RECIPROCITY VOTE IN THE SENATE TOMORROW

United States Houses Fixes the Date For the Final Vote On the Great International Question—Vote is Certain to be in Favor of the Measure

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Washington, July 21.—It has been decided that the United States Senate will pass the final vote on the reciprocity question tomorrow, July 22nd, on the wool tariff revision bill July 27, on the list bill August 1, congressional reapportionment bill August 10, and the legislative day of August 11 and will adjourn, according to general understanding quickly thereafter. This voting program was decided upon after prolonged conference today.

President Taft was quickly acquainted with the Senate's action and expressed his gratification over the precedence given the reciprocity bill in the program. The understanding forecasts the end of a long struggle in the Senate over the reciprocity and the Democratic tariff measures.

The Bristow amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill, proposing a reduction of the sugar tariff and the abolishment of the "Dutch Standard" basis of assessing tariff on imported sugar was defeated this afternoon 38 to 8.

With the fate of the reciprocity bill pre-determined in favor of the measure, senators already are speculating on the possible result of the promised rates on the two tariff bills, wool and the free list, included in today's agreement.

ORDS PASS THIRD READING OF THE PEERS VETO BILL

Revolt of Insurgent Peers Failed to Materialize—No Division Was Taken and Motion to Demand a Vote Got no Seconder—Don't Want Liberal Peers

(Canadian Press Despatch)
London, July 21.—The House of Lords last night passed the third reading of the House of Lords Bill, curtailing the powers of the House of Lords. The bill passed after a three hour debate.

The threatened revolt of insurgent peers failed to materialize. Lord Stanmore raised a motion demanding a vote, but he failed to get a seconder. It is supposed that the threat to create a large number of Liberal peers—and peers—made the Lords decide to pass the veto bill, without the possibility of making the individual members declare themselves.

HOSPITAL TEA WAS A SUCCESS

Pretty and Pleasing Afternoon Tea Party was Well Attended

With dainty flowers, shining silver, snow white linen and sparkling china—not to mention the good things to eat, nor the charming ladies who for the occasion served as waitresses—the hall of the Knights of Pythias was transformed yesterday into the pleasantest kind of tea room imaginable. It was all done by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Hospital Board as a means to help along the good work of providing funds for the hospital, and turned out to be a justifiable success.

The credit for the beautification of the room, goes chiefly to Mrs. Hilditch who had spent a lot of time to good advantage in the work. But the day's success depended upon the co-operation of a number of the ladies, including Mrs. Eggert, the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. F. G. Dawson, the secretary, and Mrs. Arnold, the treasurer, assisted by Mrs. McCaffery and Mrs. Lailey as a committee.

Among those who rendered special service were Mrs. Burritt and Mrs. Naden who poured tea at the head table, and Misses McPhail, Pinder, Grant, Holby, Ginn, Kincaid, Calkins, Curtain, Annie Brown, Vida Brown Agnes McDonald, Margaret McDonald, and Miss Keeley, who made charming waitresses.

TO HELP ALONG THE "RED DEVIL"

Two Civic Chiefs, Two Aldermen, and an Expert Engineer All Got After One Wee Worried Gang This Morning.

Fire Chief McInnis, Chief Vickers, Alderman Kerr, Alderman Hilditch, and Mr. Lucas of the City Engineer's department, were all engaged anxiously this morning trying to hurry up the station gang busy at the corner of Fulton street and Third avenue. This is an important corner for the fire department's boiled lobster colored pet "devil," and the Fire Chief was a little leery about the red rascal's chances of getting round the rough corner.

HANDCAR DEATH INQUEST HELD

Coroner and Jury View Body of Tom Yilcarka Last Night and Adjourned until Saturday

Magistrate McMullin opened an inquest last night on the body of Tom Yilcarka who was killed by the collision of a hand car with a ballast train in the darkness the other night. After viewing the body which lay at Hayner Bros' Morgue, the coroner and jury arranged an adjournment until Saturday night at 7.30 when the evidence will be gone into. The meeting will be held in the Provincial Government Court Room, as this accident occurred outside the city limits.

