spoke many words of appreciation of the work and service of the departed. As the natives had decided to enter the body in the cement tomb which was not quite ready it was decided to leave the body in the church surrounded by many wreaths sent by sorrowing friends until Thursday when it was expected Rev. P. Kelly of Bella Coola would be present to take the burial service. But when it began to get late Thursday the service was taken by Heber Clifton and son, Louis. A very impressive service was held at the grave attended by every one from the cannery and village and natives from both up and down the coast. The final burying from sight was heart-breaking and there was not a dry eye present.

Towards evening Rev. P. Kelly arrived and spoke words of comfort to all. He also encouraged those left to take up the work laid down by Mr. Edgar and do it faithfully in the hope of meeting him again in that home he had entered to hear the words, "well done." He said if he were asked for a text for Mr. Edgar it would be: "I have finished my course. I have kept my faith."

The morning on which he died Mr. Edgar seemed to be very happy and before leaving the house to accompany Mr. Fougner, the Indian Agent, he sang "The Judgment Day Is Coming." Short prayer followed: "Oh Lord, when I reach the end of my journey do not let me suffer. But take me home in peace."

About an hour later his spirit passed.

LOADINGS OF GRAIN

Movement in 1931 Generally Was Heavier Than in 1930 WINNIPEG, Jan. 20.—Grain loadings on the Canadian National Railways during 1931, in comparison with the 1930 performance, showed an increase in every month except July, August and September. A. A. Tisdale, general manager, announces here. For the year there is an increase of 3,811 cars with 108,969 cars handled in 1931 compared with 105,170 cars handled during 1930. When the 1931 crop began to move, it made rapid headway and, in October, 21,533 cars were loaded as compared with the 12,847 cars loaded in October, 1930. November too, showed a splendid increase of almost 3,000 cars. At the year-end, there were 35,392,000 bushels in storage at country points along the Canadian National lines as compared with 31,982,000 bushels the previous year. Storage at the Canadian Lakehead was 47,970,000 bushels in elevators accessible to the Canadian National Railways, while, in the previous year, the figure was 49,257,000 bushels. Arrivals at the Lakehead totalled 80,889 cars as against 80,052 cars in 1930 and the unloadings amounted to 83,472 cars and 81,305 cars respectively. The movement of grain to the Pacific Coast was particularly good in 1931. A total of 22,369 cars were delivered in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria in comparison to the 18,015 cars delivered during the previous twelve months. At Prince Rupert arrivals were 938 cars in 1931 and 118 cars in 1930. Although there was no elevator construction at Lakehead or tide-water terminals during the year, 27 additional elevators were built at country points on new branch lines of the Canadian National Railways. Their construction increased the storage capacity of country elevators by 874,000 bushels and raised the total storage capacity of country elevators to 88,335,000 bushels. A total of 4,853 cars of grain were delivered to the Canadian National Railways during the year as compared to the 3,493 cars delivered during 1930. A healthy increase in the percentage of grain handling is indicated in a statement of government grain inspections, which shows that the Canadian National Railways handled 53.4% of the cars of prairie grain shipped in 1931.

Pedagogical Problems Discussed Before Parent-Teachers' Association Officers Elected Mrs. Cox Chosen President in Succession to Mrs. Blance There was an excellent attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association last evening in the Booth Memorial School to hear T. W. Hall, inspector of schools. Mr. Hall spoke on some of the problems that confront teachers and parents. He had seen many proofs of the spirit of co-operation that already exists between these in Prince Rupert as he had inspected various schools. The teaching he had found to be efficient, kindly and sympathetic. Recalling his experiences in Victoria, the Peace River district and the Cariboo-Chilcotin district, Mr. Hall stated that he had found no where more effective and up-to-date methods of teaching, more responsive children or parents more desirous of doing their share in giving their children all the advantages that modern education gives and that modern civilization demands. Mr. Hall asked the audience to remember that, as they found out in their only family circles no two children were alike, the same was (Continued on Page Four)

SPORT NOTES

Frank Carroll, the Toronto hockey mentor, has the laugh on Col. John Hammond, president of the New York Ranger hockey club of National League and the Springfield Indians of the Canadian-American loop. Recently the Indians were in bad shape. Goal-keeper Joe Moore was on the injured list. The team was not doing well anyway and they were scheduled to meet the Philadelphia Arrows, who had never been beaten on home ice this season. Hammond was worried. He ordered scouts to sign up any amateur that looked good enough, but they had no luck. Then the man who is called the "Father of Hockey" in New York, had an idea. He penned this telegram to Carroll:

"You're up against it. Get in there and fight. Here's your big opportunity to show your stuff. I know your team is crippled and you're playing a team undefeated on its own rink. But get in there and fight! Tell every man on the squad that I'm pulling for him, heart and soul, and that I expect each one to do even better than his best. Fight until you drop!" Anxiously Hammond awaited reports from the battle-front. Then came the report. The colonel could hardly believe his eyes. Springfield had won. With a trainer in the goal and everybody else crippled. They actually had won. He grabbed the telephone. He got Carroll on long distance. "That was great. Simply great!" he exclaimed excitedly. "I knew you could do it. I knew the boys would fight for me! I guess that telegram did the trick all right, eh?" Then came the sudden disillusioning. "What telegram?" asked Carroll. "I didn't get any telegram."

To Defend His Title

Max Schmeling, German heavy weight champion, in two poses.

