Feathered Stowaway

A pigeon that found itself "in the soup" was taken care of by a butcher, but will never end up in a pie, made the front page a few days ago when the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain" arrived at Quebec from Southampton with a homing pigeon on the list as a stowaway. The pigeon, eyeing the camera with a queralous expression, is seen above in the hands of J. Gibson, Chief Butcher of the Empress liner in whose keeping all travelling pets are placed. Battered by storms after fighting heavy head winds for a number of hours the pigeon, which had been released some 250 miles west of Land's End in fog from the steam trawler "Ocean Lux", fluttered to rest on the tennis deck of the Empress of Britain. It carried a message showing time and place of release, and date of its last feeding. On the return of the big liner to England next week the feathered stowayay, after its two way crossing of the Atlantic will be thrown into the air to find its way home, with a message from Capt. Latta tied to its leg, in authentication of the strange story it will have to tell.