DUNCAN ROSS WILL RUN IF LIBERALS DEMAND IT

Though Preferring to Remain in Private Life Ex-Member For Yale-Cariboo Would Act as Standard Bearer if the Party Demands—Exclusive Interview For The Daily News

Duncan Ross leaves by tomorrow's train for his contract near Hazelton. He is accompanied by Mr. Justice Gallier of the B. C. Court of Appeals who is enjoying a short holiday in the north. Mrs. Gallier and Mrs. Ross accompanied their husbands on the steamer Prince Rupert but returned to Victoria by that steamer.

Mr. Ross was asked for a definite statement by a News representative regarding his candidature in the federal district of Comox-Atlin. "I wanted to keep out of public life," he replied, "but so many friends have urged me to run that I think I ought to definitely state my position. I believe reciprocity will benefit Comox-Atlin more than any other district in the Dominion. If an election is to be forced on that issue and the Liberals of Comox-Atlin unanimously decide, that I should be their standard bearer, I will make the fight. I would much rather remain in private life but when an election is to be fought on an issue of such importance to Canada and particularly to the West, I think it is the duty of every man to do his share in the contest.

"A convention, representative of every portion of this large constituency should be held at an early date. It is the duty of that convention to select the strongest man and when the choice is made, whether I am the candidate or not, I shall do everything in my power to demonstrate that the West is strongly in favor of freer trade relations."

OBSTRUCTION POLICY IS CONTINUED AT OTTAWA

Conservative Members Discuss the Chinese Commission Investigation Now---It is Expected That the Government Will Bring Pressure to Bear Next Week---Sir Wilfrid Announces That About Forty Will be Prosecuted in Connection With Immigration Scandals

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Ottawa, July 21.—There is no longer any doubt of the intention of the Opposition to devote themselves to a policy of obstructing the business of the country in their efforts to fight reciprocity out to the bitter end.

Bored the House
For hours last night, the House had to sit and patiently listen to J. D. Taylor of New Westminster, as he tediously reviewed the history of the Chinese Commission, and the alleged scandals on the Pacific Coast.

Was Interrupted
He was frequently interrupted by the Government members who seemed to regard his efforts as part of an Opposition plot to kill the time of the House with irrelevant discussions and speeches.

A Fight Imminent
Next week it is expected will see the commencement of Government pressure. Sir Wilfrid has given notice of morning sessions to start next Wednesday, and the old hands look to see him after a few days of obstruction throw up the cards and call for a new deal—in other words, ask for a dissolution and spring a sudden campaign with all possible speed upon the Opposition.

Replied to Taylor
In a courteous reply to Mr. Taylor, Sir Wilfrid said that Mr. Justice Murphy's report of the Chinese Commission Investigation had only reached him that morning.

May be Arrests Made
He observed that the Judge requested that the report should not be made public until action had been taken against about forty people who were implicated by his findings, as the premature publication of the report might serve as a warning to them to leave the country.

Will Lay Charges
The Prime Minister added that his intention was to take the matter up immediately with the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Trades and Commerce with a view to instituting proceedings against those indicated in the report.

HIGH COMPLIMENT GREET'S SERGEANT LEEK

Considered An Exceptionally Good Regimental Representative For Canada at the Coronation—Earl Grey's Rifles Proud of Him—Welcomed Back to Rupert

Quebec, July 12, 1911
Captain A. Stork,
Commanding Earl Grey Rifles
Prince Rupert, B. C.

Dear Sir,—I wish to take advantage of this early opportunity on our return from London at the recent Coronation ceremonies, to compliment you on the excellent representation sent from the Earl Grey Rifles. Your representative was most exemplary in every respect, and it was indeed a pleasure to be associated with such an excellent fellow and a thorough Canadian gentleman.

