Over Eighty Thousand Books Circulated Last Year Through Prince Rupert Public Library

At the annual meeting of the Prince Rupert Library Board last night the secretary, Thomas B. Black, reported that slightly over eighty thousand volumes had been circulated by the library during the year, an increase of almost six thousand over the previous year. The library now caters to 3,695 citizens who are listed as borrowers. While the number of books has, during the year, been increased by only 345, there is a collection of 8,503 available to the public. In part the report

President Hoover Makes Suggestions With View to Controlling Aggressive Warfare

SHIPMENT

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 11: -In a special message delivered to Congress yesterday, President Herbert Hoover offered two suggestions whereby, by controlling shipment of arms, wars of aggression might be prevented and SPAIN HAS undeclared warfare discouraged. While he did not mention these conflicts specifically, the chief executive is believed to have had definitely in mind the present hostilities between Bolivia and Paraguay in South America and the Sino-Japanese crisis which has spread from Manchuria to Mongolia.

President Hoover suggested, first, that Congress ratify the Geneva agreement regarding the shipment of munitions or, second, that the president be given power to forbid the export of arms in such cases as seem advisable.

OBJECTS OF EDUCATIO

thought-provoking address to Prince Rupert Teachers' Association at the regular monthly meeting last evening in the Booth Memorial School, presided over by J. S. Wilson.

Mr. O'Neill emphazied at the outset the tremendous importance of the fundamental subjectsspelling, reading, writing, arithmetic and the other subjects of the curriculum of the schools. Education was life, mental, moral and physical. It meant the growth and development of mental and moral strength to the end that the common welfare of humanity might be happier After all there could be no better definition of the aim of education than that given by the greatest Teacher of all Who said: I am come that ye might have life and that ye might have it more abundantly." The teacher, animated by this aim and using the subjects as a means to arrive at this objective, would enter the classroom with a rich incentive and make a definite contribution to the children from day to day and through them to the future leaders of the country.

More specific aims forming part of this general aim would be considered under six headings-men must always care for their bodies. rear their children, secure the economic necessities, organize for civic action, engage in recreation and satisfy their religious cravings. Education must include the work of all agencies which further health, promote a wholesome family life, devote a profitable economic life, advance a worthy civic life, enrich the recreational life and foster the religious and moral

The speaker then enlarged on how these might be attained and the particular contributions that might be made through the school and the subjects, curricular and extra-curricular. The value of companionship, the use of arithmetic towards enabling the family to budget according to its resources, the pitfalls of the credit system and speculation, the appreciation of art, the history of peoples and their lives, interior and exterior improvement towards making the home attractive and binding were some of the aspects considered. The innumerable ways in which a study of literature contributed towards the aims of education that would enable people to enjoy their leisure periods, the need for the development of forward-looking minds and the substitution of avocations for the so many ways in which people "kill time" when they have leisure were dealt with.

Social Regeneration

Taking as one specific illustration, the problem of social regenration and the elimination of crime, Mr. O'Neill discussed the biological method, that is the ellmination through a system of selective breeding of all who show any criminal tendencies; secondly, Moved to Anyox the method of improving social and economic conditions by means of legislation and administration, and, thirdly, the careful training of each new individual in society as he came on the stage of life. The last would be the only way to > secure that conduct in industria and social life which would place the common welfare of humanity first and provide an abundant social and economic life for all.

> A very hearty vote of thanks was enthusiastically accorded Mr. O'-Neill for his very able paper.

- Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keen the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take some Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve three Aspirin tablets in a quarter glassful of water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and usually reduces the inflammation.

If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

The prescription your doctor writes for you is your ticket to health. It should be filled with fresh, full strength drugs by pharmacists who know their profession. That is the reason, nine times out of ten, your doctor will advise you to come here with prescriptions.

Was So Short of Breath Could Not Lie Down to Sleep

Mrs. P. J. Chernoff, Shoreacres, B.C., writes :-"I had been so troubled with shortness of breath I could not lie down to sleep.

I couldn't do any hard work, or climb the stairs, and had nervous and smothering feelings. and became very weak.

I tried all kinds of medicine, but could get no relief until after I had taken three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and since then I have felt better in every way."