Inspector Is Heard

...true only to a much larger extent in the classroom of thirty-five to forty children. Each pupil had a different character and a different method of approach was necessary. Heredity was important and this was an uncontrollable factor. Environment was equally important but this factor was controllable. The child's playmates, its toys, the language it heard at home and outside, the books it read, the various social contacts, all influenced the child.

Passing over the agreed-upon essentials that every curriculum contained, Mr. Hall mentioned some that might not be considered so important but which had a greater effect even on the later life of the child. Lives were not wrecked during school hours, careers were not ruined during working hours. It was in the moments of leisure that the seeds of ruin might be sown and education must provide material for the use and guidance and even salvation of the people in their leisure time. With the shortening of hours of labor, this question of utilizing leisure became a more pressing problem. Music, painting and drawing, and reading were some of the subjects begun in school that would later enable the children to use their leisure to advantage. The contacts made by meeting people interested in similar subjects were an incalculable advantage.

Finally Mr. Hall emphasized the need for the children to grow up into decent, God-fearing citizens, able and ready to say that they were citizens of no mean country. The extensive physical resources were often enough emphasized. But the country had a glorious tradition, to which a memorable contribution had been more recently made on the battlefields of France and Flanders. The pupils should be so interested in their own country that they would not think of selling their inestimable birthright for the sake of gaining a few extra dollars by working in another country. And then the teacher in all humility did not forget that he "passed this way but once" and in due time would meet the great Teacher of all time. Who on hearing him say, "I too was a teacher," might give him an even warmer welcome.

On behalf of the members a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Hall by Mrs. R. Blance who presided at the meeting.

Annual Meeting

The earlier part of the meeting was the annual business session. The secretary's report revealed an increased membership during the year. A very satisfactory financial report showed a credit balance after the sum of $150 had been donated to the various schools for sports equipment. This was greatly appreciated by the schools as no contribution is made towards sports equipment by the city Board of Trustees.

The loss sustained by the Association in the death of Mrs. Dalby who had been a loyal supporter, a vice-president and more recently membership convener for the Booth School, was referred to, a letter of condolence having been already sent.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. S. V. Cox.
 First Vice-President—Mrs. J. D. Thurber.
 Second Vice-President—Mrs. H. B. Eastman.
 Secretary—W. W. C. O'Neill.
 Treasurer—Miss S. A. Mills.
 Program Convener—Mrs. J. E. Boddie.

Membership Conceners—Borden Street School, Mrs. E. B. Baker; Booth Memorial School, Mr. George King Edward High School, D. H. Hartness.

Social conveners—Borden Street School—Mrs. J. Teng; Booth Memorial School, Mrs. L. Smith and Mrs. E. B. Baker.

Press Correspondents—Messrs. W. W. C. O'Neill and J. S. Wilson. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the members of the retiring executive, special mention being made of the progress made during the last two years the period for which Mrs. R. Blance had been an energetic and successful president.

ROOSTERS WON OUT

Carol Singers at Skidegate Abortive Recital Outside of Harry Beaven's House

SKIDEGATE, Jan. 21.—Christmas Eve, after a quiet reunion among themselves, a group of the boys around here decided to sing a few carols outside of Harry Beaven's house. It had been many long years since any of the boys had tried their voices on Christmas carols. Most of them had forgotten the words and a good many of the tunes.

After taking a little Dutch courage, our heroes found their way to the genial storekeeper's house. After a good deal of trouble, the choir master got his choir together and the boys began to sing.

Now Beaven keeps a whole kitchen-house full of prize roosters. When the roosters heard the singers struggling through the carols, they all commenced to crow at once. The awful pandemonium caused the whole neighborhood to awake from its slumbers.

The singing stopped and the choir master was heard to remark "Boys, them d---d roosters is us beat," as the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina and back they went to their rendezvous.

Financial Independence for Women!

CHEQUES were mailed to many women in 1931 by this Company. These cheques were the proceeds of matured endowment policies—money saved through the yearly premiums, increased very considerably by dividends.

If they had died at any time while the policies were in force the principal sum, plus dividends payable, would have been paid immediately to their beneficiaries.

If you wish to know the annual deposit required for a Pension or Endowment Bond for yourself to start you on the road to independence, send the coupon below to our Head Office.

A few interesting examples:

A Furrier paid the first premium on policy No. 193,735, principal $2,000, at age 43. At age 53 a cheque for $2,000 plus dividends $457.24, was mailed to her.

A Housewife age 27 paid the first annual premium on policy No. 119,293, principal $2,000. At age 42 she received a Mutual Life cheque for $2,000 plus $592.23 dividends.

A Teacher at age 25 took out policy No. 84,447 for $1,000. At age 45 she received a Mutual Life cheque for $1,395.32—a substantial amount saved, plus the protection of her dependents for twenty years.

Let the Strength of the Mutual be your Protection!

It's got to be good to be ADVERTISED

READ THE GROCERY ADS TODAY

All the king's horses . . . and all the king's men can't make a success out of a bad product. No amount of advertising will create a market for it. The more it's advertised, the more its defects become known.

A Good Product Well Advertised

grows as swiftly and naturally as a healthy plant. People try it and like it. They tell others. They like it. Soon that product is found everywhere . . . and its name, spread abroad by advertising, is on every tongue.

When you see something widely and consistently advertised, you can be pretty sure it's well worth having. If it weren't . . . if it didn't represent an honest and worthy value . . . the maker couldn't afford to advertise it.

Look Over the Advertisements in this Paper

Some of these names you know. Others, perhaps, are newcomers, all are entitled to your trust . . . all are here because they have potential friends bringing some new comfort or convenience. But something real to contribute to your advantage . . . your service . . . your happiness.