Very truly yours,
D. WATSON
Major Commanding "C" Rifles

in last night on the Princess May.

With Capt. Stork
Along with the Canadian Coronation contingent, Color Sergeant Leek was stationed by the new Victoria Memorial opposite Buckingham Palace, and the Canadians had a magnificent view of the procession. They also saw the Spithead Naval Review exceptionally well, remarked George Leek this morning. While in London Mr. Leek spent a day with Captain Stork and renewed his acquaintance with many old military friends. He was particularly pleased to meet his old Colonel, Lord Clydesmore, formerly Colonel Eaton.

Great Generals Inspected
The Canadian contingent was inspected by the Prince of Wales, Generals Lord Roberts, Lord Kitchener, the Duke of Connaught, and Hon. R. L. Borden. Referring to his experiences altogether, George Leek is inclined to be brief and modest. He evidently took a thoroughly whole hearted duty well as representative of our city's regiment, and incidentally saw to it that Mrs. Leek had a good look in at the celebration too. Since his arrival home, he has been greeted by hundreds of cordial friends, but this morning sees him getting down to business just as usual.

TERRIBLE TIME AT SEA SNIFF YACHT IN DISTRESS

Caught in Heavy Sea Seven Miles From Land—Doors Jammed—Cargo Jettisoned With Shovels—Commodore's Pluck in Pitiable Plight

A sad story of the sea and the perils and perplexities which beset those who navigate its oft ruffled surface has just filtered forth from waterfront sources of information. The hero of the latest marine adventure is Commodore Macfarlane of the Civic Sniff Yacht. His experience has been a thrilling one, and though he himself would be the last man to brag about or even mention it, many persons along the waterfront and in the city are giving him credit for a first rate "stay-with-it" faculty under exceptionally trying circumstances in the execution of his municipal duty.

Sniff Yacht Had Rough Time
On her last trip to the open sea, Commodore Macfarlane took charge of the sniff yacht as he has done since the institution of this latest acquisition to the Pacific Coast Fleet, and a fairly swift voyage was made to the spot chosen for dumping the cargo, about seven miles out. On the way, however, the wind began to freshen, and by the time the Perfumed Clipper got her bearings on the correct wave which marked the dumping place, she was beginning to tumble a trifle. Her commodore, who is nothing if not conscientious over his duty, showed no signs of shrinking, however. He trod his quarter deck like Nelson at Trafalgar, or stood at his post like one of the young heroes of the Birkenhead.

Unforeseen Trouble
Seeing that the weather was getting worse, and realising the chances of risk to his frail and fragrant craft from the rising of a heavy sea, Commodore Macfarlane let go the anchor, and gave orders at once that the dumping ceremony should be started.

Provided with a large pocket handkerchief, though unfortunately minus a respirator, the intrepid commodore himself lent his ready aid in the loosening of the fastenings of the stout doorways which retain the cargo until the sniff yacht reaches the dumping place. But now an unforeseen difficulty arose. Despite strenuous efforts the doors refused to budge. They had got jammed probably swelled a little by the water.

Had a Wretched Time

Rougher and rougher grew the sea while the indefatigable commodore battled to get his duty done. About him on the deck of the sniff yacht in spite of the fresh sea breezes there swirled in aromatic gusts the spicy odors of the clipper's cargo. The result was a most unhappy one for the indefatigable commodore. Beset with all the dismal horrors of mal-de-mer, besides his natural anxiety to ensure the proper performance of his duty, and the safety of the vessel in his charge, he still manfully stayed with the job. It took far longer than it should have been. Drenched with salt spray, chilled, sea-sick, yet still indomitable, Commodore Macfarlane had finally to abandon the attempt to force open the sniff yacht's dumping doors. With shovels the cargo was dumped in toilsome manner, and most unappetising circumstances. But with his colors nailed to the mast though the natural color of his bronzed cheeks was paled, the gallant commodore finished his task, and returned in triumph to the harbor with the sniff yacht proudly stemming the tides behind him.

REDISTRIBUTION WILL BE DELAYED

Final Census Returns Cannot be in Till October—No Bill This Session.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Ottawa, July 20.—In view of a statement made in the House last night there is little prospect of a redistribution bill being brought in this session. Hon. Mr. Fisher told the House that the final figures for the census would not be available before October.

SIR WILFRID'S VINDICATION

Upon his return to Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a great speech. It was a speech of vindication. The Premier vindicated his conduct at the Imperial Conference where he consistently fought for the observance of the principle of colonial self government as the best and only means of developing the strength of the Empire.

Needless to say the speech as a piece of oratory was a masterly vindication. Sir Wilfrid reviewed to his Quebec audience the history of the four Imperial Conferences he had attended, and the work he had taken up. He reviewed the measures that had been presented, his attitude to the various proposals, and the results of the policies he had advocated. Particularly he emphasised the results—the Imperial results—that have followed Sir Wilfrid's requests at the first Imperial Conference, that the treaties between Great Britain and Germany and Great Britain and Belgium be set aside, and that Canada be allowed to negotiate her own treaties.

Sir Wilfrid vindicated his attitude in attacking the proposal of Sir Joseph Ward, Premier of New Zealand, that an Imperial Parliament be set up at Westminster with power to tax the overseas dominions for purposes of defence. He showed how bureaucracy was fatal to the growth of Imperial loyalty—an attitude in which he had the strong support of such Imperial statesmen as Premier Asquith, Mr. Lloyd-George, Hon. Vernon Harcourt and Lord Haldane, as well as the support of the representatives of Australia, South Africa and Newfoundland.

But there is a better vindication than the vindication of spoken words—of which Sir Wilfrid is an acknowledged master. It is the vindication of facts—the vindication of history.

That vindication is brief but potent. Fifteen years ago when Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then plain Mr. Laurier, came to power in Canada, this country was leading an isolated life. In every province were advocates for the policy of "cutting the painter," and finding a refuge under the Stars and Stripes. Canada was looked upon by the people of Great Britain as a country of snow and ice. Only the hardy few found their way to our shores. Our revenues under high taxation amounted to $36,000,000; our commercial revenue was $20,000,000.

Since the year 1896, the commercial revenue has increased to $700,000,000; the government revenue to $100,000,000. Canada is known the world over as a country of wealth and progress and scenic charm. Her people are welcomed in every clime, but in none more than in the capital of the Empire.

The advocates of annexation are either dead or converted. From Europe on the east and from the United States on the south are coming two great and steady streams of immigration. A national spirit has been born, a national literature is in the making. And out of the growth of it has come a new spirit, an Imperial spirit.

Liberty thrives on liberty. Under a policy which has made for freedom of thought and speech, freedom of trade and commerce, and freedom of action within the Imperial circle, Canada during the past fifteen years has grown from being a geographical expression to a self-governing Dominion among the free dominions of the world.

That is the real vindication of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—the vindication of facts, the vindication of history.

BISHOP'S SILVER CUTLERY IS LOST IN THE WAVES

Choir Picnic at Tugwell Island Marred by a Sad Accident—One of the Gentlemen Placed the Cutlery on the Launch's Gunwale for Safety—Then He Stood on it and Tipped the Boat which lay some distance out in deep water, the parcel of cutlery was carefully handled. The gentleman in charge of the parcel placed it on the gunwale of the launch before he left the row boat. Then he stepped on the gunwale of the launch himself, with the result that the launch tipped and the parcel of silverware fell into the water.

A regrettable accident marred the pleasure of the picnic which the choir of St. Andrew's Church held at Tugwell Island on Tuesday afternoon, whereby a quantity of valuable silver cutlery belonging to Bishop DuVernet was sent to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

It appears that after spending an enjoyable day in the surf, followed by a picnic on the beach, the party were preparing to return home. The silver forks and spoons and knives, kindly loaned by Bishop and Mrs. DuVernet were an object of special attention.

Great regret was expressed at the loss, but it was then impossible to recover the parcel. Some of the party are talking of going over to Tugwell Island on Sunday at low water to drag the spot in an attempt to recover the Bishop's silver.

A REMINISCENCE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES

THE ADVENTURE OF THE DEVIL'S FOOT

BY ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1911, by the Century Syndicate

Synopsis

Brenda Tregennis is found dead in her chair at her home in Cornwall, stricken dead with horror. Her two brothers, Owen and George are found insane from horror. What has caused it? The remaining brother Mortimer Tregennis calls in Sherlock Holmes to investigate "the Cornish Horror?" Holmes questions Mortimer Tregennis closely about the details of the affair, but gets little help. So, in company with Dr. Watson he proceeds to the scene of tragedy.

I may have commented upon my friend's power of mental detachment, but never have I wondered at it more than upon that spring morning in Cornwall when for two hours he discoursed upon celts, arrowheads, and shards as lightly as if no sinister mystery was waiting for his solution. It was not until we had returned in the afternoon to our cottage that we found a visitor awaiting us, who soon brought our minds back to the matter in hand. Neither of us needed to be told who that visitor was. The huge body, the craggy and deeply-seamed face with the fierce eyes and hawklike nose, the grizzled hair which nearly brushed our cottage ceiling, the beard—golden at the fringes and white near the lips, save for the nicotine stain from his perpetual cigar—all these were as well known in London as in Africa, and could only be associated with the personality of Dr. Leon Sterndale, the great lion-hunter and explorer.

We had heard of his presence in the district, and had once or twice caught sight of his tall figure upon the moorland paths. He made no advances to us, however, nor would we have dreamed of doing so to him, as it was well known that it was his love of seclusion which caused him to spend the greater part of the intervals between his journeys in a small bungalow buried in the lonely wood of Beauchamp Arriance. Here, amid his books and his maps, he lived an absolutely lonely life, attending to his own simple wants, and paying little apparent heed to the affairs of his neighbors. It was a surprise to me, therefore, to hear him asking Holmes, in an eager voice, whether he had made any advance in his reconstruction of this mysterious episode. "The county police are utterly at fault," said he; "but perhaps your wider experience has suggested some conceivable explanation. My only claim to being taken into your confidence is that during my many residences here I have come to know this family of Tregennis very well—indeed, upon my Cornish mother's side I could call them cousins—and their strange fate has naturally been a great shock to me. I may tell you that I had got as far as Plymouth upon my way to Africa, but the news reached me this morning, and I came straight back again to help in the inquiry."

lice are utterly at fault," said he; "but perhaps your wider experience has suggested some conceivable explanation. My only claim to being taken into your confidence is that during my many residences here I have come to know this family of Tregennis very well—indeed, upon my Cornish mother's side I could call them cousins—and their strange fate has naturally been a great shock to me. I may tell you that I had got as far as Plymouth upon my way to Africa, but the news reached me this morning, and I came straight back again to help in the inquiry."

Holmes raised his eyebrows. "Did you lose your boat through it?" "I will take the next." "Dear me! that is friendship indeed."

"I tell you they were relatives." "Quite so—cousins of your mother. Was your baggage aboard the ship?" "Some of it, but the main part at the hotel."

"I see. But surely this event could not have found its way into the Plymouth morning papers?" "No, sir; I had a telegram."

"Might I ask from whom?" "A shadow passed over the gaunt face of the explorer.

"You are very inquisitive, Mr. Holmes."

"With an effort, Dr. Sterndale recovered his ruffled composure. "I have no objection to telling you," he said. "It was Mr. Roundhay, the vicar, who sent me the telegram which recalled me."

"Thank you," said Holmes. "I may say in answer to your original question, that I have not cleared my mind entirely on the subject of this case, but that I have every hope of reaching some conclusion. It would be premature to say more."

"Perhaps you would tell me if your suspicions point in any particular direction?" "No, I can hardly answer that."

"Then I have wasted my time, and must not prolong my visit." The famous doctor strode out out of the cottage in considerable ill-humour, and within five minutes Holmes had followed him. I saw him no more until evening, when he returned with a slow step and haggard face which assured me that he had made no great progress with his investigation. He glanced at a telegram which awaited him, and threw it into the grate.

"From the Plymouth hotel, Watson," he said. "I learned the name of it from the vicar and I wired to make certain that Dr. Leon Sterndale's account was true. It appears that he did indeed spend last night there, and that he has actually allowed some of his baggage to go on to Africa, while he returned to be present at this investigation. What do you make of that, Watson?" "He is deeply interested."

"Deeply interested—yes. There is a thread here which we have not yet grasped, and which might lead us through the tangle. Cheer up Watson, for I am very sure that our material has not yet all come to hand. When it does, we may soon leave our difficulties behind us."

Little did I think how soon the words of Holmes would be realized, or how strange and sinister would be that new development which opened up an entirely fresh line of investigation. I was shaving at my window in the morning when I heard the rattle of hoofs, and looking up, saw a dogcart coming at a gallop down the road. It pulled up at our door, and our friend the vicar sprang from it and rushed up the garden path. Holmes was already dressed, and we hastened to meet him.

Our visitor was so excited that he could hardly articulate, but at last in gasps and bursts his tragic story came out of him.

"We are devil-ridden, Mr. Holmes! My poor parish is devil-ridden!" he cried. "Satan himself is loose in it! We are given over into his hands!" He danced about in his agitation, a ludicrous object if it were not for his ashy face and startled eyes. Finally he shot out his terrible news.

"Mr. Mortimer Tregennis has died during the night, and with exactly the same symptoms as the rest of his family."

Holmes sprang to his feet, all energy in an instant.

"Can you fit us both into your dogcart?" "Yes, I can."

"Then, Watson, we will postpone our breakfast. Mr. Roundhay, we are entirely at your disposal. Hurry—hurry, before things get disarranged."

WOMEN AND MARRIAGE

The "Marrying for Money" Problem as Seen by a Woman

"How," says Mrs. Francis Graham, "can the average penniless woman, 'deceitful of heart,' naturally, according to the Scriptures, ignorant of logic and ethics, but a past-graduate in poverty, hope to truly distinguish between her love for the man himself and her love for his goods and chattels? Look the world over, and you will find that the man of means doesn't go begging afar for a bride.

"How painful to contemplate. Yet this is the position man has thrust upon woman by hedging her in on every hand and preventing her making her own name and place in life, little reckoning that the whole mean system operates against and punishes himself in the end—as it undoubtedly should—for how could woman do man a deeper wrong than to marry him for his money?

"It is useless to deny that one great cause of discontent in marriage is that woman's financial condition has not kept pace with her mental development; and if woman is dissatisfied how can man be happy? Her predicament reacts upon him every time. It cannot, and should not be otherwise. Indeed, his unhappiness doubtless yet will be the corduroy road upon which she will march to final emancipation.

President Barrow of the Eastern league, has released Umpires Rudderham, Nannon, Black and Pender. Rudderham goes to the Southern league, and Pender goes to the Virginia league.

Bill Squires will return to the ring, having agreed to meet Bill Lang in Sydney next month. When the pair met a year ago Lang gave Squires an awful beating.

Joe Sugden, former Vancouver backstop, ex-big league player, trainer and minor league manager, is spending a few weeks in the South. Rumor has it that he is scouting for one of the National league clubs in the southern circuit.

Alfred Lequesne, a bowler of national reputation, was killed by lightning at Royalton, Ohio. With his wife he was in a hammock under a tree, when the bolt struck him, killing him instantly. His wife fell to the ground unconscious, but was not injured. Lequesne was a member of the Bond team of Cleveland, which broke the world's record at the Buffalo international tournament last winter. He was 42 years old.

Jimmy Williams of the Victoria club is a full-blooded Hawaiian and learned the game in St. Louis College, Honolulu. His work in the island game attracted the attention of American players over there and he was recommended to and signed by Charley Graham of the Sacramento club, who turned the big, dark-skinned fellow over to Householder. Williams has all the earmarks of a promising young pitcher, both speed and curves.

Except signing the articles, everything has been arranged for a match between Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells for the biggest purse ever offered in Great Britain. Johnson is to receive $30,000, win, lose or draw. The sum of $15,000 is to be deposited July 15 and the other $15,000 is to be handed to Johnson an hour before the contest, which is to take place in London, probably in September.

A new track record for six furlongs was hung up in the big race at Minon Park the fourth event at six furlongs. Pride of Lismore, which is at the top of his form right now, stood the rest of the field of five on their heads when he stepped the three-quarters of the mile in 1:12 3-5, two-fifths of a second better than the old mark, held by Fancy. Daddy Gip was a length and a half behind the winner, while Thistle Belle nosed Ada Meade out of the show money. Jessup burn was left at the post and was outrun all the way, though he closed stoutly.

LADY FOLJAMBE IS DISCOVERED

English Peers who Jilted Her Fiance on Wedding Day Turns up in Yorkshire Village.

(Special Cable from N. Y. World) London, July 16.—Lady Constance Foljambe, who sensationally disappeared on her wedding day, presented herself as a witness at the inquest at Malton, Yorkshire, of the farm lad whose death was attributed to ill treatment by his master. Lady Constance looked worn and nervous. She betrayed great nervousness while testifying pulling at the fingers of her gloves all the time.

She came with a woman friend and motored away immediately when her testimony was concluded. She is staying at a small village on the Yorkshire coast.

A reporter asked her for an explanation of her jilting her fiance. She appealingly said: "Oh, don't ask me anything, let it be forgotten."

HOTELS HAD TO USE CAMP FIRES

Break in Watermain Prevented Kitchen Stoves from Being Used, but Chefs Refused to Be Beaten and Served Excellent Meals.

Consternation reigned in the kitchens of two of the most popular hotels in the city this morning, but the patrons of the dining rooms of these welcoming hostleries would never guess that the substantial and excellent meals served had been cooked under most unusual circumstances over the camp fire, so to speak, in the hotel yards.

Ballasting operations at the wharf depot had somehow caused a break in the G. T. P. watermain, and the whole supply had to be cut off temporarily to enable repairs to be made. The mishap occurred at the most unfortunate time possible for the cooks, but with all the energy (and some of the language) of true born pioneers, they got busy, kindled camp fires out of doors, and managed to serve the meals triumphantly on time.

The shutting off of the water made it impossible to keep fires going in the stoves in case of boiler explosions. Efforts were made to have the supply restored as quickly as possible.

BALLASTING WHARF DEPOT

Railway Begins to Look Solidly Prosperous Now to Passengers.

Ballasting of the railway right in Prince Rupert at the Wharf Depot, is actively progressing today. The finished lines will look very substantial and permanent, and will give a great air of solid railroad prosperity to the city to give a good impression to visitors here just off the boats. General Superintendent Mehan was supervising the work this morning.

A Rocky Road Ahead for Poor Printing

Every bit of good printing done for your competitor makes the poor printing or the ordinary printing which you are "using" because you have it, more certainly and inevitably harmful to your business.

For this is the day and the hour and the vogue of distinctive, good printing. And it does, usually, cost somewhat more of course—in "first cost." After that it doesn't "cost"—it "pays."
